BASEBALL

Following are the Canadian League managers for 1914:

Ottawa—Frank Shaughnessy.
London—"Doc" Reisling.
Toronto—Eddie Holly.
Peterborough—"Curley" Blount.
St. Thomas—"Midge" Craven.
Brantford—"Rube" Deneau.
Hamilton—Not selected.
Erie—Jas. Breckenridge.

Speaking of the appointment of "Curley" Blount as manager of the Peterborough team the Youngstown, O., Vindicator, says:

"Blount made a visit to Peterborough last week and had a conference with the team owners. He declared he was pleased with the Canadian city and believes that they will have a profitable season. The Canadians are to be congratulated upon securing the services of the local man. Blount is a dependable .300 hitter, and speedy on the sacks. The best wishes of a host of friends will accompany the hustling little boss to his new job."

At the special general meeting of the Peterborough Baseball Club Limited, called for the 26th inst., a sufficient number of shareholders were present to transact business, but, in view of the important matters at issue (leasing or selling the franchise), it was decided to adjourn the meeting until Friday night next, the 30th inst., at 8 o'clock, in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, when a more representative turn-out is expected.

It is to the interest of every shareholder to attend Friday night's meeting.

A large attendance of those interested is expected at Friday night's important meeting.

Willard Meikle, the giant twirler from Seattle, has signed with the Boston Braves. Meikle is 23 years old and stands 6 feet 3 inches.

Baseball fans of Marinette, Wis., are raising a fund with which to buy the Fond du Lac franchise in the Wisconsin-Illinoise League.

Tommy McDermott, an old-time ball player of Bridgeport, Conn., has been selected to manage the Poughkeepsie team the coming season.

The new Federal league park in Indianapolis will have a seating capacity of 23,000. The plant will be enclosed by a 12-foot steel fence.

Manager Jennings of the Detroit Tigers believes he has signed a real ball player in Marty Kavanagh. Marty starred last season with the York team in the Tri-State league.

Although the Red Sox are a bit slow in getting under cover this year, Manager Carrigan is confident he will have all his men in line before the first of March.

A re-union of men who played baseball forty years ago was held recently in Arlington, a suburb of Boston. Fourteen old-time ball teams were represented at the gathering.

Raleigh Atchison, star twirler of the International league, who balked at signing a contract with Brooklyn last fall, has fallen in line. He has signed with the Superbas for one year.

A young pitcher whom the Federal league has been trying to sign has written to an American league club as follows: "I had some of those April fool Fed magnates talking to me about signing up, but I refused to take any chances with leagues with nervous pay-days and who sign their checks with vanishing inks."

An Erie, Pa., exchange, has the following:

George H. O'Neil, who has been granted permission to put a Canadian league team in Erie, has not yet reached the city, although he has been expected since the meeting of the league last Monday. When he does arrive in Erie it will be in the final effort to make satisfactory arrangements for the players of league ball at Perry field.

O'Neill was a former director and large stockholder in the London club of the Canuck circuit, but since he purchased the franchise which he expects to put in Erie he has disposed of his holdings and resigned from the board of directors of the ball club in the Canadian city. All his time will be given to providing Erie with good baseball, the London Advertiser says.

While other managers in the Canadian organization are signing players for the 1914 whirl, Erie still remains in a doubtful condition. If O'Neill is coming to make arrangements his delay is probably hampering the signing of men who can play the brand of baseball which local fans have been familiar with.

The sporting editor of the Advertiser doubts that a salary limit over $1,400, exclusive of manager, can be agreed upon by most of the teams. Just what sort of teams could be secured for that sum is problematical. Erie fans have been accustomed to a better grade of ball, and if the league is given class B rating, there is no reason why the limit shouldn't be increased to $2,200 or $2,500, exclusive of the manager.

Larry Quintan, manager of the Sailors last year, and already suggested as pilot of the 1914 Sailors, has signed with the Terre Haute team of the Central league. While he was anxious to again come to Erie, the leader of the pennant grabbers couldn't afford to trust to luck too long, and as matters here seem a long way from a crisis, he affixed his signature to the Terriers' contract.

In Hamilton a new stock company is being formed to take over the club in that city, and popular subscription is the plan employed. Eddie Holly, a popular player is slated as play boss for the coming camaign.

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 28.— Judging from the calibre of managers who are being signed up to pilot Canadian league clubs in the new class B organization this season, there is little left for the fans but a much improved article of ball.

In looking over the list of leaders there is not one man out of the probable eight managers who has not had experience in the leagues higher than class B, and this circuit will command still further watching on the part of the big leagues as a probable locality to find promising youngsters.

This league is looked upon as one of the best in minor ball as a developer of young ball players, as little or no attention is paid to the cast-offs who are slipping.

Manager Frank Shaughnessy, of the Ottawas, twice champions, has the distinction of winning a pennant in class B with Fort Wayne, previous to his coming to the Canadian league. The newly-elected leader of the London club, "Doc" Reisling, has managed in all classes of leagues but a major, and worked in both of these as a pitcher for nearly five years. "Rube" Deneau, the probable leader of the Brantford team, is capable and should do well, being just a shade better than class C managers. "Curly" Blount, who was just selected to lead the Peterborough club, was leader of the 1913 Youngstown Inter-State league, and finished next to Erie, and, according to "Midge" Craven, will be popular in this league. Craven, with St. Thomas, won a pennant for Grand Rapids in the Central league, and is also capable of providing a fast class C team for the Saints.

The Hamilton and Toronto managers will undoubtedly be former big league players, and the game will boom in these two good baseball loving cities under those conditions.

Last of all, the Erie club will be strong, as lines are out to land a former Pacific Coast pitcher, named Brackenridge, to manage the Sailors in the Gem city this coming season, and with what players the club has on the reserve list, is sure to make more than an ordinary stir in the new venture.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 28.—"Midge" Craven has finally been promoted to the managerial berth of the St. Thomas ball team, and the deal has been sealed with seven or eleven seals. He took his trusty quil in hand the other evening and appended his signature to the document. He is now engaged in the business of gathering up his team.

Craven is a graduate of the University of Hard Knocks, and knows his way about without the need of a guide. He started his ball career in 1905 with Woodstock, in the Canadian league, with which club Glad Graney, Bert Daniels, of the New York Americans, Heine Steiger who went up, and looked the scenery over, and others who made good elsewhere, played. He went to the Central league, played with South Bend. He was tarnsferred to the Grand Rapids club, being appointed manager. He won the pennant, too. In 1912 he came to Berlin at the tail end of the season, and last year played with St. Thomas.

He is a resourceful player, has more tricks than an educated flea, is always looking for a weakness, and when he sees it he takes advantage of it; is popular with players and fans, and should have the quality of leadership. The St. Thomas management are giving him every chance, and "Midge" has a great opportunity.

"I am pleased with the start made," said Craven. "We have the nucleus of a grand team, and you can count on us being right up near the surface when the bell rings. Our field is shot to pieces, but we have a bunch of good men in sight, and we should easily round out the inner works satisfactorily.

"Our pitching staff is the best in the league. I am looking forward to a big year with Bill Baker. That boy has everything but confidence in his control. When he gets that, look out. I would not trade him for any pitcher in the league. He should do mighty well. In Wilkinson, Hughey, Reilly, Howick and Clements we have five good men. The outfield looks first-class and I am not worrying about that end of it. We will have good catchers. I am well pleased with the prospects, as I am confident that our team will be well up in the race. We will give the people good ball and we should do."

Craven is of the opinion that Erie will take to Canadian league ball. It will suit them in every particular, he declares.

"The ball we furnish will be as good as they are accustomed to," declared "Midge." I have played down there, and I know. In the Central league they do not play any faster, although they might play a little more consistent. They will soon forget about the league they lost and will be shouting for out side. I have no fears about that end of it."

FIRE FIGHTING DEMONSTRATION

Added to the water already running on George Street, the eight lines of hose playing on the main thoroughfare for two hours this afternoon for the annual test of the Underwriters' Association, caused the civic officials considerable anxiety.

Mr. E. W. Wilson, Inspector for the Association, arrived in the City at noon to-day, and getting in communication with Mayor Buller, rang in an alram from Box 23. Within the space of a couple of minutes the Fire Brigade arrived and connected up a couple lines of hose. Then, one after another the hose were connected up until eight streams were playing on George Street. The pressure ran up to 65 pounds per sq. inch, and the test, as far as demonstrating the efficiency of the fire fighting equipment and the brigade, was a success.

But before the eight streams had been running long, reports came to City Engineer Parsons that the cellars of the stores along George Street were being flooded. After investigation, the City Engineer approached Mr. Wilson and said with considerable emphasis:

"You'll have to shut the water off. The cellars of the stores along George Street are being flooded."

"Well, open up some of the drains, we're not going to shut the water off," answered Mr. Wilson.

"No; the water must be turned off. We had no warning of this thing and I can't get hold of my men as they are busy all over the City."

"The drains should be open a day like to-day" was the reply, and the City Engineer turned away to do what he could to remedy conditions. He, himself, took a hand in the work on Hunter Street.

The cellar of E. L. Payne and other of the George Street stores were flooded and the damage done will amount, it is thought, to several hundred dollars. Some dry goods in front of Dickson's [illegible] came in line with a [illegible] of water from the hose and may be damaged.

AUTOMATIC BOOK RECORDING MACHINE EXPLAINED

W. C. Hunter, representing the Elliott-Fisher Book Recording Machine Company, waited upon the County Council this morning and pointed out reasons why this machine should be secured for the County Registry Office. It is the only machine on the market which writes in a bound book. It will save the county 30 p.c. of its book cost. There were 15 books purchased last year at $16 a book. Only $10 or $11 would be required for books for this machine since cross ruling is rendered unnecessary. If 15 books were used last year, five would serve if the machine were used on account of the compactness of the writing compared with hand work. All but six counties in the province have purchased them, and the price is only $277.30.—Referred to the Property committee.

CHARGED WITH GAMBLING ON SUNDAY LAST

The Chief was not ready to go on with the case so the three young men were remanded for a week.

A SURPRISE PARTY

A surprise party was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. L. Armour, 146 Rubidge Street in honour of Mr. Arthur Farr on the eve of his departure to Amsterdam, U.S.A., where he is taking a position. A very enjoyable evening was spent. After games and music, refreshments were served.

NOT IN FAVOUR OF POLICE WOMAN

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—in your last evening's edition, my name was included as part of a deputation appointed by the combined Men's Bible Classes, to wait on the City Council re the appointment of a City Police-Woman.

I regret that I was unable to attend above meeting, and whilst my name was added, I believe, in good faith, I regret I cannot serve in that capacity. I am desirous of doing anything that lies in my power, for the uplift of our citizens, yet I do not consider the appointment of a "Police-Woman" would have the good effect to be desired. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space, I am,

Yours, etc.,
A. Kingdon.

MR. KENDRY'S NEW SONG MAKES A BIG HIT

Mr. Herb. Kendry's new song, "Bald Eagle of the U.S.A." is attracting considerable attention across the border and seems destined to attain wide popularity. Mr. Kendry has written several successful songs, including "Nought But Bright Lights Left For Me." Speaking of his latest song, the Buffalo Evening Times says:

Ontario Man Writes a Song Dedicated to President Wilson.

To have a song written and dedicated to one by a subject of another country is the honour accorded to Hon. Woodrw Wilson, President of the United States.

The song, "Bald Eagle of the U.S.," the words and music of which were written by Herbert Kendry of Peterboorugh, Ontario, is a catchy piece of work, with plenty of tuneful music and enlightening words, praising the eagle "that guards the heritage of each brave sire." The song was written in honour of, and dedicated to, President Wilson, by Mr. Kendry, who is an admirer of the chief executive of the United States.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION FOR THIS PROVINCE

Eloquent Address Delivered by Dr. J. W. Robertson Before the Canadian Club Last Night in Which Canadian Educational Institutions Were Compared With Those of Other Countries.

OUTLINED POSSIBILITIES FOR THIS CITY

Seventy-five members of the Canadian Club listened with rapt attention to the address of Dr. Robertson at the Canadian Club banquet last night on "Industrial Training and Technical Education."

The banquet was provided by Coleman Bros., and the dinner was held in the grill room of their establishment. Mr. G. C. Wainwright was chairman. After the address Messrs. V. Eastwood, Dr. Cameron and S. Keyes, spoke expressing the gratitude of those present to the speaker.

His address was as follows:

Too often, and too much, the eyes of public men and the people generally are fixed exclusively upon some local political programme. The vocational training of all the people to be contributing earners, good citizens and worthy members of the race, is really the world's greatest movement at the present time. All the foremost nations feel the ardour of its grasp.

In the freshness and vigour of its youth, Canada turns readily to questions of material growth and development. Canadians feel that they are coming into their own. Yet their attention and imagination are captivated by wealth in things more than their hearts are stirred by the possession of power, with knowledge and desire to use it wisely. With all the fine attributes which belong to youth, the country has many of its handicaps and dangers. Hence the urgency for educational experience by training which will be adequate not only for material progress, but for the enjoyments of its achievements, and for the real advancements of their intellectual, social and spiritual interests and outlook.

What There is to Develop.

The chief object of development (a rather omnibus blanket work) is to secure the best use of things for the present and to leave them in the best condition for the future, to attain the est characters in the people and provide the best quality of life and opportunities for their successors.

The query may be asked, "What has Eastern Ontario to develop?" Only a few important things can be enumerated on any one occasion. In what may be called material resources it has farms, mines, forests, manufactures, commerce and transportation; and with and above the material and immaterial it has the making of homes and the carrying on of housekeeping.

Intelligent and Trained Labour.

The development of labour for the carrying on and carrying out of undertakings in connection with the natural resources is the most important duty and at the present time pressing upon the people for discharge. It presses upon the people as individual and communities and in their capacity as an organized Provincial Government.

What is required is that the individual worker shall possess intelligence, practical ability and co-operating good will. These are not inherited, they are acquired by education and technical training. They always have been so acquired since the beginnings of civilization. In recent years changed and changing conditions have required new means and the use of new instrumentalities. In modern literature these means have been called, "Vocational Training."

Education For Occupants and Education by Occupations.

Vocational education is the oldest form of education and it is still the highest form of education. It may be professional as for clergymen, lawyers, doctors, civil engineers, etc., or it may be agricultural, industrial, marine, commercial, or for housekeeping occupations.

The consideration of a policy involves the examination of a plan or means whereby development can be immediately carried forward along desirable lines. In a general sense the word education includes vocational training, but in the more specific meaning of the term vocational training means the development of education by additional ladder modifications and extensions. Hitherto the so-called educational ladder had only one place for its top and that where only a comparatively small number of men are required in the public interest. Hereafter the top of the ladder will be in every kind of institution where a man or woman is needed for efficient service in agricultural work, in industrial work, commercial work, or housekeeping work.

The institutions to be affected by this development are elementary schools, secondary schools, and the higher institutions such as colleges and universities. In the process of development all that is good shall be conserved, only what is necessary should be added and provision made for all the people and all the occupations. Occupations have always played a large part in the drama of civilization. That refers to the occupation of plain people as well as the training occupations of great personalities. In literature the great names are recorded with a statement also of the occupation which was part of the experience of preparation for great and enduring social services. When one thinks of Abraham, Moses and David, one is reminded of the farmer and keeper of sheep, and now the race has been comforted and benefitted by the words of the poem, "The Lord is MMy Shepherd." Shakespeare was an actor by occupation before he was a poet. Burns was a ploughman before he became the voice of the soul of a nation. Our whole civilization moves under the influence of the fishermen of Galilee, the tent-maker of Tarsus, and above all the Carpenter of Nazareth.

Effect on the Workman.

When properly trained for his job one of the first effects observable is that the workman likes his work, understands it, has ability to do it well, and therefore is sure of obtaining reasonably good returns. The finest and highest of such developments are in the character of the man, on his managing ability, and on the spirit and methods of co-operating with his fellows and others in the community.

The Judgment of Canada.

The Royal Commission on Industrial Training and Technical Education visited 10 places in Canada held 175 sessions to receive testimony and made transcripts of the evidence of 1,471 men and women. Some of those occupy the foremost positions in industries, agriculture, housekeeping, and educational work. The needs of the growing population of Canada as stated by those witnesses may be summarized as:

First—Hand-training and pre-vocational education in the common schools after the age of 12 to reveal the bent of the child's ability to itself, to its parents and to its teacher.

Second—Something in the school classes to make boys and girls want to continue at school as long as they can.

Third—Some provision in the way of secondary industrial and technical education for those who can continue at school from 12 to 16.

Fourth—Continuation classes to be attended while young people are following some occupation to earn their living.

Fifth—Evening classes for workmen and workwomen.

Sixth—Middle technical schools to which men and women can come back for periods of from six months to two years.

In addition to these the witnesses presented the claims of the rural population and fishing population for schools specially adapted to their needs. All were agreed upon the necessity for and certain of the benefit from classes and schools for housekeeping occupation. any witnesses recommended the establishment of correspondence study classes by central institutions in Canada.

Examples of Recent Progress.

In recent years considerable additions have been made to elementary education by the introduction of manual training, domestic science and nature study with school gardens. These are for culture purposes, have reference to the occupations of the pupils and are carried on with advantage to their progress in other studies. The benefits claimed for pre-vocational classes in other countries are as follows: They sustain the interest of the pupils, in school work, they discover to pupils, teachers and parents the bents, tastes and aptitudes of the scholars and they develop a preference for following some skilled employment. They make children desire further education after they have begun to partly earn their living. They do not hinder progress in other subjects of education.

Examples of pre-vocational schools in other countries were mentioned. Within the last seven or eight years the movement has taken on a very wide sweep in England. Children from 11 to 12 who are to leave school at 13 or 14 go to schools or classes having what is called an industrial bias, housekeeping bias, etc. At these schools from one-third to one-half of the time is devoted to manual constructive work. The schools do not teach a trade, but give a good preparation for the learning of a trade immediately after the children leave school.

What Other Countries Are Doing.

In England, Scotland, Ireland, the United States, France and Germany, such classes or schools have made remarkable progress within the last ten years. In Scotland the growth has been from 162 schools with 3,261 pupils, to 1,945 schools with an attendance of 83,287 pupils. Its growth has been over twelve fold in ten years.

In European countries these schools or classes do not displace general education. The classes themselves are called "supplementary courses." That is the term also used in France where boys of 18 give about fifteen hours a week to general subjects and 20 hours to manual and constructive subjects. Girls in France enter these schools at about 12 years of age and give one-half of the school time to general subjects and the other half to hand work in some form of vocational work. After the hand work for boys was introduced into the schools of Munich, of the 2,200 obys who left school the first year thereafter, no less than 2,150 went at once into hand work in skilled employments.

Such classes have so much increased the interest of boys and girls in their own continued education that in the City of Halifax, England, more than 60 per cent. of all the boys and girls who left school at 14 voluntarily came back for continuation classes in the evenings. In smaller places the attendance at these continuation vocational classes is as much as 5 per cent. of the total population of the town.

Dominion Grants-in-Aid.

The cost of carrying on such newer branches of education as Experimental Science, Manual Training, Domestic Science, Nature Study and Pre Vocational work with tools and materials is relatively high. These subjects were not in sight or contemplated at the time of Confederation, when the Provinces accepted the responsibility of providing and maintaining education. In view of these facts, of the public benefit which would result from such studies and of the indispensable preparation which they would give for Technical Instruction, the Commission recommends that a fund of at least $350,000 be provided by the Dominion Government and paid to the several Provinces pro rata on the basis of the population. That amount is separate from and in addition to the sum of $3,000,000 which the Commission recommends should be provided by the Dominion Parliament to assist the Provinces in providing industrial training and technical education for the youths of the Province after the age of 14.

Lessons From Abroad.

The Commission in its inquiries abroad sought to learn all that would be useful to Canada without expecting to discover schools or systems which could be copied in their entirety in Canada with advantage. After a survey of what is being attempted in other countries, intimate discussions with the leaders of education in those countries and a thorough study of the whole subject, the Commission endeavoured to combine in the recommendations of its report the best features of each and all into a "Dominion Development Policy for Canada." These provisions were discussed at some length by the speaker, who intimated that any one sincerely interested in the work of the Commission could obtain a copy of the report for themselves on application to the Minister of Labour at Ottawa, to whom the report had been presented by the Commission.

Example From Ireland.

While the increase of attendance at continuation classes in Scotland has been 63 p.c. in eight years, the development of vocational education for industrial workers has been still more notable in Ireland. In 1909 there were only about 2,000 pupils in industrial continuation schools, chiefly in the north of Ireland; by 1910 there were 85,909 pupils enrolled under the schemes of the Technical Instruction branch. Besides these there were many thousands attending classes under the itinerant instructors of the Agricultural Branch.

The amount of Government funds devoted to this work in 1909-10 was $1,294,000, in addition to the sum of $422,000 raised by local rates. Funds from Imperial sources pay practically 75 p.c. of the cost of maintenance.

Instance of Development in Farming.

As an example of what is practicable under Ontario conditions for the improvement of agriculture, Dr. Robertson cited some specific cases from the Illustration Farms carried on under the Committee on Lands of the Commission on Conservation. These illustration Farms were chosen by groups of farmers themselves. The Illustration Farmer is the one of themselves who has agreed to carry on his farm work for his personal advantage and for the improvement of the farming of the neighbourhood. He receives about six visits per year from counsellors employed by the Commission of Conservation. The members of the Neighbourhood Improvement Association of the locality also go over his farm twice a year and discuss with him the methds of growing crops and the management of the business.

$10 Per Acre of Additional Profit.

From Waterloo County, as the result of after-harvest cultivation carried out as advised, the Illustration Farmer reported a yield of 15 bushels of oats per acre more than the yield on the other part of the same field managed in the old way. He reported an increase of 3 tons of sugar beets per acre, worth $16. Other Illustration Farmers reported increases of oats of from 8 to 10 bushels per acre. One farmer in Eastern Ontario reported that his crop of oats for stock-feeding purposes was two-thirds greater on the part of the field managed according to the suggestions of the Commission on Conservation than on the remainder of the field. In brief, taking the Illustration Farms in the Province of Ontario, the reports show that the farmers themselves, on he areas which they managed according to the recommendations of the Commission, obtained an average of about $10 per acre of profits above what they were making by the old methods—$10 per acre of increase in profits, not in gross revenue.

Provisions Recommended.

The report recommends special provisions for industrial training and technical education under three main headings—"For those who are to continue at school in urban communities"; "for those who have gone to work in urban communities," and "for rural communities." Some of the provisions already exist as for example, the day and evening technical classes at different places throughout the Province. The proposal is that such as these are to be enlarged and extended to meet all the needs of all the occupations.

In all the Provinces there is evidence of progress. The Provincial Governments are not only responding to the demands on them as far as their revenues permit, but they are leading, encouraging and guiding the local communities. Where most progress has been made in general education, there the advancement of vocational education is the most wanted. The needs are chiefly three — Money, specific information, and enlightened public opinion. Hitherto support has come from local rates, county grants, and provincial grants. The Royal Commission recommends that hereafter these should be supplemented by a substantial annual grant from the Dominion treasury for the specific purpose of the development of the people of Canada through industrial training and industrial education.

The opinions of those who appeared before the Commission were unanimous as to the need of financial assistance in some form from the Dominion Government. The form in which it should be provided was not defined but the Commission presented an outline of a policy by which cooperation between the Dominion and the Provinces might be effected without the least interference with the control of education by the Provincial Governments as provided for by the British North America Act. The chief principles which the Commission stated as governing their recommendations were as follows:

The Underlying Principles.

The Commission is of the opinion that Industrial Training and Technical Education in order to be of the greatest benefit to individuals, to industrial development, to localities, to the several Provinces, and to the Dominion as a whole, should be organized and maintained in accordance with the following principles:

1. It should be under Provincial control and regulation.

2. It should receive financial support from individuals, from local authorities, from Provincial Governments and from the Dominion.

3. Provision should be made for active participation in its control, management and direction by individuals in the locality who would represent industries as employers and employees, agriculture, women's occupations, particularly housekeeping, business and organized education.

4. It should provide educational opportunities for those who have gone to work and also for those who are able to return and devote their time for some months or years, as the case may be, to a course or courses of instruction and training.

5. It should take provision to ensure, as far as practicable, equality of opportunity for all preparing for industrial, agricultural and housekeeping occupations and for workers in such occupations.

6. It should be carried out in cordial co-operation with existing systems of education, and in such a way as to have the advantage of the use of existing buildings, equipment and teaching staff so far as these may be suitable and available.

Provincial Revenues Inadequate.

The revenues of the several Provinces for all purposes are derived, at the present time, to the extent of som ten and one-quarter million dollars, from subsidies from the Dominion.

The several Provinces, from their comparatively slender revenues, have to maintain public srvices of prime importance. On them falls the administration of Justice, and the maintenance of civil rights. The care of the public domain, as well as roads and bridges, is a charge on their purse. They are responsible for the organization and supervision of municipal government. And heaviest of all are their payments for the organization, administration and support of general education. None of these Provincial services can be neglected or starved without severe national injury. All the Provinces are doing about all they can with the means they have. Where is the money to come from for this new, important and highly advantageous public service by means of vocational training?

The Royal Commission recommends that in addition to any other subsidy that may be provided, the sum of $3,000,000 per annum should go into a Dominion Development Fund, to be spent by local and Provincial authorities cooperating with the Dominion authorities for the purposes indicated. The Dominion Government has already indicated its ability and readiness to cooperate with the Provinces for development work, as shown in the Agricultural

Some Ball Game.

The several members of the family had been telling what they would do if they owned the world. Mother would abolish poverty. Father would provide absolute justice for all. Sister Sarah would give every woman the vote. Finally the views of ten-year-old Johnny were sought.

"What 'ud I do if I owned the world?" said he, looking up from a geography he had been studying. "Well, I'll tell you what I'd do. First I'd get old Atlas to sign up two baseball teams among his brothers and cousins; then I'd lay out a diamond on the desert of Sahara, put the Rocky mountains around it for a fence, give the players the moon for a ball and the north pole for a bat, and, say, maybe I wouldn't sit on top of Pikes peak and see some ball game!"—Judge.

Knew He Was Honest.

A man who kept a small shop was waiting on a single customer early one morning. His little boy and he were alone at the time, and the shopkeeper was obliged to go upstairs for some change. Before doing so he whispered to the little chap to watch the customer to see that he didn't steal anything.

Very soon the proprietor returned with the necessary change, and the boy sang out, "He didn't steal anything, pa; I watched him!"

Rats.

In America it is estimated that the number of rats is nearly equal to the population, but they are not nearly as dangerous or destructive as the rats found in many of the foreign countries and are more easily exterminated. It is estimated by Professor Elliott that there are 40,000,000 rats in the British Isles. India's population is outnumbered by rats to the extent of four rats to each human being.

Consulting His Comfort.

"You encourage your boy to use slang?"

"Well, I don't exactly encourage him. But I must admit that he causes me less personal annoyance than my daughter, who is constantly criticising my grammar."—Washington Star.

WALL PAPERINGS.

Black and White a Tempting Combination to Decorators.

"For those who must paper their walls there are many suggestions," says Elsie De Wolfe, the interior decorator.

"Among the most enchanting of the new papers," says the author, "are the black and white ones, fantastic Chinese designs and startling Austrian patterns. Black and white is always a tempting combination to the decorator, and now that Josef Hoffman, the great Austrian decorator, has been working in black and white for a number of years the more venturesome decorators of France and England and America have begun to follow his lead and are using black and white and black and color with amazing effect. We have black papers patterned in color and black velvet carpets and white coated papers sprinkled with huge black polka dots and all manner of unusual things. It goes without saying that much of this fad is freakish, but there is also much that is good enough and refreshing enough to last. One can imagine nothing fresher than a black and white scheme in a bedroom, with a saving neutrality of gray or some dull tone for rugs and a brilliant bit of color in porcelain. There is no hint of the mournful in the decorator's combination of black and white; rather, there is a naive quality suggestive of smartness in a gown or chic in a woman. A white walled room with white woodwork and a black and white tiled floor, a black lacquer bed and chest of drawers and chair, glass curtains of white muslin and inside ones of black and white Hoffman chintz, a splash of warm orange red in an oval rug at the bedside if it be winter or a cool green one in summer—doesn't this tempt you?"

FOR THE HANDY GIRL.

Three Piece Fur Sets Which Are Easily Put Together.

One charmingly pretty girl is wearing this season a smart three piece set of furs—hat, neckpiece and muff—of dark blue taffeta and dyed blue fox fur, cunningly put together, yet in reality so simple that any woman can make one like it.

The little toque has an upper crown of fur peeping out of swirling folds of the taffeta, which is brought around to form a standing up bow in front. Any girl can wear a hat like that and look alluring in it.

The neckpiece is a simple flat strip of fur set in a plaited frill of taffeta, with long taffeta streamers which tie in a loose knot.

And the muff! The muff is the chicest you ever saw. It is triangular in shape, very wide at the top and tapering gradually to a point which makes it longer than even the average large muff. The taffeta, which forms the entire back, is brought around over the fur front in a very large flat bow. A big silk tassel finishes the tapering point, and there you are! Truly, we are not only furs, but furbelows, this winter.

Both the muff and the neckpiece of the opossum set seen in the cut are built against a background of black velvet. Two animal skins form the neckpiece, the paws being joined across the front.

Turkish Towel Mittens.

Take an old Turkish towel or new toweling and cut and make large mittens from it. Keep a pair in the bathroom, hung behind the tub with tapes. After taking a bath slip on these mittens and clean the tub out. They can be used when cleaning the bowl, toilet or tub, as they save the hands and are better than a brush or rag.

Round Steak With Tomatoes.

Gently simmer a round steak with some stewed tomatoes and suitable seasoning until tender. As a broiled meat a round steak, owing to its toughness, is hardly a success, but it will be perfectly tender if simmered slowly, not boiled.

Winning the Victoria Cross.

This is the story of the act of gallantry for which Lieutenant Roberts won the V. C. at Khodagunje. After a pursuit which had continued for nearly five miles a body of mutineers had been overtaken, who faced about and fired into the squadron at close quarters. Roberts saw Younghusband fall, but could not go to his assistance, as at that moment one of his sowars was in dire peril from a sepoy who was attacking him with a fixed bayonet, and had he not helped the man and disposed of his opponent he must have been killed. Roberts then descried a sepoy making off with a standard and rode after the rebels and overtook them, and while wrenching the staff out of the hands of one of them, whom he cut down, was nearly killed by another man who put his musket close to his body, but the weapon fortunately missed fire, and he carried off the standard.—Cornhill Magazine.

Water From the Yangtze.

There is a saying in China that to make a perfect cup of tea you must take leaves from Mingshan and water from the Yangtze. No one supposed the actual turbid river water to be meant, but no one could explain the proverb until De Rosthorn, who wrote an interesting treatise on Chinese tea, solved the problem or thought he did.

De Rosthorn was once crossing the Yangtze near its mouth, at Chenkiang, when he saw some men in a boat dipping water into buckets. He inquired why they did that and was told that at the bottom of the bay there was a spring, remembered since the time when the present river bed was dry land, and that this spring water was highly esteemed in cookery. Here then, he concluded, he had found that special water of the Yangtze which, with Mingshan leaves, made the best cup of tea in the world.

She could swing a six pound dumbbell,
She could fence and she could box,
She could row upon the river,
She could clamber 'mong the rocks,
She could golf from morn till evening
And play tennis all day long,
But she couldn't help her mother
'Cause she wasn't very strong.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

AN ACT OF KINDNESS

And Its Infinite Results

By ALAN C. TROWBRIDGE

Being in for a siege of typhoid fever, I was taken to a hospital, thinking that I would receive better care there than anywhere else. Indeed, it was necessary in my case, for I was boarding at the time and had no home to go to. For several weeks I was too ill to realize much and after that convalesced very slowly. My nurse was an unattractive person, who did not seem to me to be fitted for her calling. She was snappish, tyrannical and devoid of that sympathy that a nurse should show for her charge.

How I wished that I had a mother or sister to come in and see me once in awhile, to take my hand in hers, smooth my hair and look down with kindly eyes into mine! But my mother had been dead several years and my only sister had a family of her own in a distant city to look after and could not come to me. Not having either of these comforts, my next wish was that my nurse would keep away from me.

When I became well enough to read I was given newspapers and periodicals. I knew where they came from, for I had seen the boxes at railway terminals with a notice painted on them, "Please deposit newspapers here for patients in the hospitals." Many a bit of reading matter had I thrown into one of these boxes after being done with it, but too much occupied with my own affairs to think about the possible comfort it might give to some discouraged invalid.

One morning I was given a newspaper to read, and on the margin of the first page was written in pencil, the handwriting being feminine, the following:

My Dear Invalid—How I pity you confined in a hospital this bright morning when I am so well and so contented! It seems that I must go and spend a part of the day taking your burden and giving you my comfort. Keep up a good heart.

The writer had signed her initials and written something below it, which she had marked out, evidently on second thought, by running her pencil over it.

I strained my eyes trying without success to read the postscript through the lines that had been drawn over it.

SHE SAW THE MESSAGE WRITTEN IN HER OWN HANDWRITING.

I held it up between me and the window and saw enough of it to convince me that the donor had written her initials and her address. I could make out the initials E. D. C., but the address had been too faintly written to be legible through the scratches. However, I tore off the message and hid it under my pillow, and when the ward was deserted except by the patients it contained I got out of bed and, going to an electric lamp, held the paper up between me and the light. Then I read the address, 63 Prospect avenue.

I was as full of glee as if I had discovered a gold mine, for, though no city or town was given, I was sure of where Prospect avenue was. It was a prominent dwelling street in B., a suburb of the city in which I was at the time. I lived in B. myself and was employed in town, coming and going every day. I had myself dropped newspapers into the very box that this woman had dropped the one that had reached me.

I had new light on the subject in another respect. The postscript read, "If I can be of service to you let me know." If an elderly woman had written this she would have been likely to let it stand. If a young girl had written it she would naturally be fearful that it might bring a complication with some man and would be inclined to erase it. Indeed, it would be like a girl to write it and then erase it. I did not doubt that when I recovered and kept a watch on 63 Prospect avenue in the town of B. I would see a young girl going and coming.

But we seldom do things as we think we will do them. When I was discharged from the hospital it was in early autumn, and my physician sent me off to the mountains to recoup before assuming my regular duties. By the time I returned to B. some months had elapsed, and, on making inquiries as to who lived at 63 Prospect avenue, I learned that the family had gone abroad for the winter. But I learned that the name was Carleton and that E. D. C. stood for Edith D. Carleton, a young lady of eighteen. I asked different persons whether she was comely or homely and received different replies. Some said she was plain and some that she was neither good nor bad looking, some that she was rather pretty and a few that she was beautiful. I learned afterward that these persons saw her through eyes that interpreted her differently.

Not getting strength as rapidly as I could have wished, I determined not to go back to business for awhile, but take a trip abroad. At least this is what I tried to persuade myself was the object of my going. My doctor helped me in the matter, for, having discovered that I was bent on going, he gave me many good reasons why I should do that very thing. He advised me to go to a bracing northern climate, but I did no such thing. Having learned that the Carleton family were in Italy, I determined to go there. I could not discover what part of Italy they were in, but I had been there before and knew that I should find them in one of three or four of the large cities.

I hunted through all the registers of Americans at Naples and Rome without finding them, but was rewarded by seeing their names in the register of a hotel in Florence. I immediately engaged a room at the same house and felt that the goal, so far as reaching the girl I had come to seek, was won. But a sort of stage fright took possession of me. I had traveled several thousand miles to find a girl I had never seen, and when I should see her I might find her altogether unattractive in my eyes.

It was not long before at the table d'hote near where I sat I noticed a family, a father, mother, daughter and son, the latter two in their teens, and heard the elders addressed as Carleton. I had looked at the daughter without any especial admiration for her comeliness, but the moment I knew her for the object of my dreams I thought I could see a kindliness in her face. At any rate, my attention being fixed upon her countenance, I noticed that it was very expressive.

Americans abroad are unlike Americans at home. They are rather Americans of the early part of the last century, when they traveled in stagecoaches, canalboats and the like. They don't trouble themselves much about introductions. I soon fell to chatting with the family sitting opposite me at table and in a few days found myself as well acquainted as if I had known them for years. I, being a young man, fell in naturally with the daughter, whom I very soon after meeting them heard called Edith. She was fond of pictures and spent most of her time in the galleries, consequently I became fond of pictures too. We would start in the Uffizi gallery, cross the Arno by the picture hung passageway to the Pitti gallery and after wandering through the rooms of the latter recross to the Uffizi. And all this time I kept my secret, the evidence of which remained carefully folded in my pocketbook.

I defy any young man to go dawdling about with a young girl, attractive or otherwise, especially in the land so suggestive of dreams, of romance, so full of the fine arts as Italy, without falling in love with her. And what is true of the man is liable to be true of the girl. One evening Edith and I were sauntering on what they call in Florence the Lung. Arno, which in England they would dub the Arno embankment. The river is crossed by several bridges, and the streets on either side of these bridges are at night lighted by numerous lamps. There is no more beautiful city scene in the world than the Lung. Arno at twilight, when these lamps divide the day and the night.

At this witching hour, leaning over one of the bridges beholding this entrancing scene, I took out the scrap torn from the newspaper, on which was written the message that had so comforted me while in the hospital, and handed it to the girl who had written it. There was a puzzled look on her face. She saw a message written in her own handwriting. Whether or no she remembered having written it, my production of it far from where it had been scribbled was too confusing for her to understand.

I enlightened her. I pictured myself lying ill in a hospital when the paper she had donated was handed to me; its effect; my efforts to read what had been erased, and my final success. Then, inspired by the scene about us, I told her that I had followed across an ocean and would follow around the world the girl who had by that one little act of sympathy for one who to her was but a creature of the imagination without sex, form or individuality of any kind.

There are few girls who could resist such an offering. Edith was of an impressionable nature and was made deeply sensible of the power of kindliness by her one kindly act, an act partaking of the divine work commemorated in the galleries on either hand.

More than this, that scrap of paper, or, rather, what is represented, has influenced our lives since. We have given one-tenth, and often more, of our time and one-tenth of our income to those who are in need of aid and comfort. And our deeds of charity shall go on down through the ages.

The Lame Trotter.

"When my father's got a lame trotting horse, sir, that he's trying to shuck off his hands," faltered the white linen nurse, "he doesn't ever go round mournful like, with his head hanging, telling folks about his wonderful trotter that's just the littlest teehiest, tiniest mite lame.' Oh, no. What father does is to call up everyone he knows within twenty miles and tell 'em: 'Say, Tom, Bill, Harry, or whatever your name is, what in the deuce do you suppose I've got over here in my barn? A lame horse that wants to trot, lamer than the deuce you know, but can do a mile in 2.40.' Faintly the little smile quickened again in the white linen nurse's eye. "And the barn will be full of men in half an hour," she said. "Somehow nobody wants a trotter that's lame, but almost anybody seems willing to ride a lame horse that's plucky enough to trot."—From "The White Linen Nurse in Century.

The mllllon packet soup

This soup, of which millions of packets have already been sold; this soup, which has taken over a quarter of a century to perfect; this soup, which is prepared from the finest of Irish garden-grown vegetables—surely it is worth making the right way.

Boil it for half-an-hour at least. Give it plenty of time to cook. It's worth it.

Edwards' Soup is good as a soup by itself, it is good as a strengthener of other soups; good as a thickener of gravies; good for hashes, good for stews—too good to be spoiled by insufficient boiling.

EDWARDS' DESICCATED SOUPS

But you must give them half-an-hour—worth it.

Three varieties—Brown, Tomato and White. Your Grocer has them. 5c packet, and 15c. tin; but the 25c. tin comes cheaper.

MAKE YOUR MEALS AFRAID OF YOU

Don't Be Afraid of Food. Just Take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and You'll Digest It All O.K.

All you men and women who want to eat and are filled with fear, stay this kind of folly. Just carry a little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet in your purse or pocket, and after your meal eat it like you do candy.

The meal will be digested; the weakened digestive juices will be enriched and you will lose your fear of food.

"What I Car. Do to a Meal Now Is Simply a Shame."

Don't you know that these tablets are carried by thousands all over the land? In their bags as they travel, in purses or pockets when they attend banquets or after theatre parties and meals early or late, large or small are easily digested without harmful effects.

One element of these tablets is so efficient that one grain of it will digest 3,000 grains of food. This is science brought down for your use and it nature's own science, too.

No matter where you live, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be found even in the smallest drug store, although it be only a cross roads druggist.

This popularity is based solely upon the reputation, proof and testimon excellence of these tablets in every part of our land.

"Go to your druggist to-day and buy a box. Price 50 cents.

Rebels Are Wealthy.

JUAREZ, Jan. 30. — Five million Mexican dollars received up to to-day is the amount of cash which the rebels under Gen. Francisco Villa possess to carry on their revolution. In addition they claim possession of much personal property, stores, cattle and land confiscated from rich families and valued at many millions.

The cash represents part of the wealth obtained within six months under the direction of Gen. Villa. It was accumulated from forced loans on banks, merchants, mines, on the Terrazas and Creel families, and from taxation and import duties.

Rebel leaders said it would be impossible to estimate the actual wealth of the revolution, but if money was realized on all the property now in their possession the proceeds would be sufficient to run a government in the rebel territory for several years.

Haitien Ministers in Flight.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Jan. 30.—The steamer Sardinia arrived here yesterday from Port au Prince, having on board August Bonamy, the [illegible] and M. Guilbaud, the Haitien Minister of Public and Justice, who fled from Haiti because of the revolution. It is reported that President Michel Oreste will reach Kingston on the steamer Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

All the Haitien exiles have returned or are on their way to Haiti, including Gen. Defly, ex-governor of Port au Prince.

U. S. Still Waiting.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — President Wilson reiterated yesterday that the Mexican policy of the administration for the present would continue to be one of watchful waiting. No decision has been reached on lifting the embargo on arms, and no prediction was made as to when a change of policy might occur.

Low Spirits From Weak Nerves

Low spirits, depression, discouragement are a form of nervous disease. You worry over little things, and at the slightest ailment apprehend the gravest dangers and diseases. You form the habit of looking at the dark side of things.

Indigestion is a frequent accompaniment, and you probably do not sleep or rest well. The cause of the trouble is to be found in the exhausted condition of the nerves. To get well you must build up the feeble, wasted nerve cells by use of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure forms new, rich blood, and thereby nourishes the nervous system back to health and vigour. There is nothing like new nerve force to bring back hope and confidence to the weak and discouraged. This treatment works in natural ways to restore health, and, therefore, cannot fail to prove of benefit to you. Put it to the test and you will be surprised with the building-up influence that will result.

MOTION IS DEFEATED

Free Wheat Resolution is Rejected by Borden Supporters

WESTERNERS ENTER PLEA

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—By a vote of 102 to 57, a Government majority of 45, Parliament before adjourning for the state ball last evening, voted down the Liberal amendment calling for the removal of customs duty on wheat, submitted by Dr. Neely, the member for Humboldt. It was a straight party vote, with the exception of Mr. Maclean, South York, who voted with the Opposition. The reply to the speech from the throne was then passed. Before rising, Hon. Mr. Perley in the absence of the Minister of Finance, submitted the estimates to the House.

Mr. McNutt (Saltcoats), resuming the debate, said the same quality of wheat averaged 10 cents a bushel higher in the United States than in Canada for the decade ending Dec. 31, 1911. Since then the "spread" has been less pronounced, amounting at present to about 6 cents. The price of wheat at Liverpool had been steadily falling of late. Wheat which brought $1.18 in Liverpool market in 1912 dropped to 98c. in 1913. Mr. McNutt said that he could not understand why the Government turned a deaf ear to a unanimous request from the people of Western Canada, unless it was because they were sewed up with the railway companies and the big milling companies, and had to obey their mandates.

Mr. Rainville (Chambly and Vercheres) said the western members must remember that the people of eastern Canada had made great sacrifices in order to construct the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railways. These expenditures had not been sanctioned with the expectation that the products of Western Canada would be shipped to the United States.

"We want these products," he said, "to be preserved for the benefit of our railways, our ports and our people."

Mr. Rainville doubted if the Canadian farmer would ever get a higher price for anything he produced by gaining free access to the American markets. The duty on hay, he said, had been reduced by $2 per ton, but the Canadian farmer did not get any more for his hay.

More food, Mr. Rainville argued, and free food was the need of Canada, and he recommended some changes in the immigration policy, and that more attention be paid to intensive farming. He thought the middleman should be largely dispensed with by co-operation among the producers under Government supervision.

Mr. Cruise (Dauphin) argued for free wheat. The Government, he said, should show a sympathetic feeling for the West.

W. F. Maclean (South York) followed.

"The western press," he said, "without regard to party, favored free wheat, and the Liberal Legislature of Saskatchewan had combined with the Conservative Legislature of Manitoba in asking that it be granted. No one in Western Canada opposed giving the Western people what they wanted in this regard, except the big railway companies and the big milling companies. Ontario certainly had no grudge against the West, but desired, above all things, the well-being and prosperity of the three great provinces so largely settled by Ontario people."

Mr. Douglas (Strathcona) drew attention to the fact that no new land was being broken up in the West and production was at a standstill, as many people were leaving the country. He read the official returns to show that only 20,000 more people, all told, had come to Canada from the United States than had gone to the United States from Canada since Jan. 1, 1907. A large part of the Canadian immigration to the south represented dissatisfied American settlers. They found in Canada a cramped market, high freight rates, high prices for implements, lumber, etc., with steadily falling prices for grain.

Must Face Trial For Arson.

KINGSTON, Jan. 30.—Frank Hoover will stand trial on a charge of arson. CONSTIPATION RELIEVED ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK

Unless Rexall Orderlies relieve your bowel troubles and make you feel like coming back to thank us for telling you about them, then come back anyway, and ask us to give you back your money. This is just as strong as we can make this guarantee, and we want to make it strong, because we believe that Rexall Orderlies are the best bowel remedy made.

Soothing and easy in action, they cleanse the bowels, thoroughly toning and strengthening them, and make you feel great. They promote easy and regular bowel action, help to promptly relieve constipation and overcome its cause. In these things they differ from old-fashioned, harsh, disagreeable salts and other physics which usually give only temporary relief and often leave the bowels in worse condition than ever. They taste like candy and even children like them. They are particularly good for children and for delicate and aged people. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50c.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores, and in this town only of us.

MISSIONARY ESCAPED.

Rebels In China Looted and Burned City of Liuan Chow.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 30.—A force of 2,000 bandits yesterday sacked and burned virtually the entire City of Liuan Chow, in the Province of Nganhwei.

W. Entwistle, of the China inland mission, with his wife and children succeeded in escaping to Luchawfu, but the Catholic missionaries are still in the looted city and it is believed they have not been injured.

The brigands apparently are connected with the bands commanded by "White Wolf," who have for a considerable time been ravaging the eastern part of the Province of Hanan.

Mild Weather Hits Coal Mines.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30 — Because of the unusually mild weather, some of the anthracite coal-producing companies are greatly reducing their output. The Reading Company's collieries, employing 30,000 men, closed down Wednesday night for the remainder of the week. Yesterday the collieries of the Susquehanna Coal Co., a Pennsylvania Railroad corporation, suspended operations until Monday. Miners say they cannot recall such long-continued mild weather at this season of the year.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Winthrop Child Was Restored to Health by Vinol.

"Five years ago our little girl had a severe attack of diphtheria which left her subject to bronchitis and stomach trouble. She has been almost constantly under medical treatment. I have tried also two or three remedies containing cod liver oil but found her stomach rebelled against the oil. Reading your description of Vinol I decided to try it and did so with most astonishing results. I cannot begin to tell you how she has improved because you do not know what a little sufferer she was for five years. She has gained ten pounds since she commenced to tke Vinol, and the story of what Vinol has done for her is only half told in this letter." Mrs. Adelaide Mulloy, Winthrop, Mass.

Vinol contains all the healing curative properties of cod liver oil, without the oil, and tonic iron added. That is why it helped this little girl after other remedies had failed.

We ask mothers of weak, sickly children to try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to help them.

Picked Food From Garbage.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—While testifying against William Taggart, whom he charged with vagrancy at yesterday's police court, Constable Ferguson stated that he had watched the man for some time going through the lanes behind the downtown restaurants, and had noticed him picking out crusts of bread and discarded fruits.

Taggart said that he had been out of work for some time, and in order that he could eat he had to pick up what good portions of food that might find in the garbage barrels.

He was fined $10 and costs or sixty days in jail.

BOSTON, Jan. 30.—Alleging that the United Shoe Machinery Co. has continuously violated the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and that, therefore, the statutes of limitations do not apply, Charles A. Strout of Portland, Me., trustee of the Goddu Sons' Metal Fastening Co., filed a second suit against the United Shoe Machinery Co. in the Federal Court yesterday. Damages of $2,000,000 are asked.

The plaintiff charges that through false representations three officials of the company succeeded in preventing the Goddu Company from competing with the United.

Castro Off for Porto Rico.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Jan. 30.—Rumors current in Caracas that Gen. Cipriano Castro, ex-President of Venezuela, had arrived in Trinidad, are unfounded. Advices received in the Venezuelan colony here are to the effect that the former dictator recently sailed from a European port for Porto Rico, by way of New York, to join his family.

OPENS UP NOSTRILS, CLEARS HEAD, ENDS COLDS OR CATARRH AT ONCE

Instantly Relieves Swollen, Inflamed Nose, Head, Throat—You Breathe Freely—Dull Headache Goes—Nasty Discharge Stops.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it—Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake to-night struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—jut once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear.

ACCUSED MEN STEP OUT.

Mousseau, Bergevin and Berard Resign Their Seats.

QUEBEC, Jan. 30.—The three members of the Quebec Legislature accused by The Montreal Daily Mail of accepting bribes for the passing of the Montreal Fair Association bill, Hon. A. Bergevin, Hon. L. P. Berard and Mr. J. O. Mousseau yesterday introduced another factor into the situation by sending in their resignations.

Sir Lomer Gouin stated last night that the investigation in both Houses must proceed, and that resignations would not prevent this.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council yesterday afternoon there was no reference to the resignation of the two councillors, but the Legislative Assembly was put in possession of two letters from Mr. J. O. Mousseau immediately on convening yesterday afternoon. One was a formal letter of resignation, and the other was a personal letter of farewell to his colleagues in the course of which, he says:

"All that remains to me now is to return to my grief-stricken home, and my wife and five sons, become once more a plain citizen, and resume my former life as a humble toiler."

The letters of the councillors state that they feel that, however well they may refute the accusations against them, something is bound to stick and cause embarrassment to their party.

After the reading of Mr. Mousseau's resignation Mr. Armand Lavergne moved that Messrs. Nicholls and Macnab should be summoned once again before the Bar of the Assembly this afternoon at 3 o'clock, to inquire further as to the names of Legislative Councillors implicated by The Daily Mail.

Sir Lomer Gouin at first opposed the motion, but later proposed an amendment, as a compromise with Mr. Lavergne, that whatever further action should seem to be necessary should be left to the upper House.

DID CHILD WAKE UP CROSS OR FEVERISH?

Look Mother! If tongue is Coated Give "California Syrup of Figs" to Clean the Bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Counterfeits are being sold here. Don't be fooled!

MANTLE OF MOHAMMED.

Turks Recover Sacred Relic Looted From Mosque at Adrianople.

An incident that has the elements of romance found in Wilkie Collins' Moonstone or other stories of the despoiling of Indian temples by the British conquerors has just been revealed by the discovery in Vienna of one of Islam's most sacred relics, Mohammed's tunic, which had been taken there by a Bulgarian officer and which had been held by him as spoils of war.

This holy object, according to the story, was removed from the treasury in connection with the great mosque at Adrianople in the latter days of the siege and with others of similar sacred character was turned over to the care of imans. When the Bulgarians as conquerers entered the city the tunic was discovered by an officer and appropriated by him as loot.

The loss of an article held in such veneration by the Moslem world was immediately noted. The iman in whose charge it had been deposited told all that he knew of the taking of the tunic. A number of the faithful entered into a compact to recover it at every risk. They followed several trails into Bulgaria and at last got the clue that led to Vienna. Before the Bulgarian could negotiate its sale the Mohammedans, who had been so persistently on his tracks, confronted him and demanded its restoration. The matter was taken up by the Turkish embassy. This official appeal prevailed and the relic will be returned to its former place in the holy treasury at Adrianople.

The Mussulmans keep their highest veneration for the relic which is kept in Constantinople, the Mantle of the Prophet. It is difficult to express the adoration of the people for this oriflamme. In times past when the Sultan himself led the army in war the relic accompanied him, to be returned to the Seraglio only with an elaborate ceremonial of prayers and the burning of incense of aloes and ambergris.

The relic, which is also sometimes called the holy standard, is kept in a hall near the throne room of the Old Seraglio. It is wrapped always in 40 napkins of the most exquisite silk, the roll in turn being enclosed in a marvelous jeweled casket. The Sultan alone can expose the relic to view. This is done once each year on the occasion of the Ramazan. The Sultan first pays his reverence in private, after which he seats himself on a throne facing the Mantle, which is a small fragment of greenish cloth, while all the princes and pashas, the beys and effendis pass in single file and do reverence. After the men have so passed and withdrawn, the ladies are introduced, magnificently costumed in old court dresses.

The Mussulmans assert, and many believe, that the Holy Mantle has never been looked upon by an unbeliever. In 1768, when the relic was carried through certain courts of the palace, several Europeans concealed themselves behind window curtains in order to watch the ceremony. They were discovered and a fearful scene followed. Fanatics crying, "Let the dogs die who dare profane the standard of the Prophet with their unholy gaze," rushed into the room and killed every European found there. Ladies were dragged about by the hair and kicked to death, among them being the wife and daughter of an Imperial ambassador. The Grand-Vizier promised that the murderers would be punished, but they were never identified, and nothing was ever done.

The sacred tunic first came to Adrianople with Amurath, the first Moslem to lead a great army into Europe and the captor of Adrianople. He carried the relic, a bit of cloth like the other, but magnificently encased in jeweled coverings, at the head of his troops, just as the Holy Mantle has been carried. Later when Adrianople was made the capital of the Sultans the relic was kept there permanently.

With the recovery of the holy relic from Vienna there is considerable question as to the future attitude of the faithful toward it. Never before, it is said, had it been profaned by the touch of unbelievers' hands.

SOME BULL FIGHTER.

Senor Robles Demonstrated His Daring as a Matador.

Senor Enrique Robles, the eminent Spanish specialist on bull-fighting, has at last vindicated his modest descriptions of his own valor, and has proven beyond question that the bulls, not only of York County, but of Peel as well, are mere empty bellowers, and that when faced with a feet of real manhood, with a shawl and a sneer, they are afraid.

For some time the bull-fighting senor has been sighing for a suitable adversary. He has told Toronto people who went to see him and his magnificent shaven wrists many things about himself which those people hoped to see proven. He has told how he handles the bull, but had not had an opportunity to give a real demonstration. Recently he went down to the Union Stock Yards at West Toronto, and invited the cattle men to lead out their most ferocious specimens, but when the few bulls were led out they made no pretence of wanting to fight the senor.

The other day, however, Senor Robles refused longer to be patient. If the bulls would not offer themselves, as it were, by their bellowings, then he would go out and look for them himself. He obtained a motor car and took with him seven of his staff. Finally the motor came to the Price Farm at Cooksville, where great herds of bovine animals are kept. Surely here could be found an enemy! The senor approached the management.

"Have you," he said, with distended chest—a fine chest—"have you of bulls any? Bulls of ferocit-ee? Eh? Show me! I would fight!"

The hands led out Teddy, who has a bad eye and a reputation as a maneater. Teddy looked at the senor, who confronted him in the barn-yard as one might regard any stranger who [illegible] carried one away from a meal and then paused to state his business. The handsome bull blinked and blew great draughts of air from his nostrils, as with lowered head he toyed with a few blades of grass.

Fight! Who said fight? He wasn't looking for it, and — But the senor advanced, called an insulting name, and flushed the red anawl in the bull's face. Something about that red cloth stirred vague impulses in the bull, faint hints of destruction. The man came back again and again, and with each return more ancient rage swelled up in the bull's throat. His eyes began to gleam. His breath came in shorter, more vigorous puffs, he pawed the ground, he switched his tail, he cast philosophy and dignity to the winds—and charged!

But there was nothing to meet his charge. The man and the shawl vanished—only to reappear at one side, with more personal abuse and more wavings of the red. The bull charged again and again. He changed his tactics, made short rushes instead of long. Tried side-swiping. Tried turning quickly. But the man in front of him only laughed and jeered, and did the most irreverent things in the face of the old fellow.

One last rush, and the bull gave it up.

"Go on," he said, or seemed to say. "Have you fun out. If it does you any good. I don't mind you waving the paltry piece of red in my face. What's the game? What are you sore at, senor? As for me, I'm too stout for parlor games. Besides I'm likely to make a fool of myself—I can see that right here, and one certainly has a reputation to keep up—among the herds."

They brought out a younger bull, but the senor flouted him and twisted his tail.

The matador's honor was vindicated.

Grandma Used Sage Tea To Darken Hair

She Mixed Sulphur With It to Restore, Colour, Gloss, Thickness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn grey, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, grey or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, grey, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all grey hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

STREET MYSTERIES

Trades and Professions Have Their Own Particular Corners in London

Undoubtedly one of the most curious features of London, England, is the manner in which men engaged in particular businesses and professions have congregated, for some mysterious reason, in certain streets and areas.

At one time London's chief doctors congregated in the neighborhood of Finsbury Square, which was deserted for Harley Street on account of the many businesses which set up in the former neighborhood. Should the doctors decide to desert Harley Street, where they would move to, it is, of course, difficult to say; but it is almost safe to affirm that when they do migrate they will finally settle down again all together in some quiet corner of the Metropolis.

There are many other curious instances, however, of the manner in which professional and business men flock together. Tottenham Court Road, for instance, is the great furniture thoroughfare of the motor car firms and carriage builders. Aviators have made Piccadilly the headquarters of the aeroplane industry, in which street the Aero Club and the offices of "The Aeroplane" are situated, while film manufacturers have congregated in the immediate neighborhood of Charing Cross.

Why is Hatton Gardens the home of diamond merchants, and why do so many music hall artistes insist on living at Brixton? A stroll down Holborn reveals the fact that it is a favorite street for the show rooms of bicycle manufacturers, while there are probably more typewriting firms in Queen Victoria Street than any other street in the Metropolis.

Hoxton seems to be the home of jam manufacturers and Houndsditch that of toy dealers, while Clerkenwell Road is the great centre of ice cream merchants, makers of street organs, and mosaic floor makers. Charing Cross Road is a street of bookshops, and Fleet Street the hub of the newspaper world.

Celluloid Collar Peril

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

CURED A BAD ATTACK OF ECZEMA.

All skin diseases such as Eczema, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Rash, Boils, Pimples, and Itching Skin Eruptions, are always caused from the blood being in a bad condition, and it is impossible to eradicate them from the system unless you put your blood into good shape. This you can very easily do without the slightest trouble by using Burdock Blood Bitters.

It drives out all the humor from the blood, and makes it pure and rich, and not only are the unsightly diseases removed, and a bright clean complexion produced, but the entire system is renovated and invigorated at the same time.

Mrs. G. A. Day, Somerville, N.B., writes:—"Last spring I had a bad attack of Eczema. I tried several patent medicines as well as the medicine of a physician, but they seemed to make the disease worse. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and I did so with the result that in two weeks time the sores began to disappear. I continued to take it until I had taken three bottles and they worked a complete cure."

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

"BEAU NASH" AT BATH

Famous Dandy Did Much For the Fashionable Watering Place

Richard Nash, commonly known as Beau Nash, owed little of his popularity to physical attractiveness. According to Goldsmith, he was large and clumsy of person and his features were "harsh, strong and peculiarly irregular." His stock-in-trade was "assiduity, flattery, fine clothes and as much wits as the ladies he addressed."

He was born at Swansea, Oct. 18, 1674, entered Jesus College, Oxford, but left without finishing his course, and, after a brief career in the army, entered as a student in the Inner Temple. High living and outrageous exploits were more to his taste than law books and legal drudgery, and he eked out his income by gaming and performing for wagers such feats as riding naked through a village mounted on a cow.

Coming to Bath in 1705, he found it a crude, ill-organised place, filled with fashionable people putting up with the most inadequate accommodations. This state of affairs Nash set himself out to relieve. He became master of ceremonies, and succeeded presently in revolutionising the place and becoming its social dictator.

He built an assembly house, procured decent lodgings and subdued the insolent sedan-chair men, the "taipirates" of their time. His rules of conduct were enforced on high and low alike.

During the time of his popularity his income was drawn from gambling houses and his personal skill in such matters. In 1740, when gambling was made illegal, the first blow at his supremacy was struck, and in 1745 he was left practically without resources. The town which owed him so much came to his rescue with a pension of $50 a month, on which he lived until his death, February 3, 1762, when he received a public funeral.

Death Toll of Workmen

United States records show that every hour 232 workmen are killed or injured; that every 15 minutes a workman is killed; that every 16 seconds a workman is injured. Every year 2,035,000 workmen are killed or injured.

AVERAGE HEIGHT SHOWS INCREASE

England's Tall Invaders Are Largely Responsible For Adding to the Inches of British

Although it has been shown that the average height of woman has increased from one to two inches during the last generation, it has generally been taken for granted that the prehistoric man was more or less of a giant, while the crusaders of the Middle Ages were much taller than the average soldiers of to-day. People have attempted to confirm this opinion, by pointing out that in fancy dress balls in England, the armor and dresses worn by the participants which formerly belonged to their ancestors had to be cut down in order to fit.

However one statistician presents the following table of average heights:

	Ft.	In.
1746—79 Jacobite prisoners in London	5	6.45
1775—89 Fraser Highlanders	5	5.17
1778—295 Northern (Gordon) Fencibles	5	6.02
1792—316 Northern (Gordon) Fencibles	5	6.25
1794—914 Gordon Highlanders	5	5.53
1901-1910—Average of our army recruits	5	6.1
1911—Average of recruits	5	6.2
1883—Average height of Scotsmen	5	8.71
1883—Average height of Irishmen	5	7.90
1883—Average height of Engmen	5	7.36
1883—Average height of Welsh	5	6.66

Another professor of anatomy, reviews the whole subject as follows:

"The skeletons recovered of those early periods are never more than 5 feet 4 inches or 5 feet 5 inches, and you may take it that about 6,000 years ago the average stature of the people who lived in Britain was from 5 feet 2 inches to 5 feet 6 inches.

"What causes have contributed to this increase in stature? That is not so easily answered, but it must be remembered that there have been four or five invasions of England, beginning in the bronze age.

"These invasions brought fresh blood into the country. I suspect that the Saxons who invaded England were not what we to-day would call tall men, but they were evidently taller than the native British.

"The Normans were also taller, or tallish people, so that the problem is complicated, but I think it can be taken that on the average we are taller than the people of England 4,000 years ago. Wether that is attributable to progressive growth of the people of these islands or to the infusions of fresh blood it is impossible to say.

"But, after all, in modern life tallness is of mighty little advantage. If you look round you will find that big men are not necessarily brainy men. It is the small man, who, more frequently than the big man, is scoring in modern commercial life."

London's Grass

The grass of a London park or lawn is quite of a different tint from that of a field in the open country. London grass is quite healthy and vigorous, and its peculiar tint is not due to discoloration by the smoky atmosphere. The tint is due to the sort of grass that has to be used.

Grass consists of over a hundred different species of plant life. These plants—or grasses, as they are called—will not all grow everywhere. But for any particular sort of soil and atmosphere a grass can be found that will suit. The only sorts that suit London's soil and air are "cheap mixtures." These cheap mixtures are of no use to the farmer, whose pastures consist, as a rule, of valuable agricultural grasses and clovers of a deeper, purer green than London's grass. Irish grasslands are greener still.

An Old Roman Road

"Sarn Helen," or, more properly, "Sarn Elen," the name under which portions of the Roman road leading from Conway to Carmarthen and Llandovery is known, is so called after Elen, daughter of Eudaf, or Octavius, wife of Maximus the Emperor. This Elen is frequently confused with Elen, the wife of Constantine and mother of Constantine the Great, who is celebrated by many ecclesiastical writers of antiquity for cleansing Jerusalem of idols, for finding the cross upon which Christ was crucified and for erecting a cross on the spot where He was born.

"Wasn't That a Dainty Dish to Set Before A King"—and Queen?

THE dish in question was a beautiful, sparkling Shirriff Jelly made from one of the "fancy" recipes inserted in Shirriff's Jelly Powder packages. It was served by a Toronto hostess at a fashionable Bridge Party. It was her "trump" card. No guest could resist it. As a hostess you, too, will find Shirriff's Jelly your high "trump" when it is time to play your hand with the refreshments. There are many unique ways of serving it in combination with fresh or canned fruits, preserves, ice cream, nuts, dates, figs, maple syrup, wines, etc. Look for the recipes in Shirriff's Jelly Powder packages. Shirriff's Jelly—the dessert delicious—is a high-class, wholesome, pure-food product. Over a dozen "fruity" flavors. 10 cents a package; 3 for 25 cents. Sold by almost all grocers. Try it for your next dessert.

Sunday School Convention At Millbrook

MILLBROOK,, Jan. 29.—Mr. T. B. Collins was in Toronto last week on business.

Mr. Wm. G. Winslow is down from Souris, visiting his brother, Mayor Winslow and other friends.

r. T. A. Campbell returned from his New York trip, but Mrs. Campbell is staying a while longer.

The Sunday School convention, which was held last week in the Presbyterian Church, was well attended. Representatives from all neighbouring schools were present and furnished reports of their school. Mr. Wm. Emerson occupied the chair. Rev. Mr. Wickett, of Fraserville, spoke on "Teachers and Their Class," which was highly appreciated by everyone present. Mr. Harold Watt of Toronto, spoke on the Sunday school work and how to bring boys into the Sunday school.

Rev. Mr. Butler of Cavanville, Rev Mr McConnachie of South Monaghan; also Rev. Geo. Brown of Millbrook and Mrs. Staples of Cavanville, gave interesting addresses, which were appreciated by all present. Tea was served in the basement of the Church for those from a distance. The sum of over one hundred dollars was collected. The convention will be held in Fairmount next year. W. S. Givens is president for the coming year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Unfriendly Neighbour. Luke xi:1-13.

Golden Text: Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. Luke xi:9.

(1) Verse 1—Did Jesus have the same need as other men to pray for Himself? Why?

(2) What do you consider would be the principal thing which Jesus would need to pray for?

(3) What reason, if any, is there to believe that Jesus would ever use a liturgical form of prayer in his approach to God?

(4) Verse 2—Did Jesus mean what we call "The Lord's Prayer" to be used as a form of prayer or to be simply suggestive of the manner and matter of prayer? Why? (See Matt. vi:9.)

(5) What would you say is the predominant or key note in the prayers of all godly people?

(6) How will it be brought about, and when will the day come, when the will of God will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

(7) Verse 3—How many true Christians have you known that have lacked bread or any of the necessaries of life?

(8) May all the truly good feel absolutely certain that God will provide them with all the temporal things they need? Why?

(9) Verse 4—Why would you say, or not, that God will never forgive those who do not forgive their fellows?

(10) What practical difference is there whether God directly leads us into temptation or permits the devil to do so?

(11) See I Cor. x:13, and give your opinion as to whether Jesus desires us to pray to be kept from temptation or to be kept from yielding to it?

(12) Verses 5-8—Wherein does the man in this parable differ from God?

(13) What was it that finally decided this man to loan his neighbour the loaves he wanted and what is it that influences God to answer our prayers?

(14) What is the thought which Jesus sought to convey by this parable.

(15) Why does God often answer importune prayer that would not be answered in any other way?

(16) Verses 9-10—May we be absolutely sure that God will in due time answer every prayer of ours that is for our good?

(17) Of what service to us are prayers for things we never receive?

(18) If we pray for all we think we need may we rest with confidence in the assurance that we shall get all we do need?

(19) Verses 11-12 — If a Christian asks for a stone, thinking it is the bread which he needs, what will he get?

(20) Will God ever answer the unwise prayers of any good man?

(21) Verse 13: If God is as willing to give the Holy Spirit to those who ask, as parents are to give good things to their children, how is it that so few claim to have the Holy Spirit?

Lesson for Sunday, Feb. 8. 1914. Darkness and Light. Luke xi:14-26, 23-36.

A Winged Ambulance

A hunter, of North Battleford, told a story about a goose which he wounded and which was apparently about to fall to the ground. It was actually supported by two of its mates, who, upon seeing the predicament flew underneath the bird in distress so that their wings on the upward flap would reach the injured member of the flock. In this way, remarkable to relate, the three geese —the ambulance and the patient— reached the river in safety.

While the hunter could easily have picked off the whole three geese with the second volley, he was prevented from doing so by the remarkable demonstration of brotherly kindness in the care of the injured goose. The ingenious method which was employed by the members of this ambulance corps seems to prove conclusively that sometimes a goose is not a goose!

A fire which resulted in a large house at Westport, New Zealand, being burned to the ground was caused by a fly which escaped, a burning mass, from a gas jet into which it had flown and alighting on the window curtains set them ablaze.

THE "EVENING EXAMINER" TO ADD 500 NEW SUBSCRIBERS BEFORE MAY FIRST

THE EXAMINER'S MONEY MAKING COMPETITION FOR LIVE NEWSBOYS

Starts MONDAY, Feb. 2nd Ends TUESDAY, April 30th

27 PRIZES IN CASH 27

Payable at the completion of the competition to the boys who make the most gains in new customers.

24 PRIZES IN CASH 24

3 payable each week to the boys who make the most gains in new customers each week during competition.

51—CASH PRIZES—51

EVERY BOY WILL START OFF MONDAY NEXT, FEBRUARY 2nd on an equal footing, no matter whether you have been selling papers or not. The boy with 50 Customers at the present time is in no better position than the boy just starting in. The boy starting with 50 customers has to make his gain above 50 to secure the prize, which is for the most New Customers each boy gets.

REMEMBER

NEW BEGINNERS as well as our regular newsboys who enter this contest will start scoring together on Monday Evening, February 2nd.

Papers are ready for Boys shortly after Four o'clock.

Boys attending school can sell papers and lose no time and with a hustle will soon have a Savings Bank Account.

We will keep a record of every boy's sales up to the End of the Contest.

The Examiner is easy to sell and is a good money maker for any boy.

AN IMPORTANT CONDITION

IN ORDER that protection may be given to each boy who is entering in this Competition, it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not honestly earn it. If a boy applies for a Weekly Prize, who has not bought the papers for his own use and sale, it will be turned over to the boy who has honestly won it.

CASH PRIZES

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	20.00
Third Prize	15.00
Fourth Prize	10.00
Fifth Prize	5.00
Sixth Prize	4.00
Seventh Prize	3.00
Eighth Prize	2.00
Ninth Prize	2.00
Tenth Prize	2.00
Eleventh Prize	2.00
Twelfth Prize	2.00
15 Prizes of	1.00

27 Boys to get final prizes.

UNDERSTAND

THE WEEKLY PRIZES

IT'S the largest individual increases weekly that count. If one boy who has been selling papers starts on Monday next with ten regular customers and increases his list to 20 at the end of the week, and another boy with 20 regular customers has only increased to 25, the first boy wins the First Weekly Cash Prize, because he has added 10 to his list while the second boy has only added 5 to his list. If a boy is not now selling Examiners and next Saturday has 16 new customers, he wins the prize as he has gained more new customers than either of the other two boys.

There are three prizes distributed each week for the biggest gain for the week. Whether you have been selling papers in the past or not, does not make any difference.

Canvas those who are not taking the Examiner. They will read it if you get them started.

No boy has any advantage over any other boy. It's all in the hustle.

PARENTS

WHO would like to encourage their boys to earn sufficient pocket money to keep them, are urged to give them a start of a few cents for their first lot of Papers. There are many young men now holding good positions who made their first money by selling the Evening Examiner.

Any boy can start at any time, but he should start on Monday, February 2nd, with the rest so as to give no handicap for the large prizes.

Any further information regarding this competition will be given at the Examiner Office.

—NOW BOYS GET BUSY—

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Instruction Act of 1912-13, whereby a sum aggregating $10,000,000 was provided, the expenditure to be spread over a period of ten years.

How the Financial Policy Works Out

In making a forecast of the probable cost of maintaining an adequate system of Industrial Training and Technical Education, the Commission considered the populations and needs of 586 places in Canada, besides the rural population in the counties. These 586 places, ranging from great cities like Montreal and Toronto down to incorporated villages of over 500 people, contained a total population of 2,790,000. In these urban places the number of persons between 14 and 17 years of age, who were not attending any day schools, is estimated at 150,000 young people. The population of Canada at the last census, outside the 586 places already indicated, amounted to 4,440,000, of whom 237,000 are young persons between the ages of 14 and 17 not attending any school.

If the proportion of attendance of these 387,000 boys and girls could be brought up to that of many areas in England, Scotland, Ireland and Germany, no less than 213,000 of them would be continuing their education at suitable classes after they had begun to earn their living.

As Applied to Ontario.

Under the policy recommended by the Commission there would be two Dominion Development Funds for technical instruction and training, one of $350,000 a year to promote pre-vocation training by means of Experimental Science, Manual Training, Drawing, Domestic Science and Nature Study, and the other of $3,-700,000 annually to supplement local efforts in providing vocational education for those who are past public school age.

The people of Ontario could draw from these funds to the extent of over a million dollars annually, besides receiving from Dominion authorities the co-operation and advisory help of highly-trained and experienced counsellors in starting new kinds of schools, as for example, for textile workers, and in the development of new industries.

What the Several Towns Could Obtain.

In Ontario there are 39 towns and cities, each with a population of over 5,000. These contain a total population of 953,896. It is estimated that within seven years there would be in these places about 30,000 pupils in the schools for the vocational training of those over 14 years of age. These towns and cities could draw from the Dominion Development funds up to $340,000 a year.

The following list indicates in round figures what each city and town of Central Ontario might receive to assist it in maintaining suitable classes.

Toronto: Population, 376,538; up to $140,000 annually.

Peterborough: Population, 18,360; up to $7,300 annually.

North Bay, 7,737; Oshawa, 7,436; Lindsay, 6964; Orillia, 6,829; Barrie, 6,420; $3000 to $2500 each.

Cobalt, 5,638; North Toronto, 5,-632; Port Hope, 5,062; Cobourg, 5,-374—$2,000 each annually.

The Strongest, Richest Partner to Do Most.

The Commission believes that the best course for Canada to follow is for the Dominion Government to assume definite responsibility for a proportion of the burden of expense for this new and important national movement. Then, as the burden grows and the cost is correspondingly increased, the load will be carried easily by the broadest, strongest back. The policy does not involve the assumption of any control or any regulation of education by the Dominion authorities. No question is raised as to interference. Provisions are suggested by means of which hearty and friendly and mutually helpful co-operations can be entered upon and continued. The only new machinery recommended is that which is necessary for co-operation entered upon by mutual consent.

The carrying out of the policy would mean not only the development of manufacturing industries of commerce and of natural resources, but the development of individuals, of communities, of provinces, and of the whole Dominion. The fruits would be found in the circumstances and homes of the people and in the residuum of intelligence, practical ability and good will. From the wise use of ever widening opportunities and growing prosperity there would come greater power and deeper satisfactions. Canada would have entered upon the path which shineth more and more unto the perfect day."

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. A. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it saved a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

NOBODY ESCAPES.

Suffragettes Disturbed Labor Meeting Held in Their Favor.

GLASGOW, Jan. 30. — Although the Labor party is the only one which has espoused the enfranchisement of women, the militants are always more obstreperous at the labor meeting than at any other. This was strikingly illustrated at the meeting held in St. Andrew's Hall last night at which James Ramsay Macdonald, Socialist and Labor member for Leicester, presided. From start to finish his speech was punctuated by interruptions from the women. More than a score of militants were ejected, most of them screaming wildly and striking out in all directions.

Mr. Macdonald's declaration that the Labor party was out to fight for women's franchise failed to mollify the militant hostility.

Forty-Seven Lives Were Lost When Steamers Collided in Fog

The Local Police Have Arrested a Man Who is Wanted on a Charge of Murder

PETERBOROUGH POLICE ARREST MAN WHO IS WANTED ON A CHARGE OF MURDER

Walked Into Police Station in Search of a Night's Lodging and Was Recognized by Detectives Newhall and Meagher.

WANTED IN SPRINGFIELD

Albert H. Brodeur, wanted for murder in Springfield, Mass., made what may prove to be a fatal mistake last night, when he allowed himself to come under the eagle eye of Detectives Newhall and Meagher. They recognized him and getting in communication with the Springfield police, received instructions to keep Brodeur behind the bars until an officer from that city arrived in this city to take charge of him.

Brodeur, alias Albert H. Blanchard, alias A. G. Stone, is charged with having shot and killed a woman in her apartment in Springfield at 5:30 o'clock on the 20th of September, 1913. At the time he escaped the authorities and for five months has avoided arrest.

Last night, however, he entered the local Police Station and asked for a night's lodging. This was granted by Sergeant Brown who searched him. During this process Detectives Newhall and Meagher entered the station and recognized the prisoner from a circular sent them some months ago. After a hurried consultation they agreed that he must be the alleged murderer. Brodeur at first denied his identity, but finally admitted that he was the man. He knew he was wanted for murder in Springfield and admitted he had been dodging the police for five months.

The arrest of Brodeur following his appearance in the Police Station last night, is one of the best examples of the efficiency of the local police force given for some time. After the murder in Springfield in September, a circular was sent to the Police Departments of America, asking them to be on the lookout for Brodeur. This circular reached Peterborough five months ago, and included a description of the fugitive and a photograph of him. In the photo, however, he was clean shaven, and in prison garb. When he was seen by the local detectives his hair was long and he had grown a substantial moustache. The one outstanding feature of his face is his unusually flat nose, in payment for the possession of which he may have to spend the last few minutes of his life in the electric chair.

To Chief Thompson the prisoner stated that since he left Springfield he had not done a day's work. Spending most of the nights in the police stations of the municipalities in which he happened to be, he travelled through Quebec and Ontario. In Guelph he was convicted of theft and spent two months in the gol there. He was just liberated from the Guelph prison on Monday last, and came into the city on a C.P.R. freight train last night. Brodeur absolutely refused to talk about the murder.

Chief Thompson wired the Springfield authorities and received the following reply:

"Officer on way to Peterborough with papers. Hold Brodeur.

W. J. QUILTLEY,
Chief-of-Police."

The circular received by the local department described Brodeur as being 30 years of age, height 5 feet 7 inches, weight 140 pounds. He was described as having a tattoo mark with the initils E. H. B. on the left forearm, and various scars." All marks of these were found by the local police, after which he admitted his identity. Owing to the local detectives vigilance, Brodeur, who had taken chances with his life in other cities, and won, lost in Peterborough.

The photographs received by the local police were taken in an American prison where, before the murder, he was a military convict. The finger prints of the man wanted for murder were also received, and coincide exactly with those of Brodeur taken by the local police.

In Police Court this morning he was remanded for three days.

HAND BADLY CUT BY SAW

Mr. Chas. McCall, of Douro, sustained a very painful injury yesterday while operating a wood-butting saw. In some manner a splinter caught in the saw and pulled his hand in by catching in his mit, and the forefinger and thumb were almost amputated. He lost a large quantity of blood and suffered considerably. Dr. Brown dressed the injuries.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION TO LOCAL BOYS

The Examiner's Newsboys' Competition is Chief Topic Among the Boys of the City

PARENTS CAN HELP

The newsboys of this City, as well as the parents of the boys, are manifesting keen interest in the competition to be started on Monday next by The Examiner, in which cash prizes are to be distributed to hustling, energetic boys.

The great success of the last competition to the newsboys is yet in the minds of the boys, and the inquiries The Examiner has received regarding the competition is an evidence of the keen interest that is being taken in it by the boys of the City.

There is no more honest way for a boy to make money while going to school than by selling daily Examiners. In addition to the money made, and some of our boys are making as high as $5.00 a week, it is a good business education. It sharpens the boy and takes off the rough edges. Then again, there are 54 cash prizes to work for, and any boy who enters the competition is sure to make money.

The first cash prize is $25.00, and is given to the boy who increases the number of his customers the most between February 2nd and April 30th, and in all that time he has the profit on his customers as well. The second boy gets $20.00, the third $15.00, the 4th $10.00, and so on down, until the first 27 boys get prizes.

In addition to these prizes, three weekly cash prizes are given each week to the boys who have the largest increases during the week.

Mothers and fathers, talk the matter over with your boys. The business men of the City, when they want a boy to learn the business, are giving the preference to bright boys, who have been newspaper boys, and the great majority of them have sold The Evening Examiner. There are dozens of men now holding responsible positions in this City and out of it, and in business in this City, who do not regret having gained their first business experience selling papers.

The Examiner is easy to sell, because the people of Peterborough want it. A newsboy can secure new customers at 10c. a week, which is not a hard job for a hustling boy, and he has not to secure a very large list to earn a prize.

LOCAL MASONS VISITED BROCKVILLE

Took Part In Field Day There Yesterday

Twelve members of the Moore Preceptory of Free Masonry visited Brockville yesterday, it being field day for the Kingston and Ottawa District. Those who went down were Messrs. E. L. Goodwill, W. R. G. Higgins, J. D. Cameron, R. S. Cotton, George Evans, T. H. Hooper, Alex Richardson, W. A. Logan, Wm. Lytle, E. B. Fowler, A. A. Fowler, and F. W. Trehilcock. Many visitors were present from different towns and cities. These included twenty-five members of the Ogdensburg commandery. The local party returned to the City this morning.

GREAT SINGER AT THE ROYAL

The vaudeville programme at the Royal Theatre for the balance of the week is one of the best bills Manager Clayton has given the public. The feature act is Vincent Vernon, operatic tenor, whose splendid singing at yesterday's performance elicited rounds of applause. He has a clear, big, well-controlled voice, and sings with expression and vim. Mr. Vernon will sing at each performance for the balance of the week. Babs Butler, Allantes and Fisk, and Billy Ryan complete a splendid bill.

J. B. McWILLIAMS DENIED THAT HE WAS RESPONSIBLE

For Statement Attributed to Dr. Fernow Regarding the Number of Degenerates in North Country

MET COUNTY COUNCIL

Mr. J. B. McWilliams addressed the County Council this morning in regard to a report which he said had been widely circulated to the effect that he was responsible for the statements made some time ago by Dr. Fernow in regard to the number of degenerates in the northern country.

Mr. McWilliams said he wished to make an emphatic denial to this rumour. He had prepared at the doctor's request a report on the forestry and water conditions. He submitted this report to the Council, and stated that there was not a single word in it regarding the people.

For forty years he had travelled through the north country and had seen no degenerates. The people would compare in intelligence with those of any other part. Mr. McWilliams said he did not think the people who knew what he had done for the northern townships in regard to good roads and other benefits would believe the report, but he wished to make an emphatic denial any way.

His report to Dr. Fernow gave information about the timber limits, who had originally owned them, the output of the lumber men of past years and of the present day, a description of the waterways and lakes from Trenton to the head of the Trent system, for the purpose of information regarding water conservation.

Hastings County Council condemned the report of Dr. Fernow, who replied that the statements had not been made by him. It may have originated from some of the students who were working with Professor White and Dr. Howe.

Warden Shaw assured Mr. McWilliams that he believed the people in the northern part of the county looked upon him as their friend. No man in Harvey Township would link Mr. McWilliams' name with the report.

H. G. Fitzgerald, of Lakefield; D. Campbell, of Chandos; C. Coben, of Galway; W. G. Howden, and Mr. Squire all spoke in the same strain, and on motion the explanation was accepted.

NEED A SMALL POX HOSPITAL

Property Committee Will Consider it and Civic Abbatoir

Among the matters which the Property committee has to consider in the near future is a civic abattoir and a smallpox hospital.

In regard to the latter, Dr. McPherson stated that the present plan of using tents is a costly one, one hundred and seventy dollars were paid for one, and two others cost $65 each. This does not include [illegible], such as new sheets, mattresses, pillows, etc. It costs $25 every time the tent is put up. There is no place but a shed to store the tents in, and they get mouldy and scarcely suitable for use. The cost of a wooden hospital would be from $600 to $1,000.

Dr. Amys suggested that it be built so that it could be burned after eight or ten years.

Civic Abattoir.

Dr. McPherson stated that there was no control at present over the meat supply.

Ald Duncan asked if there was any jurisdiction over the inspection of meat in the stores, particularly the handling of it. He had seen people picking up meat and smelling it.

Dr. McPherson said there was certain authority regarding the sanitary conditions under which meat is handled. The abattoir idea will be considered by the Property committee.

Taft's Smile in Canada—"I'd have indigestion if I didn't get my photograph taken every day," said William H. Taft, Professor International Law at Yale University, and former President of the United States, when he arrived in Toronto on January 28th, for a speech-making tour of Ontario. It was his first visit to Toronto, though he frequently spends his summer holidays in Murray Bay, Nova Scotia. The picture shows him with Sir John Gibson, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

THREE LIVES LOST IN FIRE

Chicago Apartment House is Burned to the Ground and There are Many Narrow Escapes

A HEROIC WOMAN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Two women and one infant are believed to have been burned to death in the destruction at three o'clock this morning of "Babies' Row," five-storey apartment building in the south side, so-called because so many infants always swarmed around the entrances. The heroine of the occasion was Mrs. Massover, who discovered the fire from spontaneous combustion of rubbish in the basement, and alarmed the occupants, being herself badly burned before escaping. In ten minutes after the alarm was given a hundred women and thirty babies in night gowns were being cared for at neighbouring buildings, while their home crumbled to the ground. There were few men in the building, most of the husbands being night workers.

Don't Miss Tom Terriss

One of the Best Attractions in Years at the Grand To-morrow

The local theatre goers who had the pleasure of seeing Mr. Tom Terriss and his clever company of Dickens' players during their visit to the Grand some weeks ago, are advising their friends not to miss the return engagement of this great attraction to the Grand to-morrow afternoon and evening. Nothing since has been seen more than Mr. Terriss' delineating to the part of Sergeant [illegible] in a masterpiece of dramatic action. He will be seen in this role at both matinee and evening performances, while in addition "The Cricket on the Hearth" will be played in the afternoon, and "Nicholas Nickleby" at night. Mr. Terriss has a fine company with him, and although this is a standard $1.50 attraction, a special matinee has been arranged for the afternoon, by [illegible] and [illegible] people can afford to miss this opportunity of seeing Mr. Terriss.

PRESENTATION TO MISS M. CLARRY

Retiring Organist of Charlotte St. Methodist Church—Banquet by the Ladies' Aid Society

WILL GO WEST

Miss Mabel Clarry, retiring organist of Charlotte Street Methodist Church was presented with a purse of gold last evening by the members of the church that she has so efficiently and faithfully served for the past ten years in the capacity of organist and choir director. The presentation was preceded by a banquet given by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church to Miss Clarry, the choir and the official Boards of the church. The affair which was held in the Sunday School room was attended by about one hundred and fifty people.

The Address.

The presentation which was made by Mrs. A. E. Lane and Miss M. E. Wright, was accompanied by the following address:

Dear Miss Clarry:

It is with feeling of deepest regret that this choir is forced to accept your resignation as organist and choir leader, a position you have filled for so many years in such an efficient, pleasing and artistic manner. In these years you have proved yourself to be an artist of the first quality. Your music has always been so musical, so full of soul and melody that it has added no little to our feeling of reverence as we have been privileged to worship God in our own sanctuary. The harmony that has prevailed between yourself and the members of the choir has been beautiful to contemplate, and not only has this been in the case of the members of your choir, but through the whole congregation, and you have won for yourself the love and esteem of all.

The pastor has found in you and your choir a help ever at hand. The Board have always felt the musical part of the service to be in capable hands with you at the helm. The Sunday School has found in you one ready and willing to help in every way both as teacher and whenever called upon the musical selections. In social gatherings you were always appreciated, being as graceful and artistic as you are talented and winsome.

The Ladies' Aid have always found your talents at their disposal. We feel that your place in our church and hearts cannot easily be filled. Sweet thoughts of you will ever remain with us and

MANY LOSE LIVES WHEN TWO STEAMERS COLLIDE IN A FOG

Steamer "Nantucket" Cuts "Munroe" Into Two and 25 Passengers and 24 of Crew Are Drowned.

EIGHTY-FIVE RESCUED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 30.—Between forty and fifty lives were lost near here at one-thirty this morning when the Merchants' Line steamer Nantucket, in a dense fog crashed into the old Dominion Line steamer Munroe, cutting her in two. The Munroe was bound from Norfolk to New York. She carried fifty first-class passengers and a crew of ninety or so. The collision occurred when nearly all were asleep. It is thought many were killed in the first crash, as the Nantucket struck the Munroe broadside right in the sleeping quarters. The Nantucket with bows stove in stood by and wirelessed for help. From all accounts the Munroe's survivors got away in lifeboats before the vessel sank twenty minutes after the collision. The responsibility has not been decided. The victims were mostly New York and Virginia people.

Among the passengers lost there are no Canadians. Not ten minutes elapsed between the time the Nantucket's prow crashed into the side of the Munroe before the latter slid under the waves. Those rescued happened to awake at the time of the collision, and all were picked up out of the water after the vessel had sunk under them. Passengers who were asleep in the births went to their deaths with little more than time for a shriek of despair. A number among the rescued are reported in serious condition from the shock received in the icy waters, and one, a Mrs. Harrington, has since died. The Monroe was the first vessel lost by the old Dominion Co., which has been operating fifty years. She was valued at half a million dollars, and cargo at an equal amount.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—An official report to President Walker, of the Old Dominion Line, says twenty-five passengers and twenty-four members of the crew of the steamer Monroe were lost in a collision with the steamer Nantucket, and thirty-one passengers and fifty-five of the crew were saved, or a total of forty-seven lost and eighty-five rescued. All officers except the second engineer were saved. The latest wireless reports say the Monroe was struck amidships and sank in ten minutes.

PLANS NEARLY READY FOR THE SEWAGE SCHEME

Will Be Submitted to the Provincial Board of Health Within the Next Two Weeks

COST $100,000

In about two weeks time, the plans for the proposed sewage disposal plant will be submitted to the Provincial Board of Health. If approved of, they will be adoted and construction work commenced in the early spring. The ideas of the Provincial Board of Health vary with consistent regularity, so that it is difficult to obtain the approval of the Board to one set of plans before a new system is adopted.

City Engineer Parsons, who spent several years in Ottawa, states that the system which was installed by the Capital City about four years, is practically obsolete in so far as the Provincial Board of Health is concerned.

May Cost $100,000.

The sewage disposal plant will be one of the big works that will be undertaken by the City in the spring; tenders will be let for the work. It is expected to cost in the neighbourhood of $100,000 and may be regarded as a compulsory expenditure. Neither the City or the ratepayers have any option in the matter. The Provincial Board of Health is a law unto itself. It orders the City to make disposal of the sewage, other than allowing it to flow into the river, consequently a sewage disposal system is imperative.

DR. BARNES WILL LECTURE

Interesting Address to Be Given Before Technical Society

The Technical Society of Peterborough is to be praised for bringing to Peterborough on several previous occasions men of prominence to give lectures and for the opportunity afforded the public of Peterborough to hear these lectures. The Society is having Dr. H. T. Barnes, F.R.S., McGill University, one of the eminent scientists of the day, address them this evening in St. Andrew's Lecture Hall, on the subject, "Icebergs and Their Detection," illustrated by lantern slides and other electrical apparatus.

The public is invited to attend this interesting address. Admission 25c. Ladies 15c.

Annual Dance

Number Two Company, 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, will hold their annual dance this evening in the Armouries. The affair will commence at 8:30, sharp. Colour-Sergeant C. D. Sneese is Honorary Secretary.

FIRST INSTALMENT OF NEW STORY

Don't Miss "The Free Range" in To-morrow's Examiner—A Clever Well Written Romance

THE BEST STORY YET

Don't miss the opening instalment of the Examiner's new serial story "The Free Range" by Elwell Lawrence, which commences in to-morrow's issue. This thrilling romance of the sheepmen of the west is one of the best stories the Examiner has yet offered its readers and should be read by everyone who appreciates a well written, clever story. "The Free Range" is full of exciting climaxes and makes admirable reading.

Many Cellars Were Flooded

Some of the merchants situated on George Street have complained of damage to their stock, caused by the large volume of water that was used in the water pressure test. Mr. Norman Wilson, Inspector for the Underwriters' Association, almost immediately after his arrival in the City yesterday, pulled a fire alarm call and ordered Chief Howard to lay ten [illegible]. The amount of water turned loose within the confines of one city block, and with the storm drainage system practically blocked with ice and snow was sufficient to precipitate a flood of serious proportions. As a result several cellars were flooded with consequent damage to the stock. Mr. R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, endeavoured to have this condition ameliorated, but the Inspector declined to take any action.

A Bad Time.

In speaking of the matter this morning City Engineer Parsons states that a little more discretion might have been exercised. He was not prepared to say whether the City was liable for the resultant damage. The test caught the City in a bad time, when the flow was at its height, and with the men employed by the Public Works Department scattered throughout the City. The storm drains were not in a condition to receive the large ex flow of water.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

WHAT IS THE REASON?

When, shortly following the advent of the Laurier Government prosperity, spelled with a capital P, came upon the country, Liberals naturally attributed a great deal of it to the action of the government in so revising the tariff as to help instead of embarrass industary. Just as naturally, the Conservatives attributed the prosperity, which no one could deny, to the operation of the protective tariff which they said the Liberals had retained, though so great an authority as Sir Charles Tupper declared that the Liberals had ruined the protective tariff and as a result he prophesied the ruin of Canadian industries and consequent calamity of every kind. In spite of that, we had, under the tariff of the Liberals, the greatest deluge of prosperity, the longest and strongest era of prosperity ever known in the country. If the Conservatives were right in declaring that this prosperity was due to the protective tariff, and not to good government, why is it that now that the same tariff is in operation, we have hard times upon us and prosperity has disappeared, coincidently almost with the advent of the Conservatives to power? Why does the much vaunted N.P. fail now, and why does the Conservative government, in control of the machinery for manufacturing prosperity, practically confess its inability to do anything to help the situation?

THE SPIRIT OF PROGRESS.

One is somewhat surprised at the attitude Mayor Buller and those who think with him, took at the annual meeting of the Board of Health, in regard to the bottling of milk for household delivery. The idea of delivering milk in bottles is not a "fad," but only one of the modes of distribution adopted in recent years as an advance step in dealing with the economics of supply. Time was when we got our tea in bulk; now we get it in what may be called "individual" packets. We are accustomed to getting our cheese in bulk, but now we get it in dainty jars for those who have fine tastes in food, and so on through a long list of articles. The bottling of milk is not a "fad," is has become, or is becoming, a custom, a concession to the idea of individual service in food supply, and it has, moreover, the sanction of the highest sanitary authority. Whatever may be the economical merits, or demerits, of delivering milk in bottles, that is by no means the main point of consideration. This is, that the best sanitary authorities sanction and recommend it. It is held that one of the main causes of infant mortality, especially in cities, is the character of the milk supply available. Where life and death are in the balance—when it is claimed that milk supplied in bottles is more wholesome than that delivered in open tins, exposed to microbe-laden dust and atmospheric impurities—if this claim is correct then a strong case is made out for the delivery of milk in bottles.

But opposition to the bottling of milk on sanitary grounds is not the main point. The main point is the general popular opposition to recognizing the importance and value of general scientific advance in the promotion of public health interests. We have not only this opposition from people not supposed to do much thinking or reading upon such matters, but also from those in positions of responsibility, where larger outlook might be expected to be exercised. Time was, and may be yet, when the ignorant and prejudiced farmer scoffed at "book farming"—scientific agriculture—and we, indeed find yet many people who scoff at the discoveries of scientific minds in promoting public sanitary interests. Why does the State spend millions to equip laboratories, employ learned men to conduct expensive tests, make elaborate investigations in the interests of the public health? We must assume that those who make a special study of such things are better qualified to guide us than those who not only, have not studied dice and indifference, if not hostility, to the claims of a world of advance in everything, in every department of human activity; not only in sanitation but in science, art, commerce, industry, farming, education and general and civic government. If scientific investigation, if medical science applied to the work, discovers and recommends the best way to conserve our most precious possession—health, why should we not respect their recommendations? We support a somewhat expensive system of garbage disposal in the interests of public cleanliness and, consequently, of public health; in the same interests we have expended $10,000 for a garbage incinerator—all in the interests of the public health, and is it logical to refuse a supply of purer milk to our citizens, if delivering it in bottles is regarded as an assurance in this regard? That it is the better way is admitted by those best qualified to know, but, like everything else, it requires to be properly done, and the assurance given that the best conditions as to sterilizing bottles, etc., are applied. If there are objections on economic grounds they should yield to the consideration of health, if we admit that health will be best prmoted by such a system.

At present, in Peterborough, the agencies for promoting the public health are unusually active and public sentiment is sympathetic. What we need is a broader view and larger development of the spirit of advance in all things that will contribute to the progress of the City.

TEACHERS' SALARIES AND RESULTS.

A sentence of a dozen and a half words in the report of School Inspector Lees of East Peterborough, has a whole volume of significance. The pregnant sentence is this:

"The best attendance is where the best teachers are, and the poorest where the cheap teachers preside."

Could anything demonstrate more directly and practically the evils of a cheeseparing policy and practice in the matter of teachers' salaries? The result stated by the inspector is a logical sequence. All the world over, and in every department of human activity, results as to effective service are more or less directly proportional to the renumeration received. As a rule it is only inefficient service that can be got at a cheap rate; and as a rule it is human for an employee to avoid giving more service than his salary calls for—to avoid doing more than he is paid for doing. It is an unwise and short-sighted policy for boards of school trustees to employ teachers more for their cheapness than for their efficiency. The results are sure to be unsatisfactory; and more than that the money actually paid in low salaries is a loss in a double sense. Educational value is not received, when poor teaching is employed, and another loss is that in addition to this there is in many cases no teaching at all. Parents and pupils both are quick to see ineffectiveness in a cheap teacher; parents reason that a child that is not doing well at school is better employed about the farm or at home or snaring rabbits; and the average pupil is not slow to be relieved of the, to him, tiresome drudgery of lessons.

It is fair to suggest that one cause of trustees wasting the money of the ratepayers on cheap teachers, arises from a lack of appreciation of the importance of education, both to the individual and the state. Many of them seem to think that because they or their forefathers scraped a living, or perhaps made money with little schooling, their children and the children of others should do the same. But they forget that conditions, all round, have changed; and that changed methods must be adopted to meet changed conditions. To appreciate this they might consider where they would be in the race of to-day if they reverted to the farming methods and tools used by their forefathers, or perhaps, in their early years, by themselves—substituting, for example, the sickle or the grain "cradle" for the self-binder, the scythe for the machine mower. They would be lost. The same changed conditions, that require the modern farmer to have a head—with something in it too—as well as hands, obtain in every sphere of activity. Education, is nowadays, a prime factor in success. The standing; progress and future of a country depend upon the educational equipment of its citizens. A school trustee should no more think of employing, a cheap teacher simply because he is cheap, than he would think of buying a reaper or mower simply because it was cheap, but would work so badly that the money paid for it would represent a waste instead of a benefit.

One chief reason for unsatisfactory educational conditions is the scarcity of qualified teachers, partly due to the indifference or inefficiency of our educational authorities; and very largely due to the inadequate salaries paid. The best minds are not attracted to so poorly paid a profession as teaching, but turn, rather, to those where appreciation of brains is expressed in terms of dollars and cents,

A ROMANCE IN REALITY

Three Scotch Lads and How Their Ways and Careers Diverged From a Common Starting Point

A striking characteristic of the late Lord Strathcona was his loyalty to his friends. Illustrations of this fact have been given without number. Still another comes from Napanee, and is furnished by Mr. Robert McConachie of that place, who attended school with the deceased knight in Morayshire, Scotland, and received in later years many evidences of his generosity. The following story of three Scotch boys, and how their careers diverged, is told by Mr. McConachie, who came to Canada in 1870, was employed by the G.T.R. for 40 years and now receives a pension from that company:

Some 50 or 60 years since there stood in a picturesque corner of Morayshire, Scotland, a little parish schoolhouse, in which the callants of the countryside received a more or less profound schooling in the three R.'s. Not far removed from the schoolhouse among a clump of scrub trees, nested the Free Church, from the pulpit of which the Rev. Alex McWatt weekly exhorted his flock to beware of the worlds frivolities; unnecessary advice, one would say, since Morayshire, half a century ago, knew no more exciting diversion than a bit of kirkyard gossip.

One bright day in the spring three sturdy lads emerged from the schoolhouse and began a solemn march toward the outskirts of the village. Without uttering a word they passed swiftly down a lane, climbed the stile where it terminated, and entered a meadow. Halting by common consent in a scheduled shady corner, two of the lads carefully divested themselves of their jackets and began to pummel one another with ferocious energy. The third lay on the soft turf and enjoyed the sanguinary conflict as only a boy can. The delighted spectator was Donald Smith (the late Lord Strathcona); the combatants were Archibald Forbes, afterwards the father of war correspondents, and Robt. McConachie, now living in South Napanee.

Dame fortune is a fickle jade. Here were three boys who started life on an equal footing; each received a sound threshing with the same "birk" for his participation in the meadow affair. But time dug a great gulf between them. While Donald Smith was tramping over league-wide wastes of frozen snow in the employ of the Hudson Bay Co., Archibald Forbes as a private in the Royal Dragoons was laying the foundation of his fame as a traveller and a war writer. The other member of the trio, Robt. McConachie, was of a less adventurous temperament. He did not court fame, and fame passed him by. It did not fall to his lot to equip a regiment for South African service. His plain duty was to guard a dangerous railway crossing in a Canadian town; and after all, to do one's duty, to be faithful to one's trust, is the great essential.

Mr. Carnegie in Skibo Castle; Mr. McConachie in a modest home in Napanee! Which is the happier? The question has been asked before, but has it ever been answered?

The story is a pretty one, and one which adds to the reputation of Lord Strathcona for kind-heartedness. He was a rich man, but he was not necessarily unhappy because of it. On the contrary the fact that he was in a position to bring so much happiness to others must have brought great joy to himself. "Give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you."—Brantford Expositor.

A Word To The Wise

The exceptional conditions prevailing during the last year have made it possible for us to offer to shrewd investors some great bargains in real estate.

You can purchase through us several properties at from one-half to two-thirds their real value, that will in the Spring be in demand for building purposes owing to their location in the heart of the section which saw such phenomenal building activity last year.

Reports show that business in all lines is picking up and 1914 is said to promise the greatest development for Canada that she has yet enjoyed.

Few acts For All Who Want To Make Money

Wise and rich men advise their friends to buy here in the way of a growing City. Plain, common sense endorses their advice.

All must acknowledge that Peterboro is growing rapidly South and West.

It is generally known that I own a very desirable block of high land half mile South and West from G. T. R. Works, overlooking the South End Churches and School, the C. P. R. G. T. R., and Street Car line, also the big Factories. I have subdivided this land into blocks of two lots, 50 x 124 feet to a lane 12 feet, each lot containing 3075 square feet. These lots would be excellent value at $300, each but because of my desire to be freed from business I have decided to sell for $175 and accept deposit of $5.00 on one or two lots to which I will add a bonus of $7.00, giving receipt for $10.00, no interest nor any further payments required, until May, when official plan will be registered. All lots properly staked and balance of streets Cameronore, Ford Avenue and Western Avenue graded to the Gravel Road Reservations. Brick Brick Veneer, Concrete or Stone houses only permitted.

Other lots 30 x 157—3810 square feet for $150, and $200, on same terms. Free title and perfect title. Plans and all particulars at jailbird. This offer will never be repeated.

The Weather For February

Sleet And Furious Blizzards Will Sweep The Country

Iri Hicks' Weather Predictions For the Month

A regular storm period is central on the 4th, extending from the 2nd to the 7th. The Mercury equinoctial disturbance is also central on the 4th. The Mercury influence is continued over from the last days of January, bringing with it cloudy, threatening conditions. By the 2nd and 3rd, marked fall of the barometer will be noted in western parts. Southerly winds and change to warmer will appear merging into storms, first of rain, wind and possibly thunder, turning later into snow, sleet and furious blizzards over much of the country, central and northward. These storms will reach their culminating crisis over the central valleys on and touching the 5th and 6th, disappearing along the Atlantic coast regions a day or two later. A very high barometer, with sweeping north-westerly gales, and cold wave of marked intensity, will constitute the western tangents of these disturbances, all advancing southeastward, the climax of high barometer and cold appearing one to three days behind the first stages of the storm. If the Mars influence should have modified the winter storms and weather up to this period, its dominating influence will begin to break down at this time, and some of the hardest storms and most severe weather for the winter will come during the remainder of February If the Mars period should have taken the positive turn—that is should it have resulted in severe winter in December and January—conditions will begin to change at this time into softening weather, and storms of a more equatorial and tropical nature will characterize the rest of the month.

A reactionary storm period will bring falling barometer, change to warmer, and return to cloudiness and storms of rain, wind and snow. The crisis of this period will fall on the 10th, 11th and 12th, notably on the 11th and 12th, as the moon is in perigee on the 11th, and on the celestial equator on the 12th, following the full moon on the 10th. The storm diagram also shows that the Venus equinox begins to bear on this period. Growing probability of West India storms in the extreme south, and gulf seas at this time, with blizzardous counter storms from the northwest. The Mercury period, which ends at this time, will cause much and destructive sleet during its continuance the first ten days of February. Piercing cold will visit most parts of the country from about the 12th to the 14th.

A regular storm period covers the 13th to the 19th, having its centre on the 16th. By this time we will have entered well into the Earth's Vernal equinox, and the Venus equinoctial period will be approaching its maximum strength. It must not be forgotten, also, that the great Jupiter perturbation has not yet subsided. As we approach the middle and close of February, growing danger of equatorial storms and tornadoes in the south should be apprehended. Let is never be forgotten that the influence of the March equinox of the Earth begins in February, and that some of the most violent West India hurricanes and cyclones sometimes occur during the last half of this month. As early as the 14th and 15th, change to warmer will begin in western extremes, the barometer will begin falling, winds will shift to southerly, and storms of rain, wind and snow will start on their eastward career. By the 16th to 18th these storms will grow in severity as they cover the great central valleys of the continent. By the 19th storms will reach the Atlantic coast regions, and the rising barometer, blizzardous winds and cold wave which are sure to push the west, and northwest side of the storm areas, will have spread well over all western and central parts of the country. These conditions will advance eastward and southward, giving the whole country a mixture of boreal and tropical storms, followed everywhere by rising barometer, and sharp cold for February. Remember, "the electric fire of Venus turns quickly to ice"—that is, warm waves, with rain, thunder and hail, followed within a few hours by sleet, snow and violent change to colder, are the characteristic features of the Venus influence. See if the storms at this period—the 14th to 19th—do not show some such Venus "earmarks." The Venus period is central on the 24th, covering almost the entire month of February and into March.

A reactionary storm period has its centre on the 21st, 22nd and 23rd. The new moon at Solar eclipse node falls on the 24th, the centre of the Venus period. The Earth's Vernal equinox, and the Jupiter influence will all be felt at this and other February storm periods. Low barometer and high temperature will presage violence and probable danger at this time. Storm conditions of this period will not subside until after the moon's conjunction with Earth and Sun on the 24th. The probabilities are that storms and threatening conditions will last into the regular storm period just ahead. If heavy ice exists at this time in rivers and streams—a thing naturally to be expected—there will be great danger of destructive ice jams and floods, as another feature of the Venus equinox is abnormal downpours of rain. Localities specially exposed to such possibilities, will do the wise thing to watch storms and general weather conditions, with a view to such dangers during all these late February disturbances.

A regular storm period is central on the 27th, beginning on the 25th and extending into the first two or three days of March. A marked barometric fall, attended by lightning, thunder and possibly tornadoes southward, need not surprise our readers on and touching the 26th. The storm diagram shows that the moon is on the celestial equator on that date, only one day removed from new moon at its Solar eclipse node, and at the centre of the Venus disturbances. We warn the people in all the south Atlantic and gulf coast regions of probable West India storms and hurricanes, during and about this period. There is also danger that violent boreal storms, with blizzards, followed by a severe February cold wave, will come out of the northwest and spread southeastwardly over the entire country, during and at the close of these disturbances the first days of March.

The first seismic or earthquake period for February will be central on the 10th, covering about the 8th to 13th. Moon will be in opposition with Sun and Earth on the 10th, in perigee on the 11th, and on the equator on the 12th. All these will augment earthquake unrest at this time. Watch for reports, and expect startling results. The second seismic period for the month will be central on the 24th, extending from about the 21st, to the 28th. On and touching Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 24th, 25th and 26th, there is a great probability of destructive earthquakes, more especially in the southern hemisphere. Keep watch and let facts decide. Earthquakes are probable at intervals until after the first seismic period in March, central at Moon's eclipse, March 11th. Such are likely with two eclipses in a lunar month.

BEAUTIFYING NEW ORLEANS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 30. — New Orleans school children will tomorrow plant hundreds of palms with a view to making this the "greenest city in America." While the chief aim of the movement is for a cleaner and more beautiful city, another and not the least important object in planting the palms is to give to New Orleans a more tropical appearance and thereby make the city more attractive for the winter tourists from the North.

ST. GEORGE'S A.Y.P.A. SOCIAL MEETING

A very pleasant social meeting in connection with the St George's A.Y.P.A. was held on Wednesday night in the school room of the Church. The original plan (which should have been a tobogan party) had to be cancelled for the present owing to the weather. The programme was very good, and included songs, recitations and games, together with a few tales by the Rector and a couple of good old songs by the whole of the members. The membership of the society is growing, and there is no doubt but that there are very many pleasant evenings in store for all who wish to become members. Every one last night seemed to be as sociable with each other as it is possible to get them. The committee have something good in store for next Wednesday, but further announcements will be made later on. The society welcomes all persons to its meetings who are either young or want to be young, especially the strangers. Next week they are particularly anxious for every member to bring a friend with them, and if this is done for a few weeks there will be a membership to be proud of.

ESTIMATES TABLED

Dominion Expenses for Year Nearly Two Hundred Millions

SUPPLEMENTARIES COMING

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—The Government's estimated expenditure for 1914-15 is $190,735,176, which is a decrease of about 12 millions compared with the present year. The main estimates were tabled in the Commons yesterday, and are for the most part fixed charges, re-votes and votes for public works already in process of construction. Comparatively speaking, there are very few appropriations for new works in the main estimates, and it is anticipated that the supplementary estimates, which will be tabled later in the session, will contain fairly large appropriations for new works.

There is an increase of over half a million for civil government, which means chiefly salaries for civil servants, an increase of over one million and a quarter for agriculture, a decrease of $71,905 for militia and defence, a decrease of $138,759 for railways and canals, a decrease of $3,703,702 for public works, a decrease of $150,000 for the naval service, and an increase of nearly two millions for the postoffice department.

Toronto fares well in the public works estimates. The total of $1,961,500 includes $1,000,000 on harbor improvements, $220,000 for a military building.

The increase in the agriculture department is chiefly made up on the following: Experimental farms, $110,000; entomology, $20,000; administration of destructive insect and pest act, $20,000; dairying and fruit, $20,000; cold storage, $25,000; health of animals, $50,000; development of live stock industry, $200,000; to enforce seed act, $10,000.

It is evident that the Government intends to pay more attention to immigration, for there is an increase of $383,750. In the Militia Department there is seen a decrease of $71,905. The increases for various portions of work are: Annual drill, $170,000; clothing, $100,000; permanent force, $120,000. The decreases are: Engineer services and works, $288,600; ordnance, arms, lands and equipment, $60,865; stores, $123,100.

The vote of $2,500,000 for terminals at Halifax includes a revote of $1,700,000. One million will be spent on rolling stock for the Intercolonial railway. There is no particularly new item in canals. Repairs and improvements to the Cornwall Canal will cost $39,500; Rideau Canal, $30,000; Soulanges, $101,150; Trent, $178,000; Welland, $83,000.

Public works in Ontario include: French River waterway improvements, $500,000; Port Arthur and Fort William harbor, $1,000,000; Toronto harbor, $1,000,000, which includes a revote of $866,000.

Aurora public building, $25,000, revote, $15,000; Acton, $20,000, revote, $10,000; Aylmer 30,000, revote $7,000.

Barrie, $2,000; Berlin $50,000, all revote; Bracebridge $30,000, revote, $7,000; Brampton, $2,000; Brantford, $200,000, revote, $75,000; Brantford new drill hall, $75,000, revote, $10,000; Burford public building, $20,000; Burk's Falls, $20,000; Brussels $25,000, revote $1,200.

Campbellford $20,000, revote $15,000; Carleton Place postoffice $6,000, revote $4,000; Collingwood public building $75,000, revote $20,000; Cornwall $2,500, revote $1,200.

Dunnville, $20,000; Dundas, $6,000; Durham $25,000, revote $15,000.

Eganville, $28,500; Elmira, $37,000; Exeter $15,000, revote $10,000.

Forest, $20,000; Fort Frances $25,000, revote $20,000; Fort William custom house $125,000, revote $60,000; Fort William drill hall $30,000, all revote.

Galt drill hall $35,000, all revote; Georgetown public building $20,000, revote $5,000; Gravenhurst, $20,000; Grimsby, $15,000.

Hamilton public building $50,000, all revote; Hamilton postal station B $35,000, revote $25,000; Hanover public building, $25,000; Hespeler, $25,000, revote $20,000; Huntsville, $20,000.

Ingersoll $15,000, revote $5,000.

Kingsville $20,000, revote $10,000.

London postoffice $100,000, revote $20,000.

Midland public building $25,000, revote $15,000; Millbrook, $20,000; Milverton $20,000, revote $10,000.

New Hamburg, $10,000; Norwich, $20,000, revote $10,000.

Orillia $30,000, revote $20,000; Ottawa, $790,000.

Paris, $5,000; Parry Sound, $20,000; Perth $25,000, revote $20,000; Peterboro, $50,000; Port Arthur drill hall, $100,000; Preston public building, $43,000.

Seaforth, $5,000; Shelburne, $32,000.

Toronto Dominion buildings, $12,000; Toronto custom house and postal station A, $500,000; Toronto military building, $220,000; Toronto postoffice, Spadina and Oxford, $75,000; Toronto postoffice, Queen and Saulter, $100,000; North Toronto postal station, $4,500; West Toronto post station, in ward six, $50,000.

Most of the harbor improvements in Ontario and revotes, new votes, are: Goderich, $120,000; Picnic Island, $100,000; public works chargeable to capital include St. Lawrence Ship Channel, $1,019,000.

EDMONTON, Jan. 30. — Archdeacon H. A. Gray of Calgary diocese was last evening elected bishop of the new diocese of Edmonton.

Havoc Threatened by Ice Jam.

FORT GEORGE, B.C., Jan. 30.—An ice jam at the mouth of the Nechaco river yesterday flooded the eastern portion of Prince George and threatened to destroy the Foley warehouse. Several families were forced to seek higher land. The temperature is 20 below zero. The jam later broke, carrying away a portion of the G. T. P. temporary bridge.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—Union Stock Yards.—Receipts were light. 29 cars, 178 cattle, 1,321 hogs, 209 sheep and lambs, 18 calves.

Cattle—Few if any good cattle were offered. Trade was dull with few sales and quite a number to be carried over to the coming week. Men who have known the Toronto Cattle Markets for thirty years stated that they never saw as dull a week for cattle. Good butchers' steers, $7.50 to $7.75; medium butchers' steers, $7.00 to $7.25; common butchers' steers, $6.00 to $6.50; choice butchers' heifers, $7.75 to $8.00; common butchers' heifers, $6.75 to $7.00; choice cows, $6.50 to $7.00; good cows, $6.00 to $6.25; canners, $3.75 to $4.50.

Feeders and Stockers—Few on sale. Choice steers, $7.00 to $7.35; medium steers, $6.50 to $6.75; stockers, $6.00 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers — Few on sale, market steady, at $60 to $90 each.

Calves—Only 18 on sale. Choice veals, $10.50 to $11.50.

Sheep and Lambs—There were 200 on sale. Sheep, $6.50 to $7.00; culls and rams, $4.50 to $6.25; lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $9.25 to $9.50; heavy lambs, $8.00 to $9.

Hogs—Market was firmer. Selected, fed and watered, $9.50 to $9.15 f.o.b. cars, and $9.75 weighed off cars.

Troubled With Weak Back and Kidneys For 10 Years.

Many people fail to understand the significance of a lame, weak, sore or aching back.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Take notice to the warning and cure the backache on the first sign, for if you don't do this, serious complications are sure to arise and perhaps develop into Dropsy, Diabetes or Bright's Disease, the three most deadly forms of kidney trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills will strengthen the weak back, and prevent any form of kidney trouble entering the system.

Mrs. Ed. Boyer, Nokomis, Sask., writes:—"I have been troubled with weak back and kidneys. I had terrible dizzy headaches, and could not sleep at night. In this way I suffered for ten years, until I read about Doan's Kidney Pills. I purchased two boxes, and as they helped me, I sent for two more; they put me on my feet, and I have been able to work ever since."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents a box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

ALL GO TEMPERANCE

Three Counties All Give Majorities For Canada Act

RECOUNT IN WELLAND SURE

GODERICH, Jan. 30.—By a majority of 2,508 votes, the Canada Temperance Act was carried in Huron County yesterday. Only one township and a village gave a majority against the act. It's effect will be to abolish thirty-four licenses. The campaign was carried on energetically by both sides.

The Dominion Alliance workers terminated their efforts in continued prayer and song service, which lasted all day. The license holders and their supporters feel their defeat keenly, but have taken it good-naturedly.

At Wingham the temperance workers of the town and vicinity celebrated the victory with a thanksgiving service in the town hall.

Recount In Welland Probable.

WELLAND, Jan. 30. — Welland County yesterday adopted the Canada Temperance Act by the narrow majority of 19, and there is yet a chance that some of the figures are in error. A recount is almost certain.

The first count of the total showed a majority of 75. Corrected returns, however, reduced it first to 58, and later to 19, at which it stood after repeated verifications.

The Township of Pelham, under the Dunkin Act, and Wainfleet and Thorold, under local option, are responsible for carrying the act.

The liquor interests attribute their defeat to the fact that the temperance people were responsible for using old lists in eight municipalities, cutting off about 500 voters, they declare.

The Vote In Peel County.

BRAMPTON, Jan. 30.—Peel County endorsed the Canada Temperance Act yesterday by a majority of 54. The majorities in the various townships, town and villages were as follows:

Brampton, 21 against; Chinguacousy, 203 for; Caledon, 45 against; Streetsville, 35 against; Castlemore, 16 against; Port Credit, 31 against; Cooksville, 8 against; Erindale, 32 against; Dixie, 28 for; Harris' Corners, 33 for; Meadowvale, 12 for; Palatine, 15 against; Malton, 3 against; Clarkson, 19 for; Albion Township, 29 against.

The adoption of the act wipes out eight licenses — one in Meadowvale, one in Erindale, two in Streetsville, one in Cooksville, one at Port Credit and two club licenses, Caledon Fisheries and Lorne Park Club.

Child Almost Strangled

You never know what minute a child will develop a bad cold or be seized by croup. For this reason it takes a great burden off every mother's mind to have at hand Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Mrs. E. W. Silver, South Milford, Annapolis County, N.S., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine for my little boy with most satisfactory results. His throat would fill up with phlegm so bad that he could scarcely make a sound, and I thought he would surely strangle. He grew worse, and had frequent bad attacks, so I began using Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Scarcely half a bottle was used when the strangling ceased. This medicine had a wonderfully soothing effect, and when he had taken two bottles I could not tell that he had any throat trouble. We have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with equally good results. It is a grand medicine for all chest [illegible]. There are imitations but the genuine Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., the famous Receipt Book author.

CHRISTIAN BRETHREN

The children of the Christian Brethren Sunday School held their annual tea meeting treat last night in the Assembly Hall over Bradburn's Opera House. The attendance of both children and adults was good and a very pleasant and profitable evening was spent. Mr. Farley, the Sunday School Superintendent, presented each of the scholars with prize books for their regular attendance and efficiency at the school. During the evening two long tables were spread with refreshments when all did justice to the good things with which they were laden.

Central Prison Is Abolished

States That Prisoners Are Being Wrongly Committed

There is no longer a Central Prison. Its place has been taken by the Reformatory. This was the information imparted by Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, in referring to prisoners in the county jails, who were waiting to be transferred to the "Central Prison," which institution, he stated, was abolished under the Ontario Statutes, 1913. Dr. Smith said that the men were not sentenced in accordance with the statutes. A person committed to the Reformatory must be sentenced for a period of not less than three months, and for an indeterminate period of not more than two years less one day.

THEFT AT CORDOVA.

It is reported that a young girl residing at Cordova obtained access to Mrs. Betsy Cole's house in the golden burch last week, and stole a quantity of food and a number of articles of clothing peculiarly suited for feminine wear. The stolen goods, it is said, were all recovered, and the culprit may be punished for her escapade

ANOTHER DOUBLE LIABILITY CALL.

The double liability on the outstanding shares of the defunct Sovereign bank will be called on immediately. The liabilities of the bank amount to $3,771,136. The assets consist largely in interests in the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway, and the Alaska Northern Railway.

POLICEWOMEN, ALCOHOL AND CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 28th inst., there appeared reasons of a local professional man for opposing the appointment of a police woman. I do not know who this man is, but I am convinced he means more than "hands off." To me his letter says, if the professing Christians of this City were doing all they should do, there would be no need for more police, there would be less immorality. Not that we need more preaching, but better quality.

If this is what he means, since he includes Christian Science, I as a Christian Scientist, doff my hat to his judgment, and admit our weakness and failure in bringing out the results of which the gospel is capable I also admit with him that the remedy for the wrong of our City is not in more officers, but a better application of the Gospel.

The great Exemplar of the power of the truth did not ask for officers of mortal mind, but He cast out the evil of immorality and said, "go and sin no more." Then He said to his followers, go thou and do likewise. He also said, "If ye ask and receive not, ye have asked amiss." If it is true that there is so much wickedness in our midst, after all the preaching and praying, surely there has been asking amiss, and it behooves every Christian to cry out with the disciples of old, "Lord teach us to pray." As proof that there is a weakness in our present presentation of the great truths of the Bible a few points may not be amiss.

In this same issue of your paper, we read a report of a large gathering of ministers, laymen and laywomen, Bible class, etc. After lengthy discussion of the evil, their concluding remedy is a police woman. Where is the Christ, is He still in the tomb, asleep, or on a journey? Again at the temperance meeting Monday night, the same class of workers were gathered. Here we agreed to the awfulness of the drink habit, and resolved on a campaign to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. Why this word beverage? If it is of the devil and not of God, why not cut it out altogether? Because while the promoters of these resolutions preach and pray, as though they believed that God is almighty and a present help in trouble, they fear they may yet be sick and have to bow to this cursed stuff as their saviour at that time. Consequently they say they will allow it to be manufactured and sold as a medicine. Surely this is a lack of confidence in the great I am, whom the Psalmist said, "Healeth all our diseases." However, it was gratifying at this convention to hear Dr. McTavish say, "A new star has appeared; medical science now declares that alcohol is not a stimulant to either mind or body." This, coming from medical science, may help to inspire our clergy and Christian laymen to trust in God, and no longer think to have whiskey as medicine.

If Doctor McTavish had been looking in the right direction, he would have seen this star long ago. God, in His great love, revealed to Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy this bright and glorious star. That Spirit was, is, and ever will be the only stimulant, the only power

That Christ, the truth about God, man, and the universe is the Saviour of mankind from all the works of evil, including immorality. These truths Mrs. Eddy wrote in a book known as Science and Health, with key to the Scriptures. Thus I would recommend the study of the Bible with this book as a commentary, as a solution to the problem of bettering our conditions. With the true interpretation of the Scripture put into practice unitedly, we will not only do away with the need of police women, but have less need of hospitals, asylums, etc. "There is none other name under Heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Acts. 4: 12.

Thanking you in advance.

Sincerely yours,
R. J. Todd.

MEMORIAL SERVICE IN MARK ST. CHURCH

At the morning service in the Mark St. Methodist Church on Sunday a memorial service will be conducted in connection with the Cradle Row of the Sunday School. Parents of the children in the Primary Department are asked to see that their children are present at 10:30 o'clock. It is hoped that the mothers of the Cradle Row will all attend.

Salt, if applied immediately, will absorb ink spots from clothing.

BUSINESS NOTES

The Peterborough Furniture Co., Hunter Street, East City, have already made a good start for the New Year in the number of orders received for their goods. Mr. Oke has been busy, with two workmen, setting up new machinery for the more perfect equipment of his factory; and it is pleasing to learn that the outlook is so good for a busy season.

Mr. Ellis of the Peterborough Mattresses Co., Hunter Street, is working steady on orders and is daily shipping out and adding to book orders for mattresses, spring beds, etc. The Company are well equipped for doing a steady business.

The G. Walter Green Co., machinists and founders, have seldom been so busy in their machine shop as at present. The demand for their sawmill machinery has become quite active and plants for new mills are being shipped out as fast as completed. In the development of their sawmill business they have forseen the wants of the public and consistently and persistently gave publicity to their efficient saw-mill specialties. Alderman Green is a "live wire"; he sees that every machine is properly set up, so that with established confidence in their mills, the Company expect to reap prestige and benefit to themselves.

The past has been a splendid year for the firm of Messrs Richard Hall & Son. Sales have exceeded any previous year and they are still "keeping up steam" in the supposed backward month of January. February promises to be as good. There used to be a feeling among our storekeepers that they didn't expect to do much business in January, and some of them made little attempt to do much in regular trade—just letting things droft along till about the end of March. But that's all changed now. Just watch the big stores, how they advertise. Better still, watch the crowds of shoppers they attract. Richard Hall & Son have had a busy month and selling has more than justified their expectations. They have demonstrated their ability to present attractive inducements to buyers and, consequently their big, busy store keeps up a lively gait during what is supposed to be the off-season". Perhaps profits are smaller, but look how it keeps things moving, upstairs and down.

TO PAY MONEY INTO COURT.

Share of Eleven-Year-Old Marmora Girl to Be Cared For.

TORONTO, Jan. 30—"She might be the best guardian in the world, and the worst trustee," declared Chief Justice R. M. Meredith, at Osgoode Hall, on an application for the payment to the guardian of $1,556, due Lena Webb, aged 11, of Marmora, on a life insurance policy. His Lordship enlarged the case for a week, allowing the amount to be paid into court, with leave to the guardian to apply for payment from time to time as the money might be needed.

IN MEMORY OF THE MARTYR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Jan. 30.—To-day was the two hundred and sixty-fifth anniversary of the beheading of King Charles I., who was executed by his rebellious subjects at Whitehall, January 30, 1649. In accordance with their usual custom, the several branches of the so-called Legitimatist societies in London and elsewhere observed the day by sending wreaths for the decoration of the statut of the "martyr king" in Trafalgar Square.

SEND IN THE NAME

The Examiner has received a letter referring to the employment of outside mechanics in city industries, but as, contrary to the well known newspaper rule, the writer does not gives his name, the letter cannot be used—till the name is furnished.

Since the above was in type, another letter on another subject, subject to the same objection — lack of the writer's real name has been received.

MUNICIPAL MILK DELIVERY SYSTEM

Proposed by Dr. Amys and Property Committee Will Look It Over

At the suggestion of Dr. Amys the Property Committee of the City Council will take into consideration the establishment of a public milk depot and delivery system. With four or five milkmen delivering in one block, he claimed that there was a resulting heavy cost which was paid for by the consumers.

The doctor's idea was that the city should consider the question of taking over the entire milk business in the city. A central sterilization and pasteurization plant should be considered in the system. In this way the city could control the milk business nd would provide against a monopoly. The people would secure a direct benefit.

Alderman Langford—Is there any place where this has been tried out?

Dr. Amys—I don't know of any. Some towns allot milkmen to certain sections. I know that some of the milkmen are in favour of the idea. The present method is expensive to the consumer and producer.

Myor Buller—I read in the paper some time ago that if milk is pasteurized beyond a certain degree it is spoiled.

COST OF WORK IS INCREASED

When Public Work is Undertaken in the Winter Time

City Engineer Parsons does not approve of undertaking construction work in the winter time. That is, where any excavating has to be done. The cost, he claims, is augmented by the fact that it is much more difficult to lay mains in the winter time owing to the frost and snow, and the work when completed is less stisfactory. It also leaves the road in a state of upheaval until it can be properly tramped down in the spring.

Increased Cost.

The cost of laying mains and sewers in the winter time is increased upwards of twenty-five per cent. more than it would during any other season. The chief object of undertaking construction work in the winter time is to provide work for the unemployed. Some of the ratepayers have indicated that they would rather contribute to charity direct the difference in the cost of construction, in preference to having the work done at a time when weather conditions are unfavourable.

HON. MR. FIELDING MAY RE-ENTER THE COMMONS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—There is an understanding here that Hon. W. S. Fielding, late Minister of Finance in the Laurier government, and who yesterday resigned from the position of Editor of the Montreal Herald and Telegraph, will be back again in parliament before very long. The report states that he will seek re-election in the constituency of Yarmouth, N.S., where the present member will resign in his favour. Yarmouth is considered an absolutely safe Liberal seat. Mr. Fielding would be a tower of strength to the Liberals in the economical discussions which will occupy the present session.

Paper Money for Mexican Rebels.—A reproduction of a note sent to Mr. Jock de Roulac of Toronto by his brother in El Paso. These notes are of worth only while Villa controls the district. At another stage he seized a roll of copper wire and cut it into two cent pieces. A centavo is worth about half a cent.

NEED ASSISTANT FOR MR. SPENCE

But Committee Decided to Wait Until Council Decides Regarding Garbage Extension.

GREAT DEAL OF WORK CONFRONTS INSPECTOR

The Property and Health Committees held a joint meeting on Thursday night, when the question of re arranging the Sanitary Inspector's department with a view to systematizing the work and providing assistants was deferred until the Council decides whether it will extend the garbage system or not.

Ald. Langford presided with the following present: Mayor Buller, Ald. McIntyre, Ald. Saunders, Dr. Amys, Dr. McPherson.

Dr. Amys stated that the Medical Health Officer has urged upon the appointment of an assistant for Mr. Spence, who could do clerical work. "Personally," Dr. Amys said, "I think Mr. Spence is too valuable a man to have tied in an office. The police might combine with the Sanitary Inspector for the issuing of dog tags, etc., and it would not cost any more.

Mayor Buller — "Dr. McPherson wants the Plumbing Inspector to come under Mr. Spence's supervision."

Dr. McPherson explained that Mr. Spence, in his rounds, finds defective plumbing, which he reports to the Plumbing Inspector. If these offices could be linked in some way their work would be harmonized.

Ald. Langford—"They could occupy the same office and arrange to have one in while the other is out."

Ald. Duncan—"You cannot get a good plumber to act in a position where he would be under the Sanitary Inspector. And the Plumbing Inspector must be a practical, efficient man.

Ald. Langford suggested that the two Inspectors be placed under the M. H. O.

Ald. Duncan—"When the 'phone was placed in Mr. Spence's office it was intended that Mr. Henry would receive messages for the Sanitary Inspector when he was out. This is being taken care of at the present time. When Mr. Spence finds defective plumbing he can report it to the Plumbing Inspector."

Dr. McPherson considered that Mr. Spence should be relieved of the work of disinfecting houses.

Ald. Duncan—"You have been doing quite a bit of that yourself."

Dr. McPherson—"Yes, but it requires no medical training to nail up placards. Neighbours are the best police in infection."

Mayor Buller—"That's what I said the other day and they called me down."

The M. H. O. explained the method of disinfecting houses by burning formaldehyde candles.

Dr McPherson—"Mr Spence does not loaf on the job, and he has not got over the whole City yet with a thorough inspection. We are preparing a lot of work that should be done but if we do not get the help we can't do it. His inspection of the slaughter houses was a revelation to the committee. He has a report ready on the laundries, and the hotels and laundries must be looked after."

Ald. Duncan — "There is not a member of the Council who does not want to help Mr Spence as much as possible."

Moved by Dr Amys, seconded by Ald Duncan, that the question of an assistant be left in abeyance until the Council decides upon garbage collection and the plumbing inspectorship."

Moved by Dr McPherson, seconded by Ald. Duncan that licenses for boarding houses, milk vending, etc., be referred to the Sanitary Inspector before they are issued by the City Clerk.

SAYS MOISSEAU WAS PAID $500

Special Wire to The Examiner:

QUEBEC CITY, Jan. 29.—The first evidence taken in the parliamentary investigation of graft charges against the former members of the Quebec Legislature, began to-day. Mr. Beck, former Editor of the Montreal Herald, was a witness and he told of the payment of five hundred dollars cash to Mr. Moisseau, through the medium of one Sampson. This was just as evidence of good faith that the total of twenty-five hundred would be forthcoming when the bill was pushed through. The evidence caused quite a sensation.

BOTH PATIENTS ARE IMPROVING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—Bulletins from Toronto General Hospital to-day indicate that both Sir James Whitney and Sir Geo. Ross are improving.

With an annual output of 98,000,000 barrels, California now leads all other States in the production of petroleum. Next in the order named come Oklahoma, Illinois, Texas, Louisiana, West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Kansas and Indiana.

Parody Old Black Joe.

Gone are the days when free trade is any good,
Canada will soon grow all Great Britains food,
Chamberlain's policy would suit, I know.
My theme I sing to the tune of Old Black Joe.

Britain's colonies are spread out far and wide.
Over all creation, over sea and tide,
Where produce for man, as well for beast will grow,
My theme I sing to the tune of Old Black Joe.

Britain should protect her vast Empire's wheat,
Chamberlain's policy would be hard to beat,
A tax against foreign wheat would suit I know,
My theme I sing to the tune of Old Black Joe.

Britain's navy is supreme upon the sea,
Over creation her commerce ruling free.
A navy tax all round would suit best I know.
My theme I sing to the tune of Old Black Joe.

Britain's whole Empire should have one navy tax,
From Halifax round, and back to Halifax.
Or some policy, that would suit high or low,
My theme I sing to the tune of Old Black Joe.

The Ottawa Pirates are out of a job,
All that they can do is to sit down an sob,
The speech from the Throne gave them a clinch I know,
My theme I sing to the tune of Old Black Joe.

Marriage Was Declared Illegal

When W. J. Kitchener, of New York, invited Arthur R. Bastine, a New York real estate operator, to his summer home at Kashabog Lake, East Peterborough, some years ago, he little thought that his hospitality would be rewarded by his guest stealing his wife. But such was the case. Bastine fell in love with the attractive little lady on his visit, and upon her return to New York, succeeded in persuading her to leave her husband, live in California six months, procure a divorce in that state, and finally marry him. Mr. Kitchener has recently been granted an interlocutory decree of divorce by Justice Gilgerich in the Supreme Court and disregarding Mrs. Kitchener's divorce decree obtained in California and also her marriage since to Bastine. Under the decision Mrs. Kitchener-Bastine is without a legal husband in New York until the interlocutory decree becomes final. She is expecting to bring into the world a child. The decree awarded against her provides that she may not re-marry in New York while her one-time husband lives, and the order cannot be modified before five years.

Mr. Kitchener also has an action for $10,000 damages pending against Mr. Bastine, alleging that he alienated the affections of the erstwhile Mrs. Kitchener.

Justice Gilgerich's decision is sweeping in its character and also affects divorces obtained in Reno and Dakota, and according to legal opinion, hundreds of divorces obtained by New York women in western states may be declared void if action is taken.

A meeting of District Orange Lodge will be held Friday Evening at 7.45 sharp. All members please attend. H. Stenson, District Master. 2d-24

Prices Of Household Necessities Here As Compared With Other Cities

Below will be found some striking comparisons in the prices of foodstuffs as exist here and in some other cities in Ontario. Peterborough prices apparently are as high as any where. The price of meats here seems to be highr than that which prevails in other places, but butter and eggs are bringing a higher figure in some cities than in Peterborough. The statistics, as given in the January Labour Gazette, are as follows:

	Peterborough	Hamilton	Kingston	Belleville	Orillia
Sirloin steak per lb.	.25	.22	.20	.20	.23
Veal, fore quarter	.16	.13	.15	.14	.17

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Don't be "it" or think you're "it" until you are "it," and when you become "it" don't advertise that you are "it".

I am not depreciating the value of independence, or the display of individuality, nor do I belittle the commercial worth of self-assurance. Too much modesty and self-depreciation are not commercial commodities, and do not work for financial or other success; but the opposite of these is far more fatal and is surer to cause disaster.

If there is any one kind of boy or man who is despised, both by his employer and his associates in business and out of it, it is the fellow who thinks he is "it," who is a walking bundle of crooked conceit, of no particular use to himself and disagreeable to those with whom he comes in contact.

Because he thinks he is "it," he never is "it." If he possesses ability, his unpopularity keeps him down, and he is not given opportunity to use his capacity.

The fact that you graduated at the head of your high school class and were valedictarian, or that you are a college graduate or post-graduate, with well-earned degrees, does not justify you in feeling above your fellows in business and holding yourself aloof from your working associates.

The value of education is in the application of it, and you cannot apply academic learning in business, or in the professions, unless you become a part and parcel of the vocation you have selected and feel neither above nor below your associates.

The action of business is, fortunately or unfortunately, different from that of school or college life, and you must accept this difference and adapt yourself to it, if you would succeed. Your education, if it be liberal, is a commodity, which may be used to advantage, and which may handicap you, if you are foolish enough to parade it.

Do not feel above your working position, until you have worked beyond it. While in the ranks you are a soldier, not an officer; and it is your business to perform your duty, subordinate though it may be, as though you occupied the highest position on the staff.

Good officers come from good soldiers.

Successful business and professional men spring from those who considered their apprenticeships as a part of their education, and mastered the lower rungs of the ladder before they attempted to command the higher ones.

Ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent. of the men of success, of marked accomplishment, who have earned the right to be in the public eye, began at the bottom, and some of them started at the sub-bottom. They worked up, step by step, and did the little things at the start as well as they did the big things at the finish, and they neither strutted nor bragged while en route.

Be proficient in little before you attempt to be great in much.

Don't put on airs.

Don't be "it"

But yourself, recognizing the fact that you cannot command until you have been commanded.

ALL SAINTS' CHOIR HAD SLEIGH DRIVE

Last evening the adult members of All Saints' choir, to the number of twenty-five, enjoyed an excellent sleigh drive to Nassau.

The party left the Parish Hall at 3 p.m., returning at 9.30. Singing of songs and choruses prevailed most of the way, and all were in excellent spirits. On returning, refreshments were served in the Parish Hall by Mr. T. H. Hooper. Here a most pleasant duty was performed by Mr. Geo. Chandler, the choir master, who in a few well chosen words, presented one of the choir, Mr. F. Downtown, with a silver plated butter knife, on the occasion of his recent marriage. Mr. Downtown was too surprised for words, but by the pleasant smile he bore, it was easily seen he was well pleased.

The evening closed with some songs, instrumental numbers and hearty praise for the splendid work of the secretary, Mr. Geo. East, and those who supported him in perfecting the arrangements.

In Germany there has been patented a process for converting water into hydrogen peroxide by the use of chemicals which are recovered afterward for further use.

WHY WE GUARANTEE THIS STOMACH REMEDY

If there are one hundred people in this town who suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, or any other form of stomach complaint, we believe we can suggest a remedy that will relieve at least ninety-eight of them, and perhaps every one of the hundred. We'll do more than suggest the remedy—we'll promise to give back the money to each and every one of the hundred that are not relieved. That's how much faith we have in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets.

Containing Pepsin and Bismuth, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science, as well as other necessary ingredients, Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets soothe the inflamed stomach lining, aid the secretion of gastric juice, check distress and heartburn, promote regular bowel action and make it possible for you to eat what you like and as much as you like with out fear of consequences.

Don't suffer any longer from dyspepsia or indigestion. Use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, and you will be just as enthusiastic about them as we are, and just as ready to urge them on your friends. Sold only at the Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00. McDermid & Jury; F. L. Payne, Peterborough, Ont.

Fish au Gratin.

Make a cream sauce by heating two cupfuls of milk, thicken with cornstarch and a teaspoonful of butter, a pinch of sale or a pinch of pepper. Pick any kind of cold fish and stir it into the cream sauce, then turn into an earthen dish, grate a little cheese over the top and put into the oven until the fish is thoroughly heated.

Panel Curtain Device.

How not to muss panel lace sash curtains when the windows of sleeping rooms are open at night has been a problem of many particular housewives. About half way up the lower half of the curtain sew a small dress hook on either edge of the curtain and one in the middle, if there is heavy lace or strong material at that point. Beside the small ring screwed into the wood rod of the window shade for the pull cord, screw a similar ring into each of the rod, where it will not be noticed. Catch the dress hooks into the three corresponding rings on the window shade and roll the latter up as high as it is desired to have the window open. The screw rings can be put into the window jamb if preferred.

WHITBY GAME POSTPONED UNTIL WEDNESDAY NEXT

Owing to the mild weather the big game between Whitby and Peterborough scheduled for to-night at Whitby has by mutual consent been postponed until Wednesday night of next week. The Peterborough Club will run an excursion to Whitby, a special G. T. R. train leaving here at 5 o'clock and returning after the game. A round trip fare of $1.50 has been secured and it is expected that several hundred fans will accompany the team. Whitby's new ring has splendid accommodation for spectators, and there should be no difficulty in securing seats. The game will be a feature of the hockey season, and will virtually decide the championship of the district.

Hockey--That's All

The Peterborough intermediates and juniors will practice to-night at Brock Street rink. A full attendance of players is requested. The intermediates will also practice on Monday night in preparation for their game at Whitby.

On account of the Peterborough Club's practice, the Church League game, scheduled for between 7 and 8 o'clock to-night, has been shifted to etween 10 and 11 o'clock.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

The Business College accepts the challenge of the Brinton Carpet Co. The latter to make arrangements for the game with H. Hall by 'phoning 1253, between the hours of 12 and 1.30 and 5 and 8.30 p.m.

BERLIN WON FROM PRESTON

BERLIN, Ont., Jan. 29.—Accomplishing that which they have longed for during the past three weeks, the local O. H. A. Intermediate team to-night forced the Preston seven to sup the cup of defeat. Two to one was the final score and well represents the play. Conditions were bad, the ice being covered with water.

Where the locals outclassed the visitors was in back-checking, and it was in this department of the game that they were able to win. The entire forward line played as they never did before, and when the Preston attack broke away for a rush the youngsters were always on their heels. On the attack Berlin displayed much more combination than the Preston seven, and time and again, despite the water on the ice, broke away with two and three man combinations.

Both of the local goals were scored in the first half. After four and one-half minutes to play Solomon notched the first goal on a pass from Roschman. Twenty-five minutes after Leroux scored the second. In the second half Rahn succeeded in scoring Preston's only tally, after fifteen minutes of play.

Boettger, Solomon and Roschman were best for the locals, while Rahn and Etherington did excellent work for the visitors. As a result of this game the teams are tied for the leadership of the group, and will probably met next week to decide the honour. A crowd of close on to four thousand witnessed the game. The teams:

Referee, Harvey Sproule.

E. Jette—the Canadians' spare defence man, who is showing great improvement every game. He played good hockey against Montreal on Saturday, Jan. 24th.

Bad Case of Wanderlust.

"They tell me you've lost your hired man."

"Yep; best farm hand I ever had."

"Sho! What wus th' matter?"

"Nothin'. John's a German, you know, and these here Germans hev what they call the wanderlust. It's somethin' thet keeps 'em movin' from one place to t'other, an' don't let 'em stay long anywheres."

"That's queer, ain't it? How long had John been with you?"

"Only eleven years."

NEW PILOT OF THE PETES

"CURLEY" BLOUNT

Of Youngstown, O., the new manager of the Peterborough Canadian League Club. Blount is a .300 hitter, a fast base-runner, and a great leader. He has been most popular in Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., MAY GET ST. THOMAS FRANCHISE

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The report that the St. Thomas franchise may be transferred to Youngstown, Ohio, was confirmed by Mr. Ed. Killingsworth, one of the St. Thomas directors, who now lives in London. Mr. Killingsworth stated that the St. Thomas Club would be transferred to Youngstown. He attended the meeting of the St. Thomas City Council last evening, and on behalf of the Club asked for a couple of concessions. The request was turned down, and as a result the St. Thomas directors held a hurried meeting and practically decided to move the franchise. According to Mr. Killingsworth they have been quietly negotiating with Youngstown for several weeks, and the negotiations have been so favourable that he will go to the Ohio city Saturday and arrange for the transference. With St. Thomas transferred to Youngstown the Canadian League will have an ideal circuit.

CHINA'S RELIGION

CONFUCIANISM CHOSEN.

Yuan Shi Kai Makes Creed the Official Chinese Religion.

PEKIN, China, Jan. 30. — A bill prescribing the Confucian religion and the worship of heaven by the President of the Chinese republic was passed yesterday by the administrative council, which took the place of the Chinese Parliament, recently dissolved by President Yuan Shi Kai. The measure was submitted to the council by Yuan Shi Kai himself.

It is understood that the President's idea is to set an example to the Chinese nation, which he thinks needs the moral-building influence of religion. The President will worship at the Temple of Confucius and at the Temple of Heaven annually in the same way as the Manchu emperors did, but without wearing the diadem. The diadem was proposed, but was not adopted owing to criticism that it was another indication of Yuan Shi Kai's monarchial designs.

The question of the introduction of a state religion has created considerable controversy in China, the Christian missionaries of all sects, as well as Buddhists, Taoists and Mohammedans, opposing such a step.

BOMB EXPERT CONFESSES.

Nineteen-Year-Old Youth Admits Planting Forty Bombs.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Anthony Sadaitys, a youth of nineteen, the latest sensation of the Sylvestro trial, told the court of his employment by a gang of blackmailers during which he planted about forty bombs, receiving from $1 to $30 for each job.

This story rivals that of Alfred Lehman and Rocco Ducielli, who preceded him on the stand. He was born in the Williamsburgh section of Brooklyn, he said, had never attended school and committed his first serious offence, burglary, in 1909. Since that time he confessed to thirty burglaries, forty bomb outrages, thirty horse and wagon thefts and one murderous assault. His connection with the blackmailers began he said in November, 1912, when he met Fucielli and several leaders of the gang and became a "mechanic" or bomb planter. One of his principal jobs was to get dynamite, which he said he stole out of a tunnel in Jersey City and from construction work in Sullivan County, N.Y.

Secretly Weds An Actress

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—Hon. Angus McDonnell, a close friend of the Connaughts, second son of Earl of Antrim, announced to-day from Rideau Hall, where he is guest, that he was secretly married on December 18th last to Miss Ethelwyn Sylvia Arthur Jones, an actress who is now touring in the United States. The marriage took place at Evanston, Ill. The Honorable Angus runs a large fruit ranch near Vancouver, B.C.

NOW SIDE BY SIDE

RIVALS IN SAME PLIGHT.

Sir George Ross With Sir James Whitney In General Hospital.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—Two leaders of men, who fought each other strenuously for many years across the floor of the Legislature, are now lying on opposite sides of the same corridor in the private patients' pavilion of the Toronto General Hospital. Together they are now fighting a common enemy.

Sir George Ross arrived in Toronto early yesterday morning, having come from Ottawa accompanied by his son, Dr. George W. Ross, in the private car of Hon. Frank Cochrane, generously loaned by the Minister of Railways. Sir George is suffering from kidney trouble, which, while necessarily serious in a man of his years, is not considered so serious as to cause immediate alarm. He is being attended by his son and by Dr. William Goldie. Last night his condition was reported as improved. During the day he was quite cheerful, and is perfectly clear in his mind.

"Sir James has had a better and a relatively restful day," said Dr. Alexander McPhedran last night in his bulletin on the condition of the Prime Minister. "There is very little fever, and he has taken his food well."

The trouble in Sir James' knee, Dr. McPhedran said, had disturbed his rest, but it would get better. Apart from this affection his condition was about the same.

MR. FIELDING RESIGNS.

Will Not Edit Paper Under Sir Hugh Graham's Control.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—Hon. W. S. Fielding yesterday resigned the editorship of the newly amalgamated Herald and Telegraph.

Mr. Fielding states that he was led to accept the presidency of the combined papers in the first instance under a misapprehension. He now finds that The Herald-Telegraph is under the control of Sir Hugh Graham, proprietor of The Montreal Star, and as Mr. Fielding finds he cannot see eye to eye with Sir Hugh on many matters of public concern he feels bound to resign. He explains that when he agreed to accept the editorship he was led to understand that while Sir Hugh Graham has some interest in the concern, he did not control the paper's policy, but that the actual financial control was in the hands of a prominent Liberal.

To-day the managing editor, B. A. Deacon, the commercial editor, Frank Calder, and the commercial editor, Mr. Hanna, resigned their positions, and are replaced by men who were, prior to the merger, engaged on The Daily Telegraph.

TRAINING HIM.

"Mac!"

No answer.

"Mamie!" he called softly.

Complete silence.

"Madge!"

Not a sound.

"Margaret!"

Then he whistled softly before making his final effort.

"Marguerite!"

And a flute-like voice replied in the distance—

"Yes, darling!"

Patience is bitter, but its fruit is sweet. —Rousseau.

Labour Notes

Union painters in San Francisco demand $5.00 a day.

Fewer trade unions exist in Turkey than in any other European country.

Union cigarmakers issued more than 30,000,000 of labels in the year 1913.

Unions of women workers in New York city have a total membership of about 100,000.

Canadian labour unions are endeavouring to have the Government establish an old age pension system.

The International Brotherhood of Painters will erect a monument in honour of its founder, John T. Elliot, in Baltimore.

The railroads of the United States employ 1,600,000 persons and have an annual pay roll amounting to $1,243,133,172.

During February all locals of the International Typographical Union will nominate candidates for international officers.

The organized bricklayers in Boston are now receiving $28.50 a week, which is an increase of more than $8 over the scale paid in 1898.

Lathers in the Northwest will meet in Seattle in March for the purpose of organizing a Northwest district council of wood, wire and metal lathers.

The Porto Rican legislature has enacted a law regulating the work of women and children, limiting the hours of employment and protecting them gainst dangerous occupations.

Three candidates are in the field for vice-president of the International Typographical Union. They are Walter W. Barrett, of Chicago; Edwin L. Hichens, of Cincinnati, and S. M. Shrewsbury, of Nashville.

The International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America may not hold its next convention in Indianapolis because of the alleged hostile attitude of the business men of that city towards organized labour.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature of Manitoba to prohibit the employment of white women and girls in any factory or place of business owned or managed by Japanese or Chinese.

In England during the year 1912, according to a report recently issued by the Board of Trade, the aggregate increase in wages amounted to $695,000, which was distributed among 1,818,000 working men and women.

Fifteen thousand coloured men in Paris are reported to be forming a trades union to resist the efforts of the white workmen, who are alleged to be attempting to prevent the coloured men from getting an increase in pay. The union will include chauffeurs, hotel porters, domestic servants and others.

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. WILSON.

Jane Gibson, wife of Mr. David Wilson, of Springville, and for fifty years a very highly respected resident of Cavan Township, passed away at her home early this morning, after an illness of several years.

The late Mrs. Wilson was born in Ireland, but came to Cavan Township years ago, and for a long time had been known as one of the oldest residents of that township. She resided near Springville, at Lot 23, Con. 10, Cavan, where her death took place this morning. The whole community will feel the loss of the deceased lady.

She is survived by several children. The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock to the 9th Line cemetery.

Are Farmers Honest?

"We are prepared to say with authority that the fiction of the 'honest farmer' is fiction. Find a farmer who never has been 'done' by one or more of his farmer neighbors and I'll find the needle in two hay stacks."

I make this quotation from an advertising magazine. The writer, once a prominent business man and now retired to the farm, makes the claim that the farmer is one of the most dishonest men in business to-day.

A few weeks ago a big consignment of apples was received at a storage warehouse from an Ontario grower. The fruit inspectors, on examining them, found that in many cases the only good apples in the barrel were on the top.

It is not long since a country merchant informed me that he had received a crock of butter with a big lump of salt in the centre.

I could go on almost indefinitely naming small dishonest tricks that have come to my attention or that I have seen personally in connection with the farmer in business. Every rural community has its sharpers and every city community is coming to understand that the fact that a man is a farmer is not a guarantee of his honesty.

We who are farmers must admit the truth of the contention that some of us are not as honest as we should be. That, however, is no reason for condemning us all. It would be quite as just to say that there are no honest people in the city because a few representatives are occasionally hauled into the police court for their dishonest procedures. I thoroughly believe that farmers as a whole are more honorable than any other class of the community. Statistics as to the source of the criminals found in our prisons and penitentiaries bear me out in this contention.

It is true, however, that there are many sharpers in rural communities and that they are citizens in good standing. I suppose that every Home Club reader can think of some sharp neighbor who is a welcome guest in the homes of the community. Would it not be better if all such sharpness, which borders on dishonesty, were frowned on to such an extent that no man could consider himself a respectable citizen unless he be absolutely honorable.—"Brother Jack."

Trade-Marking A Business

Mr. M. J. Maher's Original Idea For Advertising the Oak Hall Store Effectively

The tendency nowadays is for every up-to-date business whose proprietor has faith in its wares, is to establish a trade mark. The trade mark of the Oak Hall products are naturally the acorn which has been localized and made adaptable to the Oak Hall store, of which Mr. M. J. Maher is manager here, by an original idea of Mr. Maher's which is produced in the advertisement of the Oak Hall store in to-day's Examiner.

memories of your work in Charlotte Street Church.

We ask you to accept this gift not as payment for your services so cheerfully rendered, for these you will receive the "Well Done" of the Master, but as a slight token of the love and esteem, the members of this church and the members of the choir hold you in.

May the rest of your life be as faithfully spent in the services of the Master as the years you have spent with us have been, and may the favour of God be your satisfying portion for ever is the wish and prayer of the members of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church.

The Presentation.

The presentation consisted of a substantial purse of gold. Miss Clarry responded to the address and presentatin in the usual terms of gratitude and appreciation.

Miss Clarry has held the position of organist and leader of the choir of the choir of the Church. In this capacity she has given most effective, and consequently satisfactory, service; and the tangible and formal recognition of her services by the congregation constituted a tribute richly deserved. It is to the good and faithful work of Miss Clarry that is very largely due, the high standard, the musical services of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church have reached.

To Miss Clarry's qualities as a musician of unusual technical skill and musical spirit are to be added social and personal qualities that have made her popular and esteemed, not only in the immediate circle of her Church associations, but among the hundreds she counts upon her list of friends, and in society generally.

To the very general regret felt in the Church and in the social circels of the City at Miss Clarry's removal permanently, will be added the warmest wishes for her happiness in her new home, Edmonton, Alberta, for which place she will leave in a few days.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES FANCIED A GRIEVANCE AGAINST MR. LEES

But Inspector Showed Clearly That He Was Simply Carrying Out the Requirements of the Department — Question of Grants and Actions of Trustees.

HARMONIOUS FINALE

Because the teacher at Villiers school, S. S. No. 1, Otonabee, last year did not possess the proper qualifications, the Government grant was not forwarded to the Board, and at Friday afternoon's session of the County Council a deputation of the trustees asked for an explanation.

Mr. Richard Lees, Inspector, stated that the trustees had not complied with the regulations of the School Act. The school was vacated during the summer holidays in 1912, but in the last week in August no teacher had been secured. The trustees had secured an Otonabee girl as a last resort. She had no certificate, and no qualifications. The trustees had asked him to get a temporary certificate for her, but he had replied that there was no use in asking for it.

To the Council, Mr. Lees emphasized two points. He did not think the trustees had been diligent enough in trying to secure a new teacher. Trustees in adjoining sections had filled positions. Secondly, the salary, $500, was not large enough. Qualified teachers were getting more. S. S. No. 1 was ranked fourth or fifth in the assessment column and the trustees could afford to pay for the best teachers.

Had Second Chance.

"Suppose I asked for a temporary certificate and it had been granted," Mr. Lees stated. "It would have been good only to the end of the year. It was then the duty of the trustees to try to get another teacher. The secretary came to me and I told him teachers were being graduated from the Model school, and he should try to get one. Mr. Garnet, the secretary, had replied that there was no use carrying on the conversation. The trustees had made up their minds and decided what they would do. Mr. Garnet had asked that a temporary certificate be applied for.

Mr. Lees stated that none would be granted unless the trustees had endeavoured to get some better qualified teacher. In June 1913 he had made out his list for the department, and regarding S. S. No. 1 he had written that the salary paid was $500, and that the teacher had no certificate. The result was that the Department apportioned no grant for that school.

What Trustees Did.

Mr. Garnet said in reply that they had avertised in Toronto papers as early as July 2, 1912. One teacher who aplied asked for $575, but by the time the trustees had replied she had secured another school.

Mr. Lees— The regulations require that the salary be stated. If the trustees had made an effort in December to put themselves right there would have been a possibility of securing the grant then. I gave no positive assent to the appointment made by the trustees.

Warden Shaw—What could they have done?

Mr. Lees—There were others who had passed the Collegiate Institute examinations who were better qualified than the young lady.

Mr. Campbell, chairman of the School committee, which heard the deputation—It looks like a matter for the Department, the Inspector and the trustees to deal with and not this Council.

Mr. Garnet— We have a qualified teacher this year, but it is her first year teaching and I am told we cannot get a grant for first year work.

Mr. Lees explained that the grant is made for salaries and certificate. Thus, $40 is given if the teacher has a first class certificate, and five or more years' experience. Less than five years the grant is $25. The corresponding figures for a second class certificate are $25 and $15. Last year a clause was added by which the grant was made to apply only to the holders of permanent certificates. Thus, a new teacher holds an interim certificate and at the end of two years it is made permanent if the teacher proves successful. S. S. No. 1, therefore will secure the usual grant for salary, but nothing for certificate.

In answer to a question Mr. Lees stated that last year there were four schools similarly situated to that of No. 1, Otonabee. No grants were paid to No. 14, Otonabee, No. 2 Asphodel, and No. 4, Dummer. The rest had qualified teachers.

Holding Back Their Grant.

Representatives of S. S. No. 4, Otonabee complained that Mr. Lees was holding back their grant from the Government.

Mr. Lees replied that the County Clerk had the order for the money, and as soon as certain improvements which he had indicated were made, he would sign the order. He had recommended new desks and other improvements.

One of the trustees stated that a resolution had been passed by the School Board to have the work done, and the grant should not be held up.

The Inspector answered that there have been dozens of cases where resolutions have been passed, but they were often only a hold-up. There was nothing binding in a resolution of the Board. There is no indication that the work will be carried out. There is given simply the authority to have the work done.

Mr. Lees—Last year No 4, Otonabee wanted an assistant. A teacher holding a district certificate was secured for $450. The trustees requested me to apply for the validation of this cerificate for the rest of the term. And all I received for that was abuse from one of the trustees.

One of the dele gation—What trustee was it?

Mr. Lees—Mr. McLaughlin.

Member—You shouldnt blame the Board for that. He was not voicing the Board.

Mr. Lees— I am not blaming the Board.

Not Enough Teachers.

Warden Shaw—The great difficulty arises in the fact that there are not enough teachers. Little difficulties might be overcome if the trustees could confer with the Inspectors. In Harvey it is hard to get men for trustees. They say that all there is left for them is to sweep the floor and light the fires. The Inspector does the rest.

Mr. Fitzgerald, Lakefield— If the trustees and general public were more familiar with the regulations it would be better for everybody.

Mr. Lees—I have distributed bushels of circulars. It is my impression that they are not read.

Mr. Peck summed up the situation and pointed out that the Council had nothing to do with the matters. The N .o4, Otoanbee matter was trivial and would be settled when the required repairs were made. The S. S. No. 1 question involves the carrying out of the regulations of the Department. The officials are anxious that qualified teachers be secured, and they won't pay the public money unless they are obtained.

As a result of the meeting it was moved by Warden Shaw and seconded by Reeve Anderson, of Otonabee, that the inspectors be instructed to hold a meeting with the trustees of each school in their inspectorate at least once a year for the purpose of considering questions of importance to the best interests of the schools, the understanding of the regulations and other matters in school administration.

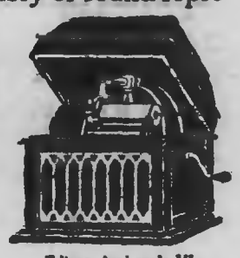
Don't be satisfied with anything less than an Edison Phonograph

Throughout the history of sound reproduction Mr. Edison has blazed the trail.



Edison Amberola VI
Cabinet Mahogany or Golden Oak. Diamond Point Reproducer; Powerful Spring Motor. Plays Blue Amberol Records

Every important step has been conceived first in his mind. He is the acknowledged master of acoustics throughout the world. His recent triumph is the

Blue Amberol Record

It came, after countless experiments, with all its strength of volume, sweetness of quality and lasting endurance. To bring out the remarkable tone of this new record demanded a new reproducer. He invented it—

The Diamond-Point Reproducer

With it there is none of the annoyance of changing the needle after each record. The diamond is as much a part of the phonograph as its beautiful cabinet.

Hear a Blue Amberol—that's all we ask. Your Edison dealer will play over as many as you like. We are content to leave the verdict with your ear.

SHE DIDN'T SHRIEK.

Miss Rachael Peace Contradicts Story of Suffragette Colleague.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The allegation made by the militant suffragettes that three of their comrades imprisoned in Holloway jail suffer excruciating torture while being subjected to forcible feeding, are declared untrue by the Bishop of London, the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, in a letter to the Women's Social and Political Union yesterday after he had visited Holloway Jail and spoken with Miss Rachael Peace, who is imprisoned there. He went at the request of the militant suffragette organization.

"I found Miss Peace in the 'Remand Hospital'," says the bishop "which is 300 yards from the 'Convicted Hospital,' where Miss Ashe was lying. Miss Peace lay on a comfortable bed, fully dressed and in a well-warmed cell. Her face was fully rounded and she showed no sign of emaciation or distress."

Miss Peace informed Bishop Ingram that she had never shrieked and had never been put into a padded cell in the jail, where she is undergoing 18 months' imprisonment.

The only complaint Miss Peace made was that she had not been released like other suffragettes under the provisions of the "cat and mouse" act.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse Writes Entertainingly of Wit and Humour

WIT AND HOMOUR—PART I.

Whilst taking a cursory survey of the Literature section of the Library a few days ago I was struck by the number of volumes pertaining to Wit and Humour that appeared on the shelves. They covered quite a wide field, for they ranged all the way from the Comedies of Moliere to the productions of the inimitable Mr. Dooley.

The first thought that was awakened in my mind as I gazed at them was of wonderment that so much should be labelled Wit and Humour that seemed to possess little or nothing of either of those agreeable ingredients. A little consideration, however, served to remind me that after all, mine was only an individual opinion; that we cannot all be expected to think alike, and that if we did, this would indeed be a very humdrum world to live in. I remembered also that tastes change with the passing years, and that what strikes us in youth as the very acme of wit and cleverness may be very likely to appear silly and vulgar when we arrive at middle age.

Not only does the taste of the individual change but the taste of the nation also. Who, for instance, at the present time, cares to read Hood's humourous poems, the Bab Ballads of Gilbert, the Ingoldsby Legends, Bret Harte's Condensed Novels, the History of Mr. Verdant Green, or, (to go back a little bit further to that splendid galaxy of writers of the early part of the Nineteenth Century), Combe's Tours of Dr. Syntax, or the essays of Charles Lamb or of Sydney Smith? Nearly all the works mentioned above are to be found in the Library, but they are never taken out, despite the fact that there is scarcely anything of the latter date that comes within hailing distance of them for worth or refinement. The blame for this state of affairs must be laid, of course, to the exactions of present day life, when, amid the bustle of commerce we have to gather what refreshment we can from the vapourings of a host of would-be humourists whose flights of fancy find a place in the comic papers and magazines.

Present-day readers really lose a very great deal by not occasionally turning their minds to the perusal of the wit and humour of other days. Butler's Hudibras, when it first appeared was hailed as the wittiest piece of literature that had ever been penned, and the nobles of Charles the Second's Court, and even the Merry Monarch himself, delighted in reading it and quoting from it. Who thinks of reading Hudibras now? Dryden's poems have scarcely been excelled for brillincy of fancy and biting irony in the whole range of literature, but they are never read nowadays save by some scholarly virtuoso. Yet Dryden is the writer on whom all subsequent poets have patterned their style. Very few people to-day read Swift or Fielding, Smollett or Sterne. Still we have it on the authority of Leigh Hunt and a host of critics that for the qualities of sheer wit and humour Swift had no superior, ancient or modern, and whilst there may be varied opinions as to the moral effect of some of his writings as well as those of the other three, there can be no question whatever as to the claims of all to a very high place in the ranks of the Humourists. Within the last sixty years the genius of Dickens and Thackeray alone can be said to have reached to their level, and this in itself shows how necessary it is that we should treasure the works that these great writers have left us.

There has always been a widespread feeling abroad that the terms Wit and Humour are simply synonyms for Frivolity and Folly. This is a lamentable error, for the importance of these factors in Literature cannot be over-estimated. It stands to reason that Wit cannot be Wit unless it is true, fact that Porson, the great Greek scholar, long ago emphasized. Many a bit of wise and homely philosophy is to be found in the writings of our finest humourists and many a searching thrust at human weaknesses in the more rugged attacks of the wits. We find a further use for them also in providing refreshment for our jaded minds when even the novel or the newest issue of magazine fail to please. Carping critics should bear these facts in mind and not condemn everything as useless or silly that does not suit the particular bent of their intellects.

Differences of opinion as to what constitutes Wit and Humour are not merely confined to members of the body politic of any particular nation. Distinct nationalities have their distinct ideas as to what should be classed under these terms, not only in the matter of reading, but in the daily happenings of life. An Englishman, for instance, will see something excruciatingly funny in the attempts of a Frenchman to master the English tongue, whereas, if the positions were reversed the Frenchman would be full of earnest solicitude to help the Englishman in his difficulty. A Frenchman, on the other hand, finds something inexpressibly humourous in the Englishman's assumed superiority, a superiority so obvious to the Englishman that he cannot for the life of him see what there is to laugh at in it. Then again, a negro will launch at anything and a Japanese or Red Indian at nothing. There are, in fact, as Montaigne says, as many and innumerable degrees of wit as there are cubits between this and heaven and, it may be added, that there are as many ways of interpreting it and looking at it. Thousands consider Mark Twain the greatest humourist of the last forty years, whilst thousands more place him on a lower level than either Artemus Ward or Max Adeler as an exponent of the farcical type of humour. Many think George Ade an inexpressibly funny writer; others consider it inexpressibly funny that anyone should think that prodigal purveyor of slang and vulgarity funny at all. It is a good thing that as there are so many diverse opinions our literature should boast such a profusion of commodities to suit all tastes. It would be very terrible if, when the mind was wearied and in need of a little recreation it should be compelled to search for it in the pages of some of our modern humourists. They are very well in their way, but they pall on the palate far more quickly than the genial and polished writings of Addison or of Steels, the comedies of Goldsmith or of Sheridan or the works of Oliver Wendell Holmes or Washington Irving, and a few others that could be named.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

Three Perish In Fire.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. — "Pabes Row," a five storey apartment building on the south side, so-called because children swarmed its entrances, crumbled before the attack of flames driven by a stiff gale early yesterday, and firemen are searching the ruins for an infant and two women, missing and thought to have perished. The total loss was 300,000. Three firemen were hurt.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By Elwell Lawrence

CHAPTER I.

Flinging the Gauntlet.

"Then you insist on ruining me, Mr. Bissell?"

Bud Larkin, his hat pushed back on his head, looked unabashed at the scowling heavy features of the man opposite in the long, low room, and awaited a reply.

"I don't want to ruin anybody," puffed old "Beef" Bissell, whose cattle overran most of the range between the Gray Bull and the Big Horn, "But I allow as how them sheep of yours had better stay down Nebrasky way where they come from."

"In other words," snapped Larkin, "I had better give up the idea of bringing them north altogether. Is that it,"

"Just about."

"Well, now, see here, Mr. Bissell, you forget one or two things. The first is that my sheep ranch is in Montana and Wyoming, and that I want to run my southern herds onto the northern range before fall sets in. The second is, that, while your homestead may be three hundred and twenty acres, the range that has made you rich is free. My sheep have as much right there as your cattle. It is all government land and open to everybody."

"Possession is eleven points out here where there isn't any law," replied Bissell imperturbably. "It's a case of your sheep against my cattle, and, you see, I stand up reg-lar for my cows."

Bud rolled a cigarette and pondered. He was in the rather bare and ornamental living-room of the Bar T ranch. In the centre was a rough-hewn table supporting an oil-lamp and an Omaha newspaper fully six months old. The chairs, except one, were rough and heavy and without rockers. This one was a gorgeous plush patent-rocker so valued a generation ago, and evidently imported at great expense.

A square of carpet that lost all claims to pattern had become a soft blur, the result of age and alkali. However, it was one of the proudest possessions of the Bar T outfit and showed that old Beef Bissell knew what the right thing was. A calico shroud hid a large, erect object against the wall farthest away from the window; an object that was the last word in luxury and reckless expense—a piano. The walls were of boards whitewashed, and the ceiling was just plain boards.

It had not taken Bud Larkin long to discern that there was a feminine cause for these numerous unusual efforts; but he did not for a minute suppose it to be the thin, sharp-tongued woman who had been washing behind the cook-house as he rode up to the coral. Now, as he pondered he thought again about it. But only for a minute; other things of vaster importance held him.

Although but two men had spoken during the conversation, three were in the room. The third was a man of medium height, lowering looks, and slow tongue. His hair was black, and he had the appearance of always needing a shave. He was trained down to perfect condition by his years on the plains, and was as wiry and tough as the cow pony he rode. He was Black Mike Stelton, foreman of the Bar T.

"What do you think, Mike?" asked Bissell, when Larkin made no attempt to continue the argument.

"Same's you, boss,' was the reply in a heavy voice. "I wouldn't let them sheep on the range, not noways. Sheep is the ruination of any grass country."

"There you see, Mr. Larkin," said Bissell with an expression motion of his hand. "Stelton's been out here in the business fifteen years and says the same as I do. How long did you say you had been in the West?"

"One year,' replied Larkin, flushing to the roots of his hair beneath his tanned but not weather-beaten skin. "Come from Chicago."

"From down East, eh? Well, my woman was to St. Paul once, and she's never got over it; but it dont seem to have spoiled you none."

Larkin grinned and replied in kind, but all the time he was trying to determine what stand to take. He had expected to meet opposition to "walking' his sheep north—in fact, had met it steadily—but up to this point had managed to get the animals through. Now he was fifty miles ahead of the first flock and had reached the Bar T. ranch an hour before dinner.

Had he been a suspected horse-thief, the unwritten social etiquette of the plains would have provided him with food and loging as long as he cared to stay. Consequently when he had caught the reflection of the setting sun against the walls of the ranch house, he had turned Pinte's head in the direction of the corral.

Then, in the living-room, though no questions had been asked, Larkin had brought up the much-dreaded subject himself, as his visit was partly for that purpose.

He had much to contend with. In the first place, being a sheep-man, he was absolutely without caste in the cattle country, where men who went in for the "woolly idiots," as someone has aptly called them, was considered for the most part as a degenerate, and only fit for target practice. This side of the matter troubled him not at all, however.

What did worry him was the element of right in the cattlemen's attitude! a right that was still a wrong. For he had to acknowledge that when sheep had once fed across a range, that range was ruined for cattle for the period of at least a year.

This was due to the fact that the sheep, cropping into the very roots of the grey grass itself, destroyed it. Moreover, the animals on their slow marches, herded so close together that they left an offensive trail rather than follow which the cattle would stand and starve.

On the other hand, the range was free and the sheep had as much right to graze there as the cattle, a fact that the cattlemen, with all their strict code of justice, refused to recognize.

Larkin knew that he had come to the parting of the ways at the Bar T ranch.

Old Beef Bissell was what was known at that time as a cattle king. His thousands of steers, wealth on the hoof, grazed far and wide over the fenceless prairies. His range riders rarely saw the ranch house for a month at a time, so great was his assumed territory; his cowboys outnumbered those of any owner within three hundred miles. Aside from this, he was the head of a cattleman's Association that had banded together against rustlers and other invaders of the range.

Larkin returned to the conversation.

"Try to see it from my standpoint,' he said to Bissell. "If you had gone in for sheep as I have—"

"I wouldn't go in for 'em," interrupted the other contemptuously and Stelton grunted.

"As you like about that. Every gopher to his own hole," remarked Bud. "But if you had, and I guess you would if you thought there was more money in it, you would certainly insist on your rights on the range, wouldn't you ?"

"I might try."

"And if you tried you'd be pretty sure to succeed, I imagine."

"It's likely; I allow as how I'm a pretty good hand at succeedin'."

"Well, so am I. I haven't got very far yet, but I am on my way. I did not come out here to make a failure of things, and I don't intend to. Now, all I want is to run my sheep north on to the Montana range where my ranch is."

"How many are there ?" This from Stelton.

"Five flocks of about two thousand each."

Bissell snorted and turned in his chair.

"I won't allow it, young man, an' that's all I've got to say. D'ye think I'm a fool ?"

"No, but neither am I. And I might as well tell you first and last that those sheep are coming north. Now, if you do the fair thing you will tell your cowboys the fact so they won't make any mistakes. I have given you fair warning, and if anything happens to those sheep you will be held responsible."

"Is that all you got to say?" asked Bissell, sarcastically.

"Yes."

"Well, then, I'll do the talkin'. I'd as leave see Indians stampedin' my cows into the river as have your sheep come over the range. Since you've given me what you call a fair warning, I'll give you one. Leave your critters where they are. If you don't do it you'll be a sight wiser and also a mighty sight poorer before I get through with 'em."

"Just what do you mean by that?" asked Larkin.

"I ain't saying nothin' more than that now because I'm a slow hand at makin' ornery promises, seein' I always keep 'em. But I'm just telling you, that's all."

"Is that your last word on the subject ?" asked Larkin.

"It is, an' I want Stelton here to remember I said it."

"Then we won't say anything more about the matter,' replied Bud, calmly, as he rose. "I'll go outside and look to my horse."

"You'll stay the night with us, won't you?" asked Bissell anxiously.

"Yes, thanks. I've heard so much about the Bar T I should like to see a little more of it"

When Larkin had left the room, Bissell, with a frown on his face, turned to Stelton.

"Tell all the boys what's happened today," he said, "and tell 'em to be on the watch for this young feller's first herd. He'll plenty soon find out he can't run riot on my range".

CHAPTER II.

A Late Arrival.

After visiting the corral, Larkin paid his respects to the pump and refreshed himself for supper. Then he strolled around the long, rambling ranch house. Across the front, which faced southwest, had been built a low apology for a veranda on which a couple of uninviting chairs stood. He appropriated one of these and settled back to think.

The late sun, a red-bronze colour, hung just above the horizon and softened the unlovely stretches of prairie into something brooding and beautiful. Thirty miles away the Rockies had become a mass of grey-blue fleeced across the top with lines of late snow—for it was early June.

The Bar T ranch house itself stood on a rise of ground back from a cold, greenish-blue river that made a bend at this point, and that rose and had its being in the melting whiteness of those distant peaks. Between the willows of the river bottoms, Larkin could see the red reflection of the sun on the water, and could follow the stream's course across the prairie by the snake-like procession of cottonwoods that lined its banks.

On the plains themselves there was still a fading hue of green. The buffalo grass had already begun to wither under the increasing heat, and in a month would have become the same grey, cured fodder that supported millions of buffalo centuries before a steer was on the range.

For Bud Larkin, only a year in the West, this evening scene had not lost its charm. He loved this hour when the men washed at the pump. There were enticing sounds from the cook house and enticing odours in the air. Sometimes it seemed as though it almost made up for a day's failure and discouragement.

His quick eye suddenly noted a dark speck moving rapidly across the prairie toward the ranch house. It seemed to skim the ground and in five minutes had developed into a cow pony and its rider. A quarter of an hour later and the pony proved himself a "calico" variety, while the rider developed into a girl who bestrode her mount as though she were a part of the animal itself.

The front rim of her broad felt hat was fastened upward with a thong and exposed her face. Bud watched her idly until she dashed up to the front of the house, fetched her horse back on its haunches with a jerk on the cruel Spanish bridle, and leaped to the ground before he had fairly lost headway. Then with a slap on the rump she sent him trotting to Stelton, who had appeared around the end of the veranda, as though expecting her.

Occupied with pulling off her soft white buckskin gauntlets, she did not notice the young man on the low porch until, with an exclamation, he had sprung to his feet and hurried toward her.

"Juliet Bissell'" gasped Larkin, holding out a hand to her. "What are you doing here ?"

"Of all people, Bud Larkin'" cried the girl, flushing with pleasure. "Why, I can't believe it! Did you drop out of the sky somewhere ?"

"If the sky is heaven, I've just dropped into it," he returned, trying to confine his joy to intelligible speech, and barely succeeding.

"That sounds like the same old Bud," she laughed, "and it's a pleasure to hear it. For if there is one thing a cowboy can't do, and it's the only one, it is to pay a woman a compliment. That speech brands you a tenderfoot"

"Never! I've been out a year and can nearly ride a cow pony, providing it is lame and blind"

So, bantering each other unmercifully, they reached the front door.

EMPIRE BUILDERS

Such Are Poets Whether of Words or of the Axe and Pick

Like the Greeks who made no distinction between thinking and doing, we who speak the English tongue were above all a practical people, who loved being and doing and the strong, free life, said Mr. F. R. Benson, the great interpreter of Shakespeare's dramas.

A transcontinental railway builder was a poet, not of words but in vision, leader of a band who carved out empire, not "writing his sorrows on the bosom of earth, making dust his paper," but in terms of pick and ax and dredge, in tunnel and train, wedding east and west. He was one who could identify himself with the living principle of all things, who saw the relation between the particular and the universal, surely a practical man for our generation, and all generations to come, and that was the meaning of poet. A concrete example was given at the Stratford-Upon-Avon festival, where people were joined in a mighty realization of the brotherhood of man, not in the pink-blooded terms of the copybook heads, but with the vital intensification of national feeling and patriotism. Mr. Benson had a vision of a great empire of English-speaking people, of which Shakespeare's drama would be one of the chief links.

In a time of strikes, a striker told him how at Shakespeare's shrine he had gathered a sense of the harmony of life, and had seen the due relation of things. He added: "Shakespeare has shown me a better way than dynamite." Another man had prayed God's blessing on the Stratford Theatre. "It has shown me in Shakespeare's plays how we British became what we are, and how we may keep so."

A singular incident occurred at Fraserburgh Railway Station, Scotland, resulting in traffic being delayed for a quarter of an hour. When the signalman endeavored to lower the signal for an incoming train the switch refused to act. After fifteen minutes' search a rabbit was discovered in the detector box. The animal had been trapped, one leg being firmly fixed between the governing points.

Operations Failed to Cure Kidney Trouble

Mr. John E. Pumfrey, Farmer, Viceroy, Sask., writes:—"I think it is my duty to let you know the benefits I have obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. For years I suffered from weak kidneys. The urine was scanty, thick and was accompanied by burning sensations. The trouble grew worse until there was a total stoppage of urine and I suffered most excruciating pains. Besides private treatment by medical men I was twice operated on at a hospital in Oxford, England.

"Soon after coming to this country the trouble returned with great severity, and the druggist to whom I went recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, for which I am very thankful. I am now enjoying excellent health and I am positive this is due to the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The water is clear and no difficulty in passing it. I am making this statement voluntarily so that others may know of this medicine which has given such wonderful results."

This case gives you some idea of the splendid work being accomplished by this great medicine of the famous Receipt Book author, A. W. Chase, M.D. You can use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with positive assurance that they will awaken the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels and thereby cure such ailments as biliousness, constipation, indigestion, backache and kidney derangements. 25 cents a box, 5 for $1.00, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Newsy Gleanings From British Isles

The death, in her 101st year, has occurred at Symondsbury, West Dorset, of Mrs. Wilkins.

Ploughing up a Gold Ring

While ploughing near Hurstpierpoint, Sussex, a carter turned up a handsome gold ring bearing the name, "Caroline Burt."

War Campaigner Killed

Sergeant William Smith, who passed unscathed through the South African War, was killed at Antrim Station. He was examining the wheels of a train when an express from Belfast caught him.

Saves Wife's Life

As the steamship Dacre was lying in the Brocklebank Dock, Bootle preparing for sea, Mrs. Rock, wife of the chief officer, who went to bid him good-bye, fell from the gangway into the water. Her husband dived into the dock and rescued her.

His Little Load

When arrested at Newport (Isle of Wight) on a charge of breaking into a provision shop, George Porter, was searched. In his possession were found soap tablets, butter, bottles of embrocation and lung tonic, cod roes, a stuffed pigeon, calves' tongues, anchovy paste, and margarine.

Farm Servants Combine

At a largely-attended meeting of farm servants at Huntershall, near Kelso, a branch was formed of the Scottish Ploughmen's Union. It was resolved that an endeavor should be made to obtain a Saturday half-holiday, and an increase in wages for both men and women workers.

Slippers For the Queen

Intimation was received at Bacup to the effect that Queen Mary had accepted a case of slippers forwarded to her by the Raftenstall Slipper Company. Her Majesty's private secretary, Mr. Wallington, wrote stating that the Queen was charmed with the gift.

Skeleton in the Covert

Whilst out with a shooting party at Rowlstone, near Hereford, Captain Tyrwhitt Drake's beaters came across the clothed skeleton of a woman. The remains are stated to be those of the daughter of the late Mr. Parry Cooper, who claimed to be a descendant of Blanche Parry, lady-in-waiting to Queen Elizabeth.

Barber Shop Tragedy

A man named Sweeney has been arrested at Liverpool on a charge of causing the death of a customer in a barber's shop. Sweeney, after being shaved, is alleged to have jumped out of his chair and struck another customer named Ore, with whom he had been arguing, a heavy blow under the jaw.

Remarkable Prayer Habit

At an inquest at Derry Asylum on a patient named Thomas Clarke, fifty-four, it was stated that the deceased was in the habit at times of dropping on his knees to pray. On one occasion he attempted this while on a wall, and fell off. Dr. Hetherington stated on the present occasion the man must have jumped on the covering of a large boiler of scalding water to say his prayers, but the boards giving way he fell into the receptacle. He was immediately removed to hospital, but died six hours later.

Peer as Curate

Viscount William Geoffrey Bouchard de Montmorency Mountmorres was ordained a deacon, and he has been appointed to a curacy at All Saints, Hyde, Isle of Wight. Lord Mountmorres, who is forty-one years of age, won his scholarship to Radley at the age of sixteen, and succeeded to the title on the death of his father two years later. On leaving Oxford he spent several years in travelling in America, the West Indies, Morocco, the Sahara, Asia, West and Central Africa, and the Congo Free State. While in the Congo Free State he had a weird experience. He and his friend were down with fever. His friend died and his servant told the viscount that two graves had been dug, one for himself and another for his friend. But happily the second grave was not needed, for Lord Mountmorres made a speedy recovery.

Gamekeepers Shot

An encounter between poachers and gamekeepers occurred on the estate of Mr. Charles Thelluson, of Brodsworth Hall, near Doncaster. About five o'clock six keepers came across a gang of some twenty-five poachers. The keepers called on the men to surrender, but the latter adopted a threatening attitude and levelled their guns at the keepers. Three of the keepers walked forward facing the men, the others bringing up the rear. When at close range the poachers fired, and four of the keepers were badly peppered with shot. In the confusion which followed, the poachers escaped.

A badger, scaling over 42 pounds, was captured on Mr. Davis's farm, The Grange, Beeby, Leicestershire.

RONUK on Linoleum

Many people do not appreciate the necessity of a dressing for linoleum.

Linoleum is really quite porous. Water and dust penetrate the pores and rot the fibre and fabric, making it brittle and easily worn through, and causing it to crack.

RONUK FLOOR POLISH

—prevents this and doubles the life of linoleum. A light application of Ronuk seals up all these pores, preserves the fibre, retains its pliability, and brightens its appearance.

Ronuk produces a smooth surface from which all dust may be wiped with a dry cloth, it is never necessary to scrub it. Ronuk is sanitary. Try Ronuk on your linoleum as well as on your hardwood floors, and you will be surprised.

ROYAL HORSES TRAINED

Steeds Have to Pass Through Ordeal of Noise

Every morning at about 11 o'clock a procession headed by two chestnut horses in charge of grooms, followed by a detachment of Guards with their band playing vigorously, a strong force of police and a crowd of civilians, leaves St. James Palace, London, and proceeds through St. James Park to the Guards' headquarters close to Buckingham Palace.

The horses are the chief centre of interest, for in this way they are trained so that they may figure proudly in State pageantry and they are taught to carry themselves with becoming dignity and quietness.

For them the chosen drummers of the various Guards' bands beat fiercely on their drums, while the pipers pipe their shrillest notes. This is the ordeal of noise, and at first the horses take exception to it. But after several weeks of it they become indifferent, and although the pipers exert themselves to their utmost the horses maintain an air of well bred boredom.

THREE WISE MONKEYS

Little clay models of the three wise monkeys are quite common in the new world though the idea comes from Japan. They sit in a row, the first with his hands over his mouth, the second with his eyes covered, and the third with his hand over his ears. The moral they teach is:

"Speak no evil, see no evil, hear no evil."

Sometimes they are described as "Three wise monkeys with their eyes shut to evil, ears that hear only the right, lips that are dumb to scandal. They sit in their silent might."

In Japan the monkey is called Koshin, meaning a deification of that day of the month which corresponds to the fifty-seventh term of the Chinese sexagenary cycle, which is known to the Japanese as Ka-no-esaru. The fifty-seventh day is known as the day of the monkey, and is represented by three monkeys, called respectively "wi-zurawa, "kikazura," and "Iwazaru," meaning the blind monkey, the deaf monkey, and the dumb monkey.

There is a very beautiful representation of this deity in the Temple at Nikko, lying northward of Japan, right amongst the mountains. Many are the natives who pay homage to these strange animals. In fact, representations of the monkeys carved in stone slabs are amongst the most usual objects of devotion in the more rural districts of Japan.

TOBACCO CULTURE ON PACIFIC COAST

Splendid Results Achieved by Irrigation Methods in the Okanagan Valley of British Columbia

That tobacco culture is fast assuming the importance of a national Canadian enterprise is a fact appreciated by but a small proportion of the citizens of this country. For many years when Canadian tobacco was spoken of one immediately thought of the crudely cured French Canadian Twist, one pipe full of which was liable to leave lifelong impressions, but to-day not only has Quebec-grown tobacco been brought to superior quality but the counties of Essex and Kent in Ontario produce annually in the neighborhood of 15,000,000 pounds of tobacco, which find a ready market in a popular brand of cigars, pipe and chewing tobacco.

But now British Columbia looms upon the horison as a producer of tobacco of a most superior quality. Fifteen years ago in the Okanagan Valley it was first attempted but with varying success. Seven years ago a local company formed at Kelowna putting in 50 to 70 acres, and so successful was this company in growing a superior leaf that it has given impetus to a new commercial product which will in a short time become one of vital importance to the Rocky Mountain Province.

Leaf for cigar purposes constitutes the principal crop, the varieties being Cuban or Havana, Comstock Spanish, Wisconsin and Sumatra.

There is money in growing tobacco. A good average crop of Havana runs to about a thousand pounds per acre, worth say 25 cents a pound to the producer. Wisconsin and Comstock Spanish yield heavier, fourteen to eighteen hundred pounds per acre, and bring the producer from 15 cents to 20 cents a pound. This would make a range of profits average from $125 to $175 an acre.

No fertilizer is yet required in the growing of tobacco in British Columbia, but irrigation plays an important part. This irrigation is of the simplest kind, however, and presents few difficulties. One irrigation has proved to be sufficient, and is generally done at a season when water is most plentiful. The field is thoroughly soaked before planting begins, and with careful cultivation there is then sufficient moisture stored in the soil to last the tobacco plants during their growing season.

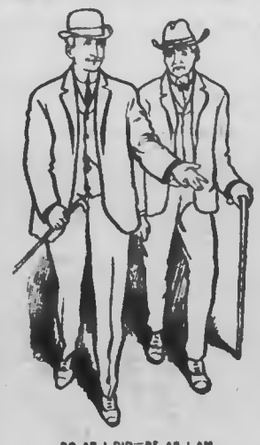
A STORY OF GRATITUDE

"How Thankful I Am I Tried GIN PILLS"

Everybody in Hartfield, New Brunswick, knows Mr. Wilson, and everybody knows how he suffered from Rheumatism. All his neighbors offered suggestions and told him to try all sorts of remedies—but nothing gave him any relief. He had been tortured with Rheumatism for several years when he read in the papers about GIN PILLS and the wonderful cures they were making. Mr. Wilson read of a case so much like his own that he decided to give GIN PILLS a trial.



DO AS I DID—BE AS I AM.

HARTFIELD, N.B.

"It affords me great pleasure to convey not only to you but to all sufferers from Backache and Rheumatism, the great relief I have obtained from the use of GIN PILLS. I feel thankful to you. I recommend GIN PILLS to everyone suffering as I did."

ROBERT M. WILSON.

Are you as Mr. Wilson was? Be as he is to-day. All you need is GIN PILLS. They will cure you because they are the greatest Kidney Remedy known to science to-day. GIN PILLS instantly relieve the burning, biting pain in the back. GIN PILLS relieve the irritated bladder and cure Incontinence and Suppression of Urine.

GIN PILLS strengthen the weak kidneys. GIN PILLS neutralize uric acid. GIN PILLS purify the blood. GIN PILLS reduce swollen, painful hands, knees, ankles and feet, and GIN PILLS CURE KIDNEY TROUBLE.

We don't ask you to buy GIN PILLS—but to try them—and we let you try them free. Write us and we will gladly send you a free sample of GIN PILLS. Take them as directed and a few pills will prove that you have found the right remedy at last. GIN PILLS are sold by dealers at 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. If you can't get GIN PILLS in your neighborhood, write us enclosing price and we will send them to you direct. National Drug and Chem. Co. of Canada Limited, Toronto. 192

MANGA-TONE BLOOD AND NERVE TABLETS regulate the whole system—purify the blood—and increase the appetite. 50c. a box.

Tried Cure for Insomnia.

Every night, at an early bedtime, take a grain pill of asafoetida—be careful to take no strong medicine after three o'clock in the afternoon; half an hour before getting into bed take a hot foot-bath. Let the water be as hot as can be borne at first, and add a very little hot water as it cools. Be sure to keep well covered up, and to have the feet in the water for a full half-hour.

A month of this treatment under the most adverse circumstances, completely cured the insomnia of a friend who had run the entire gamut of narcotics, stimulants, eating before retiring, and tiring himself out.

In addition to this, a drink of water as hot as it can be swallowed has a very soothing effect on the nervous system and thus promotes sleep. All these simple remedies should be exhausted before resorting to strong drugs, and especially opium, chloral, bromides, etc.

The odour of kerosene lamps can be stopped by putting one teaspoonful of fine table salt into each lamp. The salt should be changed once a month.

When darning table linen it is best to use a ravelling from the goods. Where there is a hole, put under it a piece of the same material, carefully matching the pattern. If the darning is carefully done, the hole will not be noticeable.

HANDSOMELY DECORATED 97-Piece Dinner Sets

GIVEN FREE TO CANADIAN WOMEN By Canada's Greatest Home Magazine

These beautiful dinner sets were made for us by one of England's most famous manufacturers. They are delightfully decorated in rich floral rose designs with garlands of foliage in the very newest patterns. EACH SET COMPRISES 97 PIECES, guaranteed full size for family use—an absolutely complete dinner service for a family of twelve people. The picture herewith was taken directly from a photograph of the set, but fails to do justice to its quality, or the charm of the decoration. You will be proud to have such a dinner service in your home, and no matter how much you paid you could secure nothing more complete, serviceable or pleasing.

"EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" wants 150 married ladies at the heads of homes to obtain these magnificent dinner sets. You are not asked to spend any money or buy anything in order to obtain one of them for your home. Read this offer if you want one of these sets.

We want every Canadian housekeeper to become acquainted with "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," Canada's greatest monthly home magazine. SINCE NOVEMBER LAST OVER 50,000 WOMEN IN AS MANY CANADIAN HOMES HAVE SENT US YEARLY SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THIS GREAT MAGAZINE, but we are not satisfied. We are determined to have 100,000 subscribers for 1914 and are sparing no expense to reward the ladies who will assist us in reaching this mark and who by their advice and suggestions for the improvement of "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," will help us to maintain it, not only as the greatest Canadian magazine, but to make it so necessary to every reader that it will become an absolute institution in every Canadian home.

A very little effort on your part—just a few minutes conversation with a few of your friends—will help us in this work and can gain for you one of these magnificent complete 97-piece dinner sets. This offer is absolutely unique in the history of Canadian journalism.

"EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" is needed in every women's home. It is a big, bright, breezy entertaining and instructive magazine, running from 40 to 52 pages a number. It abounds in charming short stories, live interesting articles, news of the day, advice on home management, the care of children, cooking, etc. It has an excellent fashion department and pattern service and shows each month the very latest fashions of New York, London and Paris. It has departments of music, giving its readers each month a new and original sheet of music, departments of art, beauty hints, family health, money-making hints for women and many other features that make it absolutely necessary to every home. "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" is delightfully illustrated by the foremost artists of both Canada and the United States, and its beautiful art covers in colors are always charming. In fact, no expense has been spared to make it the most interesting and useful magazine in Canada.

The wonderful thing about "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" is that this great magazine is sold at a subscription price of only 50c. per year.

Just think—only 50c. for 12 whole months' subscription.

This Free Sample Copy for You

If you want to gain one of these beautiful dinner sets, write to us to-day and we will send you postage paid, absolutely without charge or obligation, a copy of the current number of "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," which we ask you to read over carefully and prove to yourself that it is all we claim for it—the greatest magazine value in Canada. Then take it among your friends and neighbors, show it to them and let them see what a magnificent magazine they can bring into their homes for an expense of only 50c. a year. Get their opinions on it. We want you to tell us what they say about "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," and we will send with your copy some very interesting literature telling of many big features that "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" will give its readers during 1914.

To qualify for one of these magnificent dinner sets we ask that you secure us only eight yearly subscriptions to "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" from among your friends at 50c. each and remit to us the $4.00 you will have obtained for same.

We will promptly acknowledge each subscription and at once send the current number of "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" to your subscribers—the forerunner of twelve big, bright, interesting numbers, they will receive each month for a year to come. This little task will be a pleasure.

From your own opinions and the conversations and experience you have when getting your eight subscriptions, we will ask you to answer a set of questions we have compiled giving us your advice and suggestions on improvements in "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" which we have under consideration for 1914. We want to give our readers what they want, how they want it and when they want it, and we are sparing no effort to make "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" the very best friend of every member of every Canadian home. We cannot go among our people when they subscribe and ask them what they like best about "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," or what they would like to see published in this great magazine, so we ask you to answer our questions, which deal with these very points. Thus by telling us just what your friends say about "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," and what they like best in it, you will help us to keep it in its position of household favorite.

You can easily give us the information we seek after having spoken to and secured eight new subscribers, for which we reward you handsomely, and it is for the value of these suggestions and your advice to us that these 150 magnificent 97-piece dinner sets are being awarded.

Bear in mind that Canada's greatest magazine, a journal with over 50,000 subscribers in all parts of Canada, is behind this offer. There are no strings or conditions of any kind attached to it. A photographic reproduction of the complete set will be mailed to you with your sample copy and the 150 complete 97-piece dinner sets exactly as represented will be awarded to the ladies sending us the best suggestions and answers to our questions.

This offer is open only to householders—married ladies who are at the heads of homes. Write to-day and get your free copy of "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD," together with the questions we want you to answer about the new features we will bring out during 1914. You take no risk and incur no obligation. You cannot fail to find eight ladies among your friends and neighbors who will be glad to have "EVERYWOMAN'S WORLD" every month for a subscription of only 50 cents a year. Enclose a two-cent stamp to pay postage on your copy, and sign your full name (as Mrs. Frederick J. Brown or Mrs. Leonard T. Dawson, &c.) and give complete address.

We will pack each set in a strong case without charge, and prepay at Toronto all freight and delivery charges. Write for your sample copy and further particulars of this great offer to-day. Address fully as below and mark corner of your envelope "CIRCULATION MANAGER."

A PAGE OF THE BEST HUMOR OF THE WEEK

No Trouble.

Magistrate: "Now, my boy, you are on your oath. Do you know what that means?"

Witness: "Er—no, sir, not exactly."

Magistrate: "Do you know what you're expected to tell?"

Witness (promptly): "Oh, yes, sir; the lawyer that brought me here wrote it all down so's I could learn it off by heart."

Explanations Forthcoming.

Husband (to wife): "Didn't I telegraph to you not to bring your mother with you?"

Wife: "I know. That's what she wants to see you about. She read the telegram."

Simple.

"Mind reading? Nonsense!" said Toddsley contemptuously. "Nothing in it! I'll give you a sovereign, Morson, if you'll read my mind right now. What am I thinking?"

"Why," said Morson, eyeing Toddsley keenly, "you are thinking that mind reading is perfect nonsense, that there is absolutely nothing in it, and that therefore your sovereign is perfectly safe."

"By Jove!" cried Toddsley, paying up like a gentleman. "That's wonderful! You got it exactly. How the dickens do you do it?"

No, Thanks!

"I've got you down for a couple of tickets. We're getting up a raffle for a poor man of our neigh—"

"None for me, thank you! I wouldn't know what to do with a poor man if I won him."

Daughter: "What is your objection to Charlie, papa?"
Papa: "He plays poker."
Daughter: "But so do you."
Papa: "I know—but he wins."

What Cheek!

"But, my dear," said the young husband, as he inspected the gorgeous smoking jacket his wife had given him for his birthday present, "I am afraid you spent too much money on this. Something cheaper would have done just as well."

"Now," she pouted, "there you go, grumbling over my gift, as usual. But, this time you are in the wrong. I didn't spend any money on it."

"You didn't? Then how on earth did you get it?"

"I had it put down to your account."

No Chicken.

He: "Your friend, Miss Wabash, is quite chic, Miss Breezy."

Miss Breezy (a trifle enviously): "Yes, Clara may be a trifle chic, but she is no chicken."

No Wonder Joe Went.

An excited middle-aged lady bounced into a suburban police station and accosted the inspector on duty:

"Where's my Joe?" she demanded.

"Beg pardon, madam—dog, I presume?" said the officer.

"Don't you dare to presume nothing of the kind," snapped the lady. "Dog, indeed! No, sir, husband — my husband. He's missing, disappeared, decamped—"

"You don't say so?"

"But I'll have you to understand that I do say so, young man. How dare you sit there and flatly contradict a ratepayer?—leastways the lawful wife of one. I'll report you, sir. Do you hear that? I'll report you! Where's my husband?"

"My dear madam—"

"How dare you call me your dear madam? Do you think that I came here to be insulted? I tell you my husband has decamped, and you sit there like a dummy? What do you think of that?"

"Well, madam," responded the police inspector, "I haven't the pleasure of your husband's acquaintance, but I should say he is a very wise man. Constable, show this lady out!"

Only a Hat.

"Been to the theatre this week?"

"Yes."

"What did you see?"

"A black velvet bow, some tortoise shell combs, a couple of plumes, a chiffon knot, and a stuffed bird about the size of a hen!"

No Money to Save.

"I hope, Giles," said a clergyman to one of his parishioners, "you make a practice of saving. There's nothing like putting something away for a rainy day."

"Indeed, sir," answered Giles, respectfully. "I make it a rule never to spend more than two-thirds of my wages a week."

"Ah, that's the way—that's the way!" said the clergyman. "And I suppose the rest of it you put in the savings bank?"

"Oh, dear, no, sir!" answered Giles, complacently. "The rest I give to the missus on which to keep 'ouse!"

Whiskers.

"What will you do when you are a man, Geoffrey?" asked his auntie.

"I'll grow a beard," was the unexpected reply.

"Why?" she asked.

"Because then I won't have nearly so much face to wash."

Perhaps.

Mrs. Newlywed: "I wonderd why we are growing tired of each other?"

Newlywed: "I haven't an idea."

Mrs. N.: "Yes; maybe that is the reason."

Another Fool.

Wife: "Do you remember, Tom, how we used to meet each other here at this statue before we were married?"

Husband: "Yes; there's another fool waiting now."

A Steady Job.

Caller: "Snip & Co. have employed me to collect the bill you owe them."

Owens: "You are to be congratulated, sir, on securing a permanent position."

"Now, boys" said the schoolmaster, "suppose in a family there are five children, and the mother had only four potatoes to divide between them. She wants to give each child an equal share. What is she to do?"

Silence reigned in the room. Everybody was calculating diligently. Finally one little boy put up his hand.

"Well, what would you do?" asked the teacher.

"Mush the potatoes, sir!"

THE HERO.

The Dyspeptic Diner (who has done himself very well indeed): Waiter, you can bring me another helping of Lobster Americaine; and then ring up Kensington 442042 for my doctor!

AN ALL-ROUND SPORT.

Budger (after a convivial evening): Shay, Constable—what timesha match shupposed to shtart?

Making Up for Lost Time.

A patient in hospital had been kept on low diet for a couple of weeks, and naturally he longed for a square meal.

One morning the doctor found him so much better than it seemed his appetite could at last be safely appeased.

"Do you think you could eat a small chicken today, Tim?" asked the doctor.

"Faith, an' oi could, sor," eagerly responded the patient.

And what would you like to have it stuffed with?" queried the doctor.

"If it's all the same t' yez," answered Tim, "oi'd lolk t' have it sthuffed with another chicken, sor."

Naturally.

Socialist orator—Tell me why it is you have to work from morning until night.

Auditor—It is the only time we get. We sleep from night till morning.

Genius Will Out.

Smiley—I didn't think it was in him, but I see that young Noodle has made a hit in the literary line at last.

Dobson—Is that so? What is the name of the work?

Smiley—Haven't you heard? He is the author of the latest thing in college yells!"

"Did you have anything to eat last night, when you got home from the club?"

"Oh, my wife gave me a roast."

No Dividend Guaranteed.

"I bought some hens from you," said the retired banker, who was doing a little amateur farming.

"Yes."

"Not one of them has laid an egg yet."

"Well, it's this way, Mr. Wombat," explained the old farmer, not unkindly. "A hen ain't like a bond with interest coupons."

Naturally.

Countryman (with cigar): "Pardon me, but have you a match?"

Loafer (tentatively): "Yus, guv'nor, but I hain't no cigar."

Countryman: "Good! In that case you won't need the match!"

No Good.

An office boy who had been repeatedly discharged, and as often taken back, was called upon the carpet for a last dismissal.

"Now, I want you to understand," said the employer, "you're discharged. Do you understand? Go home tonight and don't come back."

But the boy turned up the next morning as usual.

"Didn't you understand me?" asked the employer. "I discharged you last night."

"Yes, I know you did," said the boy, "and don't you do it again. My father whacked me when I got home."

A Phrase Exemplified.

"You do not offer enough."

"I don't quite get you, duke," said the heiress.

"That's the idea. You don't quite get me. Another lady has raised your bid."

First Impressions.

If a woman still laughs at her husband's jokes after ten years, there is little prospect of business in that family for the divorce lawyer.

Most fellows who think the world owes them a living are inclined to insist on living high.

A good deal of the food for thought offered by the modern drama lacks considerably of complying with the pure food law.

Lawyer.—You say you saw this tiara on the lady's hair?

Witness—I said she wore this tiara.

L.—But did she wear it on her hair?

W.—I don't know.

L.—Look here, sir! No facetiousness! You say you saw this lady wearing this tiara, and you refuse to state and deny knowing whether or not she wore it on her hair. I wish to call the court's attention to this refusing to answer.

W.—I am not refusing to answer.

L.—And you say you don't know whether she wore this on her hair when you saw her wear it?

W.—I do not know whether she wore it on her hair.

L.—Why do you not know?

W.—I am not sure it was her hair she wore under the tiara.—Indianapolis Star.

"Bobby, I don't believe you've studied your geography."

An Ideal Motor Car.

"I say, old man, you have no idea what a stunning new car I've got! Why it runs so smoothly you can't feel the hill! Not a bit of noise, no chugging! You can't hear a sound! And it's positively odourless—can't smell a thing! And as for speed—why, it fairly whizzes! You simply can't see it go by."

Listener: "H'm, old man! Must be a fine car. Can't feel it, can't hear it, can't smell it, can't see it! How do you know it's there?"

Making Progress.

"I am glad to see you home, Johnny," said the father to his small son, who had been away at school, but who was now home on his vacation. "How are you getting on at school?"

"Fine!" said Johnny. "I have learned to say 'Thank you' and 'If you please' in French."

"Good!" said the father. "That's more than you ever learned to say in English."—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Opening.

A porter in London was engaged in cleaning a luggage van when the door swung back, striking him violently on the head.

"Oh, Pat," he exclaimed to an Irishman standing on the platform, I believe I've opened my head!"

"Well, now's the time to put something into it," was Pat's witty reply.

"It's funny, ain't it, that everybody in our family's some kind of an animal?"

"Some kind of an animal, indeed? What do you mean?"

"Why, mother's a dear, you know."

"Yes, certainly."

"And my baby sister's mother's little lamb, and I'm the kid, and dad's the goat."

Retaliation.

"It's going to be war to the knife," declared the suburban man, who was feeding his chickens.

"What now?" asked the friend.

"Why, Blinks sent me a box of axle grease and advised me to use it on my lawn mower."

"Well?"

She Was Supplied.

While traveling thru the rural districts of Missouri, a book salesman approached a farmer and stood for several minutes importuning him to buy the book he was selling. Presently the farmer blinked his eyes and said, "No, it ain't no use. I can't read."

The salesman paused a moment and then said, "But you must have some one in your home that can read. Your wife, your children—I know they would be interested."

"Yes, my daughter can read," replied the Missourian; "but she's got a book."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Perfectly Satisfied.

A large, slouchy, colored man went shuffling down the road, whistling like a lark. His clothes were ragged and his shoes were out at the toes and heels, and he appeared to be in the depths of poverty for all his mirth.

Heartless Girls.

Representative Underwood said of the worldliness of the modern girl:

"I have just heard of an episode illustrating the modern girl's worldliness.

"A young man said to a very beautiful girl,

"'Miss Winchester—Muriel—I am not rich, but'—

"With a slight gesture of her white hand the girl silenced him.

"Pa, what is a near-humorist?"

"A near-humorist, son, is a person who says, when he finds an oyster in a stew, 'Well well, little stranger, what are you doing here?'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Satisfaction, Not Sympathy.

There is no love lost between the Scotch and Irish. This lack of sympathy was illustrated aptly by Duncan Marshall, the minister of education from Edmonton, Canada, during his recent visit to Chicago.

An Irishman had been thru the Crimean war and had returned to the ould sod in a rather mutilated condition. One leg had been cut off, an arm had been taken away by a charge of grapeshot, and he had lost an ear, his nose and one eye.

On his return home some of his friends took compassion on him and obtained for him a stand near one of the public monuments, where he could beg for alms.

One day a Scotchman came along and dropped a half-crown into the mendicant's hat. He passed along, but after a few steps he turned, and to the great astonishment of the unfortunate, placed a sovereign in the hat.

"And is it my pitiable condition," asked the mendicant, that moves you to such generosity?"

"It is not," was the Scotchman's reply, "but you're the first Irishman I've ever seen who's been content to pay satisfaction."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Mrs. Snimpf's Vote.

"You see, it's this way," explained the tall woman who had rung Mrs. Pegasus Snimpf's doorbell. "If every woman in the city signs this pledge, declaring that she wants to vote"—

"But," interrupted Mrs. Snimpf, "I've got a vote."

"What!" exclaimed the tall woman. "You don't mean to say you disguise yourself as a man on election day?"

"Not at all," assured Mrs. Snimpf.

"Then would you mind signing this paper? I promise you that if you sign this paper you'll have a vote within a year."

"But," persisted Mrs. Snimpf, "I've got a vote."

"I don't understand," said the tall woman, coldly.

"Well, wait here for five minutes and you'll understand. Here he is now."

Mr. Pegasus Snimpf, measuring five feet two inches in both stocking feet, was ascending the front steps.

"Peggie," said his wife sternly, "you're two minutes late! Go in and help the cook with the supper."

"Yes'm," said Pegasus Snimpf meekly and disappeared in the house.

"You see, I've got a vote," said Mrs. Snimpf.

"You bet you have!" said the tall woman admiringly. "Well, I'll try next door."—Detroit Free Press.

Patterson, F. D. Brown, H. Gordon Mackenzie, Alfred Haywood, N. F. Davidson, A. A. Atkinson.

It was moved by Mr. E. W. Hamber, seconded by Mr. R. J. Christie, that Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P., do take the chair, and that Mr. C. A. Bogert do act as Secretary.

Messrs. A. B. Boswell, K.C., and W. Gibson Cassels were appointed scrutineers.

The Secretary read the Report of the Directors to the Shareholders, and submitted the Annual Statement of the affairs of the Bank, which is as follows:

TO THE SHAREHOLDERS:

The Directors beg to present the following statement of the result of the business of the Bank for the year ended 31st December, 1913:

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 31st December, 1912		$ 688,169.01
Net profits for the year, after deducting all charges and making full provision for bad and doubtful debts		950,402.78
Premium received on new Capital Stock		811,344.80
Making a total of		$2,449,856.59
Which has been disposed of as follows:
Dividends (quarterly) at twelve per cent. per annum	$649,648.77
Bonus, two per cent.	116,176.70
Total distribution to shareholders of fourteen per cent. for the year	$765,823.47
Contribution to Officers' Pension Fund	25,000.00
Transferred to Reserve Fund—Premium on New Stock	811,344.80
Transferred to Investment Accounts	200,000.00
		$1,802,168.27
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$ 647,688.32

RESERVE FUND.

Balance at credit of account, 31st December, 1912	$6,000,000.00
Transferred from Profit and Loss Account	811,344.80
	$6,811,344.80

E. B. OSLER, President.
C. A. BOGERT, Gen. Manager.

The year 1913 was one of general financial and commercial depression throughout the world, which conditions became more accentuated during the closing months of that period. Your Directors, therefore, deemed it advisable to enforce a policy of conservatism without interfering with the requirements of legitimate borrowers.

The funds of the Bank were fully and profitably employed throughout the twelve months under review resulting in a further increase in the net earnings, the disposition of which is dealt with in detail in the accompanying Report. A bonus of 2 per cent. was again distributed, in addition to the regular dividend of 12 per cent.

Following the announcement made in the last Annual Report, an issue of $1,000,000 of new Capital Stock was made to Shareholders of record of the 15th of February, 1913. The whole of this issue was taken up, and although the final payments thereon are not due until June, 1914—$811,344 of the amount had been paid up on the 31st of December last. The total Paid-Up Capital of the Bank was, on that date, $6,811,344.

To meet the requirements of Section 56, Subsection 6, of the new Bank Act, you are now asked to elect auditors to serve until the next Annual General Meeting, and two written nominations have already been received in this connection.

You are also requested to sanction the passing of new By-Laws, necessitated by changes in the Bank Act and the advisability of having them more fully meet present circumstances.

Branches were opened in 1913, as follows:
New Westminster, B.C.
Fairview, Vancouver, B.C.
Fernwood, Victoria, B.C.
Medicine Hat, Alta.
Arlington Street, Winnipeg, Man.
Walkerville, Ontario.
Danforth Avenue, Toronto, and Eglinton Avenue, Toronto.

The offices at North Vancouver, B.C., and Guernsey, Sask., were closed, as existing conditions did not warrant their continuance.

Very satisfactory progress is being made in the erection of the new Head Office building at the corner of King and Yonge Streets, Toronto, and it is confidently expected that the premises will be ready for occupation before the end of this year.

The customary thorough Inspections of the Head Office and Branches have been made, including the verification by your Directors of the Balance Sheet now presented.

All the Assets of the Bank have been carefully scrutinised by the Directors and Officials, and its Investment Securities are carried on the Books at conservative values.

E. B. OSLER, President.

Toronto, 28th January, 1914.

The Report was adopted.

In conformity with Section 56, Subsection 6, of the new Bank Act, Messrs. Geoffrey T. Clarkson and Robert J. Dilworth were appointed Auditors for the current year.

New By-Laws were submitted and passed by the Shareholders.

The thanks of the Shareholders were tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their services during the year, and to the General Manager and other Officers of the Bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties.

The following gentlemen were duly elected Directors for the ensuing year: Messrs. A. W. Austin, W. R. Brock, James Carruthers, R. J. Christie, J. C. Eaton, J. J. Foy, K.C., M.L.A., W. D. Matthews, A. M. Nanton, E. W. Hamber, H. W. Hutchinson and Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors, Sir Edmund B. Osler, M.P., was elected President, and Mr. W. D. Matthews, Vice-President, for the ensuing term.

ENORMOUS SHEEP OF NOVA SCOTIA

They Are Perfectly Wild And Are Quite at Home in the Sea

On the east coast of Nova Scotia is an archipelago of thousands of isles, wooded and rocky. Four hundred years ago the hardy French voyagers who first settled this part of Canada hailed these pretty islands with delight. They settled there before they would trust themselves upon the mainland, and there they turned out the live stock—shaggy Breton ponies, hardy little Jerseylike cows, and lanky sheep.

The sheep thrived where the cattle and the horses found the problem of existing difficult. Soon they paddled in the shallow waters of the outgoing tide in their desire to catch at the floating eel grass and bulbous kelp. Then the discovery came that swimming was not beyond their powers, and they need not remain prisoners on single islands when there were scores of others for them to visit.

So they peopled numbers of the islands, and struggling along the whole coast line became no man's flocks, having returned to a pristine wildness.

So it comes that in Nova Scotia, especially in Guysboro County, there is a breed of big sheep loaded down with heavy wool of as many years growth as they are old, perfectly wild, living on the sea coast. Swift on their feet they are as alert to danger as their cousins the mountain sheep of the Pacific coast. They jump from cliffs of considerable height, trusting to their heavy fleeces to save their bones from harm. They are ready on the instant to plunge into the waves and swim off to safety.

They are sure footed as antelopes, vigilant as chamois. This, too, despite the fact that they are always rolling in fat. Ragged looking the old-timers grow to be especially about the neck, but this is when maturity has been passed and old age is coming on. Otherwise they are tidy looking creatures, though their fleeces are prodigiously exaggerated.

They are partly carnivorous, these sheep of the sea coast. At least an observant watcher will notice that they nose away at the soft spots of the beach after eel worms and mussels, and chewed clam shells are commonly to be met with on their pasturages. But their regular food is dulce, eel grass, and kelp.

In the winter they are apt to suffer. The spray dashes into the fleece and freezes there in cold weather. All along the high water mark the sea walls of ice form. Many sheep are drowned here while feeding on sea weed. Were it not for the dangers of the winter season the sheep would become exceedingly numerous, for they breed quickly and not very many of them fall before the hunters.

INDIAN BREWERIES

A Mounted Policeman Found Many of These in the Far North

One of the mounted Canadian police, who patrol great stretches of almost uninhabited land in the northwest, discovered a band of Indians, who had breweries and were making "fire water" constantly for their own use, east of the Hay River, and 600 miles from civilization. The Hay River is a thin black line running through the white terra incognita south of the Great Slave Lake.

The patrolman made a personal investigation and found a happy lot of Indians among whom "fire water" was quite as common as it used to be down in Kentucky. He found that nearly every "buck" was the proprietor of a "brewery," and that life south of the Great Slave Lake was one long and joyous spree.

A strange white man had sold the secret of making "fire water" to the Indians, and they were making a "brew" of potatoes, hops, sugar and yeast, which, when allowed to ferment, was strong enough to cause intoxication. During the warm summer months the Indans raised potatoes for this brew, but in scarcely any instance could they be persuaded to grow anything for food.

Tarring Outrage

A stir was created in Clifden, Ireland, by the fact that the doors of a number of houses of prominent residents in the town were tarred. Some of the persons involved hold grazing farms in the district.

WAS TROUBLED WITH BOILS AND CARBUNCLES.

There is no more frequent source of illness than that arising from bad blood, for when the blood becomes impure, it is only natural that boils, pimples or some other indication of bad blood should break out of the system.

Boils in themselves are not a dangerous trouble, but still at the same time are very painful, and the only way to get rid of them is to cleanse the blood of the impurities. Cleanse it thoroughly by the use of Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and reliable blood medicine that has been on the market for nearly forty years.

Mr. James Wilds, Plaster Rock, N.B., writes:—"I was greatly troubled, a few years ago, with boils and carbuncles, and the doctor told me I was in a bad condition. My appetite failed me, I began to lose strength, and was pretty well run down when one of my friends recommended Burdock Blood Bitters. After using three bottles I began to feel like another man. My troubles soon left me, and to-day I can certainly give Burdock Blood Bitters a high recommendation to my friends."

Radway's Ready Relief

Mrs. J. Westervelt of Paterson, N.J., writes: "I have a large family of small children, and it has saved me many a doctor's bill. For quinsy sore throat it is a king over that. My little girl has sprained her ankle and is coming around fine without any other doctor than Radway's Ready Relief."

CURES SORE THROAT

Apply the Relief to the throat and chest until the surface smarts and reddens. Give Radway's Pills in such doses as will freely move the bowels. For a sudden cold, take a large dose of Radway's Pills, and a teaspoonful of Relief with a teaspoonful of molasses, in a tumbler of hot water. Retire at once to bed. A profuse perspiration will break out, and in the morning the cold will be gone.

RADWAY & CO., Montreal, Can.

A Weighty King

One of the most interesting monarchs who bask under British protection is King George Tabur II., whose kingdom—the Tonga Islands—is situated in an obscure corner of the South Pacific Ocean.

King George can claim to be a man of weight, for he turns the scales at 308 pounds. He governs by means of a native parliament, the sessions of which seem to be mainly determined by the amount and quantity of the edibles collected at the capital.

For Dirty Scholars

The London Education Committee decided to rent a house in Brixton where dirty school children could be sent to be washed.

Octupus on the Beach

An octupus with tentacles fifteen inches long was found on the beach at Walton-on-the-Naze.

St. Peter's in Rome, occupied three and a half centuries in construction, and during this time forty-three Popes reigned.

RHEUMATISM AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Prof. Budlong Was Quickly Relieved of Both Afflictions by Using Rheuma

If you suffer from any form of Rheumatism, remember that RHEUMA goes to work quickly to remove the cause, not simply to relieve the distress. Many years' use has demonstrated that it goes to the seat of the disease and expels the poisonous matter through the natural channels—the kidneys, bowels, liver, and skin.

"For many years I was troubled with Rheumatism, also with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. I suffered awfully. Tried many advertised remedies. After using your truly remarkable preparation, RHEUMA, I was fully cured."—Prof. C. J. Budlong, Sound View, Conn.

RHEUMA is guaranteed by Warno Drug Co., who sell it for 50 cents a bottle.

THE ANIMALS' HEALTH

Dwellers in the Toronto Zoo Make Good Patients

"A long way the healthiest animal here," said Mr. F. Goode, superintendent of the Riverdale Zoo, Toronto, "is the elephant. We have had her about ten years, and she has only been sick or sorry once in the last five years, and then she had only a slight cold."

Speaking generally, Mr. Goode was of the opinion that the denizens of the Zoo made good patients. The great majority of them, he was convinced, are more insensible to pain than are human beings. And they have nothing like the same apprehension of death or suffering. To this rule, however, he made some exceptions. A sick monkey, he said, was one of the most pity-stirring sights of the world. To see a monkey die was piteous in the extreme. It showed just the same kind of feelings as a human being does.

"I should say that the leopard is the most delicate of the animals we have here. He has a shorter coat than either the lion or the tiger, and a cold wind affects him. We lost a leopard two years ago from pneumonia. That is really the chief disease of which we stand in dread. On the whole we are extremely free from illness at the Zoo.

"Black and brown bears give very little trouble. They are naturally strong. And when they are feeling not quite up to the mark, they will drink cod liver oil freely out of a cup.

"Beavers are healthy, as well as industrious. But they fight like fury. Where a male and female are together, and have a family, and found a colony, they are all right. But put in a strange beaver among this colony and they will kill him inside of twenty-four hours. They will cut his tail off, and tear holes in his back. And all this will be done under water. Beavers can stand any amount of pain. I have known a beaver badly mauled, and gangrene set in until half of him was really dead. And yet he would still keep on diving."

British and Roman Relics

Britanno-Roman relics recently discovered in Winchester include three very interesting crucibles, of about the volume of modern egg-cups, all having terminal spikes by means of which they could be stood upright in sand in the heating chamber. One is still partially filled with melted iron. Crucibles of this kind are very rare.

SIGNIFICANT NAMES

There is a Marked Difference in Place Names in Ontario and Quebec

The place names of Ontario and Quebec eloquently reflect the historical background of the respective peoples. Journey through Ontario and you are confronted with names of counties, townships, towns and villages lifted almost bodily from England, as in Middlesex, Lincoln or York. Go through Quebec and we meet the names of French Kings, Governors and explorers, not to speak of innumerable saints held in close reverence by a devoted people. In Ontario we find in the nomenclature a solemn march of heroes, Governors, poets, philanthropists, statesmen, discoverers and martyrs, connected with the expansion or glory of England, such as Sir Isaac Brock, Sir Guy Carleton, General Haldimand, Governor Hamilton, Governor Hope, General Prescott, the Duke of Richmond, Lords Durham, Sydenham and Aylmer, Governor Simcoe, Sir Charles Bagot, Hilton, Collingwood, Wellington, Nelson, Raleigh, Hampden, Palmerston, Pitt, Harvey, Franklin, Wilberforce, and Macaulay, with such reminders of victory as Blenheim, Trafalgar, Vincent, Waterloo and Sebastopol.

In Quebec how different are the scenes called up by the names of cities, rivers, counties and parishes: Champlain, after the founder of Quebec; Chicoutimi, the first French Viceroy; Montmagny, who succeeded Champlain. Two officers of the Carignan regiment, St. Louis and Richelieu, perpetrate the Grand Monarch of France and his long-trusted Minister; Frontenac, Vaudreuil, and Beauharnois were three of the most able and energetic of the French Governors of Canada, while Bishop Laval, Generals Montcalm and de Levis, Cardinal Richelieu, Charlevoix, and other celebrities are similarly remembered. As to the names of saints, the calendar and Acta Sanctorum seem to have been ransacked, and not even the most obscure result of canonization overlooked.

Old Parish Cage

The Essex town of Witham is about to lose its parish cage, which has stood in the High Street for nearly five centuries. It is built of solid oak, and in former years was used for housing prisoners. It was used up to about eighty years ago.

Prisoners were not allowed beer, but the friends of prisoners made a small crack in the oak wall, the stem of a clay pipe was passed through, and beer was poured into the bowl of the pipe, the prisoner sucking the ale through the stem.

Magnesite is a mineral which is over 52 per cent. carbon dioxide, the gas which is used for charging soda water, ginger ale and similar beverages. By far the greater part of magnesite occuring in the United States is found in California, while reports have also been received of deposits in Arizona, Nevada and Western Texas.

NOTES FROM THE LABOUR WORLD.

Representatives of labour in Lowell, New Bedford, Fall River and other textile centres will urge the Massachusetts Legislature now in session to repeal the Child Labour law which was passed last year. It is declared that the measure was passed without the approval of the representatives of organized labour. The petition for its repeal says that the income of many deserving families has been reduced to the point of deprivation, and the children have not been benefited by the operation of the statute.

OXO CUBES

Full of Food-value

The New Food-Invention that has revolutionized the old ideas of convenience and economy

After years of experiment the Liebig Company have succeeded by a new scientific process in condensing the rich body-building properties of their famous fluid-beef Oxo into the form of handy Cubes.

EVERY MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD IS AFFECTED BY THIS GREAT FOOD-INVENTION.

Men, because a tin of Oxo Cubes can be slipped into the vest pocket, and used whenever a hasty meal is required,—or a Cube spread on a biscuit is both delicious and sustaining.

Women, because Oxo Cubes do away in great measure with the drudgery of home-cookery. Soups, beefteas, gravies, stews, etc., can be made in a few minutes—without trouble or inconvenience.

Children, because Oxo Cubes are powerful nourishers and health-builders, and being deliciously flavoured are just what they enjoy.

Everybody, because a daily cup of Oxo makes you feel worlds better—your brain more alert,—and your body stronger, and more capable of sustaining the cold and rigours of a hard winter.

Oxo Cubes have a body-building power out of all proportion to the amount taken

Tins of 4, 10, 50, and 100 Cubes.

WHIMS OF THE AIR

Curious and Rapid Changes In the Velocity of the Wind.

HOLES IN THE ATMOSPHERE.

These Danger Spots, From the Aviators' Viewpoint, Are Born of the Almost Instantaneous Variations in the Force of the Aerial Currents.

Since man has provided himself with wings he has learned more astonishing things about the air than were dreamed of in his old philosophy. He has had to learn them in order to make traveling safe on his new aerial highway. The wind was almost a complete mystery until aeronauts began to make close acquaintance with its strange moods and vagaries. The startling experiences of aviators have stimulated the anemometrists—i. e., the wind measurers—to fresh investigations, which have had surprising results.

Consider, for instance, these things which have been found out by the Aerotechnic Institute of the University of Paris:

If two anemometers (wind measurers) are placed side by side about seventy-two feet above the ground when a wind of from thirty-three to forty-eight feet per second is blowing the most remarkable differences in the velocity of the wind are observed. If the anemometers are only ten inches apart both usually show nearly the same wind velocity, but if the distance between them is increased to about thirty-two inches one will sometimes show a wind velocity of ten feet per second more rapid than that shown by the other. But this difference lasts only for an instant. If the distance between the anemometers is increased to twenty-three or twenty-four feet, the usual length of an aeroplane, the differences in the velocity of the wind shown by them are occasionally enormous, but of very brief duration. This must clearly produce a racking effect upon an aeroplane, which may be disastrous, for one end of it may for a second or so experience a resistance double that felt at the other end.

But this is by no means all. Not only does the wind vary in this capricious fashion at places a few feet or a few yards apart, but it varies with equal violence and suddenness at the same point, as is proved by fixing a single anemometer at a height of seventy-five or eighty feet above the ground and observing the successive changes in its indications of velocity. Thus it has been found that a wind whose average velocity was about thirty-eight feet per second maintained that velocity for as much as ten successive seconds and then in a second and a half dropped to less than fourteen feet per second, which it maintained during two seconds, after which in the course of half a second it sprang up to a velocity of fifty feet per second. It maintained the last mentioned velocity for only a single second.

In another case the velocity of the wind rose in three-quarters of a second from twenty-six and one-quarter feet to fifty-seven and one-half feet per second.

Considering these facts, it is no wonder that aviators meet with strange accidents by running into what they call "holes in the air," for the sustaining force of the air, on account of the sudden variations of the wind, may almost instantly lose half its value and then with equal suddenness recover, or more than recover, its former power. Such things enable any one to understand the peculiar perils that the aviator has to face. Even ordinary mortals know that the wind is capricious, but to the navigator of the air it becomes sometimes a very demon, or a legion of demons, whose eccentric gambolings are as uncontrollable as they are unexpected.

It took thousands of years for seamen to learn how to face with unflinching hearts the vagaries of the ocean waves and currents and for shipbuilders to devise vessels that could defy them, but it seems likely that we in a few decades shall have mastered the caprices of the atmosphere and have produced airships that will safely ride the wildest wind.

It is the advance of science that has given us the great advantage which we possess over our predecessors in overcoming nature's obstacles, but increase of knowledge would not have served us if there had been decrease of courage. That there has been no such decrease is proved every day by the daring feats of aviators.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

One Way to Clean Windows.

There are so many "best" ways to clean windows that one hesitates to offer her method unless very sure it is the way. Three or four ounces of emery flour in a heavy canvas sack about six inches square will clean and polish windows with greater ease than anything else I know. Simply rub the bag over the window. It also removes streaks from any glass.—Women's Home Companion.

Bells of Bruges.

The famous peal of bells in the belfry at Bruges is played on the principle of a music box, with an enormous drum weighing 2,000 pounds. In the drum are 30,000 holes for brass pegs which touch the trackers and move the wires communicating with the bell hammers. The airs are changed once each year, but the drum must be wound up every two hours.

Spend a few minutes to find out whether a thing is worth doing before you spend hours in doing it.

"Oh, Ethel, why don't you use your finger bowl?"

THE "EVENING EXAMINER" TO ADD 500 NEW SUBSCRIBERS BEFORE MAY FIRST

THE EXAMINER'S MONEY MAKING COMPETITION FOR LIVE NEWSBOYS

Starts MONDAY, Feb. 2nd Ends TUESDAY, April 30th

27 PRIZES IN CASH 27

Payable at the completion of the competition to the boys who make the most gains in new customers.

24 PRIZES IN CASH 24

3 payable each week to the boys who make the most gains in new customers each week during competition.

51—CASH PRIZES—51

EVERY BOY WILL START OFF MONDAY NEXT, FEBRUARY 2nd on an equal footing, no matter whether you have been selling papers or not. The boy with 50 Customers at the present time is in no better position than the boy just starting in. The boy starting with 50 customers has to make his gain above 50 to secure the prize, which is for the most New Customers each boy gets.

REMEMBER

NEW BEGINNERS as well as our regular newsboys who enter this contest will start scoring together on Monday Evening, February 2nd.

Papers are ready for Boys shortly after Four o'clock.

Boys attending school can sell papers and lose no time and with a hustle will soon have a Savings Bank Account.

We will keep a record of every boy's sales up to the End of the Contest.

The Examiner is easy to sell and is a good money maker for any boy.

AN IMPORTANT CONDITION

IN ORDER that protection may be given to each boy who is entering in this Competition, it is a condition that no one will secure a prize who does not honestly earn it. If a boy applies for a Weekly Prize, who has not bought the papers for his own use and sale, it will be turned over to the boy who has honestly won it.

CASH PRIZES

First Prize	$25.00
Second Prize	20.00
Third Prize	15.00
Fourth Prize	10.00
Fifth Prize	5.00
Sixth Prize	4.00
Seventh Prize	3.00
Eighth Prize	2.00
Ninth Prize	2.00
Tenth Prize	2.00
Eleventh Prize	2.00
Twelfth Prize	2.00
15 Prizes of	1.00

27 Boys to get final prizes.

UNDERSTAND

THE WEEKLY PRIZES

IT'S the largest individual increases weekly that count. If one boy who has been selling papers starts on Monday next with ten regular customers and increases his list to 20 at the end of the week, and another boy with 20 regular customers has only increased to 25, the first boy wins the First Weekly Cash Prize, because he has added 10 to his list while the second boy has only added 5 to his list. If a boy is not now selling Examiners and next Saturday has 16 new customers, he wins the prize as he has gained more new customers than either of the other two boys.

There are three prizes distributed each week for the biggest gain for the week. Whether you have been selling papers in the past or not, does not make any difference.

Canvas those who are not taking the Examiner. They will read it if you get them started.

No boy has any advantage over any other boy. It's all in the hustle.

PARENTS

WHO would like to encourage their boys to earn sufficient pocket money to keep them, are urged to give them a start of a few cents for their first lot of Papers. There are many young men now holding good positions who made their first money by selling the Evening Examiner.

Any boy can start at any time, but he should start on Monday, February 2nd, with the rest so as to give no handicap for the large prizes.

Any further information regarding this competition will be given at the Examiner Office.

WHERE LONDON DINES

EATING OUT QUITE A RECENT HABIT IN THE METROPOLIS.

Conservative Old Capital of Empire Is Beginning to Find Out That the Maintenance of So Many Separate Kitchens In a Great City Is Sheer Waste—Piccadilly a Home of Cafes.

Your Londoner is a conservative animal, and it has taken the ordinary citizen an inordinate time to appreciate the pleasure and the household convenience of dining out. A certain class of Londoner has had no fixed dining place other than maybe his club for long enough. The well-to-do bachelor has done it for generations, but the population at large has taken its sustenance at night within its own four walls, despite the excellent example of its continental equivalent. It is a remarkable fact that most of the well-known restaurants have arisen in the last ten years, and almost all of them in the past quarter of a century.

A good deal of London dining out is but a prelude to some form of entertainment, so that the land of theatres and halls is, naturally enough, the land of dinners. But there is a growing population which dines away from its sleeping place as a rule, without any intention of amusement. Gradually it is being borne in upon us that combination in feeding leads to convenience and even to economy.

The row of flats in which your scribe dwells contains some 450 kitchens, employing an army of cooks and assistants to feed, on the basis of five persons to a household, some 2,500 persons, and to providing dinners for perhaps 2,000 bodies after excluding infants and absentees. What waste! What overlapping! Four big restaurants would do the business, and at what a saving of thought and management.

The wonder is, therefore, not that new restaurants should be announced almost weekly, but that they should not have been baking, frying and serving hard already for twenty years. Bright surroundings and change stimulate appetite and cheer the jaded worker. Good cooking, efficiency of service are obtainable from the expert who devote that time to making the restaurant business a success.

You like music! There are few of us can afford the luxury of its strains at dinner at home, even if considerations of space are permitted. You adore shaded lights and exquisite decorations. Your landlord provides neither, and to the small property owner the expense is prohibited. You love to entertain. Your staff of servants is too limited and to increase it means more house room, a grave matter when every additional foot of space means more rent. You wish to see your fellow-men (and women) around you, to run the chance of seeing people you know.

For all these reasons dining out makes an appeal to you. Where shall we go?

Had Dr. Johnson lived in these days he would have taken his walk, not down Fleet street, where the newspaper man still snatches his hasty meals, but down Piccadilly, and its jostling neighbors. At one end in the manner of the Rue Rivoli stands the world-famed Ritz, balancing upon its handsome but imitative colonnade. Within, the prevailing note is dignity, excellence, super-excellence, and efficiency. No garish decorations, no noise, and yet withal no dullness. The best of everything is good enough for the Ritz—but take a well-filled purse of gold.

Equally well known and in the same class is the Carlton hard by the Haymarket, and close to the popular theatre of that name. Soft music by an excellent orchestra, the best of attendants, the thickest of carpets, the most delectable of women.

The Savoy, in the Strand, is more widely known to those who seek sustenance after the theatre, but it is a great dining house of the premier class. Near by you will find a strong contingent at the Cecil, whose big dining room and many banqueting halls are known as well.

Before you leave the Strand let us take you into Simpson's, an old-fashioned English dining house, where you may sit in pews secure from draught, or at round separate tables. Here foregather lovers of plain English fare, cuts at wonderful joints wheeled all piping hot on smooth-running tables to your elbow, where you may choose your tit-bits for yourself. Or you may mount its staircases to upper rooms where more elaborate meals are served. There are, we had almost written, hundreds of smaller places in the Strand at prices to suit all purses, and everyone seeming playing to big business, as the theatrical manager would phrase it; but before we leave this street, cross the road to a more Bohemian but excellent resort, Romano's, called affectionately "the Roman's" its terra cotta structure stands out well, so that you cannot mistake it. Once within, you will appreciate the affection which its habitues have for it.

You may not wish to dress, but you may have a desire for largeness. Off again to Piccadilly, where the giant "Popular" rears its great edifice. He of that Napoleon of the world of eating, Sir Joseph Lyons, has ordained it. "No tips," and what he ordains is carried out. Twenty years ago the "Popular" would have been an impossible commercial proposition, but to-day its well-filled tables furnish the best evidence of how the Londoner is learning to take his meals away from his own fireside. Belonging to the same company, the Trocadero, at the end of Shaftesbury avenue, is as well known as almost any house in town. The conductor of its orchestra is a public favorite, and its fine and lofty dining room is not for the casual diner, for here, as at most of the big places nowadays, you must reserve your table beforehand, and turn up in immaculate bib and tucker.

WOULD COUGH SO HARD

Would Turn Black In The Face.

A cough cold is one of the most dangerous kind. It leaves the throat or lungs, and sometimes both, affected if not taken care of immediately.

Obstinate coughs and colds yield to the grateful soothing action of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, containing as it does all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree.

Mrs. C. J. Selig, Dartmouth, N.S., writes:—"My little boy, six years old, had a dreadful, hard cough. At night time he would cough so hard he would turn black in the face, and at times he would cough nearly an hour before he would stop. I tried different cough syrups, but they did him no good. The little fellow was wasting away, as he could not eat or sleep, the cough troubled him so. I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and it did him so much good I got another. Now I am only too glad to be able to write this to tell how thankful I am, and to tell every mother to use nothing else."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

Be sure you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. See the trade mark; the three pine trees.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Stroke Of Genius

It Was Made by a Seventeen-Year-Old Miss

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

"Ethel," said Mrs. Spencer to her niece, "I have something of importance to say to you. Sit down and give me your attention."

Ethel Digby, a demure little miss of seventeen, seated herself gingerly, as though she feared she might injure the chair with the hundred pounds she placed on it, and cast her eyes on the floor.

"It isn't necessary," continued her aunt, "for me to go over the circumstances of your being here. The power of wealth and the difference between it and poverty are growing greater every day. There is much that I can do for you with my wealth and a great deal that I cannot do. I can put you forward for a limited time and enable you to mingle with those with whom we associate, thus giving you an opportunity to make an advantageous marriage. But you must remember that it will not do me any good to get the name of pushing a girl who hasn't a cent in the world, even if she is my own niece."

"Yes, Aunt Marguret," was the demure reply.

This homily was delivered toward the close of the summer season. But there was still from one to two months' yachting in store for those who were enabled to enjoy this most expensive of luxuries. Mrs. Spencer, who proposed to do everything in her power to enable her niece to make a match during the limited time that had been set apart for the purpose, organized a cruise in her yacht, the Alpha, inviting the homeliest girls of her acquaintance and the most eligible young men.

The party set sail late in September—after the equinoctial gales had passed—for the waters of the south. Though the cruise was extended over some six weeks, it was a failure so far as its main object was concerned. Ethel Digby did not make a match. Indeed, she did not appear to try to make a match. True, there were no colossal fortunes among the bachelors of the party, but Mrs. Spencer did not aim for millions for her niece. She would be contented with a beggarly $500,000 or $600,000.

Reaching the gulf of Mexico, the party disbanded, some going to Florida, some northward, while the owner of the Alpha, with her husband and niece, made a trip to the canal before returning to her home. At Colon they found many persons who had come to view the great engineering work, a few of whom had come in their own yachts. Among these was young Farnsworth Elliot, who had recently come into a fortune of $2,000,000. He was well known to the Spencers, since they all moved in the same multimillionaire class. He invited them to dine on board his yacht, the Esperance, and they returned the civility by a similar invitation.

Mrs. Spencer had given up trying to marry her niece in her own set and took no steps to inveigle Mr. Elliot. However, he showed a disposition to go over the route of the canal in their company, and they went together. When they returned to Colon they stayed as before on their respective yachts until ready to make sail northward.

One evening Mr. Elliot was dining with the Spencers on their yacht when the conversation turned to marine signals. Spencer, though a yachtsman, left all sailing matters to his captain, and knew nothing about them. But Elliot was from choice his own sailing master, leaving navigation to his captain only when he happened to feel like doing so. The ladies showing an interest in the signal code, Mr. Elliot gave them a lecture on the international system. Mrs. Spencer pretended to understand what he was saying, while Miss Digby listened with out saying anything. After making his demonstration Mr. Elliot asked the former some questions about the code which showed her ignorance of it. He was proceeding to examine Ethel when she interrupted him.

"Send me a message by signal when you return to your yacht," she said "and I will return you an answer that will show you that I have understood it."

"A good idea!" exclaimed the young man. "Will you send your reply by signal?"

"That will depend on the nature of your message."

When the yachtsman had been pulled away in his dinghey Mrs. Spencer said to her niece:

"What did you mean, Ethel, by pretending to understand what Mr. Elliot said about the marine signal code? You didn't, did you?"

"Not a word of it."

"Will you get the captain to interpret the message for you when it comes?"

"No."

"Then how will you reply?"

"My reply is already decided on."

Mrs. Spencer looked at her niece, surprised, and asked what the reply was. To her astonishment, Ethel declined to answer her question.

"What's the matter with the child?" remarked Mrs. Spencer to herself as she turned away.

The message was to be sent the next morning, since the lecture had not included night signals. Shortly after the Spencers had breakfasted word was sent to Ethel that she had been called by signal from the Esperance. She went on deck, and the Esperance was informed that she was ready to receive what was to be said to her. The message was then sent, and Miss Digby instead of making a reply by the code went to her cabin and wrote one on a dainty bit of note paper.

Mr. Elliot did not look for a reply at once. He waited for it patiently. Presently he saw a boat approaching from the Alpha, and when it reached him he was handed Miss Digby's note. He opened and read it with an expression of astonishment.

All love stories must necessarily be imperfect. The old fashioned tale of love purported to be a photograph of the feelings of the respective lovers. This was and is impossible. Whether or no there was any covert lovemaking between Farnsworth Elliot and Ethel Digby too subtle to be perceived by others or perhaps to be a matter of consciousness by either one or both of the parties concerned is an open question. Elliot's message indicates that he at least was gallant. It read:

I sail tomorrow. Kindly inform me of your address when you reach home.

There was certainly no lovemaking on the face of this message, and it meant nothing to Ethel, for she understood not a word of it.

Elliot took the reply to his message to his cabin and locked himself in. After an hour's meditation he ordered his gig to be manned at 4 o'clock. At the appointed hour he was pulled to the Alpha and asked for Mr. Spencer. That gentleman invited him to a seat under the awning on the afterdeck, and when the two were seated Elliot informed his host that he had come to ask for the hand of his niece.

Smothering his surprise, Mr. Spencer reminded the applicant that Ethel was his wife's niece and referred him to her. The lady was called, and, her husband having given place to her, Mr. Elliot repeated his request. The lady, also mastering her astonishment, said to Mr. Elliot that if her niece was pleased to accept him she had no objections. Then the suitor drew from his pocket Miss Digby's reply to his message and handed it to Mrs. Spencer. It read:

I am highly honored by your proposal. Following the dictates of my heart, my reply is "Yes."

Mrs. Spencer was not the woman to stand in the way of a consummation so devoutly to be wished. That her niece had achieved a coup d'etat was evident to her, and, being a woman of quick perception, at least a glimmering of how this golden fish had been landed broke in upon her brain.

"I assure you, Mr. Elliot," she said, extending her hand, "you will be cordially welcomed into our family. And now if you will go to the cabin I will go to my niece and send her to you."

"Ethel," she said, embracing her niece, "you demure little thing, how did you ever dare do it?"

"I don't know," was the only reply, and it is quite probable that it was a true one.

There was no diminution of Miss Digby's demureness as she joined her suitor. She approached him with downcast eyes.

"I am pleased," he said gallantly, "that you interpreted my message correctly. I feared you would not."

"I think its meaning came to me through the heart," she said, with her eyes still on the floor. "I am ever so happy that I was right. Had I been wrong I would never have been able to look you in the face again."

"Such a reply could not possibly be wrong. You have made me the happiest of men."

The Spencers and Miss Digby were taken on board the Esperance and the Alpha sent north under command of her captain.

"Your courtship," said Mrs. Spencer to her niece, "begins after the engagement. You have got the cart before the horse."

"How do you know, my dear aunt, when it began?"

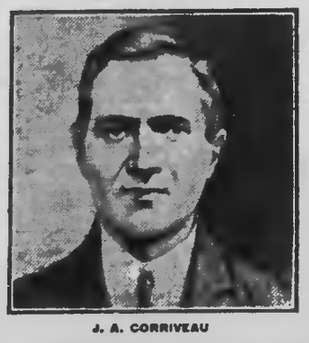
"I don't."

Mrs. Elliot is now one of the leaders of fashion in New York and Newport. She is still very young, but it is admitted that she has an old head on her shoulders. Her aunt, whom she has surpassed in social leadership, looks upon her as a wonder.

"What is not to be expected," says Mrs. Spencer, "from a girl who at seventeen could land a couple of millionaires purposely misunderstanding a message?"

PAIN NEARLY DROVE HIM MAD

Suffered Horribly Until He Turned To "Fruit-a-tives"



J. A. CORRIVEAU

DRYDALE, ONT., June 15th. 1913

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address, and on account of the great good I have experienced from using "Fruit-a-tives", I recommend them strongly to my customers. They were a great boon to me, I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up in bed with vomiting and a terrific pain at the base of my skull. The pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to inflammation of the brain but I took "Fruit-a-tives" steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives" and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness."

J. A. CORRIVEAU.

For Headaches, Neuralgia, Rheumatism and other diseases arising from an impure condition of the blood, "Fruit-a-tives" is invaluable and infallible.

Get Rid Of Pimples--Quick

By Using Stuart's Calcium Wafers—Natural Little Blood Purifiers That Work Like a Charm.

Don't despair if your face is covered with pimples, blotches, liver spots, or your body is covered in spots with tetter, rash, boils, etc. Just use Stuart's Calcium Wafers for a short time and see how quickly you will clear upy our skin.

"It is Simply a Constant Joy to be Rid of Those Horrible Pimples."

Pimples and eruptions of all kinds comef rom the inside. The blood casts out the impurities it contains and thus pimples, boils, etc., appear. Cleanse the blood, stop the poison from developing in the blood tissues and pimples will vanish as if by magic.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers contain in a natural manner the greatest blood purifier—Calcium Sulphide.

Calcium Sulphide and the other ingredients of these remarkable little wafers are just what impure blood needs. You must know that the blood is rushing through our veins very fast. It takes less than a minute for our blood to cover the entire body.

You can thus readily see that Stuart's Calcium Wafers, when they enter the body, have an almost instant effect upon all impurities no matter where located, whether it be the tip of the nose or the ends of the toes.

By the use of Stuart's Calcium Wafers your complexion will take on a fresher hue and a more natural series of tints than ever before.

Impure blood is blue or black. Purify it and it becomes ruby red. This colour showing beneath the skin is the secret of all beautiful complexions.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are sold by all druggists everywhere. Price 50 cents a box.

Noted French Writer Dead.

NICE, France, Jan. 31. — The death occurred here yesterday of Paul Deroulede, the French patriotic writer and politician, at the age of 68. He passed away after a short illness.

M. Deroulede, who was at one time a deputy, was the founder of the League of Patriots and an ardent supporter of the late Gen. Boulanger, whose attempted revolution in favor of the revision of the constitution in 1889 was a fiasco. M. Deroulede was noted throughout his life for his patriotic outbursts in the columns of the newspapers and his writings led him into many duels.

Twenty Millions To Prevent Floods.

PEKIN, Jan. 31. — The American Red Cross Society has bee granted by the Chinese Government a year in which to obtain the necessary $20,000,000 to carry out a project for controlling the River Hwai, whose overflows have hitherto caused every year great loss of life and damage to property.

A preliminary agreement to this effect was signed yesterday by P. S. Reinsch, U. S. Minister to China, and representatives of the Chinese Government. The plan for obtaining the money is to float a five per cent. loan.

INQUIRY UNDER WAY

Edward Beck Testifies in Quebec Legislation Probe

WITNESSES GET IMMUNITY

QUEBEC, Jan. 31. — Appreciable progress was made yesterday afternoon and last night with the Legislature's investigation into the charges of The Montreal Daily Mail that money had been accepted by J. Octave Mousseau, formerly member for Soulanges, and chairman of the private bills committee of the Legislative Assembly, for his support to the decoy bill of the Montreal Fair Association. By a resolution adopted at a meeting of the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon safe conduct and freedom from arrest was accorded to the witnesses They Daily Mail will call in support of its charg .

Edward Beck, formerly editor-in-chief of The Montreal Herald, was the chief witness heard before the committee. He related that it was at his instigation that detectives were engaged to "watch" the proceedings at Quebec to ascertain if there was any crookedness in the matter of the passing of certain private legislation through the two Houses, a rumor having prevailed that a system of bribery had been practiced for some time.

Mr. Beck declared that D. Lorne McGibbon, who was then the principal publisher of The Herald, had agreed to pay the costs of the detectives' investigation. A special eye was to be kept on Montreal Tramways legislation.

Plans were made to publish the result of the enquiry in The Montreal Herald, but in the meantime Mr. McGibbon sold the paper, and when the story of alleged corruption was ready for publication, The Herald, now under new management, rejected the reports.

The committee sat late into the night, Mr. Beck being under examination the whole time, and at the adjournment, when he had given details of the interviews Mousseau had with the supposed promoters regarding the decoy bill, his evidence was not completed.

LABOR MEN AT TORONTO.

Reform Legislation Is Asked by Delegates From Congress.

TORONTO, Jan. 31. — The Trades and Labor Congress of the province laid before the Government yesterday afternoon resolutions dealing with the eight-hour day, ventilation and heating of street cars, fair wages, elections on holidays, isolation hospitals, tax reform and other matters which have been under their observation during the year. All were backed up by special representatives from Ontario municipalities, and their embodiment in legislation at the coming session was urged upon the cabinet, which received them in force.

Allan Studholme, M.P.P., of Hamilton introduced the visitors and stated their desires as being for the general improvement of health and labor conditions in Ontario. The convention at Montreal had crystallized the opinion of the workers of the provinces into these requests.

Masterlinck on The Index.

IN MISERY AT MEAL TIME

Indigestion Can Be Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

If your digestion is weak you cannot derive proper nourishment from your food. The pain and distress you suffer is a protest from your stomach that it is unable to do its work. It is then that you lose all appetite, have dull headaches, acute pains in the chest and abdomen, heartburn and other distressing symptoms.

You cannot cure indigestion by the use of laxatives, and pre-digested foods only make the stomach more sluggish. Indigestion can only be cured by giving tone to and strengthening the nerves that control the stomach. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured indigestion times without number, becuse they purify and enrich the blood. In this way they improve the appetite, dispel the torments of indigestion and enable you to derive benefit from the food you take. The following is proof of these statements. Mrs. George Brien, Great Shemogue, N. B., says: "A few years ago I was taken down with a fever which left me suffering from nervous stomach trouble. I apparently got over it, but the trouble could not have been wholly eradicated, as during the summer of 1912 I was taken down with it again. I took many medicines, and was attended by two different doctors, but instead of getting well seemed to be growing worse. I could not eat without suffering the most intense pains; even a drink of milk seemed to upset me. I slept poorly and at last dreaded to see night come. In this condition I saw in a newspaper the story of a woman who had similarly suffered and was cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I decided to try the Pills and found by the time I had taken three boxes that they were helping me. I continued using the Pills until I had taken eight boxes, when the trouble had disappeared, and I have to thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for restoring my health after I had practically given up hope of ever being well again."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Another Blackhand Outrage.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — Despite the fact that Angelo Sylvestro was convicted in four minutes Thursday night of planting a bomb to blow up a tenement house in which lived twenty-five families, blackhanders continued their reign of terror here early yesterday, when a bomb wrecked the store of Joseph Stella, and the four-storey tenement at 204 East Elizabeth street.

Tenants in the house were panic-stricken and Geo. D'Adelman, passing on the opposite side of the street, was knocked down. Stella said he had received blackhand letters demanding money.

BOTHA MUST EXPLAIN.

South African Premier Has a Warm Time Coming.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Jan. 31. — Heated altercations yesterday, marked the opening session of the Parliament of the Union of South Africa in the course of which Gen. Louis Botha, the Premier, and the Cabinet Minister are to be called upon to justify to the country the iron-handed methods they adopted in dealing with the recent strike of workers, ten of whose leaders were this week deported secretly to England.

Viscount Gladstone, the Governor-General, in his opening speech, said the declaration of martial law by the Government had been an "imperative duty" but he made no reference the deportation of the labor leaders.

Time after time the labor members in vehement language and amid a great uproar, tried to debate "the crime of kidnapping citizens," but the speaker refused to allow them to continue.

ANNULMENT SET ASIDE.

Heberts Are Declare Married by the Quebec Appeal Court.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—Judgment in the Hebert marriage annulment case setting aside as unnecessary that of Judge Charbonneau, was delivered by the reviewer appeal court of the Province of Quebec here yesterday, composed of Justices Tellier, Delorimier and Greenshields.

The Heberts are thus legally married again and the parties are thus left civilly in exactly the same position as they were when the case came before Judge Larendeau and after the Catholic Church had pronounced their marriage as null and void.

Mrs. Hebert is now satisfied with the judgment, as she would like a clear decision on the marriage and not a technical re-marriage, as she got yesterday.

The review court's judgment does not pass on the vital question as to whether Protestant ministers can legally marry Catholics.

KEPT HER UNDER SPELL.

Frances Wright Massaged Her Head, Says Mrs. Sharp.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—That he put her under a spell by massaging her round the head and eyes in order to secure her property was the evidence of Mrs. Harriet Sharp in the police court yesterday against Frances C. Wright, alias Frank Dutton Jackson, accused of fraud. Mrs. Sharp further testified to Wright's declaration that he was immortal, that he was the incarnated Peter, and that it was is duty to usher in the New Era.

Wright was also in the habit of communicating with his brother immortals through the medium of lice. Six, five and four meant "yes," two meant "hesitate," and one meant "no," Mrs. Sharp further narrated the circumstances of her marriage to the prisoner at Niagara Falls, and the signing over of her property. Wright was committed for trial.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts Before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

No Sick Headache, Bilious Stomach, Coated Tongue or Constipated Bowels by Morning

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

Kaiser Seeks To Make Peace.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—An attempt is to be made by Emperor William to win back the sympathies of the Alsatians after their recent irritation in connection with the violent accidents between the military and civilians at Zabern, by appointing a royal prince as viceroy in place of Count Charles Von Wedel, who has resigned. The Zeitung am Mittag, which announces this news, says that Prince Frederick William, son of the late Prince Albert of Prussia, who was regent of Brunswick until 1906, or some other Prussian prince, probably will be selected and sent to Alsace in order to show the people there a mark of royal favor.

A golfing statistician has estimated that the caddies of England earn $12,500,000 every year, yet some youths prefer to be lawyers or doctors.

"Moderately hard work does not cause fatigue," says a physician. A good deal of fatigue is caused by efforts to avoid work of any kind.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

ARBITRATION PROVIDED.

G. T. P. Employes Get Board and C.N.R. Men Will Follow Suit.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—No sooner was the request for an increase in wages and better working conditions granted by the C.P.R. and Grand Trunk to their maintenance of way employes, through the instrumentality of the Department of Labor, than the same class of employes on the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern have filed similar requests.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, has appointed a board of conciliation to deal with the request of the Grand Trunk Pacific employes, the members of which are Judge R. D. Gunn of Ottawa, chairman; F. H. McGuigan of Toronto for the company and Henry Irwin of Portage la Prairie for the men. He is arranging for the appointment of a board to deal with the request of the C.N.R. men.

Caught Red-Handed.

OWEN SOUND, Jan. 31. — About three o'clock P. C. Foster went into Buzza's jewelry store by the rear entrance and surprised a burglar in the act of jimmying through a door. He was removed to the police cells and gave his name as George Smith, and his home as Toronto. He said he had been in the Central Prison, and gave his age as sixteen, parents both dead.

On Smith were found five dollars in cash, several searchlights, several ties and collars, beside a back-saw and a stout steel jimmy for forcing doors.

Bluejackets Landing Resented.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Jan. 31 —The people of Port au Prince are condemning the members of the committee of safety for not having prevented the landing of marines and bluejackets from the American and German warships. They argue that this could have been done by demonstrating to the diplomatic representatives here that peace had reigned throughout the city uninterruptedly for the two days prior to the landing of the foreigners.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Belief that the winter crop had escaped any immediate danger from a cold wave had a bearish effect today on the price of wheat. The market closed steady but at a decline of 1-4c to 3-8c net. Other grain, too, showed a loss for the day—corn 3-8c to 1-2c and oats 1-8c to 1-4c. In provisions the outcome varied from a setback of 10c to 12 1-2c.

Liverpool wheat closed ½d higher; corn, 1d higher.

PATIENTS ARE BETTER.

Both Sir James Whitney and Sir George Ross Improving.

TORONTO, Jan. 31. — "Marked improvement" characterizes the progress of the two distinguished patients in the Toronto General Hospital yesterday. Sir James Whitney's medical attendans declared last night that the Premier had "experienced the best day yet," and the statement issued by Doctors Alex. McPhedran and Clarke at a late hour read: "Sir James Whitney rested well, took his food well, and his progress is very satisfactory." They also declared that his knee trouble had practically passed away.

Sir George Ross, too, is improving. He was declared to be feeling much better during the evening and resting comfortably. He had had a good day and had taken nourishment.

Crushed To Death.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 31. — Charles Yeandle was instantly killed and John Ramey probably fatally injured when the brickwork of a well gave way on a farm three miles from here last night. The men were repairing the well, and were caught beneath the falling debris without warning. Other workmen rushed to their assistance, but Yeandle was dead when extricated. He leaves a wife and two children.

Foiled the Highwayman.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Hinley Beattie, son of Major Beattie, M.P., was the victim of an attempted hold-up at 1.30 yesterday morning near Horton and Richmond streets. Young Beattie was on the way home when a masked man pointed a revolver, demanding his money. Beattie dropped to the ground calling for help. Constable McCrea heard him and chased the highwayman firing his revolver, but the man escaped.

High Honor For Cardinal.

ROME, Jan. 31. — It is reported that Cardinal Merry del Val probably will be appointed chamberlain of the church, an office which has been vacant since the death of Cardinal Rampolla. It is one of the highest positions in the church, as, during an interegum, the chamberlain directs the ecclesiastical and political government of the church.

200,000 Have Learned to Play the Piano in One Hour

Without Lessons or Knowledge of Music Anyone Can Play the Piano or Organ in One Hour.

Wonderful New System That Does a Child Does This.

He—"You surprise me! You told me yesterday you couldn't play a note!"

She—"I couldn't; I learned to play in one hour by the wonderful 'Easy Method Music.'"

Impossible, you say? Let us prove it at our expense. We will teach you to play the piano or organ and will not ask one cent until you can play.

A musical genius from Chicago has invented a wonderful system whereby anyone can learn to play the Piano or Organ in one hour. With this new method you don't have to know one note from another, yet in an hour of practice you can be playing your favorite music with all the fingers of both hands and playing it well.

The invention is so simple that even a child can now master music without costly instruction. Anyone can have this new method on a free trial merely by asking. Simply write saying, "Send me the Easy Form Music Method as announced in the Peterborough Examiner

A 9 Day Record of Skin Disease Cured by D. D. D.

June 16, 1913, patient aged 48 arrived at the D. D. D. Laboratories, Chicago, at 9.30 a.m. Temperature 99°, pulse 74, respiration 26. Severe lesions right side of face. Water running sores. Right ear scaly. Very unsightly. Severe itch. Eye threatened. Patient had not slept for five days. Diagnosed as eczema.

D.D.D. Prescription was applied at once. At 9.45 the patient was asleep, the itch entirely allayed. Sleep continued until 8.20 p.m. when the patient awoke fully refreshed. D. D. D. Prescription was used again, washed gently over all affected parts.

June 17. Examination showed 12 out of 134 running sores gave signs of drying. Itch entirely gone. Inflammation reduced. This day D. D. D. was applied four times.

June 18. 126 sores dried all the rest drying. Scales falling from ear. Redness disappearing.

June 19. No more running sores. No sign of itch. Entire side of face becoming normal.

June 25. Patient returned to his home with scarcely a trace of the disease.

The name and address of this remarkable cure will be given on application to the D.D.D. Laboratories.

The D.D.D. Prescription, used exclusively in the above case, has established itself throughout the provinces as the great specific for skin disease. It seems to have marked a new epoch in the cure of the disease. All druggists have, most druggists recommend D.D.D. Prescription and D. D. D. Skin Soap.

BRODEUR WILL NOT OPPOSE EXTRADITION

Man Arrested by Local Police is Ready to go Back With Officer--Has Been Wandering all Over the Province

DOES NOT ADMIT CRIME

Albert H. Brodeur, who is under arrest at the local police station, charged with the murder of a Springfield woman, said to an Examiner reporter this morning that whatever shooting occurred in the dead woman's rooms, took place after he had left them. He claims that she committed suicide.

He admits that he visited the murdered woman on the 20th of September, but left her apartments about eleven o'clock. He explained that for some time he had been on very intimate terms with the woman, whose husband worked at night, and that he often visited her during his absence. This evening he went to her room drunk, and they had a warm quarrel. But the prisoner denies the shooting. After leaving her home he went to his own home and slept in the hall downstairs. The next morning early he left Springfield.

According to the prisoner's statements this morning he has no idea of fighting extradition, but will go back to Springfield with the officer from that city, who is expected to reach Peterborough this afternoon.

Brodeur is 30 years of age and claims that his addiction to drink is the cause of his downfall. He is a heavy drinker and an inveterate cigarette smoker. tA the time of the murder he was living with his father, who keeps a general store in Springfield. When he left that city, he crossed the line to Canada and first struck Quebec. From that city he went to Montreal, then to Ottawa and then to Smiths Falls. From there he came to Peterborough, coming in at 10 o'clock in the morning, leaving on a freight train at 2 o'clock the afternoon of the same day. He stopped for some days at Toronto, and went from there to Hamilton, where he stayed a few days. All this time he was looking for work, and was unable to get a job. From Hamilton he went to Brantford, where he stayed overnight, leaving the next day for Woodstock. After a day there he went to Ingersoll, then to London, then to Chatham, where for a few days he lived in the camp of the men who were working on the Hydro-Electric distribution lines. He went to St. Thomas, hoping to get work in the Michigan Central shops there, and then back to London. From there he went to St. Marys, Stratford, Galt, Preston, Brampton, Georgetown and Guelph.

In Guelph he stole a suit of underwear and a pair of boots, which he took to a local Jew to sell. The Jew became suspicious and telephoned the police, who were soon on the scene. Brodeur was then arrested and sentenced to two months in jail for theft.

"When was that?" asked the reporter.

"I just got out of the Guelph gaol on Monday,' answered the prisoner.

From Guelph he drifted west to Peterborough, where he was recognized as the man wanted for murder in the United States, and where he is still under arrest.

According to his own story he tried to get work every place he went, but could not. His policy of asking for a night's shelter in the police station was not as brazen and foolish as would appear at first sight, as he was out of work and could not afford to pay for a night's lodging, he would have to wander round the streets to find a suitable place, a very difficult matter in this weather, unless he slept at the police station. Experience had taught him that he would be arrested if seen, in which case he would be paraded before the police force. But when he asked for a night's lodging he was taken in and liberated by the same policeman, so that he had only to pass the scrutiny of one man instead of the whole police force.

Brodeur was arrested in 1908 for deserting the American army, and served a year and a half. He is an intelligent talker, and appears to have a fairly good education.

The Springfield officer, who will take Brodeur back to that city, is expected to arrive here this afternoon. So far as is known, there has been no reward for Brodeur's arrest.

Finance Committee

Pass the Estimates for the Board of Education—Tax Collector Suggests a Discount

GRANT OF $50

The appropriation for the Board of Education will be paid in monthly instalments, as requested by the Board. This was the decision of the Finance Committee of the City Council which met yesterday afternoon. The total appropriation amounts to $81,700, and is divided as follows:

For Public Schools	$58,000
For Collegiate Institute	22,900
Total	$81,700

Two Per Cent. Discount

The Committee will give further consideration to a letter that was received from Tax Collector Green suggesting that two per cent. be allowed off the last half of the taxes if paid with the first instalment.

Will Report.

A communication was received from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, stating that Peterborough was responsible for the maintenance of Albert Tatham.

Detective Newhall submitted a report on the case, which would indicate that the child's relatives, who reside in Peterborough, were unable to pay.

The matter was referred to the Relief Officer and the City Solicitor, who were instructed to obtain a report on this and similar cases.

Indigent Patients.

Notices were received from the authorities of St. Joseph's Hospital, respecting a number of patients that had been admitted free. The City disclaimed responsibility for two of them.

Rate of Interest.

The Committee advised City Engineer Parsons that the rate of interest this year would be 5 per cent. and the sinking fund based on four per cent.

A grant of $50 was made to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

Sold Stamps Here.

A letter was read from the National Sanatorium Association, stating that the City was responsible for the maintenance of three patients. The Sanatorium authorities intimated that they were prevented from soliciting help in the City in the usual manner and consequently were entitled to payment for the maintenance of Peterborough patients.

The City Clerk was instructed to notify the Association that stamps were sold in the City and that the Sanatorium was being aided by the people of this City.

ERNIE & KITTY MARKS

At "The Grand" Next Week for Two Days Only

On Monday next, Feb. 2, The Ernie Marks Co., will open a two days' engagement at "The Grand." The opening play will be "Oliver Twist," of which this company give a splendid interpretation. It is quite unnecessary to enter into the merits of this popular company, as local theatregoers always feel that they get good value for their money when they attend any of The Marks Bros' attractions. As usual a good line of vaudeville and specialty acts will be put on between acts. The prices are as usual 10c, 20c and 30c.

SEETHING WITH REBELLION

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Germany, Jan. 31.—That Alsace-Lorraine is seething with rebellion as a result of the high handedness of the German military is the statement of some newspapers here today. It is told that German soldiers are boring the ears of residents of that district who continue to speak French and decline to speak German when told to. It is told about that the soldiers have instructions from the government to abolish bilingualism that way.

THE FAMILY RINK

THE BUILDING PERMITS FOR THE MONTH

Improvements to National Hotel Will Cost $25,000 According to Building Permits—A New Theatre

NEW DWELLINGS

Four building permits have been issued during the month, aggregating in valuation, the sum of $27,000. The greater portion of this amount is credited to the alterations that are being made to the National Hotel at the corner of Charlotte and Water streets. According to the building permit, issued from the City Clerk's office, the improvements to the hostelry will cost $25,000. A new foundation of brick and concrete construction has been provided for. The third floor will contain forty bedrooms and the second floor thirty, while the downstairs will be divided up into ten or twelve rooms. Three skylights will be cut in the building.

The completion of the work is called for about the first of May. Ephgrave and Barrett are named as the contractors, and G. M. Miller, of Toronto, as the architect.

A New Theatre.

A moving picture t[illegible] to cost $1,800 is recorded on the first building permit that was taken out this year. It was issued to F. L. Robinson. The building, which is located on the north side of Charlotte street near Aylmer street, will be remodelled. The foundation will be reconstructed of brick and concrete. An iron ceiling will be erected over the floor and the roof strengthened. A new front of glass and wood will complete the work which will be finished about March the fifteenth. Mr. R. N. Jones is the contractor, and Mr. G. M. Miller, of Toronto, the architect.

A New Dwelling.

Mr. William Saxby will erect a two-storey house on Downie street to cost $1,000. The structure will contain six rooms, and will be completed about may the first.

Mr. James Frowde has secured permission to alter a dwelling at 186 George street. The work will cost about $100.

ASK SEXSMITH FOR NEW BRIDGE AT END OF LOCK ST.

County Council Appointed Committee For This Purpose—Will Rebuild Three bridges—Concluded To-day

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID

The members of the County Council hooked on their overshoes this morning, threw on their fur coats, obtained their mileage money and departed in all the directions of the compass. Their winter session was concluded, and those who have been tilting their chairs and stretching their feet on the desk tops will exercise the same pedal extremities in their accusotmed paths until the June meeting is called.

This morning the various committees reported, Council adjourned and shortly afterwards the chamber was deserted except by the Council's cat.

All the details of the reports cannot be given here, but some of the items may be mentioned.

Decided to rebuild the Canal bridge in Dummer.

To rebuild Davidson's bridge in Asphodel.

To rebuild Doxee's bridge.

To take action in regard to the request from Havelock and Lakefield Boards of Education for increased grants to the Continuation schools.

That the Warden and Mr. Anderson meet Mr. Burnham in regard to the Gannon's Narrows bridge.

That Messrs. Deyell, Anderson, Kindred, Fitzgerald and Howden be a deputation to meet Mr. Sexsmith in regard to the proposed bridge at the south end of the Street Railway line.

That Warden Scott, Mr. Anderson, Deyell and Howden inspect the Otonabee river where it overflows the road in North Monaghan near the Street Railway loop.

That Lakefield be granted $100 on condition that the Provincial Government grant $300 for the same purpose on the Lakefield-Apsley road.

That Ennismore be granted $100 on condition that the Provincial Government grant $200 to be expended on the road from Clemong to Gannon's bridge.

That uniform promotion examinations be held in June each year and that the Inspector be requested to prepare the necessary papers.

That the sum of $10 be granted County pupils obtaining the highest marks at the Entrance examinations.

That the matter of consolidated schools be investigated by the Inspectors, local School Boards and Municipal Councils and that they report to the County Council.

IS CHARGED WITH STEALING FROM HOTEL

Darcy Dunlop Arrested for Theft of Knives, Forks and Spoons From Montgomery House

OTHER CASES TO-DAY

In this morning's police court Darcy Dunlop was charged with stealing a number of knives, forks and spoons from the Montgomery House. He pleaded not guilty, claiming that he took the cutlery, but did not do so for the purpose of stealing it.

Dunlop's arrest followed a complaint from Mr. Montgomery that he missed some of the knives and forks off the tables at his hotel. P.C.'s Reid and Hayward investigated the matter and their efforts brought to light facts that incriminated Dunlop. His arrest followed.

In this morning's police court he was remanded until next Wednesday. The police believe that Dunlop is the man who has been taking the silverware off the tables in the dining rooms of the local hostelries. It is altogether very probable that he will face several charges of theft on Wednesday next.

William Stenhouse was charged with being [illegible] in a public place. He said he came into the police station for shelter last night. As he had only $2.35 to preserve him until he reached Montreal, he was allowed to go.

Albert Tivey, who was arrested some time ago for being drunk, and was remanded, came before Magistrate Dumble this morning.

"You look so much better after a couple of weeks in the gaol, I hate to deprive you of the luxury," commented the Magistrate. Tivey was allowed to go, but warned that the next time he appeared he would have to face a charge of vagrancy.

WANTED THE SCHOOL GRANT INCREASED

W. G. HOWDEN

Reeve of North Monaghan and member of the County Council.

Representation of Havelock and Lakefield Board of Education Wait Upon County Council for Increase to Continuation Schools

THE WORK BEING DONE

Representatives of the Havelock and Lakefield School Boards waited on the County Council on Friday afternoon and asked that the county grants to the continuation schools be increased.

Dr. Kindred introduced the question stating that many counties in the Province not only give the equivalent to the Government grant but have increased their allowance as high as 225 per cent. The increase has run from $100 to $400.

Mr. Ed. Fennel, of Havelock, was the first speaker. Teachers' salaries in the continuation school in the railway town this year amount to $2,040, heating $90, caretaking $100. The Government grant is $545.70, and the County grant is the same sum. Fees from pupils amounted to $72, and the balance of over $1,000 has to be paid by the town. The inspector has asked for additional books in art, science, and supplementary reading, and the Board feels that the County could easily increase their grant.

A commercial department would be a benefit to the children, for they could secure a business training without leaving Havelock.

Dr. Fraser of Lakefield.

Dr. Fraser, chairman of the Lakefield Board, said that they are paying $2,100 a year for teachers. Apparatus is needed for physics work, and the library should be enlarged. Last year there were 140 pupils in the Continuation Schools of Havelock, Lakefield and Ennismore, and in the Norwood High School there were from 85 to 90. Yet the latter receive $300 more than the other three together from the County.

"I am not finding fault with this fact. The Norwood School is doing good work, and I find no fault with the assistance given it. But I do think we are not getting sufficient assistance. The attendance to-day in our Continuation School is 54, and 16 of these are from outside Lakefield. I claim we are doing equally good work as the Peterborough Collegiate. Our school passed 25 candidates last year. Some went for the first part of their class certificate. One girl took honours on this examination. Our results compare favourably with those of the Collegiate with all its high-priced staff of teachers. We are asking for only reasonable help. Many of our pupils become teachers, and some of them would not be able to secure an education if it were not for the Continuation School.

"It won't hurt this rich county to put up a little more school money. There is lots for roads and bridges.

Other Speakers.

Mr. Coon, Dr. Thompson and Mr. Barlow, of Havelock, supported what had been said and urged the necessity of a higher grant. Mr. Lees stated that if the people of the province would spend more money on education there would be direct financial returns before long. The reorganization and the revivifying of rural schools will prevent the egress from the farms. One of the strongest arguments for the schools is that they will provide teachers who understand the problems of the country.

Moved by Mr. Coben, seconded by Mr. Howden, that the petition be referred to the Schools Committee. Carried.

Mr. Fitzgerald and Dr. Kindred made a plea that the matter be dealt with immediately and in open Council so as to save time, but the Warden decided to let it follow the customary course.

One thousand six hundred thirty-one dollars and 54 cents was paid last year by the County to the Continuation Schools.

For Free Market

Warden Shaw Favours the Idea and Mayor Buller is Understood to be of Same Mind

MAY BE SECURED

Warden Shaw in conversation with an Examiner reporter, expressed the idea that something should be done to secure a free market in Peterborough. The time has come, he said, for a change in this matter. It is not the nicest thing to see farmers digging into their pockets for a few cents to be paid as a fee. The time is surely passed for small methods of that kind. I think the County Council would be willing to take up the question and to consider an arrangement with the City Council whereby the market would be made free. I believe it would be for the best interests of both those who sell and those who buy on the market. Just what could be done remains to be seen, but the time is nearly due for a change.

This matter was broached on Friday but it was not taken up in Council. However, those are the Warden's opinions, and it is known that Mayor Buller favours the same project. The preparations of the details remains for a meeting of representatives of the two bodies. The market contract is let about April first, and if anything is to be done this year, it will have to be undertaken within the next six or eight weeks.

BIG SHOW IS COMING TO ROYAL

Good as have been the vaudeville programmes that Manager Clayton has offered at the Royal Theatre, he is announcing an attraction for the week after next, Feb. 9, 10 and 11, that is far superior to anything yet shown at the popular theatre. This is the coming of the Happy Musical Comany with twenty people and twelve specialties, the biggest show the Royal has provided. In order to secure this splendid attraction Mr. Clayton had to put up a substantial guarantee and his enterprise should be appreciated. Owing to the big crowds that will undoubtedly attend in the evenings, ladies and children are advised to be present in the afternoon. There will be no change in the prices. The Royal has a nine piece orchestra now.

THE EXAMINER NEWS BOYS' CONTEST STARTS MONDAY

The Boys Are Asked to be at the Examiner Office About 4.15 o'clock---The First of the Weekly Prizes Payable Next Saturday

The boys of the City are asked to be on hand Monday evening at the Examiner office about 4.15 o'clock, to enter the money making competition for newsboys. The first of the weekly prizes will be paid next Saturday to the first three boys who are ahead for the week. The big prizes for the newsboys are not paid until the contest is over. The first cash prize of $25.00 is worth while any boy working for, and as the customers are his own and he delivers the papers himself, he has the profit on the papers he sells. The people of Peterborough can help the little fellows along by taking the Examiner, which is full of news all the time. It has a capital serial story, a daily short story, and all the news all the time. If you are not taking the Examiner, order it from the newsboy at 10c. a week.

GAS STILL A FACTOR.

The ready prophet turned the horse out to grass when the bicycle, tramway car and auto came into general use; but the horse is still an indispensable animal in our business activities and pleasures. When electricity for lighting and heating became commercially practicable, the ready prophet also turned off the gas. But gas is still a factor in scores of ways, and will probably never be displaced. Electricity gives it a hard run where power is easily generated, but there are thousands of places where gas must be the dominant giver of light and heat. An article on this page is reproduced from "The Gas Industry Magazine" of Buffalo. It is an illuminating article upon the protean forms to which gas is applicable. The magazine prints a magnificently illustrated number, descriptive of the commercial gas convention, held in Philadelphia last summer, showing how almost infinitely, the uses of gas have multiplied. Gas is not even displaced as an illuminant. Appliances, due to recent inventions, have been so improved, that a "great white way" by the use of gas is possible in competition with even an electric "white way." For heating purposes, gas from its comparative cheapness, is still far ahead of electricity. The reign of gas is by no means over so long as gas plants and legislatures continue to furnish a supply.

A PUBLIC DUTY.

There is no need for apology or excuse to justify the printing of the text of the resolution adopted at the adjourned meeting of the Peterborough Health Association, as a basis of appeal to the City Council for aid and co-operation in the work of erecting a sanatorium for consumptives for the City of Peterborough. A careful reading of the resolution will reveal not only the wide range and inclusiveness of the legally constituted aims and functions of the Health Association — the prevalence and ravages of tuberculosis among our fellow citizens; and the necessity of adopting means of relief and care and cure that will measure up to the obligations the conditions impose upon a normally humane, not to say, Christian, community.

The Association has carried on a laudable work under difficult circumstances, from lack of a place where it could centre and con-centre action—a proper place where its work or work of its kind could be done under circumstances promising the best results. A field hospital in time of war is a good thing; but a permanently located and properly equipped and manned hospital is infinitely better. So far the Health Association has been "camping out," and even in this way, has done a great deal of beneficent work, as witness its report recently published in these columns. Now it feels the need of permanent quarters, where the wounded or, dying from the malign activity of tuberculosis can be nursed, nourished and healed. What chance is there for a tuberculosis patient in a home, badly built, with furnishings that wouldn't burden a wheelbarrow; with an epileptic wife and mother, subject to frequent fits; with her precarious earnings as a washer woman in her rare periods of capability for such work, the sole means of support of a family of small children and of provision of the nourishing food and care needed by a consumptive husband coughing his life away. Yet there are cases similar to this within the sound of all the church bells of this Christian city.

Of course, in such cases, charitable neighbours do a great deal, and the Health Association is doing its share or more; but when everybody is more or less affected and menaced by similar — some better and some worse — conditions than that described, everybody is called upon to do a share; and this general cooperation can only be materially effected through the agency of a sanatorium for the city. And general contribution to carrying on the work of helping our afflicted fellow citizens can only be effected by the City Council, representing the general mass of citizens, contributing a liberal share towards the building of a sanatorium for consumptives, in geenral conformity with the petition of the Health Association. While the members and officials of the Health Association voluntarily undertake the work in which they are engaged, it is a question for the City Council to consider; for the people to consider whether it is fair, to throw upon a few, the whole of the burden which all should help to bear.

To the city fathers and citizens generally is commended a careful reading of the resolution of the Health Association to be found on page 13. Possibly, that would result in a resolution founded upon, as its spirit would be involved in, the pregnant Scripture:

THE USE OF GAS FOR MANY PURPOSES

The vast Exhibition of gas appliances, recently held in Philadelphia, was a great public eye-opener; it was given under the auspices of the National Commercial Gas Association, an organization of about three thousand members, composed of the various Gas Companies of the United States, and those manufacturing gas appliances for a great variety of uses, such as factory and street lighting; for cooking in the tiny kitchen of the flat, in the apartment-house kitchen, or in the larger types of residential, hotel, cafe and restaurant kitchens. Also there were represented many types of water heating equipment operated by gas, from the tiny, quick heater for the dentist and barber, to the larger water heaters of all sizes, for domestic and other requirements, including the instantaneous kind that lights the gas and instantly heats the water in a central automatic heater, immediately for use when a faucet anywhere in the house is turned on to draw water, and instantly shuts off the gas when the faucet is again closed.

There were also displayed various makes of gas house-heating equipment, for the direct heating of rooms by gas radiators, or heating houses by hot water or steam, generated in economical gas house-heaters and, as well, of portable room-warmers of various sizes and kinds, that may be carried to various parts of the house at one's convenience, where local heat is desired.

The Association also includes as members, manufacturers of chandeliers, and lighting portable gas lamps and of lighting-glassware, and of industrial gas appliances, for the tempering of, and for hardening and annealing steel, and for heating and melting metals of all kinds in the shop; also illuminating gas mantle makers, and the makers of gas mangles and gas flatirons for home, laundry or shop uses. In fact, as it is said, appliances for using gas in a "thousand" ways, as shown in a list recently compiled by the association, and placed in the hands of the various gas companies represented in the organization.

Our local Gas Company is one of those interested in this great National movement to develop gas appliances for every discoverable purpose where gas may be used by the public, economically, with ease, and to advantage.

Through this conerted work of all of those interested throughout the United States, the variety and completeness of equipment for producing results by gas at a minimum cost and with maximum efficiency, convenience to the user, and with quickness has reached a point not anticipated by the upwards of eighty thousand people who visited the exhibition in Philadelphia—"they were astonished at what they saw," said the local press.

Such national work and development, whereby local interests like those of our own citizens and our own manufacturers, may, with the interests of those in other cities, be favourably effected in matters of convenience, time efficiency and saving, are indeed commendable.

The Exhibition next year is to be held in Minneapolis for the benefit of the great North West. In former years it has been held in Boston, Atlanta, Denver, Chicago, and in no lesser a great Show-house than the world-wide-known Madison Square Garden, in New York.

Best Service to the community and the approving of appliances showing the greatest economy in gas consumption, with maximum results and efficiency were the keynote of the Gas Exhibition and Convention at Philadelphia.

A Word To The Wise

The exceptional conditions prevailing during the last year have made it possible for us to offer to shrewd investors some great bargains in real estate.

You can purchase through us several properties at from one-half to two-thirds their real value, that will in the Spring be in demand for building purposes owing to their location in the heart of the section which saw such phenomenal building activity last year.

Reports show that business in all lines is picking up and 1914 is said to promise the greatest development for Canada that she has yet enjoyed.

Will Peterborough get her share? You should worry and get yours.

LOCAL CALEDONIAN CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Past Year Has Been One of Progress and Annual Report Shows Organization in Most Satisfactory Condition.

LARGE MEMBERSHIP

The Peterborough Caledonian Club held the first annual meeting in the W.O.W. Hall, George street, Peterborough.

Mr. Moyce, president, occupied the chair, and about 50 members was present to hear the annual report.

The secretary, Mr. R. D. Dickson, gave a report. "I beg to submit to you the transactions of the Peterborough Caledonia Club for the year ending January, 1914. We have a membership of 74 Scotchmen from 'Auld Scotia.' During the year we have held eight social events, including dances, pic-nics, moonlight and afternoon excursions, etc. They were all appreciated in the usual fashion by a magnificent attendance, and the financial gain was always a successful issue.

The Peterborough Club Badge — "The Scotch Thistle and Rampant Lion—was recognized as the emblem of the Scottish people in the city, and had been accepted as an appropriate symbol of the members.

Throughout the year the club had started carpet bowling contests, during the 2nd, 3rd and 4th Wednesdays. This proved to be a step in the right direction, as judged by the numbers that had taken advantage of the recreation afforded. Now members come and have a game at the "hools."

On the whole proceedings we have had an excellent and satisfactory year, and earnestly hope it may be a more successful venture for years to come.

The following office-bearers were elected:

Hon. President—Mr. Moyce.
President—Mr. Robert Burns.
Vice-President—Mr. Lyburn.
Secretary—Mr. R. D. Dickson—pro tem.
Treasurer—Mr. David Webster.
Recording-Secretary — Mr. Hurry, Jr.
Committee—Messrs. Henry, Laurie, Irwin, Hutton and Petrie.
Auditors—Messrs. Elliott and King.

The rest of the evening was spent in receiving and alterations of the rules. Afterwards new members were enrolled for the ensuing year. The Caledonia Club is open to all Scotch people or of Scotch descent in the city.

The proceedings were brought to a close by Mr. Leith playing on the piano "Auld Lang Syne," while all the members sang in harmony of a well-spent night.

Now Scotchmen see and make this a "booster year."

No doubt great credit is due to the past office-bearers' excellent work as words cannot be found suitable to do justice to them.

HAZEN UNDER FIRE

Why Vote Naval Estimates Ask Opposition Members

REDISTRIBUTION IS COMING

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—The do-nothing policy of the Government in regard to the naval question was under review and fire in the House of Commons last night when estimates for the Department of Naval Service were brought forward by Hon. Mr. Hazen. Why should the House vote money for a naval service when there is no service and no intention, apparently, on the part of the Government to establish one? What is the intention of the Government? When is action to be taken? These were the questions to which the Opposition gave attention and kept Mr. Hazen and the Government members in a constant state of uneasiness.

Late last night Premier Borden announced that the measure to add new Senators would be introduced on Tuesday and he also filed notice of the redistribution bill which may come next week.

Mr. Hughes (King's P.E.I.) complained that freight rates had been increased on the Prince Edward Island Railway 30 per cent., and some divisions as much as 100 per cent. He also complained that some men had been discharged

Hon. Frank Cochrane said that even with the advanced freight rates the road was losing $100,000 a year. Some men were laid off to his regret, but all railways were laying off men at this time. He submitted that the true friends of public ownership would insist upon a Government railway being managed with ordinary business sense.

In committee of supply Liberal members asked several questions concerning Lord Strathcona's successor as High Commissioner.

The Prime Minister said in reply that so important a position should not be long left vacant, but that the best possible man should be selected. There would be no undue delay in making the appointment.

Mr. Borden said that while the matter of increased salary had never been formally under consideration by the Government, members of the Government and the public generally recognized that the salary must be increased unless the High Commissionership was to be regarded as as position for which only very wealthy men were eligible.

No communication had ever been received by the Government from Lord Strathcona as to who his successor should be.

When the estimates for the Department of Naval Affairs were taken up Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. A. K. Maclean of Halifax suggested that some announcement should be made by the Government as to its naval policy. Mr. Sinclair, Guysboro; Dr. Clark, Red Deer; Hon. Frank Oliver, and other Opposition members also pressed for some statement by the Government. They desired to know what was to become of the Niobe and the Rainbow, together with their crews and also as to what the Government intended to do with the naval college at Halifax and with the naval cadets now on H. M. S. Berwick.

Hon. J. D. Hazen replied that the permanent policy of the Government would not be put into execution until it had been submitted to and approved by the people. He suggested it would be quite inappropriate for him to attempt to foreshadow what that policy would be. Any announcement upon that subject must come from the Prime Minister. Mr. Hazen went on to explain that the men on the Niobe had enlisted for a certain term of years, and were entitled to serve out their enlistment. The naval cadets on the Berwick would put in another year at the naval academy. Provisions had been made whereby cadets who obtained the rank of sub-lieutenant would receive commissions in the British navy.

It was hoped some cadets would enter the hydrographic survey. The young men trained at the naval academy would receive an education which would fit them for service in the Marine Department, even though no Canadian navy was ever established.

Hon. Mr. Hazen said, in reply to a question, that neither the Niobe nor the Rainbow, had any commercial value.

Dr. Clark mentioned the fact that the Empress of India, a vessel worth $250,000, had been recently blown to pieces as a target. He thought the Niobe and Rainbow could be sold to the British navy for target practice.

Mr. Hazen said he would take the matter up with the Home Government.

When the Militia Department was reached much curiosity was manifested respecting an item of $11,000 for contingencies.

Mr. Pardee (West Lambton) and Mr. Proulx (Prescott) were anxious to hear about Col. Hughes' trip to Europe last summer. The Minister explained that the item under consideration had nothing to do with the trip, which he would be delighted to explain to the House at the proper time.

When the estimates for trade and commerce were reached Mr. Foster announced that an agreement had been reached with the Imperial Government by which Canada's trade agents in many parts of the world would work in conjunction with the British consuls.

Controller James Simpson, of Toronto

Controller James Simpson, of Toronto, has passed through a long list of offices and responsibilities before arriving at the head of the polls in Toronto as Controller. Through his youthful career he has retained the popular title "Jimmy Simpson," and has added to it another worthy phrase "Fearless, honest and straight." Mr. Simpson is a very clever powerful speaker. One would put him down s an Irish Orator. He has covered up his English traits very well, though no one tried less than "Jimmy" to hide the land of his birth. He has become most prominent in his efforts on behalf of the labour interest in Canada, but has also become identified with the problem of Industrial and Technical Education. He is regarded as a very sane, level-headed young man, of whom Toronto is very proud, but the indictions are that if he keeps his head, the day is not far distant when Canada will be proud of him and thrust some of its honours of service on his young shoulders. The indications are that he will be greeted by a large appreciative gathering when he speaks in Knox Church Tuesday evening next, on the question "The Church and the Working Man." There will be no charge, but an offering will be asked for and special music will be rendered.

ANOTHER "MERE MAN" AIRS HIS SENTIMENTS

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As another "Mere Man" kindly let me have my say in regard to the appointment of a police-woman. I am prepared to go further perhaps than the most anxious advocate of such an official. I believe we should not only have one police-woman; but about four thousand police-women. I believe that we should hear less of ruined girls and blacklist and police court boys, if the about four thousand mothers of the city would constitute themselves police-women, their beat to be their own homes, where they should be on duty at nights as well as by day, watching over their boys and girls, and knowing where they pass their nights and how. If the mothers of the city would do this instead of being away from home nights themselves seeking selfish pleasure, playing bridge or attending theatres or picture shows, while their boys and girls are left to their own devices, things would be better employed. The average mother I think would be better employed in looking after her children at nights than even attending missionary meetings in the interests of unmaking heathens, while their neglect of parental duties at home promotes the making of heathens. Our four thousand police-women should be firm believers in the saying and all it means —"When the cat's away the mice will play," as is

Yours truly.
Another Mere Man.

SHE WAS HELPLESS FOR TWO YEARS

Why Mrs. Baldwin Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

She could Find Nothing to Cure Her Rheumatism Till on a Neighbour's Advice She Tried Dodd's Kidney Pills

St. Walburg, Sask., Jan. 30.—(Special) — "I can truly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills for any one suffering from Rheumatism." These are the words of Mrs. W. A. Baldwin, a highly respected resident of this place. And Mrs. Baldwin gives her reasons.

"I was nearly helpless with rheumatism for two years," she states. "I got medicine from the doctor, and tried several other remedies but nothing helped me. Then one of my neighbours advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought four boxes, and they helped almost from the first. I have used nearly two dozen boxes and am nearly cured."

That rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys is again shown in Mrs. Baldwin's case. She had headaches, stiffness of the joints and backaches, her sleep was broken and unrefreshing, and she was always tired and nervous. Her limbs swelled and she was always thirsty. These are all symptoms of diseased kidneys. When she cured her kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills the symptoms vanished—and so did the rheumatism.

NO WOBBLER

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—I am still interested in Peterborough, though obliged to be away most of the time. I have been thinking a lot since reading about the Police Commissioners.

Pity poor Peterborough with a Mayor who forgets a promise in fourteendays.

A Judge who considers dollars and cents before the souls of human beings, and the purity of the city.

A Magistrate who having a grown up family says, let other people's daughters go to the devil, thus assuring a warm house for them afterwards.

"Wobbly officials never made fair City."

No Wobbler.

Try Triscuit To-day

Food science has taught us that there is much body-building nutriment in the whole wheat grain which we do not get in white flour. The only question is how to make the whole wheat grain digestible. That problem has been solved in the making of

TRISCUIT

The Shredded Whole Wheat Wafer

It is the whole wheat, steam-cooked, shredded, compressed into a wafer and baked—the maximum of nutriment in smallest bulk. Many people prefer it to ordinary bread toast. Heated in the oven to restore its crispness, it is delicious for luncheon, or for any meal, with butter, potted cheese or marmalades.

Colder Weather Is Promised

Rejoice, ye winter sport enthusiasts, for your gratification is at hand. The cold will in all likelihood last a few days at any rate.

We have not had a respectably cold day since a week ago Thursday, when the mean temperature was 12.5 below zero. The day following, Friday, the thermometer had risen considerably, giving a mean temperature of 30.5, and by Saturday all was slush and running water.

The disturbance which was centred near Lake Superior has passed to the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and high pressure, with lower temperatures, is now spreading over the Great Lakes and the middle States. This area will reach us before very long, bringing with it the long-desired winter weather. The high-pressure mild weather areas that have been in our vicinity are now enveloping the Maritime Provinces.

Large Audience Heard Dr. Barnes On "Icebergs And Their Detection"

Address Given Under Auspices of the Technical Society Was a Splendid Success.

PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED

In an address combining the humourous and serious, entertaining witticisms and profitable information, Dr. H. T. Barnes, F.R.S., of McGill University, held the attention of a large audience in the lecture room of St. Andrew's Church last night, every second of the time he was speaking.

Dr Barnes, at great personal expense, and with some assistance from the late Liberal Government, had made a scientific investigation as to possibility of making winter navigation in the St. Lawrence, and the usual travel from Quebec to England, free from the present danger of ice, and icebergs. His subject last night was "Icebergs and Their Detection." The address was given under the auspices of the Technical Society, and more than two hundred heard the speaker's exceedingly interesting discourse.

Mr. T. C. Mills occupied the chair in an efficient manner. The lecture was profusely illustrated, and Mr. Armstrong kindly looked after the projection of the photographs, diagrams, etc., on the screen.

In opening his address, Dr. Barnes, who is a professor of McGill University, said that the development of transportation by steamer was important to Canada on account of the need of improving the shipping of grain out of the country by Canadian routes. Ninety per cent. of the grain was shipped through American outlets at present, and there was a great necessity for better railway connection and canal routes, in order to direct the exportation, now being handled by Americans, through Canadian channels. The Canadian route was, of, course, by means of the St. Lawrence river. Five months of the year the St. Lawrence river is closed to navigation, and all the year round there was the menace of icebergs. The speaker had given considerable time to the study of the question of Winter Navigation, and he had made some progress.

The Port of Quebec now believes winter navigation to be feasible, and a steamer makes regular trips in the winter to the lower St. Lawrence carrying mail and passengers. Owing to the necessity for winter navigation to Montreal the problem was an important one, but he claimed it would be easily solved by using larger ice-breakers than it has been the custom to use in the past.

Then on the screen he flashed a picture of the micro-thermometer, a device for detecting accurately the effect of a minute variation of temperature of the water, which would denote the formation of ice in the water. He gave the reasons why it was of advantage to ascertain the temperature of the water near an iceberg, in order to detect its presence at a sufficient distance to allow the vessel to avoid colliding with it.

The thermometers used now were useless for detecting the presence of ice. The lecturer described the process of ice melting in the water, and showed the three currents set up in the water, due to the ice melting into the sea.

The three currents were:

1. A downward current of cold salt water.

2. Warm current of salt water toward the edge of the iceberg, being melted.

3. A current of fresh water from the ice to the surface, which diluted the salt water at the surface.

An explanation was given of how the diluted water may cause a difference in temperature, it being a little warmer around the iceberg, in contrast to the cooling effect of the ice itself, which is hardly noticeable. Charts were flashed on the screen to show there might be a rise in the temperature of the water as the ship approached the iceberg, but a cooler circle of wter nearer the iceberg.

At present one means of detecting icebergs, used by sea captains were the "ice blinks." From there all light must be excluded, and the peculiar white glow around the ice is relied on to warn the mariner of its presence. In a fog a mass of ice often looked darker than the surrounding mist. An echo from the steam whistle was another method sometimes called into service. Experiments had been made on submarine echoes which could be detected on account of the ice reaching in some cases forty or fifty fathoms under water. Thus the echo was a possible means for the location of ice. Further experiments, however, must be made before it could be called a reliable means of detecting the proximity of ice. The disintegration of icebergs, was also described.

The effects of land and the coast line on the temperature of water was shown by numerous charts. That went to prove that the micro-thermometer could be used to detect the proximity of the coast of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Dr. Barnes pointed out the fact that it was the duty of Canada to undertake the investigation of the Labrador carrent, in order that this part of the sea should be thoroughly known. Hitherto no study had been made of the Labrador current and the countries of the world were now uniting in the request that the investigation should be carried out immediately.

In conclusion the lecturer explained that the matter was one of vital importance to the Dominion and expressed the hope that much might be done by the Candian Government to carry out the work.

MEETING OF VARIED INTERESTS

FOR FIRE PROTECTION.

Appointment of Fire Marshal Urged Without Further Delay.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—The Ontario Fire Prevention Association, in collaboration with the associated Boards of Trade, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Association of Architects, of fire chiefs, of employers and of credit men assembled before the Attorney-General y sterday afternoon to pledge their united support to the appointment of a fire marshal for Ontario, and to urge the immediate adoption of a bill to that effect when the Legislature meets.

A host of delegates from Ontario municipalities, representing all interests in any way concerned with the annual fire losses brought their appreciation of the bill and proffered suggestions. The most radical of the latter invested the marshal with the right to enter any house and see that proper care is taken to prevent combustion, to hold fire inquests on destroyed buildings as a coroner does on suspicious deaths, to cause insurance claims to be withheld, and to order precautions under penalty of fine. To carry such a scheme into proper effect, it was suggested that the province should be divided into districts, the local officers of which would report to the marshal.

Hon. Mr. Foy, on behalf of the Government, stated that the bill had been brought down in a crude form to invite comment and suggestion. The source of the financial support of the new department would also demand consideration. Some of the recommendations were rather drastic, inasmuch as every man's house was still his castle, and interference might be resented by the public. The gaining of a magistrate's permission, however, might be made to serve. The bill would appear in the coming session for further consideration.

The speakers for the various delegations were J. M. McKendrick of the Mutual Fire Underwriters, R. D. Fairbairn of the C. M. A.; Chief Ten Eyck of Hamilton for the fire chiefs, and J. F. Ellis of Toronto for the Boards of Trade.

MUNICIPALITY OWNED MILK

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We are a very progressive city and very strong on municipal ownership. We've got hydro-electric, or hope we have, and we have got water works all of our own, an dnow we have proposed another form of water works, (according to the humourists)—a municipal milk plant.

I admire the reasoning of the President of the Board of Health, but more the practical reasoning of the Mayor, whose broad views on sanitation are a marvel, and so advanced that I would not be surprised at seeing some of these days, our city milk being delivered in a coal wagon—carbon, you know, is a prime disinfectant.

Yours, etc.,
Novice.

Always push a new lamp wick through the top of a burner, wet the lighting end in kerosene, turn low, and allow it to stand a day before using.

SEVEN YEAR OLD GIRL IS BURNED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 31.— Mabel Caron, aged seven, living on a farm near here, was so badly burned that she died in four hours. The clothing was entirely burned from her body. She retained consciousness until the end. Five minutes before she died she asked for a drink of water.

All Coal Is Not The Same For Heat Value

When you see the coal all in a bright red mass in your stove or furnace, sending out its grateful warmth, when the snow is thick on the ground and the thermometer below zero, does it ever occur to you what the composition of the coal is, and how much the heat of the coal depends on its composition.

The other day a test of the D. L. & W. Scranton coal was made in Toronto, samples being taken at random from several large cars on track at one time, delving down into the car for one sample and taking the next from the top of another car. It was a sort of aimless collection of coal to make a fair list.

The coal was then pulverized and a certain weight was placed in a dish after which it was put into a test-furnace. The results showed the following high standards of heat-producing properties:

	Per cent.
Heat-giving carbon	86.6
Volatile hydro carbon	2.2
Moisture	2.0
Ash	8.6

An analysis like the above is of the greatest possible value because it gives a better idea of the coal's worth.

The heating power of coal depends upon the amount of fixed carbon present. Moisture retards the heating power of coal until it is driven off.

It will be seen by the analysis of the D. L. & W. Scranton coal, which is sold by Mr. Robt. Hicks, that it is an ideal one in every respect. The amount of fixed carbon is high, while the ash is low.

It is claimed that at Mr. Hicks' elevator, you cannot get screenings with the coal, as the screens are stationary and the coal must pass over these screens in reaching the bags or delivering rig.

The systematic method of screening can be seen in operation any day, and a visit to Hicks' elevator, at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune streets, would be most interesting and beneficial to the coal consumers of the city.

Always ready to move with the times, Mr. Hicks' enterprise and experiments have been always in the interest of the consumer.

The hard coal handled comes from the richest deposits of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal Co.'s Mines, immediately at and under the City of Scranton, Pa. It has always been at the top of the list, for its high standard of quality.

How To Beautify a Weatherbeaten Face

(From Beauty and Health)

It's really a simple matter to renovate a face soiled by dirt, wind or cold. Ordinary mercolised wax, used like cold cream, will transform the worst old complexion into one of snowy whiteness and velvety softness. It literally peels off the outer veil of surface skin but so gently, gradually, there's no discomfort. The sunburnt skin comes off, not in patches, but evenly, in tiny particles leaving no evidence of the treatment. The younger, healthier under-skin forming the new complexion is one of captivating loveliness. One ounce of mercolised wax, to be had at any drug-store, is enough to remove any coarse, chapped, pimpled, freckled, faded or sallow skin. Apply before retiring, washing it off mornings.

Many skins wrinkle easily with every wind that blows, with heat worry, etc. An excellent wrinkle-remover, because it tightens the skin and strengthens relaxed muscles, is a wash lotion made as follows: Powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. This gives immediate results.

STRATHCONA'S SUCCESSOR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 31.—There was some discussion in the London papers to-day concerning Strathcona's successor as Canadian High Commissioner. Hon. Robt. Rogers and Hon. C. H. Perley are generally considered favourites. Hon. Adam Beck's name is being freely mentioned. Little is now heard of Sir Hugh Graham, once considered the most probable candidate.

RUN DOWN IN FOG

Death Toll in Munroe-Nantucket Collision is Forty-Three

EIGHTY-FIVE ARE RESCUED

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 31. — The story of how forty-three victims went down to death in the chill waters of the Atlantic when the liner Nantucket rammed and sank the steamer Monroe early yesterday was brought to port last night by the eighty-five survivors of the sunken ship's company, who were rescued and brought to shore by the Nantucket. It was a story of awful and sudden death, sweeping out of the dark and fog, and taking unawares the doomed half-hundred with the heaviness of sleep still upon them.

It told how the stricken Monroe, with her side gored deep by the knife-like steel prow of the Nantucket, filled rapidly, rolled over on her side, and in a few minutes turned completely over and plunged to the bottom, carrying with her the ill-fated passengers and members of the crew who had failed to get clear of the wreck.

Last night the revised lists prepared by Captain Johnson, who survives the sunken vessel, showed:

Lost—Passengers, 19; crew, 24; total, 43.

Saved—Passengers, 36; crew, 55; total, 91.

Under the thick bank of fog that hid the heavily-running sea, both big ships were making their way slowly and with difficulty in the early morning. The Monroe was bound for Norfolk for New York and the Nantucket from Boston for Norfolk.

The crash came about 1.40 o'clock, without warning. Out of the grey-black fog that shut out even the waves from view, the gleam of the Nantucket's searchlight scarcely touched the dripping side of the Monroe before the high steel prow of the southward-bound vessel cut into the Monroe's side with a ripping and crashing of plates that threw the stricken ship aback. The Nantucket, with her bow crushed in backed out of sight into the fog, as Captain Johnson, seeing that his vessel was stricken, shouted an order for the lifeboats. The shattering of the stricken vessel and her listing motion, as the water poured through the gash in her side awakened the sleeping passengers and sent the lumbering towards the deck. Warned by the officers, they hurriedly adjusted life preservers and made for the tilted deck. But the time was all too brief. Those rescued agreed that from the time the Monroe was struck until she settled beneath the waves not more than a short ten minutes elapsed.

As the half-clad, excited throng of passengers reached the deck they were herded toward the lifeboats by the officers and crew. Three of the lifeboats from one side of the crippled vessel were unshipped and got even away from the side, freighted with frightened humanity, mostly women, shivering in the wet and cold under their flimsy nightclothing by the time these were away the Monroe was rolling over on her side and it was impossible to launch the other boats.

With a sudden lurch the liner, now fast filling with water that rushed through the ren in her plates, rolled over on her side, throwing up her uninjured side, then submerging cabins and saloons. With a chorus of shrieks the unfortunates left on the sinking vessel turned, and crawling like rats made their way over the superstructures, through port holes, windows and companionways until they rested just out of reach of the waves on the upper side of the half-capsized vessel. But even this slippery security was not long available. With a rumbling sound the big vessel shivered and shook, and then plunged beneath the waves, leaving her human freight afloat on the icy bosom of the ocean.

Meantime the Nantucket, herself badly damaged, had stood by, and Captain Berry sent his boats to the spot where the Monroe went down.

Many of those picked up were utterly exhausted, and unable to help themselves. Several had to be hauled over the side of the Nantucket with ropes, unable to climb the rope ladder.

Shepherd Checks, Gun Checks and Crow Foot Checks

The Neat and Serviceable Fabrics That Will Be More Popular Than Ever with Spring Fashions

There is small wonder that the immense display of Checked Materials is attracting so much attention, for they are to be strictly fashionable for early spring wear, while it is a well-known fact, that almost every woman and girl can wear checks with a becoming effect.

And a decided favourite will be the black and white or blue and white Shepherd's Check, which is woven in 44, 52 and 54 in. widths, priced respectively—50c, 75c and $1.25 yard.

Then the Crow Foot Check with its irregular outlines appeals to many because of it being somewhat uncommon, and is shown in Checks small, medium and large in 54 inch widths at 75c, $1.25 and $1.50 yard.

But it remains for Gun Checks to to offer a wide diversity of colors such as Tan, Grey, Copenhagen, Brown and Cornflower Blue; which with the shaded effects of the checks, make one of the handsomest fabrics that could be desired, for outer app ael.

Gun Checks are all wool and are 54 in. wide; the prices being $1.60, $1.75 and $2.50 a yard.

A SPLENDID PROGRAMME

Musical Treat at Salvation Army Temple on Monday Night

What promises to be a musical treat is to be given in the Temple on Simcoe Street, on Monday night, commencing sharp at 8 p.m. A long and varied programme will be given by the largest number of musicians that has ever taken part in such a meeting the Temple. The Band, with 44 players, will be assisted by the songsters and the Boys' Band and the Corps' latest departure, an orchestra. This is the first of a special series that will be conducted by the Band at early dates, and a glance over the programme is enough to suffice that it will be a treat for all who attend. There is a small charge of 10 cents, and the Band should be greeted with a full house. The energetic officer, Adjt. McElhiney, will pilot the proceedings.

Tickets can be obtained from any of the Bandsmen or at the Hall Monday night.

NO. 2 COMPANY'S BRILLIANT DANCE

Merry Throng Were Guests of its Men and Officers in the Armouries Last Night

The officers and men of No. 2 Company, of the 57th Regiment, held a dance in the recreation room of the Armouries last night. The room was beautifully decorated, and the patriotic colours of the flags and drapings, blended with the tints of the splendid and fashionable dresses of the dancers, made the scene a brilliant one.

Music was provided by the Opera House Orchestra, and about midnight dainty refreshments were served. There was a very large attendance, and every guest gave evidence of having spent a most enjoyable evening.

The committee in charge of the dance are to be congratulated on the thoroughness of the preparations, and the success which rewarded their planning and efforts.

The Dominion Bank

The report, which the president and directors of the Dominion Bank submitted to their shareholders on the 28th of January, is one which ought to furnish them with a good deal of satisfaction. The report is the best ever issued by the bank. Not only were the net profits the highest in the bank's history, but there have been gains in all departments of its activities. The net profits amounting to $950,402 are $48,000 higher than last year and $246,000 higher than for 1911. During the year, the paid-up capital and the rest account were each increased by $811,000, being the results of a new issue of stock made by the bank. The paid-up capital now stands at $5,811,000, while the rest account is $1,000,000 greater. Although the year was one in which there was a great demand for funds on the part of depositors, the Dominion Bank increased its interest bearing deposits by $1,406,000. The total deposits now amount to almost $60,000,000, while the bank's total assets amount to $80,506,000. In brief, every department of the bank's affairs show healthy increases and, at the same time, the conservation for, which the bank is noted, is evident in the report. This is especially noticeable in the amount of gold, Dominion notes and other quickly available assets, which bear an unusually high percentage to the total liabilities to the public.

The prosperous conditions shown by the report have been largely contributed to by the important local branch under the efficient management of Mr. John Crane.

HUMILIATED WOMAN

Would Not Attend Social Functions Because of Her Hair

There are many women in this world, handsome in features, perfect in form, graceful of movement and brilliant of mind, who keep in the background just because they have thin, colourless and lustreless hair.

In Paris they understand things about the hair that we do not know in this country. It was a Parisian, Dr. Sangerbond, who discovered that thin hair and dandruff are caused by a microbe.

It is Parisian Sage that proves Dr. Sangerbond's theory to be correct, for it is rigidly guaranteed to kill the dandruff germ and cure dandruff, falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is a delightfully pleasant hair dressing and invigorator; it is not stick or greasy. It should be used freely in Spring and Summer as it keeps the scalp clean and cool and free from odours.

Parisian Sage comes in large 50-cent bottles and is for sale by the Warne Drug Co. and leading druggists everywhere on the money-back plan. "The Girl with the Auburn Hair" is on every package. Made in Canada by The R. T. Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont.

A delicious salad is made by filling tomatoes with minced pineapple, celery, and chopped nuts. Mix with mayonnaise, and garnish with green.

When making garments for a bazaar it is a good idea to roll the scraps that are left over into a little bundle and fasten them to the garment.

ELEVEN FIREMEN ARE INJURED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK CITY, Jan. 31.—Eleven firemen were injured, two probably fatally, twelve hundred young women were driven out from the home for working girls and a quarter of a million dollars damage done, when a fire burned a block early this morning.

The firemen were all hurt or burned in assisting to rescue the girls.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE OF SURVIVOR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 31.— One of the survivors of the Munroe wreck here is George Harrington, who, after struggling against death for hours in the cold waters, holding his wife above the water as best he could, was rescued, only to find his wife dead in his arms. Rigid inquiry has been started into the cause of the disaster. The captains of the Munroe and Nantucket each blame the other for the collision, which cost forty lives.

BURIED NEW BORN INFANT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Vina Lucas, of Plymouth Township, at the point of death in Englehart Memorial Hospital, during her delirious ravings made statements which resulted in the finding of the body of a newborn infant under rubbish. Inquiry showed that she got her little son to bury the child. The husband is dead. Three small children are left.

SANATORIUM OR SANITARIUM?

The Examiner not having received any reply to the request of "School Boy," for information as to why The Examiner uses the correct form, "Sanatorium" instead of "Sanitarium," the promise is fulfilled of furnishing the information desired.

In the course of an article on "Woman's work in the fight against tuberculosis," "Roy Gilray," a valued contributor to The Examiner, in the issue of Feb. 10, 1912, says:

"May I make a digression to clear any confusion that may exist in the use of the two words "sanatorium" and "sanitarium." They are often used synonymously, but wrongly so. The word "sanatorium" has its origin in the Latin verb "sanare," to heal, to cure, and is properly restricted to an institution where treatment is undertaken. The word "sanitarium" is from the Latin substantive "sanitas," health, and should be used in speaking of any health district or resort for convalscent patients."

Roy Gilray's reasoning is right so far as it goes; but he might have gone further to show more fully—he was only incidentally remarking—to show that "sanatorium" is a word of legitimate parentage as applied to a hospital for consumptives, and "sanitarium" an illegitimate word, with no logical application in this connection. As explained, "sanatorium" is derived from the Latin verb "sanare," to heal, to cure; past participle "sanatus," healed; derived noun substantive, "sanator," healer; and, hence, "sanatorium," place where healing or curing is done,—a logical etymological sequence, as may be illustrated in the word "purgatory," from "purgare," to cleanse; purgatus, purgator, purgatorium, the place where cleansing is done.

Thus the root idea of sanatorium is a place, while the root idea of sanitarium is more a condition. The word "sanitarium" is built on the Latin substantive, "sanitas, health, soundness—of body or mind; hence sanity and insanity, sanitary and sanitation. Sanitation (sanitas, sanitatis) relates, to the preservation of health through creation of the conditions compatible with health, and soundness of body and mind, and is equivalent to prevention of disease, so that "sanitarium" would etymologically mean a place for the prevention of disease, or preservation of health. Sanatorium, easily traced to sanare, heal; sanatus, healed; sanator, healer, is a place where disease is healed or treated with the object of healing. A garbage incinerator might be not improperly called a "sanitarium"—it is a means to the end of producing conditions favourable to promoting or maintaining health.

LABOUR CONFERENCE ENDED YESTERDAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 31.— (Special cable).—The labour conference, which concluded at Glasgow yesterday, passed many resolutions, indulged in an orgy of talk and showed labour generally that it is resentful at what it considers too complacent an attitude of its parliamentary representatives. South Africa overshadowed every other issue and the conference demanded that its parliamentary representatives shall compel the government to move effectively. Despite South African opinion, temporizing or delay on the part of Macdonald and his colleagues, will shake their authority severely. The general policy advocated by the confereice embraced land reform, land taxation, housing reform and minimum wage.

RESOLUTION AND ARGUMENTS FOR A SANATORIUM

The following is a copy of the resolution adopted at the adjourned meeting of the Peterborough Health Association as the basis of the appeal to the City Council, for aid in erecting in Peterborough a sanatorium for consumptives:

Moved by J. W. Bennet and seconded by Dr. Neil:

WHEREAS the Peterborough Health Association is a body corporate under Letters Patent of the Province of Ontario bearing date the 12th day of July, 1911 having the following purposes:

(a) To erect and maintain hospitals, sanitoria and other buildings and equipment for the treatment of persons afflicted with tuberculosis and other kindred diseases;

(b) To establish and maintain a dispensary and to provide medical attendance, comforts and necessaries for patients;

(c) To conduct a training school for nurses;

(d) To employ district nurses;

(e) To adopt such other methods and means as will aid in the eradication of tuberculosis and other kindred diseases;

(f) To disseminate information relative to household and public sanitation for the preservation of health, and

(g) Generally to do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects; and

WHEREAS the cure of tubercular patients has been carried on by the said Association in the City of Peterborough by means of two district nurses, whose valued services have been highly appreciated both by members of this Association, and by a large number of people, who daily claim their attention within the limits of the City, and

WHEREAS there is ever present in the minds of both nurses and the medical attendants, that a number of these advanced cases now being cared for in their own homes are a menace, not only to the remaining numbers of the patient's family but to the citizens at large and should be removed to a building erected for the exclusive care of tubercular patients; and

WHEREAS the appointment by the Board of Education of a nurse will have the usual effect of removing from the general class rooms a number of pupils who are either tubercular or otherwise physically defective and for whom suitable provision must be made by the municipality; and

WHEREAS there are more deaths per year in Peterborough from tuberculosis than from all other infectious diseases combined, and the official records show that there actually died in the City of Peterborough last year 30 persons from tuberculosis, indicating that a large number of such cases konwn and unknown are continually to be found within the City limits; and

WHEREAS the City Council has been called upon recently by the National Sanitorium Association to pay the statutory hospital rates for all patients sent from the City to he Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst, necessitating ootion on the part of the City in providing suitable accommodation for its own tubercular cases; and

WHERAS at the present time large sums of money are being sent annually out of Peterborough by Churches, Lodges, and private citizens for the benefit of the said Free Hospital for Consumptives to which donations this Association would naturally fall heir as soon as permanent work was begun here; and

WHEREAS the members of this Association are convinced that a sanatorium for tubercular cases should be put in operation at the earliest possible date and to this end are willing to pledge themselves to procure Ten Thousand Dollars upon certain conditions hereinafter set out; and

WHEREAS after communication with their officials and a study of plans and conditions relative to similar buildings in Ottawa, London, Hamilton, Brantford, St. Catharines and Kingston, it has been ascertained that for the sum of Twenty-four Thousand Dollars sufficient land and an adequate building and equipment could be provided in this City for the purpose intended; and

WHEREAS the City Council, being vitally interested in the general welfare of its citizens should be asked to contribute the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that a Committee, subsequently to be named, interview the City Aldermen, at the earliest possible moment with the view of obtaining a grant of Ten Thousand Dollars for the said purpose to be payable as soon as evidence is furnished to the Mayor and Chairman of the Finance committee that this Association has obtained bona fide subscriptions for an equal amount and that the site and plans of the proposed building have been approved by the Provincial Secretary according to the Statute in that behalf made and provided.

CONSTABLE REID WAS SUSPICIOUS

It is a strange coincidence that Albert Brodeur, who has been apprehended by the local police on a charge of murder, should have eluded the police for nearly five months. Especially when it is considered that he frequently obtained shelter at various police stations in towns and cities where he stayed.

The hand of fate, however, seems to have turned against him as soon as he reached Peterborough, for he had no sooner arrived in the city than he was spotted by P. C. Reid. The accused approached the constable at the corner of George and Charlotte streets and asked to be directed to the police station, where he contemplated spending the night. Police Constable Reid directed Brodeur to the station and incidentally noted that he had a flat nose, which recalled to him the picture of a man who was wanted for murder.

Followed Brodeur.

P. C. Reid followed the accused to the police station where he found Acting Sergeant Brown, Detectives Newhall and Meagher labouring under a similar apprehension. The quartette immediately set to work to locate the police circular that was issued by the police authorities at Springfield, Mass.

It was not until they arrived at the last scar that was located on Brodeur's shoulder, that the accused admitted his identity. The tattoo marks on the forearm were almost sufficient identification in themselves.

Development Of The English Home Explained

Interesting Address Given at Normal School by Prof. Currelly

Last night in the Normal school, Professor Currelly gave a splendid address on the development of the English Home. Interspersed with the unusually interesting information his lecture contained were moments of quiet humour which continued to make the address one of the best of the course of addresses given in the Normal school.

Dr. Park, of the Normal school staff, was chairman, and an audience of about two hundred and fifty heard the address.

In his address, Dr. Currelly discoursed not on the "family life" of England, but on the development of the English dwelling place. In an exceedingly entertaining manner, he traced the steps through which the English home has passed, until it had become what it is to-day. In order to make his point very clear he contrasted the home of the Englishman with the Oriental Home. The Eastern home had been erected on lines of simplicity. On account of the fact that the Orientals sit on the ground to eat and read, a great deal more attention was paid to the floor of the Oriental house. The carpenters would be as particular of the material they put in the floors of the ordinary room as the western builders of what they used for the parlours of the houses they built. The Orientals needed no tables or chairs; they sat around one bowl at meal time, using no dishes. Hence the simple lines of their homes. The rooms would not be large, but expensively built.

The western home had been built under much more complicated conditions. The family used tables and chairs and other things not considered necessary by the Orientals. The lecturer traced the development of the home from the time there were rushes on the floor, and the bones for the dogs were allowed to remain in the house until the aroma arising from them forced the owner to another abode, which he had built for such an exigency, up to the present time.

First the English homes were more like castles, because under the feudal system, when a man was in a position to own a house, he had a large number of retainers to defend his territory from the warlike barons of the time. A large place was needed as his drunken, brawling followers must be sheltered in the same home, but at a considerable distance from the ladies of his house hold. Henry VIII forbade these petty lords having relatives and at once the houses began to be built on less pretentious lines, although provisions were always made for the servants. This was a contract to the French homes, as in Versailles, where the French court was held, they slept on beds carried with them, in parlour, dining room or hall.

From the time of Henry VII more and more privacy was provided for the lady, until she was finally allowed a boudoir.

Then the lecturer traced the development of the articles of furniture in the English home. How the bureau developed from the chest, used primarily for the eldest daughters trousseau how the bed lost its canopy and curtains, and how stools became the present day chairs.

In conclusion he made a strong plea for less show in American and Canadain homes, and more real comfort. He called the audience's attention to the fact that a thing was not really artistic unless it best served its intended purpose and was of the best materials.

HON. R. LEMIEUX TO TESTIFY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

QUEBEC, P. Q., Jan. 31.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, formerly Postmaster-General under the Laurier administration, arrived in Quebec this morning to give evidence before the special committee appointed by the Legislative Assembly to investigate charges of corruption.

Mr. Lemieux said: "It is quite true that I introduced Carpenter to Mousseau at the time I was sitting in the Legislative Council Chamber."

The Committee resumes its investigation on Monday night, when the Burns detectives are expected to be present.

TANGO GIRL

Moral—Don't let your feet run away with your brains.

What an awful tiresome girl to have,
Over the tango she goes quite mad;
She's at it morning, noon and night,
She has it down so fine it out of sight.
I feel so blamed tired and blue
Since the tango she has learned to do;
I can't get any peace no more,
That tango certainly makes me sore.

For she does it in her bedroom,
And she does it on the stair;
Then she does it in the parlour
When ever I am there.
She does it in the dining room,
Anywhere that can be found,
I believe that she would do it
On a slack wire high above the ground.

She does it on her way to work,
Then upon the office floor;
She doesn't seem to care a cent
When the boss at her gets sore.
She does it on her way home again,
All up and down the street;
I certainly can see quite plain
That it's got her by the feet.

I have no use for that blamed dance,
It seems quite plain to me
That it has got her in a trance,
She thinks of nothing else you see
When she dies and leaves this plain,
On her last journey she'll be the same,
You can bet she'll take a chance
And do that infernal tango dance

The tango dance is alright I say
If you will dance it in the right way
Don't make it a nuisance, take my advice,
Don't dance in a way that isn't nice.
The dance you will find is good exercise,
If only you will to yourself get wise,
And dance in a way that is decent and right,
You'll win others over, who against it fight.

Did Not Sell All Their Meat To-day

Weather Kept the Market Down in Attendance and Buying Was Limited—Eggs Down to 35c

Eggs were down to 35c on the market to-day, and had the attendance been larger even that figure might have been lowered. Some of the country people tried to hold the price at 38 and 40 cents, but they were not successful. Butter sold at 30 cents, chickens at from 50c each to $1.00 each. One man paid $2.00 for two chickens that weighed between 5 and 8 pounds each. Beef sold around 13 and 14 cents, and 12 and 13c, and pork at 13 and 14c. The weather kept the attendance down and some of the meat men sold only half their loads. A noticeable improvement is evident lately in the displaying and handling meat. Mr. Bell, of Smith, and Mr. Denoon, of Monaghan, particularly give attention to these points, and there are others not far behind them.

EPWORTH LEAGUE TOBOGGAN PARTY

Young People of George Street Church Spent Evening at Toboggan Slide

A number of the young people of the Epworth League of the George Street Church spent an enjoyable evening at the Jackson Park toboggan slide last night. A skating party had been planned but owing to weather conditions a toboggan party was held and it is doubtful if the original undertaking had been carried out, it could have resulted in greater pleasure than the tobogganing.

The party met at the Church and went out to the slide in a body. After a couple of hours of exhilarating exercise they returned to the Church, where refreshments put the finishing touch to a splendid evening.

THAT REAL ESTATE DEBATE

Mr. W. C. Austin Characterizes it as a Cowardly Attack

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Everybody likes a manly fighter, most people despise a coward. In my letter of Thursday, 22nd Jan., written to the Review, I very justly resented the cowardly attack made on our profession by a very small individual who got behind a church organization to introduce a resolution with venomous insinuations in it, and had it put before the church as a proper subject of debate. Let every one of you men who have bought lots in the South End, or in any other way speculated in land, or lots, read this resolution:

"Resolved that it is worse to make money from speculating in land than from gambling at cards"

And this resolution was carried, so the Review says. And it came out in big black letters, spread across two columns "Land Speculation is Worse than Gambling at Cards," thus branding every real estate man and every real estate purchaser as worse than the criminal gambler. Mr. G. Stanley Taylor has written a long letter to the Examiner to the effect that no offence to the real estate men was intended. I do not think the debaters intended any offence—but the men who chose this subject and put it before the public—had an axe to grind—of this we are convinced.

Mr. Taylor further states that the judges, in deciding, had stated that the affirmative had not proved that it was any more immoral to speculate in land than to gamble. That means that, if Mr. Taylor's statement is correct, the real estate man that buys a lot in the South End, on which he does not intend to build, is committing a crime just equal to the gambler but no worse. All of us real estate men who buy and sell land in this way are so pleased indeed to know that instead of being worse than the gambler, we are, by this decision, up to a position where we are right on the dead level with gamblers. In time, if we have another debate or two, it may be decided that we are equal to pickpockets or ordinary thieves. I claim that a resolution like the above slanders by imputation more than half the men in the two congregations—and should never have been allowed to be debated in any church. If this resolution was not intended to brand the real estate men in Peterborough as criminals, or worse, then it must be intended to teach that making money by gambling at cards is not a very bad thing. In either case putting a subject like this in the care of young men to argue is playing with fire, for a young man who has $100 ready money to invest may say—Well, I will not buy a lot in the South End, because the young people decided that it was less harmful to take a chance at the card table. I see Mr. Taylor tries to split hairs on the meaning of speculate and to ring in a few new twists on the meaning as given by Noah Webster and the Standard Dictionary. The Standard Dictionary gives as meanings of speculate: (a) "To make a purchase or investment that involves a risk or loss, but also offers a chance of considerable profit." (b) "To make an outlay in the hope of a probable gain."

Webster says: (c) "To purchase with the expectation of a contingent advance in value—and a consequent sale at a profit." (d) "Speculation is the act or practice of buying land or goods, etc., in expectation of a rise of price and of selling them at an advance."

These are the meanings given by two of the best authorities for the word speculation, and, by it, I claim that every real estate man that buys a vacant lot or any other person that buys a lot is to that extent a speculator. We have in Peterborough a Real Estate Association, in which various subjects of interest to the trade are talked over. Now suppose, for instance, we were to debate a question like this: "Resolved that the methods employed by some ministers to get money are worse than those of the pickpocket," would there not be just indignation expressed, both long and loud, at the bare mention of the subject?

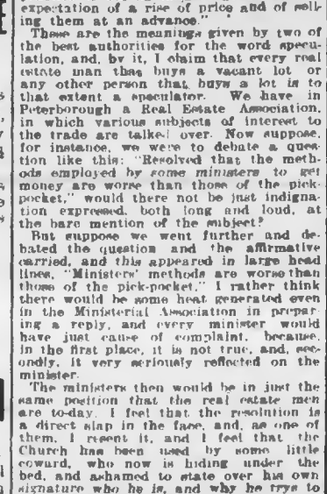
But suppose we went further and debated the question and the affirmative carried, and this appeared in large head lines, "Ministers' methods are worse than those of the pick-pocket." I rather think there would be some heat generated even in the Ministerial Association in preparing a reply, and every minister would have just cause of complaint, because, in the first place, it is not true, and, secondly, it very seriously reflected on the minister.

The ministers then would be in just the same position that the real estate men are to-day. I feel that the resolution is a direct slap in the face, and, as one of them, I resent it, and I feel that the Church has been used by some little coward, who now is hiding under the bed, and ashamed to state over his own signature who he is, and why he tryes to vent his venom on the real estate men.

In the letter of Mr. Stanley Taylor there are quite a number of false assumptions, built on wrong information. Let us look at one or two of them. He says: "The poor immigrants who go to the west seeking to find a home find most of the choice land in the hands of the speculators." This is surely a grave state of affairs if true, but the poor immigrant who goes to the west does not go to buy land—certainly not. He comes from England, Ireland, Scotland, or Europe because he is promised a homestead practically free. He can get the homestead for registration fee of $10, and by doing his homestead duties. If he wants more land he is allowed under the law to pre-empt 160 acres more at $3 per acre. If he still wants more he can buy a veteran's scrip 320 acres for perhaps $300 to $1,000. So all the really weighty arguments about the hardship of the poor immigrant and their congregating in the cities, and adding to the high cost of living, all these things that were urged to make capital against the real estate man, in the classical language of Senator Sorghum—"There ain't nothin' to it."

Further down Mr. Taylor says, "Saskatchewan is following Lloyd George by securing a percentage of all increases in land values." Mistaken again, Mr. Taylor. Alberta has adopted a provision in some way resembling the law you mention. Saskatchewan has adopted the same. There are doubtless many reforms in connection with the laws in reference to land which can be and will doubtless be adopted for the betterment of conditions, but does any one for a moment imagine that things will be improved by a few people, with very little or no practical knowledge of the subject coming out and making such wild and sweeping statements and charges? So long as land is open for sale, I have a right to buy it. The community has a right to tax me what it thinks is right. My duty is to pay the various taxes imposed cheerfully. So long as I do this, no organization, no church, no minister has a right to attack me or my business or to say that it is worse than gambling at cards.—Respectfully yours,

W. C. AUSTIN.



Advertising For Mechanics Outside Of City

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I see an ad in the Montreal Daily Star, of Jan. 23rd, for a local firm. How is it they don't advertise in your paper? I know for a fact that there are plenty of skilled mechanics seeking employment right here in Peterborough. Why don't they give our own town a chance first? What is the use of bringing Montrealers here when we have hundreds out of work here, eagerly and anxiously looking for it? Some of them on the verge of starvation. Your magistrate, Mr. Dumble, passed a humorous remark a short time ago, that Montreal was the next place to p rdition. Why do local industries wish to bring those people here from that wicked town? Trusting to see this letter in your paper, and thanking you for the space.—I am, etc.,

An Old Time Montrealer and Reader of Examiner.

Should Illuminate The Lift Lock

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—May I have space in your valuable paper, of which I am a constant reader, in regard to the beautifying of our City? Being away some time I was surprised to come back and find our City in a "Great white way," which, I may say, is fine. I may say it is about time our City was beginning to look like something, and great credit should be due to those who are looking after the interest of same. But to make our City more business-like, why not have an illuminated glass front put on the Town Hall clock and remove the sign of death away from our main corner, George and Charlotte, and light up both sides of the Lift Lock, which would be a great advertisement to our City? What a great advertisement it would be. With trains coming from Montreal, Ottawa and those points, the travellers and other people will see and will advertise our place.—I am, etc.,

County Should Get More Assistance

Members Claim That Grants for Education and Other Purposes Should Be Allowed or Should Be Increased

Not once, but four or five times, were conversations overheard in the County Council rooms during the week regarding the necessity of larger Government grants for education, roads, and other municipal necessities. Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., stated that the province has between nine and ten million dollars at its disposal, whereas the Dominion Government's appropriations published a few days ago calls for an expenditure of two hundred and two millions. Members of the Council consider that the present grant to the Province should be increased or that some arrangements be made whereby Dominion funds could be turned over to counties for the purposes mentioned above.

UPWARD MOVEMENT IN STOCK MARKET

The List is Expected to Go Higher—Bank Statement for the Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — To-day witnessed further bullish operations in the stock market. The tone of the list is very strong and broadening in every department. Unexpected buying in Europe on Friday took the market away from the professional reactionaries, and will probably carry prices higher on direct and arbitrary orders. Private cables say that this sudden movement was based on the general reduction in bank rates. The list is expected to go higher. The Rock Island situation is expected to work out satisfactory.

Following is the bank statement for the week:

Reserve, decrease	$3,430,000
Loans, decrease	53,005,000
Specie, increase	14,419,000
Legals, decrease	2,500,000
Deposits, increase	60,400,000

The sudden rise in C. P. R. and U. P., also a few other specialties, featured the week's trading. About one year ago, C.P.R. was declining as rapidly as it is going up at the present time.

BASEBALL IS ASSURED FOR PETERBORO'; THE CLUB TO BE LEASED TO SYNDICATE

Directors of Club Authorized by a Resolution Passed Last Night to Take This Step Provided $2500 is Not Raised by Subscription.

A SATISFACTORY PLAN

Canadian League baseball is assured for Peterborough this season, as the result of a meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Baseball Club held last evening in the Bank of Montreal Chambers.

At this meeting the directors were authorized to lease the club to a local syndicate provided $2,500 was not subscribed before March 1. The syndicate which consists of some twelve or fifteen local business men will carry on the ball club for the coming year with the option of renewing the lease year by year up to five years. At the end of five years or at the expiration of any year's lease before that time, if the syndicate does not wish to renew, the franchise and assets of the club revert back to the shareholders.

President W. H. Denham, who was in the chair, stated that there were three courses before the club. It was estimated that some $2,500 would be needed to look after the financing of the club during the coming season. The club could either try to raise this by general subscription as in the past, or lease the club to a syndicate, or sell the franchise.

Mr. Denham informed the meeting that a number of local gentlemen were willing to take a chance on carrying on the game if the shareholders would lease the club to them.

The matter was discussed at some length and finally a resolution moved by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, and seconded by Mr. Dickson Davidson, was carried, giving the directors authority to lease the club if $2,500 in subscriptions is not raised by March 1st.

About 30 stockholders were present at the meeting.

JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE TO PLAY ON TUESDAY NEXT

The Executive of the Peterborough Junior City Hokey League has made arrangements to have the postponed game played off next week. The rink has been secured for Tuesday and Friday nights and the big game between the Boston Exploits and the Y.M.C.A. will be staged on Tuesday night. This is the game the fans have been eagerly waiting for, the keen rivalry between the two teams assuming a battle royal. The Wanderers and Alerts will play the second game on Tuesday night, while on Friday night the Y. M. C. A. will play the Alerts, and the Boston Exploits will clash with the Wanderers.

Competition For Lady Curlers

The local lady curlers have arranged a competition for next week, in which three rinks will participate. The first game will be played on Monday morning between Mrs. Travers' and Mrs. Matthews' rink. The winners of the first game will clash with Mrs. Sandersons rink on Tuesday afternoon, in the final game of the competition.

The rinks that will take part are:

Miss Hamilton
Miss Cameron	Mrs. Waddell
Miss Gladman	Miss Irwin
Mrs. Walker	Mrs. A. Hall
Mrs. Travers Skip	Mrs. Sanderson Skip
Miss Denne
Mrs. Davidson
Mrs. Harstone
Miss Denne
Mrs. Matthews, (skip).

CENTRALS DEFEATED KING EDWARD SCHOOL

In a hard-fought game of hockey, played at the Brock Street Rink this morning the Central School team defeated the King Edward seven 3 to 2. The half-time score was 1 to 1 and is an indication of the hard battle put up by both teams.

Barclay and Park got the goals for the Southerners, and Hewson, Rutherford and Sherrot secured the counters for the winning agregation.

The teams were:—

King Edward—Goal, Nellist; right defence, Saunders; left defence, Rehill; rover, Park; centre, Martin; left wing, Barclay; right wing, Fuller.

Central — Goal, Gollop; right defence, Gibson; left defence, Rishor; rover, Hewson; centre, Rutherford; left wing, Frost; right wing, Sherrot.

How The Group Looks Just Now

Cobourg Ordered to Play in Belleville on Monday Night

Belleville won in Bowmanville last night by 5 goals to 0, and the standing of the three leading teams of the group is therefore as follows:

	W.	L.	T.P.
Peterborough	7	2	1
Belleville	5	2	3
Cobourg	4	3	3

The O.H.A. has ordered Cobourg to play in Belleville on Monday night with the return game in Cobourg on Wednesday night, while Oshawa will play in Cobourg and Belleville in Whitby on Friday night. The Petes play their last game of the schedule in Whitby on Wednesday. If the Petes win this game, Belleville has to beat Cobourg twice and Whitby to tie the locals. Cobourg's only chance is to take both games from Belleville, defeat Oshawa and have Peterborough lose in Whitby.

Hockey—That's All

The Y.M.C.A. "Ponies" of the Senior Church League defeated the All Saints team last night at Brock Street Rink, the half-time score being 1 to 0 in favour of the "Ponies," the final score, 6 to 0. Len Dobson handled the game in good shape. The "Y" team lined up as follows: Goal, Clarke; defence, Stuart (Capt.), Heaslip; rover, Sharpe; centre, Stratton; wings, Moore, Austin.

BASEBALL

Del Gainor, first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, has announced his retirement from baseball.

Pitcher Marty O'Toole says he is well satisfied with the Pittsburgh climate and has no intention of jumping.

President Charley Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club still asserts that Joe Tinker will be seen in a Brooklyn uniform on the opening day.

Frank Owens, the Minneapolis catcher drafted by Washington, has jumped to the Feds. There are no Walter Johnsons "to tear your hands off in the Federal League.

Connie Mack has signed another youngster, Jimmy McAvoy, a Rochester semi-professional with but one year's experience, is to be given a trial with the Athletics.

The fans thought the Federal League was a regular League until it copped a player from the Boston Braves. Now it would not surprise them to hear the Feds. were raiding the St. Louis Browns.

The Buffalo Club in the International League has purchased Infielder Joe McCarthy from Memphis. McCarthy was manager of the Wilkes-Barre team in the New York State League, last season.

Clarence H. Rowland, a pioneer in Three-I League territory, has disposed of his interests in the Dubuque Club to Forrest T. Plass and Pitcher Guy Gregg. The new owners were with Dubuque last season.

Right in the midst of a fine baseball war "Rabbit" Maranville strolls in the Boston Braves' headquarters, signs a blank contract and tells President Gaffney to fix the salary to suit himself.

Benny Kauff, who was tried out by the New York Yankees, last spring, refuses to sign with the Indianapolis American Association club for the salary offered. Benny says the Indians' "cough" was too weak for a real Kauff.

Mother is man's best friend; she always stands by her boy, no matter how good or how ornery he is. Money is man's next best friend—it attracts and holds the world to him. The wife comes third in the list. As a rule she is her husband's good friend—until the money is all gone. Then she becomes as uncertain as the wind that blows

The English Cup Tie Will Produce Plenty Of Excitement

Thirty-two Clubs Start in the Second Round--Sixteen Must Survive and the Same Number Fall---Capable Coaches Are Recognized

To-day is English Cup tie again, and we are promised plenty of excitement. Thirty-two clubs start in the second round, and sixteen must survive and the same number fall. Here is the forecast of the sixteen survivors: Manchester City, Liverpool, Birmingham, Bolton, Derby County, Sheffield Wednesday, Sunderland, Crystal Palace, Aston Villa, Blackburn Rovers, Queen's Park Rangers, Bradford City, Preston North End, Brighton and Hove, Sheffield United, and West Bromwich Albion. The clubs most likely to upset my calculations are Tottenham, Swindon, Burnley, Wolverhampton, Millwall and Glossop.

Capable Coaches.

It is good to know (says the Bolton Field) that the work of the English coaches is highly appreciated by Continental friends. Fred Warbeaton, the old Bolton, Southampton and Bury forward is having his third season with the H.V.V. club at The Hague, in Holland. For some years now Edgar Chadwick has gone over to Holland to tutor and train the Dutch International team, and William Hunter, the old Bolton and Millwall left-winger, is engaged with the Dordrecht club in Holland. Another ex-Bolton Wanderer is Arthur Gaskell, who has completed a few month's engagement in Russia, and hopes to return there this year; whilst Percy Hartley, a former Preston North End half-back is with the Verviers club in Belgium. W. Maxwell, the old Stoke International, is teaching the members of the Racing Club of Brussels how to shoot goals and stop the other side from scoring, whilst the brothers J. and W. Reynolds, last with Swindon Town and Rochdale respectively, are both doing well with clubs in Switzerland, the former at Berne and the latter at St. Gallen. The old Woolwich and Blackburn right-winger, W. Garbutt, has become a sort of fixture with the leading club in Genoa.

On Trial.

Here are the players who faced up last week before the F.A. selectors:

England — Hardy (Aston Villa); Crompton (Blackburn Rovers) and Pennington (West Bromwich Albion); Brittleton; (Sheffield Wednesday), M'Call (Preston North End), and Watson (Burnley); Walden (Tottenham Hotspur), Fleming (Swindon Town), V. J. Woodward (Chelsea), captain, Holley (Sunderland), and Mosscrop (Burnley)

The North — Beale (Manchester United); Hudspeth (Newcastle United) and English (Sheffield United); Cuggy (Sunderland), Buckley (Derby County), and Utley (Sheffield United), captain; Simpson (Blackburn Rovers), Shea (Blackburn Rovers), Elliott (Middlesbrough), Latheron (Blackburn Rovers), and Martin (Sunderland.)

C. Vezina—the marvellous goalkeeper of the Canadiens. Vezina is the best net guardian in the N. H. A. He always gets a warm reception in Toronto.

BEN TINCUP IS RICH

Indian Pitcher Plays Ball Only Because He Likes It

The majority of ball players are in the game for the amount of money they can get out of it; a few play it because of their love for the pastime. Ben Tincup belongs to the latter class. Tincup is a Cherokee Indian pitcher the Phillies picked up. He hails from Texas, and is said to be the richest ball player in the world, and probably one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

When the Indian comes of age in a few months his yearly income will be over $50,000 a year. He already has $20,000 stored away in a bank, besides being the possessor of 400 acres of valuable oil lands in Oklahoma, which the Government is leasing for him. So if Tincup fails to make good in the big leagues he won't have any cause to worry.

Since he is one of the few remaining Cherokee Indians, all the Oklahoma lands are held in trust for him. As soon as he is 21 years old he will go to Washington to collect the dividends which are accumulating for him. As Tincup's allotment of land was among the oil fields he is wealthier than many of the other survivors of the Cherokee tribe.

Concertina in the Pulpit

Rev. W. Jones, of Morriston (Glamorganshire), delivered an address in Zion Calvinistic Methodist Chapel, Llanrwst, and somewhat astonished his audience. Before he ascended the pulpit one of the deacons deposited a box inside it. Having spoken for some time, the preacher exhibited the box, and produced from it a somewhat ancient-looking concertina, remarking: "You must not be afraid of this—it is saved. It has been for forty years played at the taverns of Dowlais and Pontypridd, but the player is now a valuable member of the movement and would not sell this instrument for the world. When I play this concertina the Devil himself trembles and is tormented to hear its reformed music." Mr. Jones then sang a hymn, accompanying himself upon the concertina in masterly style.

FASHIONS IN GAMES

Less Strenuous Pastimes Wax and Wane in Public Favor

There is a fashion in games as well as in dress, as witness the growing popularity of lawn tennis and the periodical craze for roller skating. About a dozen years ago ping-pong was everything, and more recently diabolo took England by storm although the game did not secure much of a foothold in Canada. Roller skating was next revived and rinks sprang up all over the country; a good many of them, by the way, are still well patronized.

The same thing happens in the matter of the games which children play. Quite suddenly, and without the least warning of any kind, tops will come into favor.

Within a week the streets will be full of top-spinning youngsters, and the toy-sellers will have a bad time trying to keep up with the demand. There will be tops everywhere—all sorts of tops.

And then, as suddenly as they came, tops will vanish, and marbles will take their places. Then, just as suddenly and just as mysteriously, the marbles vanish, and something else comes on. It does not seem to depend in any way on the season or on the weather. It is just a matter of fashion.

All members of clubs know that fashion rules in the same way over the games that are played on the billiard table. For months—years, perhaps—the members will play nothing but billiards. Then there will come a change, and pool will be the order of the day. Another change, and as likely as not billiards will be the rage once more.

In card games, of course, fashion is everything. Once it was whist, and scarcely anything else was thought of. Then followed bridge. Now anyone who wants to play ordinary bridge is regarded as hopelessly behind the times, and auction is in favor. It has, indeed, been in favor so long that people are looking about for its successor.

FROM BASE TO BASE IN TEN LONG STEPS

"HAP" MYERS

When Hap Myers of the Boston Braves, is in full stride, stealing bases, he covers nine feet, something unusual in running.

The average stride of a sprinter is about six feet, and even the "lathy" sprinter takes a comparatively short stride. Myers is a six-footer and is said to have the longest legs in the league.

Someone with a taste for statistics figured that the average base runner takes 13 steps of seven feet in going from base to base, while Myers takes but 10. He also uses a bat of unusual length.

Large Clergyman

The death is announced of the Rev W. F. Drury vicar of Hornby, Yorkshire, and elder brother of the Bishop of Ripon. Mr. Drury was the tallest and heaviest clergyman, being 6 feet 8 inches high, and in his prime weighing between 240 and 250 pounds.

Strange isn't it, that meat can be brought ten thousand miles, from Argentina and Australia, and butter from New Zealand and laid down at our doors for a little more than half the price charged by our local grocers and butchers?

That a woman is not afraid of a burglar is proved by the fact that her mind is awake only to the fear that he may see what she isn't wearing scattered all around the room.

COUNCIL MEETING ON MONDAY

The monthly meeting of the City Council will be held on Monday evening. The session promises to be a busy one as much business has accumulated since the last regular meeting, despite the fact that several special meetings have been hld during the month.

The Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee of the City Council met yesterday afternoon and disposed of regular business incident to the Council meeting that is billed for Monday evening. A long list of accounts were passed by the Committee.

The Hydro Question

Will likely be revived next week. Hon. Adam Beck, Chairman of the Hydro Electric Commission of Ontario is expected home from his trip to England and will in all probability be called upon to unravel a few of the knotty problems that confront the Power Committee.

The Incinerator.

Mr. A. H. Reid of the Reid Incinerator Company, Toronto, was in the City to-day. He was in consultation with His Worship Mayor Buller and City Engineer Parsons. The Property Committee have sanctioned the payment of the remainder of the contract price providing Mr. Reid furnishes a satisfactory bond and puts a few more finishing touches on the City's crematorium.

A WONDERFUL REMEDY

Orange Lily is daily curing the most obstinate cases of Female Disorders. Failing of the Womb, Leucorrhoea, Painful and Suppressed Menstruation, etc., etc., are all of them relieved from the start by its use, and a few weeks' or months' treatment accomplishes a complete cure. This remedy is a positive, scientific preparation, and is based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. It is an applied treatment; that is, it is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering parts, and it, therefore, acts with all the certainty of the known laws of chemical action. As it comes in direct contact with the diseased tissue, its antiseptic and nerve-food properties cannot help have a beneficent influence. I receive from 10 to 50 letters daily, speaking of the benefits and cures it is performing, and so sure am I that it will do what is claimed for it that I will send, absolutely free, a 25c box to every suffering woman who will write for it. Price, $1 per box, which is sufficient for one months' treatment. Address, MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, WINDSOR, ONT.

THE BRIGHT SIDE OF CIVIC LIFE

Optimism as contrasted with pessimism, has been defined or, rather, illustrated by the remark that the pessimist sees only the hole in the "doughnut," while the optimist sees only the zone of cake surrounding the hole. To our civic life, as with almost every other thing or phase in human life, there is a bright side and a dark side. Day and night light and shade, sunshine and shadow, are the order of nature that find their counterpart in human things and happenings. We have of late been shown a good deal of the seamy side of our civic life; and now a city preacher proposes to reverse the shield, to search a little for the silver lining of the cloud. Rev. J. R. Webb of the Murray Street Baptist Church, proposes as the subject of his next Sunday evening sermon, "The Bright Side of our Civic Outlook"; and it is easily possible that he will find it. Shakspere is not the only one that can find "sermons in stones and good in everything"—and it is hoped that he will be able to dazzle the cataractic optics of pessimism with some of the cheery effulgence that comes from the clear, sane eyes of optimism. Because there's a fly in the ointment, we are not compelled to see only the fly and throw the box away.

NATIONAL MOTOR BOAT SHOW OPENS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The latest products of the boat builders, the engine makers, and the manufacturers of nautical fittings for power craft are disclosed at the annual National Motor Boat Show, which opened at Madison Square Garden Saturday for a week's engagement. Larger, more powerful and heavier engines are displayed than ever before. They are designed for cruising power boats of the largest and most luxurious type. In addition to the engines and other fittings the latest models of speed boats are shown and each builder has something new to display and talk about.

New Trial For Convicted Women

Special Wire to The Examiner:

FULTON, Mo., Jan. 31.—The case of Mrs. Susan Ross, accused of the murder of her husband, will come up in court Monday for its second trial. The first trial was held last September and resulted in a verdict of guilty and a sentence of ten years in the penitentiary. This verdict was set aside and a new trial granted by the Court on the unusual ground that there was such a radical difference between the attorneys of Mrs. Ross in conducting the defence, that the woman was not given a fair hearing before the jury.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Daisy Dobin of New York, has returned to her duties after spending the past two weeks at her home here.

Miss May Johnston of Smith's Falls, is visiting Mrs. Macleod, Gilmour Street.

Miss Florence G. McDonald, of Rochester, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. F. Murray, of 254 Reid street.

Mrs. G. N. Gordon, 360 Simcoe street, will receive Tuesday, February 3rd, and after on the first Wednesday of each month.

Mr. C. H. Winch and Mr. John White-Sells of Montreal are the guests of Mr. Winch's father, Mr. R. I. Winch, Stewart Street.

Miss Ethel Fowler, who went on an extended trip to the West last July, has decided to remain in MacLeod, Alta., until spring. Her many friends will be glad to learn her health is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Donell, Peterborough, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice Rea, to Mr. Joseph H. Smith, of Rosetown, Sask., the marriage to take place early in February.—Toronto Globe.

Mr. William S. Wilson, a well known violinist of this City, is playing a solo to-day in Toronto at Jan Hambourg's recital. Jan Hambourg is the celebrated Russian violinist and pupil of the world's greatest violinist, Ysaye, it is a great honour for a youth of this City to be requested to play at the above recital.

Miss Edwina Palmer, 468 Gilmour Street, has very successfully passed her final examination in violin at the Toronto Conservatory of Music and has become officially, as in fact, a first class violiniste. Miss Palmer, who is one of the first violins in the Conservatory orchestra, and pupil of the Conservatory under Miss Adamson, is to be heartily congratulated. Not only has she passed the examinations, but, which really counts, is, besides, a violiniste of unusual talent and capability.

Among the well known players who have recently gone into vaudeville are Rose Melville, Trixie Friganza, Louis Mann, George Nash, Ernest Truex and John and Emma Ray.

Brandon Tynan, who plays the part of Joseph in "Joseph and His Brethren," has received an offer from Hugh Ward, the Australian manager, to tour Australia next season in repertoire.

Though Raymond Hitchcock is usually regarded as one of the younger players on the American stage he is not many months from his forty-fifth birthday. Mr. Hitchcock began his theatrical career with several and also starts before he became the successful comedian that he is to-day. It was not until he appeared in "King Dodo" in 1902 that he attracted atten-

WEDDING BELLS

BROWNLEE—PECK.

Evidently the cold weather of January (a month which has almost beaten records in stepping downstairs in temperature) is powerless to check the gentle but successful warfare of Field Marshall Cupid, whose victories are many and notable, no hearts, even in fearless Minden, being proof against his tactics.

On the evening of Tuesday, 27th inst., the Rev. Pierre B. deLom, L. Th., F.R.G.S., Incumbent of St. George's Church, Haliburton, the Rural Dean, having been summoned to tie a nuptial knot, arrived at 7 o'clock at the cosy residence of Mr. and Mrs Wm. A. Welch, for a pretty but quiet wedding in their tastefully arranged drawing-room where, in the presence of their chosen witnesses, relatives and friends, were united in holy wedlock, Mr. Charles Stuart Brownlee, formerly of Peterborough, printer, well known and deservedly popular upon the staff of the Minden Echo, and Miss Cora Winnifred Peck equally well known in business, and held in esteem by her fellow citizens of Minden, and the members of St. Paul's Church.

The full service impressively taken part in, the pretty wedding ceremony was followed by a delightful repast, which gave opportunity for many complimentary and kind expressions of good-will to the happy couple, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Brownlee, with warm best wishes for their prosperity throughout life's journey.—Minden Echo.

OBITUARY

THEODORE JOY, SR.

The death took place this morning of Theodore Joy, Sr., after an illness of over a year. Mr. Joy was a resident of East City for a number of years, but moved to Brampton about 15 years ago, and subsequently to Toronto. Mr. Joy leaves a wife and four sons, all residing in Toronto. The sons are, William, Henry, James and Theodore, Jr. When in Peterborough the family resided on Mark street, and were members of the Mark Street Methodist Church. The funeral will take place in Toronto on Monday at three o'clock.

SAMUEL HAMBLIN.

The news reached the City this week of the death of Mr. Samuel Hamblin, of Deloraine, Souris, on January 24th. Deceased was formerly of Warsaw, having left for the Northwest about fourteen years ago. For years he carried on the village blacksmith shop in Warsaw, and was well and favourably known, not only in the township of Dummer, where he had numerous family connections, but throughout the east riding of Peterborough. Since residing in Deloraine he engaged in farming, in which he had been very successful. He leaves a wife and eight children to mourn his decease.

Mrs. T. W. Oke, of East City, and Mrs. R. G. Moore of Dummer, are daughters of the deceased.

Try rubbing the silver every day with a dry flannel rag. It will not have to be cleaned with silver polish nearly so often.

Lamp chimneys rinsed with a soft cloth and finally polished with tissue paper will shine beautifully.

It is a good idea to have a good-sized kitchen salt shaker filled with a mixture of salt and pepper. This saves time in seasoning.

Save all the old toothbrushes. They are good for many things, from cleaning combs to cleaning marble and the Dresden ornaments.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Lady's Kimono.

The long kimono is indispensable and for winter wear the kimono slightly fitted to the figure is most satisfactory, being warmer. This comfortable garment closes at the left side of the front and provides for two styles of sleeves. It will be pretty if made of outing flannel printed in Japanese effects, of sateen, cotton crepe or of wash silk.

Pattern No. 4,715 is cut in sizes 32 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 7¾ yards of 36 inch material.

The above pattern can be obtained by sending 15 cents to the office of this paper.

MR. JOHNSTON TO ADDRESS ST. GEORGE'S A.Y.P.A.

The committee of the St. George's A. Y.P.A. are fortunate in having Mr. W. F. Johnston promise to come to address the next weekly meeting of the society at St. George's school room on Wednesday next. The subject of Mr. Johnstons address will be "Telepathy." This will not take up the whole of the evening, as a musical programme and light refreshments are also being arranged for. The society needs the support of all the young people it can get hold of for these meetings, for with their support it will be in a position to give not only a social evening once a week, but a really instructive one too. Bring your friends please.

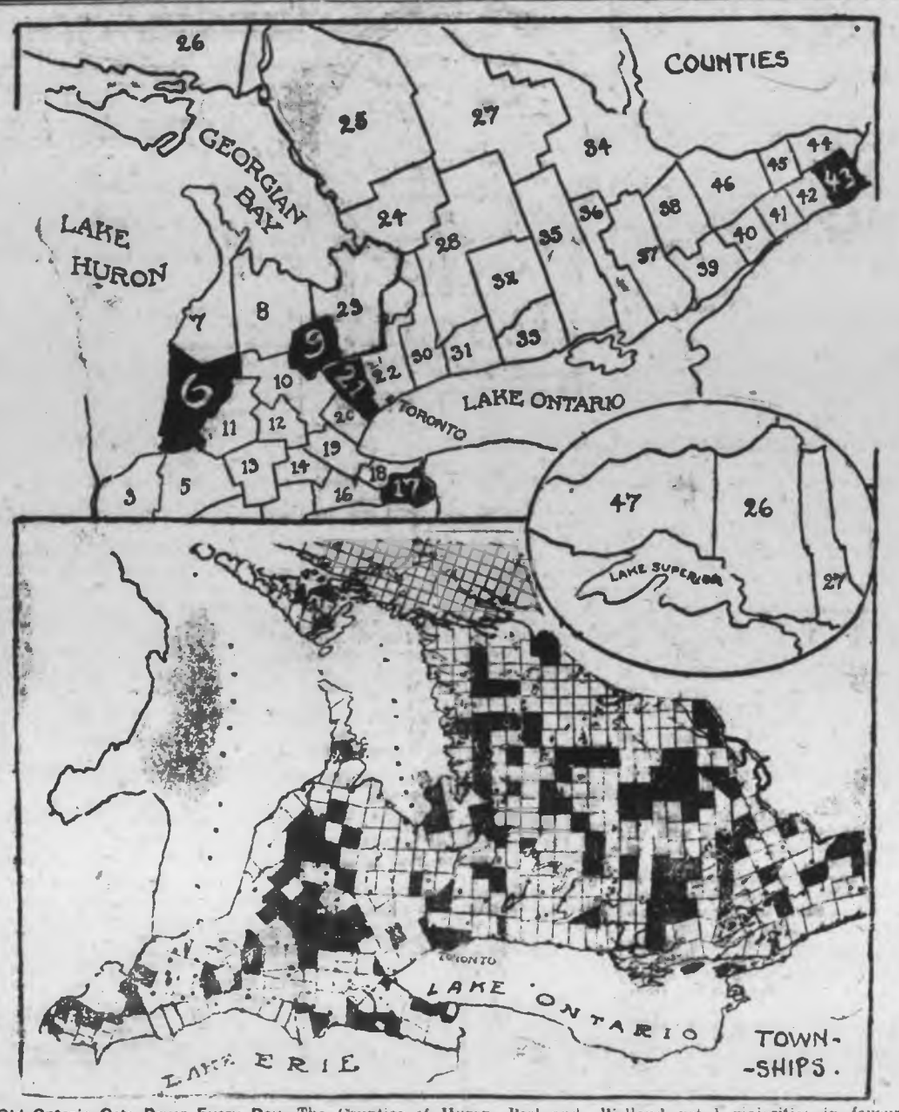
THE PENNY BANKING SYSTEM IN LINDSAY

The Penny Banking system will come into operation in Lindsay schools on Monday morning. Prof. McKenzie, of Trinity University, a prominent official of the bank, explained the workings of the system to the principals and teachers Friday evening in the Council Chambers. There were present Principals McDougall, Trask, Somerville, and Rogers, of the Separate School. Mr. Flavelle took the chair. Professor McKenzie after explaining the system, left a supply of ledgers and books for the teachers. He will return Monday morning from Peterborough to see that the teachers have no difficulty in operating the system, and will spend the day in town. —Lindsay Post.



Old Ontario Gets Dryer Every Day—The Counties of Huron, Peel and Welland voted majorities in favour of the Canada Temperance Act on January 29th, and thus added large slices to the temperance map of the Province. The black areas on the upper map show entire counties that have gone dry: Peel, Huron and Welland, through the Scott Act; Dufferin and Glengarry, through local option. The counties are designated by numbers as follows: 1, Essex; 2, Kent; 3, Lambton; 4, Elgin; 5, Middlesex; 6, Huron; 7, Bruce; 8, Grey; 9, Dufferin; 10, Wellington; 11, Perth; 12, Waterloo; 13, Oxford; 14, Brant; 15, Norfolk; 16, Haldimand; 17, Welland; 18, Lincoln; 19, Wentworth; 20, Halton; 21, Peel; 22, York, including Toronto; 23, Simcoe; 24, Muskoka; 25, Parry Sound; 26, Algoma; 27, Nippissing; 28, Victoria and Haliburton; 29, Prince Edward; 30, Ontario; 31, Durham; 32, Peterborough; 33, Northumberland; 34, Renfrew; 35, Hastings; 36, Lennox and Addington; 37, Frontenac; 38, Lanark; 39, Leeds; 40, Grenville; 41, Dundas; 42, Stormont; 43 Glengarry; 44 and 45, Prescott and Russell; 46, Carleton; 47, Thunder Bay. In the lower map the dry townships (as contrasted with the black above) are in white. In some of the counties not yet dry there are several townships under local option.

Annual Meeting Of Automobile Club

Was Held on Saturday Night—A. E. Coulthard Elected President—Strong Membership Committee Chosen—Reports From Various Officers—R. W. Travers Hon. President.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Automobile Association was held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Saturday night with a fair attendance of members present.

The date of the annual was moved up from April to January in order that the Association may be ready for the fine weather when it arrives. The president, R. W. Travers, was in the chair and called for the reports from the various committees. Referring to the work of the Good Roads Committee, Mr. Dean stated that the committee received fair value for the money expended, but the finances were too limited to secure wide results. One of the greatest benefits was the removal of stones. Dr. Amys reviewed the affairs of the Entertainment Committee.

Mr. Travers in reporting on what had transpired at the Motor League meeting in Toronto stated that the municipalitles will have all to do with the expenditure of the Legislature's grant for good roads. The Motor League will not specify any roads which they consider should receive attention, and the counties will have practically all to say in the spending of the government's grant.

Financial Statement.

The secretary-treasurer, G. K. Rackham, presented the following audited report for the year.

Receipts.

Credit balance in Bank of Montreal, April 11, 1913	$ 1 71
Cheque on hand, April 11, 1913	50
Fees received through Ontario Motor League	4 00
Fees received direct	380 00
Tickets sold re Burleigh trip, July 5th, 1913	40 00
Travers donation for cigars re South Beach trip, June 19th, 1913	4 00
Total receipts	$430 21

Disbursements.

Stationery, minute book, rubber stamps, etc.	$ 12 37
Postage and printing notices	11 50
Freight and express charges	3 53
Long distance telephone account	4 10
Expenses re Good Roads Committee	100 00
To Ontario Motor League, 76 subscriptions	152 00
To Ontario Motor League, 20 badges	20 00
To Ontario Motor League, guide book	2 00
Expense, C. H. Amys and N. H. Sutton, to London meeting Ontario Motor League, May 31st	24 00
Expenses re Ontario Motor League meeting, Burleigh, July 5th, 1913	78 25
Expenses re South Beach dinner, June 19th, 1913	48 50
Total disbursements	$457 21
Debit balance in Bank of Montreal	18 00

Secretarial Report.

In his report as secretary, Mr. Rackham outlined what had been done during the year. Regarding the money spent on roads he said: "One hundred dollars was expended in the endeavour to patch up some of the roads in the immediate vicinity of the city, the result of which was satisfactory as far as it went. However, it was generally admitted that it was useless to try to improve the roads with the small resources which this Association has at its command and the money would be better spent in other directions with the same ultimate object in view. Our membership increased by nearly 50 per cent. over last year, and it is sincerely hoped that practically every automobile owner in this city and district will join during 1914. There are a number of very important matters to be dealt with by the Ontario Motor League this year, such as the proposed new system of charging for automobile licenses according to the horse-power, the examination of all drivers of automobiles in Ontario, and the very important matter of good roads which, I understnd, is to be taken up by the Government at an early date. The desirability of a strong membership will be plainly seen as it necessarily follows that the stronger the different motor clubs throughout the province are the sooner will we have our claims recognized and acted upon."

Officers for the Year.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Hon. President—R. W. Travers
President—A. E. Coulthard.
Vice-President—Dr. C. H. Amys.
Secretary-Treasurer—G. K. Rackham.

Directors—G. Walter Green, John Brightman, Dr. Sutton, C. E. Canfield.

Good Roads Committee—J. Brightman, J. Keyes, A. E. Rodgers, G. W. Wood, D. W. Doan, C. P. Joy, B. W. Manning.

Entertainment Committee — S. J. Keyes, C. E. Canfield, H. W. Cressman, Robt Dobie, J. J. Duffus, G. W. Green, W. J. Irwin, E. V. Warne.

Membership Committee—Dr. Sutton, Dr. Amys, W. H. Collier, Dr. McPherson, J. I. Allen, B. D. Hall, Dr. Turner, of Millbrook, Dr. Blakeman, of Lakefield.

Auditors—A. H. Stratton and Dr. Amys.

Moved by Mr. Travers, seconded by Dr. Amys that the Association contribute the fee of $5.00 for membership in the Automobile Federation of Canada. Carried.

Mr. Stratton, who took the chair when the elections were begun, called upon Mr. Travers for his valedictory, but the Honorary President declared that he had left out one or two points and would save it for the next meeting. He moved the adjournment instead.

Reformatory Boys Fight Fire.

VERGENNES, Vt., Feb. 2.—Nearly 130 boys, whose ages range from 7 to 19 years, were made homeless Saturday by a fire that destroyed the main building of the Vermont Industrial School, a reformatory institution, of which they were inmates. Although not organized for systematic fire-fighting, the boys worked valiantly, and through their efforts practically all the contents were removed before the flames could reach them. The loss is about $75,000.

"POWER" THE SUBJECT OF SERMON

Rev. James Rollins Gives Interesting Address at St. Andrew's

"Amusement, Recreation, Development." In the opinion of the Rev. R. G. Peever, expressed from his pulpit in the George Street Church last evening, these are the three essentials of true pleasure.

Speaking to a congregation that filled every available place in the Church, Mr. Peever took for the text of his last night's sermon, Thessalonians, 5:21, "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

All knew that this was an analytical age, when everything had to be put to the test. Either in the laboratory, commercially or economically, everything must submit to that injunction to the Thessalonians, "Prove all things." We must welcome that condition of things, and how important it was with reference to the pleasures of life from day to day. To the youth it was not a matter of great concern whether the Liberals or Conservatives were in power at Toronto or Ottawa, whether there was low tariff or high tariff, or whether the Welland Canal, or Georgian Bay route were hurried to completion. The great question of the young people was, "How can I get the most fun out of life?" And that was not wrong. When they advanced in years they would begin to assume the more serious responsibilities and duties of life.

The Scripture said, "Prove all things," and God said, "Your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost"— and they should glorify God with those bodies so fearfully and wonderfully made. "How can I glorify God in my youthful pleasures from day to day?" should be a question asked by the young people. They should glorify God in their pleasures just as older men should glorify God in his business and home life. Whatever dulled religious fervour, or proved a hindrance to fine activities, ill became a disciple of God.

The three essentials of pleasure were:

1. Amusement.
2. Recreation
3. Development.

By amusement he did not mean excitement. Too much strenuus excitement was being sought nowadays, with disastrous results to the nervous system. The reason why so many men doing useful service in the world today suffering physical breakdowns was because they did not allot the proper place in their lives to relaxation and amusement. Whether they were three-score years and ten, or four score years, if they did not allow someone with laughter and cheer to come into their lives, they were making a mistake. One of the essential elements, most important in the life of young people, was relaxation and amusement. The older people, too, should be able to enjoy their sports with them. "Let not the laughter go out of your life, my friend, nor your capacity for enjoyment and relaxation."

But relaxation, fun, laughter, these must have the proper relations to the other things of life. When amusement became the aim of life it became dissipation—when it became the sole object of youth it became bitter dissipation and defeated the very purpose intended by the Creator.

"Prove All Things." Did we pass through our pleasures and emerge re-energized, refreshed in mind and body and spirit? That was the test of recreation. That should be written on the door post of every life. "Do my pleasures bring to me a freshness of spirit, physical and mental recreation. Do my pleasures from day to day satisfy me and build me up — or satisfy me and impair my manliness and character."

Beware of the back-wash of what followed our sports and good times. Did it mean a sore head and dimmed vision the next day? Did it mean bitterness or remorse and the hanging of the head. Did it mean the lost ideal, did it mean the blunted conscience—the changed man that went forth weakened into the next day?

One's pleasures should make him stronger for the work of the day. Outdoor sports were ten times the value of indoor recreation. Conducted under supervision they could be a great safeguard to the purity of youth But what about the players off the field, and off the ice. Did they go back to the hotel and get drunk—did they go back to the hotel and create a scandal as one hockey team did in this City a short time ago?

But as well as a developed body, a man should have a trained mind and a splendid spirit. The young man who had "Rooms to Let" across his brow, was making a mistake. A perfect symmetry of mind and spirit and body was necessary to make themselves a temple of the Most High God.

Development was the great goal of life. In men's games there were usually two predominating elements — skill and chance. "No young man," said the speaker, "can afford to play a game of chance." Men who understood its effect upon the brain had explained its bad psychological results. But when the mind was trained along the lines of skill, "you add the development, expansion and honesty to the mind."

MINISTER GIVES HIS DESCRIPTION OF GODLESS CHURCH BASEMENT

A Methodist minister of the new school, who has come under the modern broadening influences which have failed as yet to touch the leading members of his flock in a small Ontario town, was telling his troubles to an understanding friend.

"Some of them are inconceivably narrow and restricted in their viewpoint," he said, "and especially the members of the executive board. We have in the church some twelve or fifteen young girls of whom any pastor and congregation might be proud — healthy, clean-minded, vigourous and talented girls in their teens. They wished to give a Christmas concert, and they asked me if they could have the use of the church instead of the Sunday school, which is in the basement. I promised to do what I could, and when I laid the matter before the board, I strongly recommended that their request be granted. But the members were dubious, and the chairman—a fine fellow, but one hundred years behind the times—would have none of it.

"No 'No,' he said; 'it must not be. We cannot let the church be used for these affairs. The church is a sacred edifice. Why, God himself is there.' They must use the basement'."—Saturday Night.

Fifty Firemen Overcome.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Smoke rising from masses of burning tobacco, overcame fifty firemen during a four-hour battle with flames which were brought under control shortly after eight o'clock Saturday night in a four-storey factory building on the upper East Side. Fire Chief John Kenlon said that because of the smoke the blaze was the most serious one of its kind in the department's history. The property loss was estimated at $50,000, suffered by three wholesale tobacco companies. No lives were lost.

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Distressing Kidney Trouble.

ST. THOMAS, ONT., April 1st, 1913. "In 1911, I was laid up with Kidney Trouble and not able to get out of my chair. Had tried many kidney remedies without satisfactory results. The pain was excruciating and my screams could be heard on the street. One day a friend from Ottawa came to see me, and when he found me in such poor health, said he would send me a sample of "Fruit-a-tives", which he did and I commenced taking them. The results were so apparent with the first few doses that I continued to take "Fruit-a-tives" and was completely restored to my normal state of health. I would strongly advise anyone suffering with Kidney Trouble to take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure themselves" CHARLES CALVEART.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By Elwell Lawrence

"Wait a few minutes, Bud, and I will be out again. I must dress for dinner."

When she had gone Larkin understood at once the presence of the carpet, the patent rocker, and the piano.

"What a double-barreled idiot I am," he swore, "to talk turkey to old Bissell and never connect him with Juliet. All the sheep in the world couldn't get me away from here to-night." And he ejaculated the time-worn but true old phrase that the world is a mighty small place.

Juliet Bissell had been a very definite personage in Bud Larkin's other life—the life that he tried to forget. The eldest son of a rich Chicago banker, his first twenty-five years had been such years as a man always back upon with a vast regret.

From the mansion on Sheridan Drive he had varied his time among his clubs, his sports, and his social duties, and generally made himself one of many in this world that humanity can do without. In other words, he added nothing to Himself, others, or life in general, and was, therefore, without a real excuse for existing.

Of one thing he was ever zealous, now that he had left it behind, and this was that his past should not pursue him into the new life he had chosen. He wished to start his career without stigma, and end it without blame.

Strangely enough, the person who had implanted this ambition and determination in him was Juliet Bissell. Three winters before he had met her at the charity ball, and at the time she was something of a social sensation, being described as "that cowgirl from Wyoming." However, that "cowgirl" left her mark on many a gilded youth and Bud Larkin was one.

He had fallen in love with her, as much as one in his position is capable of falling in love, had proposed to her, and been rejected with a grace and gentleness that had robbed the blow of all hurt— with one exception. Bud's pride, since his wealth and position had meant nothing in the girl's eyes, had been sorely wounded, and he had taken six months of the vast mystery of the plains to reduce this pettiness to the status of a secret shame.

When Juliet refused him she had told him with infinite tact that her husband would be a man more after the pattern of her father, whom she adored, and who, in turn, worshipped the very air that surrounded her; and it was this fact that had turned Bud's attention to the West and its opportunities.

When she returned to the porch Juliet had on a plain white dress, with pink ribbons at elbows, neck, and waist. Larkin, who had always thrilled at her splendid physical vigour, found himself more than ever under the spell of her luxuriant vitality.

Her great dark eyes were remarkably lustrous and expressive, her black hair waved back from her brown face into a great braided coil, her features were not pretty so much as noble. Her figure, with its limber curves, was pliant and graceful in any position or emergency — the result of years in the saddle. Her feet and hands were small, the later being firm but infinitely gentle in their touch.

"Well, have you forgotten all your Eastern education?" Larkin asked, smiling, as she sat down. "Have you reverted to your original untamed condition?"

"No, indeed, Bud. I have a reputation to keep up in that respect. The fact that I have had an Eastern education has made our punchers so proud that they an't be lived with when they go to town, and lord it over everybody."

"I suppose they all want to marry you?"

"Yes, singly or in lots, and sometimes I'm sorry it can't be done, I love them all so much. But tell me, Bud, what brings you out West in general and here in particular?"

"Probably you don't know that a year and a half ago my father died," and Larkin's face shadowed for a moment with retrospection. "Well, he did, and left me most of his estate. I was sick of it there and I vowed I would pull up stakes and start somewhere by myself. So I went up to Montana in the vicinity of the Musselshell Forks and bought a ranch and some stock."

"Cattle?"

"No, sheep. The best merino I ever saw—"

"Bud Larkin! You're not a sheepman?"

"Yes, ma'am, and a menace to a large number of cowmen, your father among them."

The girl sank back and allowed him to relate the story of his adventures up to the present time, including the interview with Beef. At the description of that she smiled grimly; and he, noting the fact, told himself that it would take a masterly character to subdue that free, wild pride.

"Now, Julie," he concluded, "do me the favour of instilling reason into your father. I've done my best and we have parted without murder, but that's all. I've got to have a friend at court or I will be ruined before I commence."

The girl was silent for a few minutes and sat looking down at her slippered feet.

"Bud," she said at last, "you've never known me to tell anything but the truth, and I'm going to tell it to you now. I will be your friend in everything except where you ask me to yield my loyalty to my father and his interests. He is the most wonderful father a girl ever had, and if he were to say that black was white, I should probably swear to it if he asked me to."

"I admire you for that," said Bud genuinely, although all his hopes in this powerful ally went glimmering.

"Let's not talk shop any longer It's too good just to see you to think abut anything but that."

So, for a while, they reminisced of the days of their former friendship, by tacit agreement avoiding any reference to intimate things. And Larkin felt spring in him the old love that he had convinced himself was dead; so that he added to his first resolution to succeed on the range, a second, that he would, in the end, conquer Juliet Bissell.

The thought was pleasing for it meant another struggle, another outlet for the energies and activities that had so long lain dormant in him.

And with the undaunted courage of youth he looked eagerly toward the battle that should win this radiant girl.

But for the present he knew he must not betray himself by word, look or action; other things of greater moment must be settled.

At last, as they talked, the cook, a long-suffering Chinaman, seized a huge brass bell and rang it with all his might, standing in the door of the cook house.

There was an instant response in the wild whoop of the cowboys who had been suffering the pangs of starvation for the past half-hour.

"Of course you must come to our private table, Bud," said Juliet. "I want you to see father's other side." So they rose and went in the front way.

The ranch house had been planned so that to the right of the entrance was the living room, and back of that the dining-room. To the left three smaller rooms had been made into sleeping apartments. At the back of the structure and extending across the width of it was a large room that, in the early days of the Bar T, had served as the bunk-house for the cow punchers.

This had been changed to the mess-room for them, while the family, with the addition of Stelton, the foreman, used the smaller private room. Owing to the large increase in the number of Bar T punchers a special bunk-house had been built in the rear of the main entrance.

At table Larkin for the first time met Mrs Bissell who proved to be a typical early cowman's wife, thin, overworked, and slightly vinegary of disposition, despite the fact that she had at one time in her life been the belle of a cowtown, and had been won from beneath the ready .45's of a number of rivals.

At Bud's entrance Stelton grunted and scowled, and generally showed himself ill-pleased that Juliet should have known the visitor. On the other hand, as the girl had promised, Beef Bissell, for years the terror of the range, displayed a side that the sheepman would never have suspected. His voice became gentle, his laugh softened, his language purified, and he showed, by many little attentions, the unconscious chivalry that worship of a good woman brings to the surface.

For her part, the girl appraised the devotion at its true value and never failed in the little feminine thoughtfulnss that appeal so strongly to a worried and busy man.

That Stelton should be at the table at all surprised Bud, for it was not the habit of foremen to eat away from the punchers. But here the fact was the result of a former necessity when Bissell, hard-pressed, had called his foreman into consultation at meal times.

Old Bissell proved himself a more genial host than business rival, and when he had learned of Larkin and his daughter's former friendship, he forgot sheep for the moment and took an interest in the man. Mrs. Bissell sat open-mouthed while Bud told of the glories of Chicago in the early eighties, and never once mentioned her famous visit to St Paul so overcome was she with the tales this young man related.

Everyone was at his or her ease when the rapid tattoo of hoofs was heard, and a horse and rider drew up abruptly at the corral. One of the punchers from the rear dining-room went out to meet him and presently appeared sheepishly in the door-way where Bissell could see him.

"Is there a Mr. Larkin here?" asked the puncher.

"Yes," said Bud, pushing back his chair.

"There's a stranger out here that 'lows he wants to see you."

"Send him in here and give him something to eat, Shorty," sang out Bissell. "If he's a friend of Larkin's he'd better have dinner with him. And, Shorty, tell that Chinaman to rush another place here, sharp."

As for Bud Larkin, he was at a total loss to know who his visitor might be. With a sudden twinge of fear he thought that perhaps Hardwinter Sims, his chief herder, had pursued him with disastrous information from the flocks. Wondering, he awaited the visitor's appearance.

The stranger presently made a bold and noisy entrance and, when his face came into view, Bud sank back in his chair weakly, his own paling a trifle beneath the tan. For the man was Smith Caldwell, a shifty-eyed crook from Chicago, one who had dogged him here and whom he had never expected to see again. How the villain had tracked him to the Bar T outfit Bud could not imagine.

Seeing the eyes of the others upon him, Larkin recovered himself with an effort and introduced Caldwell but to the eyes of even the most unobservant it was plain that a foreign element of disturbing nature had suddenly been projected into the genial atmosphere. The man was coarse in manner and speech and often addressed leering remarks to Juliet, who disregarded them utterly and confined her attention to Bud.

"Who is this creature?" she asked sotto voce "What does he want with you?"

Bud hesitated, made two or three false starts, and finally said:

"I am sure his business with me would not interest you"

"I beg your pardon," said the girl, rebuffed. "I seem to have forgotten myself."

"I wish I could," ejaculated Bud bitterly, and refused to explain further.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat trouble, and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

Nice Distinction.

In a restaurant in the Wall street district, where a stock ticker attracts a large crowd of interested men at the "opening" hour every morning, a young Japanese has become one of the regulars, and his remarks when the various tape wise oracles hold forth have afforded those who watch the eager group no little amusement. The questions why X. Y. Z. continues to sag and the possibility of a cut in the dividend of O. P. R. seem as easy of solution to him as they are to veterans like Mr Near Broke or Mr Has Been. Mr. Once Rich said to him recently, "Bet you a cigar A. B. C. goes higher before it goes down."

"No," he said, "no gamble—only speculate," and he pointed a nervous finger at the ticker.—New York Tribune.

Flogged Only Geniuses at Eton.

Some of the hardships of life at Eton in bygone times might be regarded as complimentary to the sufferers. Only the best of the boys were called upon to bear them. The biographer of Dr Parr records that the famous Eton "head" "believed in flogging for all offenses and even for absence of offense," but never punished stunted capacity or tried to extort much from mediocrity. If Parr made up his mind that a boy was to be classed as "mediocre" that boy enjoyed practical immunity from the birch ever after. But when the head assistant told the doctor "I believe So-and-so is a lad of genius" the answer was: "Say you so? Then let the flogging begin tomorrow!"

Proved His Profession.

In "Pierre Garat, Singer and Exquisite," is this story of the Parisian favorite: Out alone one evening in 1792 Garat was arrested by a patrol of national guards because he was unable to produce his card of citizenship, as decreed by the convention. And so he, Garat, "whose larynx was said to be a whole opera," was taken to the section house, and the officer in command began his interrogation as follows:

"Your profession?" "I sing." "That," retorted the officer, "is not a profession. I also sing." "Possibly," drawled our hero, "but I sing better than you. The case is not the same." "Oh! You will have to prove that!" Garat, always fond of an innocent coup de theatre, immediately attacked one of the most florid romances of his repertoire—a thing of trills, roulades and "dying falls," a performance so astonishing in that grimy guardhouse that his captors not only released him, but escorted him home in triumph.

A Novelty in Strikes.

The management of a traveling theatrical company demanded 2 shillings for admission. The visitors did not propose to pay more than 1 shilling and after a hasty consultation outside the entrance formed a "theater goers' union." Pickets were stationed, and within a few minutes 278 people—practically all who were there—had agreed not to pay the 2 shillings.

The manager appeared at the doorway and refused to make the required reduction.

"I'll give you till I count twenty," said the newly elected president of the new union, "and after that our price will be sixpence instead of 1 shilling." He counted slowly to nine, and then the manager capitulated.

The strike was declared at an end, the quondam strikers trooped into the hall, and the union was dissolved after an existence of about twenty minutes

The Delicacy of Baby's Skin

Cold Air, Rough Winds, Strong Soaps Often Bring on Chronic Eczema.

More beautiful than the rose is baby's skin when in health, and so delicate that it is susceptible to anything which irritates. For this reason baby's skin troubles are many, and frequently chronic itching eczema is developd.

Nothing can be better for baby's skin when irritated, than Dr. Chase's Ointment, and when eczema is developed you can apply this preparation with the knowledge that its wonderful record as a healer of the skin is due to the success it has proved in the cure of eczema.

The intense itching of eczema of the face and scalp is very hard for the little one to bear, and is a source of worry and anxiety to the mother. The itching parts are scratched, and nasty and coloured scars are formed. Eczema naturally becomes chronic and spreads over the body. You can positively control eczema and cure it by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. What is better still is to use this ointment for all chafing and irriation of the skin and prevent eczema from getting started.

PASTOR RUSSELL'S CREATION DRAMA

Gospel Campaign by Motion Pictures Has Good Headway.

OPENED IN TOLEDO ON SUNDAY

In Discourse Pastor Russell Points Out Man's Original Perfection—Reign of Sin and Death—A Sad Spectacle—Thousands of Millions Dead—Hundreds of Millions Dying Weak In Body, Weak Mentally, Morally, Physically—Human Power Has Failed to Arrest the Malady—Man's Only Hope Is In God—Messiah God's Appointed Agent—To Redeem, to Regenerate, to Make New—Soon He Will Deliver the Groaning Creation—Nothing Shall Hinder —Blessings Will Be Outpoured.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 1. — Pastor Russell presented his Photo-Drama of Creation to crowds at the American Theatre here to-day, afternoon and evening. Parts I. and II. were exhibited. Parts III. and IV. will be shown to-morrow. The exhibitions are given daily and free, and collections are conspicuous by their absence.

Since the International Bible Students Association, of which Pastor Russell is President, successfully launched its world-wide program, in introducing motion pictures—scientific, philosophic, historic, Biblic—in The Temple in New York City three weeks ago, where crowds are the daily order, it has had a series of remarkable successes.

The Cincinnati public gave the Photo-Drama a hearty welcome, both afternoon and evening, on the 18th, in its celebrated Music Hall, where the Drama continues to run twice daily; St. Louis' greeting in the afternoon and evening of the 23rd, in the Victoria Theatre, was no less warm, and capacity crowds witnessed both productions in the I.B.S.A. Temple at Cleveland on the 25th and since.

In presenting the Photo-Drama here this afternoon Pastor Russell stated that the motive of the enterprise is purely philanthropic; that the movement is supported by voluntary contributions only, and that the world-wide campaign will progress as rapidly as the Lord's providences will permit. This is not a solicitation, he said. We never solicit! We merely state the facts and thus give opportunity to all to co-operate as much or as little as they may desire.

In his sermon in the forenoon Pastor Russell discussed that feature of the Photo-Drama which relates to Christ's promise, "Behold, I make all things new!" His text and discourse follow:

"Behold, I make all things new." (Revelation 21:5.) He said:

The Bible intimates that the seven days of the ordinary week are typical of seven great Days, each a thousand years long. Thus St. Peter declares that a Day with the Lord is as a thousand years. At the beginning of man's Week he was perfect, as represented in Father Adam; but disobedience to the Creator brought upon him the curse, "Dying, thou shalt die." Under that curse our race has been steadily going downward mentally, morally and physically to the tomb—the Bible Hell—Sheol, Hades.

Meantime, mankind has struggled against the curse, but to no avail. To-day our race is assailed by more ailments and weaknesses, mental, moral and physical, than were ever known before. Our jails, penitentiaries, asylums, hospitals, all bear testimony to this fact. Even the morals of the world are apparently at as low a state as could well be imagined, after all our preaching, after all our manufacture of hobgoblins, devils, and hells to frighten humanity and force them to church, to religion, to morality.

Is it not time that we should acknowledge our failure and cry to God for help ere we perish as a race? Not only have we not converted the heathen world, but we find the civilized world retrograding, and statistics show us that crimes increase on every hand in spite of the preaching of eternal torture. Surely we may well say, "We have wrought no righteousness in the earth." "We have done those things which we ought not to have done and left undone those things which we ought to have done; and there is no health in us."

While we were crying to the Almighty for His compassion and aid we heard His Message. He assures us that He laid help upon One mighty to save to the uttermost all who accept His aid. It is this Saviour who eighteen centuries ago died for us, "the Just for the unjust," to open up the way for our return to God's favor. During the Gospel Age He has been gathering out an elect Church, to be His associates and joint-heirs in a coming Kingdom. It is He who with His elect Bride, the Church, will reign for a thousand years. He will bind Satan that during this period he may deceive the people no more. (Revelation 20:1-3.) He will use His great power as King of kings and Lord of lords to put down sin in its every form.

Meantime, as the great antitypical Priest after the Order of Melchizedek, He will bless, instruct and uplift the people from their weakness mental, moral and physical. Thus He will be making all things new—bringing all things to the perfection of the original Divine purpose.

The Saviour's works at the First Advent—healing the sick, opening the blind eyes, casting out demons and awakening the sleeping dead—were merely typical illustrations of the greater work which He with His glorified Church will accomplish amongst men during the great antitypical Sabbath. Thus Jesus and His Church, as the antitypical Seed of Abraham, will fulfil the Divine Promise made to Abraham, saying, "In thy Seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed." St. Paul points us back to that same Promise, saying, "Which Seed is Christ; * * * and if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the Promise."—Galatians 3:16, 29.

Alas, many have taken the misrepresentations of God's character in the creeds of the Dark Ages too literally! The result is that many have gone to insane asylums. Others have been driven away from God to pleasure or to sin, in their endeavor to forget Him. Others have been made very unhappy as they thought of friends and neighbors, kind and good, who have made no profession of walking in Jesus' footsteps. Alas, that we should have so misunderstood our great Creator's character and Plan! Although we did it ignorantly, adding to the Word of God human traditions, we, nevertheless, have suffered for our carelessness and temerity.

Gradually Christendom fell into the great mistake of disregarding God's Word and believing Satan's lie, as the heathen do. God declared that the wages of sin would be death—the extinction of life. Satan contradicted this and falsified to Mother Eve, assuring her that there would be no death penalty. Satan and his fallen angels have insidiously sought to perpetuate his lie by telling us that when our friends appear to die they really become more alive than before. In accepting their testimony we have been doing what the Apostle cautioned us against—giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons.—1 Timothy 4:1.

The evil spirits have seduced Christendom, as they have seduced the entire heathen world—by giving feigned communications between the dead and the living. Satan and his demon host have full knowledge of all the affairs of humanity. It is an easy matter for them, therefore, to personate the dead, and through spirit mediums, witches and wizards, planchettes, tipping tables, writing pencils, visions and dreams, to represent them as still alive.

The heathen indeed are excusable for falling into these seductive snares; for the heathen have no revelation from God and no warning against these evil spirits. But how shall we excuse ourselves, to whom God committed the Oracles of Truth, which clearly tell us that the soul that sinneth shall die, that the dead know not anything, that there is neither wisdom nor knowledge nor device in Sheol, Hades, the tomb whither all are going?

Do not the Scriptures tell us that these darkness and spiritual evil are deducing us from the Truth and teaching us doctrines of devils which dishonor our Creator, go further than this and, wherever possible, possess poor humanity, dispossessing the human will and acting through the human body? Did not Jesus and the Apostles deal with such possessed persons, casting out demons? How strange, therefore, that we should have forgotten all these lessons and taken Satan for our instructor! How strange that we should believe the unreasonable lie and disbelieve the real testimony of God, that the wages of sin is death, and that the soul that sinneth it shall die!

Even when we had in our hands the Word of the Lord we made it of none effect by believing Satan's lie. When we read in the Scriptures that the wicked shall perish, that all the wicked will God destroy, we were hoodooed by the seducing spirits into interpreting perish and destroy to mean everlasting life in torment. It is a wonder that a Christian hope could be held at all under such an avalanche of error! Those who triumphed down through the Age, we may be sure, were upheld by the precious promises of God's Word, which negatived their fears and led them often to say, Alas, we do not understand it; but we trust the Lord, that He will do right.

Now, as the dawning light of the New Dispensation increases, we perceive more clearly where our mistake was. Bible students the world over are beginning a fresh study of God's Word in its own light, and are receiving the oil of joy instead of the spirit of heaviness. Now they see the Resurrection Hope, and perceive that it is based upon the fact that Christ died for all; that the First Resurrection will be for the saintly few who have followed the Master's footsteps; that it will be to a higher than human nature—to the Divine nature; and that these glorified ones will be sharers in Messiah's Kingdom, which is to bless the world.

Now they see that the world's blessing also will be a resurrection, but to human perfection—a lifting up, not only from the sleep of the tomb, but also from all the weaknesses and imperfections of the flesh, back to the perfection lost in Eden and redeemed at Calvary. Thus our great Redeemer assures us that He will make all things new.

The Master's declaration that He would ultimately make all things new is the equivalent of the message given us by St. Peter. He declared that "times of refreshing shall come," the opposite of the curse. He declared that then would come "Times (or years) of Restitution of all the things which God has spoken by the mouth of all His holy Prophets since the world began." Other Scriptures show us that those Times, or years, of Restitution will be one thousand. In other words, they will cover the entire Seventh Day.—Acts 3:19-23.

Making all things new again is merely restoring all things to their original, perfect condition. This is the Restitution of all things which God has spoken by the Prophets. This is the raising up, the resurrection, of the dead world. Adam fell from his perfection in the image of God. His restoration, his making new again, will include not only the awakening from the tomb, but the raising out of all the weaknesses and imperfections which accompanied his dying, back to that he was at the beginning, a perfect man in God's image—"very good."

Had Adam remained perfect, his children would have been born perfect. All our imperfections, then, are part of the curse which has come upon us through heredity. To speak of the wiping away of the curse is merely another way of telling of restitution, renewing, resurrection. This work will begin with the establishment of Messiah's Kingdom, and will give each member of Adam's race the fullest opportunity of resurrection, restitution, renewing.

The basis for this favor was the Ransom-price which Jesus paid for Adam and his race when He died, "the Just for the unjust," to bring us back to God. The penalty which Jesus paid for us was not eternal torment, but the death penalty—and likewise the recovery, or salvation, or saving, will not be from a hell of torture, but from the tomb—the Bible hell. Without God's interference on our behalf Adam and all his race would ultimately have perished, as do brute beasts. God's Remedy has been Christ's sacrifice, to make satisfaction for our sins, to be followed by Christ's Kingdom—the Kingdom's uplifting influences to save the willing and obedient from sin and death.

In the symbolic language of the Bible the heavens are sometimes used to represent the spiritual powers—the church; and the earth to represent civil and social organization. The Bible represents that the present heavens and earth are out of accord with the Divine purposes, and are to pass away with a great commotion.

We understand this to mean that in the end of this Age the nominal church systems and all the ecclesiastical powers of the world will fall into confusion, disruption, and pass away. Speedily will follow similar conditions in the social and political earth. It also will pass away with great commotion, confusion. This destruction is symbolically called fire. But the Lord has promised a new heavens and a new earth—established along better lines and principles—in full accord with the Divine will. In this, we read, righteousness will dwell.—2 Peter 3:7, 12, 13.

The new heavens will not be the church nominal. It will consist of Christ and the elect Church, gathered out of all the nations and denominations—saints. It will be the very ideal of righteousness, the Divine ideal, and will be given the control of mankind for a thousand years. Gradually during those thousand years a new earth will develop—society will be organized under new conditions—in harmony with the regulations of Messiah's Kingdom. This is another picture of how our Redeemer as the glorious King will make all things new.

God through the Prophet declares, "Be ye glad and rejoice in that which I create." "For, behold, I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind." (Isaiah 65:17, 18.) So far superior in every way will be the New Dispensation that none will even think of making a comparison or calling to mind the things of the present time—except by way of remembering the lessons, experiences, etc., learned under the present sad conditions of the groaning creation.

The new creation will be gradual, not sudden. The entire thousand years of Messiah's Kingdom will be necessary for the perfecting of the fallen race, the establishment of God's will on earth on the same absolute plan that now dominates in Heaven. As there is neither crying, sighing, nor dying in Heaven, because there is neither sin nor death penalty there, so it will be on earth. There will be no crying, sighing or dying and no sin here, because sin, with all its dire effects, will be thoroughly purged away by the Messianic Kingdom, in its uplifting work of a thousand years. All the wilfully wicked will be destroyed.—Psalm 145:20; 2 Peter 3:12.

The glories of the perfect condition are beautifully represented to us in the words of our Saviour, when He tells us that after all of the human family shall have been brought out of sin, imperfection, ignorance and superstition back to full perfection, and all the disobedient destroyed in the Second Death, then every creature in Heaven and in earth shall be heard saying, "Praise and honor and dominion and might be unto Him that sitteth upon the Throne and unto the Lamb forever."

Weak back is caused by weak kidneys, and on the first approach or evidence of kidney trouble Doan's Kidney Pills should be used, and serious trouble avoided.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak aching back, and prevent any further complications arising.

Mr. John Briggs, Whitewood, Sask., writes:—"I am sending you this testimonial out of pure gratitude, as I am not a believer in patent medicines, but I got so run down, that I became quite willing to give anything a trial. I paid a visit to our local druggist, and told him I was suffering intense agony with my back. He told me I had kidney trouble, and handed me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, saying it was the best thing he could possibly give me. I tried them, and the effect was certainly marvelous. They are worth $10.00 a box of anybody's money, and I would not be without a box by me. I certainly owe my present condition to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

PILES Do not suffer another day with Itching, Blind, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. ROMANCE OF BEGGING.

Big Fortunes Which Have Been Made In the Gutter.

The public have been warned by magistrates and others to refrain from giving money indiscriminately to beggars, but few people are aware of the large sums that are often made by street wanderers, who tell pitiful tales of poverty while they have thousands of pounds hidden away at home.

Only the other day, an old man named William Robbie died at Ballarat, in Australia. He had been a familiar figure on the street of the town for many years, and charitable passers-by, who pitied him for his evident poverty, used often to become quite sentimental over his sad condition. After Robbie's death, the public were astonished to learn that he had left scrip to the value of $140,000, all made by begging, and that he had bequeathed the whole of it to the Ballarat Hospital and the Aberdeen University.

A couple of years ago, a tragedy happened in a street in Berlin which revealed an astonishing state of things. An aged beggar named Frankfurter, who was well known to pedestrians in the German capital, suddenly fell down dead while he was engaged in plying his trade of asking for alms from the charitable. When his clothes were examined by the police, securities worth $45,000 were found.

A man who was arrested for begging at Muolan, in Switzerland, was found to have bank notes to the value of $27,500 concealed in the lining of his clothes, and an old beggar woman who died a few years since in Metz, left behind her $37,500.

A few years back, there was a beggar in London who confessed that he earned thirty-five shillings every day at the game. The remarkable part about this man was that he led a double life, and his story was certainly as strange as the strangest fiction. The son of a clergyman, he was born in Canada, when quite a youth he was sent over to England, where for a time he acted as a choir boy in a church. Later on, he enlisted in the army, but in 1904 he determined on a bold stroke. Buying half-a-dozen boxes of matches, he took the streets, pretending that he was paralysed and began to prey on the good nature of pedestrians. He did so well at that that he was enabled to keep a handsome villa in the suburbs, and no one who knew him when he was at home ever dreamed that he spent his days asking alms in the city streets.

On one occasion this particularly cute humbug had a nasty experience. One gentleman was so sorry for him that he secured for him an order to go into a hospital. The gentleman was so insistent that, fearing discovery, the beggar had to go to the institution and be examined by the doctors.

Gift to Battleship.

The handsome tampions which fill the muzzles of the battle cruiser Australia's eight 12-inch guns are the work of the greatest sculptor whom Australia has produced, the first among the sculptors of the British Empire to-day—Mr. Bertram Mackennal, A.R.A. Before the Australia left England it was desired to obtain for the tampions some design containing a reference to the ship in which Captain Cook discovered the east coast of Australia, and claimed for the British Empire. The design had been suggested, but the difficulty was that the services of the sculptor who would have executed it would have been somewhat expensive, and naval expenditure does not concern itself usually with mere ornamentation. It was at this juncture that Mr. Mackennal stepped into the breach—or, into the muzzle—and designed, as a gift for the flagship, the handsome pattern which fills the Australia's muzzles to-day.

Salt and Fresh Water Lakes.

Fresh water lakes are always only expansions of rivers, due to the particular topographical configuration of a valley. They are all characterized by the fact that the water that they receive runs out either continuously or intermittently and that the chemical consitution of their water remains constantly the same as that of the streams and rivers of the same region. Salt lakes, on the other hand, are always closed basins, without outlet, and their water is removed only by surface evaporation. These facts being well understood, we see at once why the former lakes contain fresh water and the others salt water. Water is nature's great solvent. Hardly a single substance, simple or compound, escapes its dissolving action. Consequently the water that flows over the earth's surface or in its depths contains constantly in solution substances that finally accumulate in the great common reservoir, the ocean, whose mass, removed only by evaporation, becomes more and more charged with saline matter.

Another Peer in Business.

Lord Haldon, who has started an artificial teeth society with Lady Haldon in Oxford street, is only another member of the upper House who is also a business man.

Lord Londonderry is, strictly speaking, a coal merchant, and the carts bearing his name may often be seen in the streets of London. Lord Rayleigh's milk shops are well known in the west end, and a former Lord Hampden was in the same trade.

Other members of their lordships' houses turn an honest penny on the Stock Exchange, in the cigar trade, and in the perfumery business.

$250,000 Worth of Dogs.

At the Kennel Club's show at the Crystal Palace recently some 3,700 dogs were on exhibition, whose value, in the aggregate amounted to over $250,000. The business of feeding this hungry company was considerable. Several tons of patent food and 300 sheeps' heads were provided for three days' ration. A mile or two of wooden benching and 10,000 wire frames were put up to pen the exhibits, and twenty cartloads of straw brought for their comfort.

It All Depends on the Liver

So important is the liver and so great is its influence on the other vital organs of the body that it may be said you have little to fear from the ordinary ills of life so long as the liver is in healthful working order. The digestive processes are so dependent on free action of the liver that any derangement of this organ soon brings trouble.

Biliousness and constipation follow, with headache and depressed spirits. Additional work is thrown on the kidneys and soon the whole eliminating system is deranged and the blood carries poisons through the body. Careful eating is a great help towards keeping the liver right, but when it does get wrong there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to restore the liver to healthful action.

With the secretion of bile by the liver, constipation and biliousness are cured, and the digestive and excretary systems are set in order. It is wondrful the benefit obtained by a few doses of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills under these circumstances. A trial will convince you of their superior merit.

THE WINE OF THE CASSIQUIARE

BY CHARLES LEONARD MOORE.

(Copyright, ' . by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

"ADIOS, Concepcion!"

"Adios, señor!"

"Señor! You are cold, my child!"

"It is you who are cold You are going to leave me."

"It is only for a week, Concepcion."

"You say, 'only a week.' You do not love me."

"It is a thousand years. But I will be back."

"Adios! I must hurry home. My father will find that I have stolen out to part with you. He will lock me up."

"One moment, Concepcion. Give me somethin. to remember you by. Give me that ribbon from your neck."

"Oh, you won't want to remember me. There are Indian girls where you are going. They will steal you from me. I know them."

"There are no girls. There are only jaguars und bons."

"Alas, they will eat you! Why did I ever love a man who keeps company with tigers and snakes!"

"You love me! You confess it!

"Adios!"

"One kiss, dear one!"

"Let me go!"

"On your eyes! On your lips!"

"Quick! It is not lucky to count them. There, that is enough. I must go. Adios!"

The girl's lithe form slid from Don Manuel's arms. She stood poised a moment, palpitant—her face glowing, her eyes sparkling, and then, waving her hand backward, she ran down the path to the village. The young man called after her.

"In one week from this hour I will return, Concepcion. Meet me here!"

The tropic sun had just leaped into the sky. It flooded the air with a light as of melted diamonds. It broke upon the gloomy forest until every tree, drenched with dew, glittered like a cascade of foam over black rocks. It smote the inky waters of the Rio Negro until every dimple on them was a cup of gold. It touched the red tiled roofs and white adobe walls of the little village in the river's curve until it seemed a nest of palaces.

Manuel stood until the girl had disappeared, and then he descended the bank and entered a canoe. A dozen strokes of the paddle shot the boat around a little point of land and into the mouth of a small stream. It was one of the many "igarapes" or waterways which intersect the Amazon country. One or two days' journey upward this particular stream joined the Cassiquiare, that marriage link between the Rio Negro and the Orinoco.

Finding the Jar.

As Don Manuel sent his canoe on, shelving beaches and open banks soon gave way to thick forest growths rising straight from the water's edge, in lofty, curving ranks. The stream glided through the forest, under the forest, for ere long the trees on either hand sent their boughs in mighty arches to meet above it. It was a woody cave, from whose roof vines and orchid plants hung down, the living stalactites of the place. Enough sunlight pierced the foliage to light Don Manuel's path and dimly outline the flowering growths and grotesque tree forms beside and above him. Here and there gaps in the interlacing canopy let in the morning sun to blotch the black waterway with pools of blood. The place was shrill with the cries of monkeys and macaws, waked to their daily tasks.

After many hours' passage through this twilight or nocturnal world the path opened upon sunnier albeit even wilder scenes. Ledges of rock along the banks prevented the close growth of forest, and the little river itself was strewn with bowlders of gigantic size and grotesque shapes. Through these Don Manuel had to guide his canoe with care. Far over the tops of the nearer trees he could see the heave of distant heights.

And now the young man began to exhibit signs of caution. He looked to his rifle that lay at hand at the bottom of the canoe and loosened his revolver in its sheath. And he brought out the little silver cross which hung about his neck, beneath his shirt, and pressed it to his lips. For his mind was less intent on the material dangers in his path, jaguar or peccary or water boa, than on terrors supernatural and mysterious. He was approaching a realm of enchantment. Legends passing from lip to lip among the slightly civilized Indians or the simple manioc river folk gave to the region an evil repute. They told of vanished cities and races: of animals endowed with strange intelligence and supernatural life, upon whom the hunters' bullets had no effect; of explorers who had entered this wilderness to return no more. In mingled doubt and daring Don Manuel held his way into the heart of these wonders. At night he camped on the river bank and dreamed horribly.

The next morning he resumed his journey. Cliffs and pinnacles of strange colored rocks, red and yellow and white, clothed with fantastic creepers, now rose about him. About midday he decided to come to a halt and make his meal. A pile of rocks in the middle of the stream caught his eye, and paddling to it he moored his boat to one of the sharp projections and sprang out. Between the confusedly heaped bowlders was a little pool. A great rock, which had evidently lain across it, had been toppled aside by some violent flood, disclosing a watery crypt. Something gleamed in the depths of the recess. Don Manuel plunged his arm in and could feel the surface of a rounded, metallic object. It seemed to be a jar embedded in the sand. He was compelled to enter the pool and work with both hands under water before he could loosen it. Even then it was so heavy that all his strength was required to bring it up to the air.

He set the thing on a level table of stone and examined it curiously. It was a graceful, urn shaped vessel, about eighteen inches high and ten across at the widest. It was made of gold, which the sand and the running water had kept wonderfully bright. All over it was embossed with exquisite designs figures of men and women intermingled with coiling serpents, crouching tigers, and flying birds. The top seemed to be screwed or cemented on, and after many efforts to open it he took his hunting knife and cut a circle through the rather soft metal. He hesitated a moment before removing the cap. What might be in this strangely hidden depositary—treasure of precious gems, secret records of some enchanted past, or liquid of poisonous fumes which might strike him dead or send him raving through the forest?

The Mysterious Liquid.

Finally he lifted the lid and looked within. The vessel was about two-thirds full of a liquid, greenish at first, but which on contact with the air changed and seemed charged with opalescent hues. A fire of colors, white and gold and red, writhed, coiled, bubbled before his eyes. Fascinated by this play of light, he gazed and gazed until at last he was drawn to touch the liquid with his finger. It was cool and smooth, and he lifted a few drops up to the

A shrill scream overhead made him pause. From a vast and grotesquely contorted tree on the river bank a great bough reached over the little island. Along this branch, screaming and grimacing, scrambled the largest monkey Don Manuel had ever seen. He had originally been black, but evidently had turned the most part of his front gray. A cloud of silver white hair framed his retreating forehead and protruding jaw. Age had not impaired his activity, however, for he came down the bough like a flash, and, hanging for a moment suspended at its end, dropped on all fours at Don Manuel's feet.

The latter recoiled and drew his revolver, but his visitor made overtures of peace. Sprawling at full length, he put his paws as to deprecate violence, and then crawling forward, bowed his head humbly before the young man. His looks were so venerable, his action so piteous, that Don Manuel put his weapon back.

Then the creature, squatting before him, pointed with one paw to the jar, while with the other he motioned toward his head. Don Manuel, nothing loath to test his discovery, made a gesture of invitation. But no! The monkey seemed to desire the wine without rather than within. He made motions as if scattering it over his person. At last Don Manuel stepped forward and, dipping his hand into the liquid, sprinkled a few drops on his petitioner's head.

What had happened? There in the blaze of the sunlight stood a thing as royal as the sun. It was the figure of a man, old, indeed, but majestic as the gods. His hair and beard were white, his features noble, his eyes solemn and mysterious. He was clad in a purple cloak and tunic. Belted by his side was a sword in a sheath of gold, and from his shoulder hung a curving horn of the same metal. Upon his head he wore a crown, wherein shone the lustre of immense emeralds.

With lofty courtesy this being bowed to Don Manuel and seemed to express his thanks in words of solemn and unusual sound. He pointed to the canoe and to the further shore, as though requesting passage. Amazed and dazed, Don Manuel entered the boat, and would have left behind the golden urn which had procured him so wonderful an acquaintance, but the stranger lifted it up and placed it in the canoe as a most precious cargo.

Landed on the shore the royal visitant motioned in grave request for Don Manuel to bear the jar. He himself climbed a ledge of rocks from which various animal paths diverged into the forest; and, obeying as in a dream, the other followed. Placing his horn to his lips the old man blew a few mellow, musical notes. There was a pause and then a deep, purring scream came in return. Down a forest path glided a mighty beast. Don Manuel recognized the small head, the dusky angularly spotted body, the powerful limbs and claws of a jaguar. At sight of the two men the animal halted as though astonished, and then with a quick cry trotted forward. Manuel stood petrified as the beast, reaching him, rubbed its head, purring, against the arm which held the jar. Then at a command from the old man he flung some of the liquid upon its upturned face.

Again a transformation! More slowly than before—as though loath to leave the lithe curves, the splendid dyes, the incarnate power of that tiger shape, a woman rose before him. She was tall; her head was rather small, with wide, low brows; her rounded arms and shoulders were bare; she moved with imperial langnor, set with rubies. She bore a resemblance to the kingly stranger, and from the look of joy and affection which leaped between them Don Manuel set them down as father and daughter.

Again a Transformation! A Woman Rose Before Him.

And now the young Bolivian was ready for anything. The spirit of adventure was on him; a tide of desire rose in his veins. The girl's deep colored eyes flashed upon him, her red lips parted in a smile. The old man gazed upon them both with satisfaction. Then he grew grave and motioned them on. The three took up their march through the forest.

At frequent intervals as they went the with mysterious seduction. She was robed in scarlet and the filleted hand of gold which gleamed in the dark hair was old king sounded upon his horn. And at every call there would glide upon their path some forest anima to receive baptism from Don Manuel's hand and undergo transformation. Another jaguar turned into a great limbed warrior with glittering arms. A boa-constrictor, coming to them with undulating haste, became a woman with matronly charms. Monkeys grew into splendid lords and a water tapir was transformed into a portly counsellor of state. A herd of peccaries trotting into a sunlit glade were turned into a cohort of soldiers with flashing swords and shields. Gaudy hued macaws stooped from their heights above and were reborn into glittering girls. Parroquets and love birds and rich dyed, flaunting moths became fair children. By nightfall a glorious train of mortals threaded those gloomy forest defiles, following their king and their deliverer.

Marriage of Don Manuel.

For days the procession traversed the woods, continually increasing in numbers, swelling at last to a great population. Don Manuel noticed that their path drew upward to the hills. The trees grew sparser and the rocky passages and barriers were all about them. At last they entered a tortuous, almost secret, defile in the hills, and passing through this came upon a wide, well watered valley, shut in by perpendicular cliffs. In the centre of the vale was a great, square topped eminence, up which, by an ancient roadway choked and overgrown with vegetation, they toilsomely made their way.

On the summit of this square topped mount were the ruins of mighty walls and gateways. Or, rather, these structures were almost intact, but so overgrown with trees and vines, so buried in the mould of years as to seem resumed into nature. The transformed multitude, working with order and discipline, soon cleared a passage through one of the gateways and spaces in the streets and squares beyond. Out of pavements of jasper, through windows of marble, above roofs of gold, were thrust the boughs of trees. Foliage canopied the streets, vines and creepers clothed the house fronts. The iguana basked upon the steps of palaces. Jaguars littered in the basins where fountains had plashed. Yet of such indestructible materials was the city builded that it only needed to clear out the intrusion of the forest, to dig away the mould and repair the occasionally shattered walls and it was ready for habitation.

There were many hands for such repair and restoration, and soon the city resumed its primal aspect of gorgeous beauty. Its streets were thronged with stately life. The King reigned as of old. The various orders of the people fell into their old places and occupations. Nothing was changed, but that Don Manuel, whom all regarded and reverenced as a deliverer, was with them.

In him, however, all was changed. As the forest luxuriance had obliterated the city, so a giant growth of feelings and desires overcame in his mind all memory of the past. He forgot Concepcion. He forgot his father's home. He forgot the white walled village by the Rio Negro. He thought of nothing but the daughter of the King. And she, with something of a catlike cruelty still slumbering in her nature, exultant in her power over the saviour of her race, played and wrought upon his passions.

By this time he had come to understand something of the language of his hosts, could gather the import of their solemn utterance. One day the King called him aside and said:—

"Noble youth, I see that you love Inirida, and that she, after the manner of women, plays with your devotion.

"It is time that affairs were settled between you and the succession to my throne secured. If we of this old race had been content with our transformation, if we could have borne imprisonment in those hideous, bestial shapes, the hateful magic would have inspired us perpetual life. For centuries we had roamed yonder forests; for centuries more we might have crawled or climbed or flown about its precincts. But we, too, bear noble minds. With you, our deliverer, came the chance of escape to the form erect and lofty thought of man. But becoming human again, we accept the penalties of humanity—sickness and age and death. My day, I know, is nearly done, but before I depart I wish I see you wedded to my daughter that our royal line may live."

So the marriage was decreed and a great feast declared in the city. Wines that had been buried for ages in secret crypts were disinterred. Jewels that had lain amid the forest débris were brought to light to adorn the forms of men and women's radiant fronts. By day the streets were paved and canopied with flowers; by night bonfires and torches flared under the tropic stars. And amid these rejoicings Don Manuel received the wild, imperious, gracious Inirida into his arms.

Time passed on. The King died and Don Manuel wore the emerald crown. There was much to do. The industries which sustain life had to be directed; the arts which ennoble it encouraged. His bride was tamed to a matron's sweetness, yet with flashes of strange fire in her which puzzled and entranced. Children came to them, budded, bloomed, were playthings, comrades, counsellors. The cup of Don Manuel's felicity was full, though old age came apace upon him. His hair whitened, his form grew bent. He sat in the sun and let the others act.

One day he came upon the clothes he had worn on his arrival in the city. He had forgotten them and their appearance caused him a shock. Old memories gathered mistily in his mind. In the pocket of his hunting blouse he found a ribbon, faded, discolored—a paltry thing. But in a flash he recalled where he had seen it last. He recalled Concepcion's throat, the radiant face above it. The ribbon warmed his hand and sent a thrill through his frame.

Then the past was all in all and his present life seemed a loathsome thing. He could hear his wife moving through the rooms beyond, and he shuddered as he recalled the stealthy, gliding jaguar of the forest. He saw the glare and glow of the city through the window and it seemed a precinct of appalling hell.

He hid himself throughout that day and when all was still at night he cast his royal garments aside and assumed the old, half rotted garb of his youth. Concepcion's ribbon he tied about his neck, and thus accoutred he stole forth into the sleeping city and by many devious paths found exit unseen.

He knew his way through the defile that gave approach to the valley and from thence on some instinct seemed to lead him. He retraced the path through the hills and the rocky wilderness. He plunged into the great forest and the right direction seemed blazoned on his mind. Finally he came to the banks of the little stream, and there was the strangely shaped islet of bowlders, the chamber of the accursed wine.

Concepcion de la Torre.

All that day he moved as fast as his failing strength could impel the canoe. At night he slept under the solemn arches of the cavernod waterway. Starting again early next morning it was only a little after daybreak that he emerged at the mouth of the igarape. Landing at the point whence he had started, he let his canoe drift out into the great river, while he ascended the bank.

At the top of the slight rise a figure started up before him. It was that of a girl, slender, fresh, crowned with flowers. To his old sight it seemed an apparition—the ghost of Concepcion herself. He fell at her feet in agitation and despair.

"Who are you, senorita?" he asked.

"I am Concepcion de la Torre," she answered, stooping to help him.

"Ah!" he said, satisfied that she was flesh and blood. "You are the daughter of the other Concepcion, then?"

"No, Señor," she said, "my mother's name was Rosario."

"But it is impossible," he stammered. "You are not the Concepcion I mean! You are not the betrothed of Manuel Prado!"

"I do not know how you knew it, Señor, but it is true. I am Concepcion, the betrothed of Don Manuel Prado. He left me for a voyage in the woods a week ago and bade me meet him here at this hour."

"But do you not know me, then, Concepcion?"

"No, Señor! I cannot think I have ever seen you. But you are old and feeble. Lean on my arm and I will guide you to the village. Doh Manuel can wait."

"Look at me, Concepcion. Do you not recognize my features?"

"Alas, no, Señor! Your face is kind and noble. I feel no fear of you, in spite of your insistence. But I know you not!"

"Do you know this ribbon, Concepcion?"

"The ribbon! It is old and faded, but it looks like one I gave to Manuel a week ago. It is his! What have you done with Don Manuel, Señor?"

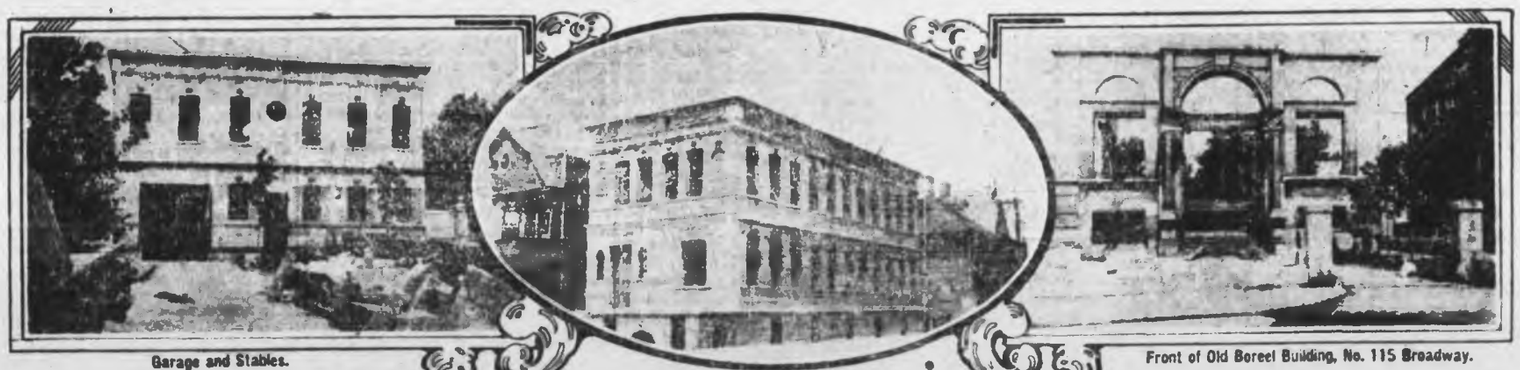
"Do you want Don Manuel, Concepcion?"

"He is my betrothed. I love him. Have you robbed him? Have you murdered him? Such was the fashion of the clothes he wore. Where is he? Tell me, I beg you, Señor!"

"Listen, Concepcion. I would not tell you, but I am dying. It may make it easier for you to know. You will not think yourself deserted. I am Don Manuel! I am that unfortunate being! I have been under enchantment in the forest. I have lived a lifetime in a week. I have dreamed and now I wake to learn my loss. Pity me, my love! Pity me, Concepcion. Kiss me farewell, if you can. Adios! Adios!"

The old man sank back into Concepcion's arms and his eyes filmed in death. The girl, o'erwrought with awe and grief and horror, hung above him and shrieked his name, "Don Manuel, Don Manuel!"

JERSEY CITY'S GRAVEYARD OF ARCHITECTURAL FREAKS.



Garage and Stables. The Marble House of Many Windows. Front of Old Borcel Building, No. 115 Broadway.

JERSEY CITY (N. J.) has what the inhabitants term "a graveyard of architectural monstrosities." It is located in Kensington avenue, in a residential portion of the city, overlooking the Hudson County Park.

In an unfinished state there is a corner house of many windows, constructed of white marble and granite, built in the style of the Renaissance, suitable for a hospital or a library. There is no glass in the windows; the doors are boarded up and the front steps are detached from the main structure.

To the left of the "house of many windows" is a Doric gateway opening upon an esplanade with a wide driveway sweeping through. On either side of the esplanade are wide, comfortable, granite seats, that appear to have been transplanted from an ancient palace of one of the Doges of Venice. Rising from the centre of the esplanade is the front of the old Borcel Building, which was formerly at No. 115 Broadway, New York. This old building has been re-erected to the height of but one story, bragging out, however, in bold relief its old Roman doorway. The foundations have been built for all four sides, and the girders are in place, giving one the impression that the workmen have just laid off for lunch and will soon resume work.

The sidewalk is composed of thirteen flagstones that were also a part of the old Borcel Building. These flags are each 8 by 13 feet and 14 inches thick, and each weighs about eight tons. Scattered about the grounds and used as a coping are some of the largest foundation stones ever brought to this country. These stones are fourteen feet long, and were imported from Scotland and used in the building of the old Washington Market in New York city.

Looming up as ghosts of a forgotten generation are a French chalet, with bay and dormer windows, and a French villa, built along classic lines, with carved dormer windows and balcony rail. These curious warning for the guiding hand of merely anchored on stone foundations which would support a ten or a twelve story steel frame office building.

In the rear of the plot is a building with a wide doorway, constructed in the pure Roman style. This may have been intended for a garage or stables, but like all the other buildings it remains empty, awaiting the guiding hand of some one who will be a happy solution of the servant girl problem.

The owner of this plot of ground and these fantastic structures is Mr. Thomas Hill, of Jersey City. Mr. Hill is a wagon builder by trade, and it is said has made a million dollars or more out of the patent dump carts that are in use by the thousands in the New York city streets.

His present hobby is to transplant the stones of the Hudson County Court House, which was built in 1843 and which he is now demolishing, to his plot overlooking Hudson County Park, and on the foundations of the old Borcel Building, with its Romanesque front, erect an apartment house with no two sides alike. Two white marble mantels that were once in the home of the late A. T. Stewart will compose the principal decoration of the foyer of this proposed unique apartment house. "These mantels," said Mr. Hill, "are hand carved, of foreign workmanship, and there are no better examples of hand carving on either metal or stone to be found anywhere in the world." The building is to be eight stories in height, Mr. Hill says, and so arranged that all of the culinary operations of the families living therein will be conducted in the basement in one common kitchen. This, Mr. Hill believes, will be a happy solution of the servant girl problem.

SOUTHEY'S LIBRARY

Cotton Print Was Used to Bind Many Worn Volumes

Robert Southey, the English poet, had a library consisting of at least 14,000 volumes, and it is believed to be the largest number of books collected by any one of such limited means.

Mr. Southey's son in writing of his father's library says that the books were mostly in vellum or parchment, and his brother, Thomas Southey, being a skilful letterer, painted the backs of the books in some bright color and printed the titles on this colored background in large gold letters of the old English type.

Another fancy of the poet's was to have all the books of lesser value, which had become ragged and dirty, covered, or rather bound, in colored cotton prints, for the sake of making them clean and respectable, since he could not afford to have so many put into leather bindings.

His daughters, aided by any female friend who might be staying with them, performed that task, and they bound thus, at different times, some 1,400 volumes. They filled one room completely, and Southey called it "the Cottonian library." He took great pleasure in watching and directing this work.

The women would often suit the pattern to the contents, they would clothe a Quaker work or a book of sermons in sober drab, poetry in some flowery pattern, and sometimes they would contrive a sly piece of satire at the expense of some work by their choice of its binding. There was one convenience about this mode of binding, for the books were identified by their conspicuous dress, and were easily found.

PLAN OF ANCIENT CITY

Cuzco, in Land of Incas, Patterned Like Roman Camp

The ancient city of Cuzco, when first viewed by European eyes, was, according to the best authorities, a great and wealthy municipality of perhaps 2,000 souls. How old it was at that time we have scant means of knowing. No written history of the race exists—only the records of the quipus, those queer knotted strings that were the Incas' sole documents, and for which no archæologist has as yet discovered the key, the Rosetta stone.

Cuzco's original plan was, singularly enough, that of the Roman camp, a quadrangle divided by two intersecting streets into quarters, with a gate on each face and towers at the angles.

The Incas had no more definite name for their country than Tavantinsuyu, the empire of four provinces. The four streets of the capital prolonged by great roads, divide it into four main provinces, each under the dominion of its governor. When their people came to Cuzco they lodged in their own quarter where they adhered to their national costumes and the customs of their own province.

The city to-day retains the same general plan, its two principal streets being practically the old main thoroughfares. Its two eastern quarters lie upon steep hillsides; the two western are in the valley, where runs a little river, the Huantansy, spanned by bridges.

The northeast quarter was the Palatine Hill of this Southern American Rome, and contains the palaces of the kings, for each Inca, after the manner of the Roman emperors, built his own abode, scorning to live in that of his predecessors.

The Pyramids

A celebrated Australian engineer who made a study of the pyramids wrote an elaborate argument to prove that the pyramids themselves were built for scientific purposes, the principal object being their use as immense theodolites to survey the land accurately after the boundary marks had been obliterated by the periodical overflow of the Nile. That they were used for the astronomical purposes is also generally believed by those who have studied their construction.

Enthusiastic Over Air Fleet.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The national subscription for the French aer l war fleets amounts to $1,200,000, according to announcement made by Senator Reymond, president of the national aviation committee at a fete at the Sorbonne Saturday, presided over by M. Poincare, President of the republic.

The lists are now closed and the fund, Senator Reymond added, would enable the committee to present to the army 210 aeroplanes, pay for the training of 75 expert pilots and erect 70 aeroplane sheds at ports of call.

His Wife Says He Left Her on the Railway Tracks.

BRANTFORD, Feb. 2.—Peter Williams, an Indian, was brought here Saturday morning from Caledonia to answer to a serious charge, preferred against him by his wife, who says her husband Friday struck her with his fists and stabbed her in the shoulder with a knife.

Then, after beating her into insensibility, he placed her body on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks near their home, and then fled to Caledonia, where he was arrested. She regained consciousness before a train happened along and found herself lying across the railway rails. Williams denies this.

Fine Horses Destroyed.

LINCOLN, Mass., Feb. 2—Twenty-one thoroughbred horses belonging to A. Henry Higginson, were lost in a fire which destroyed the big racing stable on the Higginson country estate Saturday night. Only four horses were saved. The total loss is estimated at over $60,000.

Some of the employes think the fire was set. Three of Mr. Higginson's most valuable hunters, Prince Hampton, Sir Worcester and Rose Fenton, worth $5,000 apiece, were lost.

Comb Sage Tea In Hair To Darken It

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening grey, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

SUN POWER PLANT

This Invention is Seen on the Bank of the Nile

A public demonstration was given at Meadi, near Cairo, Egypt, of the workings of a sun-power plant. The plant covers several acres of land on the west bank of the Nile. A series of reflectors and absorbers, a low-pressure steam engine, a condenser and a pump comprise the principal independent units of the mechanism.

There are five reflectors, each of which is 204 feet long and parabolic in form. They are spaced at intervals of 20 feet and made up of a series of one-eighth-inch glass mirrors. The reflectors aggregate a total light absorption surface of 13,500 square feet, are placed in iron frames and geared and interconnected with the engine by an arrangement of cogwheels. The mirrors automatically follow the course of the sun and are regulated by what is termed a thermostat, the secret of the invention.

Running exactly down the centre of each reflector is the boiler or absorber, a box of three-eighths of an inch metal with a tube at the top. By means of an automatic feed the box is constantly half full of water. The reflected sun rays are concentrated on these boilers, and the steam generated is led from the various units to the engine. The 100-horse-power engine is of the low-pressure type. The exhaust is condensed to water and returned to the boilers.

What Day Were You Born?

Among the innumerable superstitions about babies is the old saw about the day of birth:

Monday's child is fair of face.
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is sour and sad,
Thursday's child is merry and glad,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child must work for a living.
But the child that is born on the Sabbath Day
Is blithe and bonny and good and gay.

Only Sardine Fishery in Canada

The province of New Brunswick has this distinction: it possesses the only sardine fishery in Canada. The fishing is carried on in the waters of Passamaquodd Bay and the waters around the Islands of Grand Manan and Campobello, and the West Isles, in the Bay of Fundy. Of such importance is this fishery, and in such masses do the fish appear that the fishermen who prosecute their calling amongst those islands depend largely upon it for their livelihood.

Storm Dislocated The Entire Niagara Hydro-Electric System

And a Score of Manufacturers Were Plunged Into Darkness—Sleet and Wind Carried Away Cables.

WILL DOUBLE LINE

TORONTO, Feb. 2. — For the second time within a year the Hydro-electric ha been stricken. The storm on Saturday night dislocated the entire Niagara ..stem extending over a radius of nearly three hundred miles for a period varying from six to seven hours. A score of municipalities were plunged into immedi.. darkness. Street lamps went out, cars were stopped, and the incandescent lamps in stores and homes comprising the immense circuit faded into nothingness. It all happened in a moment.

A hurricane exceeding in velocity eighty-five miles an hour, carrying with it a heavy sleet, struck the main trunk line at Vinemount, about mid-distance between Dundas and Niagara Falls, causing a break in two transmission cables, and the loose ends of these were in turn blown across two other cables, rendering the four useless and paralysing the system. There are six cables in all and any three are sufficient to complete a circuit, but when four went out of commission everything had to wait until repairs could be made.

Hon. Adam Beck, who has just returned from England, lost no time in getting in touch with conditions on the system. When interviewed at London last night as to what the commission proposed doing to prevent a recurrence of trouble like that of Saturday, Mr. Beck said: "This has been the first breakdown of any cable on our system in four and a half years of operation. We did not anticipate it, although we have already increased the size of the cable to be used on the extension from St. Thomas to Windsor.

"The only other trouble we have had was with the insulators last summer, and we are satisfied that we have entirely overcome that.

"With the view of meeting the increased demand for power, as well as insuring an uninterrupted service, the commission decided last autumn to build another double-circuit transmission line from Dundas to Niagara Falls, which will give four complete trunk line circuits. The route of the new line has been surveyed, and is five or six miles shorter than the old route. We expect to have the necessary appropriation from the Legislature in time to begin active work early in the spring. This line will be of extra heavy construction, and will provide a margin of safety that will overcome any stress that may be laid upon it."

Saturday's storm was a terrific one and the linemen who searched for and repaired the break at Vinemount had the worst fight in the history of the system. After the first break rapid tests were made all along the line. Dundas reported everything all right east to Toronto and west to London and Stratford. The trouble zone was narrowed to the trunk section between Dundas and Niagara Falls.

Without waiting for the second casualty, the linemen sprinted out in pairs over the intervening distance of fifty-five miles, using whatever means of locomotion the circumstances would afford. Automobiles were out of the question. It was dangerous to attempt horseback, so cutters and buggies for the most part were utilized, while some went on foot. It was a cold, tiresome, perilous hunt, struggling for to see against wind and weather.

Towards 10 o'clock the storm abated somewhat and progress was more rapid. Mile by mile the line was patrolled, and finally, at Vinemount, the most exposed part of the escarpment, the two breaks were found close together with the severed strands dangling across two other cables, causing an additional short circuit. Temporary repairs were made, the best that the darkness and other conditions would permit. This done, a telephone message was sent to the transformer station at Niagara Falls to "test out." The report was "O.K.," and the service was restored.

JOHN KELLEHER INJURED BY HIS SNOW PLOW

Jolted Off it Near the Church of the Sacred Heart and Picked up Unconscious

LOST CONSIDERABLE BLOOD

John Kelleher who received the contract for the removal of snow in a section of the South Ward met with a severe accident while pursuing his duties on Saturday afternoon about four o'clock near the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets.

He was sitting on the plough as it was pulled along, and it is likely that it struck against some projection and jolted Mr. Kelleher from his seat. He does not remember exactly what happened, but this is the most likely explanation. His head struck the iron wing of the plow, cutting a deep wound on his forehead and rendering him unconscious. He rolled up to the sidewalk and the horse pulled into the road and continued its way.

Mr. Kelleher's son was driving another plough on Romaine street and hurried to his father. Mr. Tom Bacon and Mr. Wm. Collins were also quickly on the scene. Mr. Kelleher was removed to his son's residence on Romaine street. He did not regain consciousness for several hours, and had a vague idea of the nature of the accident. Dr. Malcolm McCullough dressed the wound. Mr. Kelleher was resting easily to-day at his home on Lake street.

Members of the Church of the Sacred Heart and St. James' Church noticed the blood-stained snow at the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets on Sunday morning, and wondered at the cause of such a quantity of incarnadined snow.

Western Storm Fatal To Family

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ESTEVAN, Sask., Feb. 2.— Terrible experiences of the family of a homesteader named Jno. Schwab, twenty miles from here, are reported to-day. Schwab, with his young son, hurrying home with fuel, was caught in a storm and narrowly escaped death. He arrived home, partially frozen, to find his wife unconscious with her eighteen months old child in her arms frozen to death. The two parents and the surviving son are now in the hospital sick and may die.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The Life Problem Club had a record attendance at their meeting Sunday afternoon. Dr. Moir gave a very helpful address. His subject being, "What a Young Man Ought to Know." The speaker for Sunday, February 7th will be Edgar S. Webb, Physical Director Orillia Y.M.C.A.

Hockey.

The City League team and the "Ponies" of the Church League will play a practice game at Brock Street rink to-night at 6 p.m.

The Colts of the Junior Church League will meet the Knox Church team to-night on Parker's rink from 7.00 to 8.00 p.m.

Classes.

All the gymnasium classes will be in full blast during the week. Indoor baseball and basketball are the favourite games among the different classes.

Basketball.

One game remains to be played in the Employed Boys' Basketball League, Leaders v. Giants. This game will be played Tuesday, Feb. 3rd. If the Leaders win it gives them the championship; if the Giants win it ties the Brownies with the Leaders. Much depends on the outcome of this game.

REDUCE DUTIES ON AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS NOW

Rumour To-day Says Government Will Lower the Rates—But No Free Wheat

STAND OF OPPOSITION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—There is a well defined rumour in circulation in the corridors to-day to the effect that the government has in view a reduction of the duties on agricultural implements. It is stated that this will be announced in the coming budget speech. The report is that reduction will be equivalent, or perhaps slightly more, than that proposed by the reciprocity agreement, which varied from two and a half to five per cent. It is stated authoritatively that the government will not accede to the demand for free wheat, which is now being opposed stromely by milling interests and railway companies. The government will take the stand that while refusing to deprive farmers of protection which they now enjoy on their products it will assist the farmer by reducing duties on implements which he uses. It is practically certain that the Opposition will supplement their free food demands by a proposal for either the abolition of or for a very considerable decrease in duties on agricultural implements. The present conditions they believe, call for greater reduction than they did in time of reciprocity pact proposals.

CONTROLLER SIMPSON TO-MORROW EVENING

Will Give an Address in Knox Church

Controller James Simpson of Toronto will give an address in Knox Church to-morrow evening on "The Church and the Workingman." Mr. Simpson is well known throughout the length and breadth of Canada as an exponent of a policy designed to better the conditions of the workingman. At the last municipal election Mr. Simpson was elected to the Toronto Board of Control by a sweeping majority. He has since showed his fitness for the position by the many radical reforms that he has advocated. The address will commence at 8 o'clock.

WORKINGMEN'S COMPENSATION

A meeting of great interest will be held in the Labour Hall on Wednesday night, when Mr. Fred Bancroft of Toronto will give an address on "Workmen's Compensation." This subject is of much importance, and Mr. Bancroft's remarks should be followed with close attention. The meeting is an open one.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Receipts light, trade fair, prices steady, no change in cattle, calves, stockers, sheep or lambs. Hogs, fed and watered, $9.15 to $9.50; off cars $9.65 to $9.75, f.o.b. $9 to $9.10.

CEMENT WORK CLOSED FOR PRESENT YEAR

The following official statement was handed out last Monday morning from the Montreal office of the Canadian Cement Co.: "Owing to the dullness of business, we have decided to close down for the balance of the year 1914 or until further advised, plants No. 6, Marlbank, Ont.; No. 7, Lakefield, Ont.; No. 9, Shallow Lake, Ont., and No. 10, Calgary, Alta." The plant shut down at Marlbank will be a serious loss to the village, as it will throw about 200 men out of work.

REFUSED TO ANSWER COURT

Blacklister Given Two Weeks in Goal for Refusing to Tell Where He Got His Liquor

MAY GET THREE MONTHS

Robert Irwin, a local man, appeared in Police Court this morning, charged with being drunk while on the blacklist. He admitted that he had a drink, and that he was on the blacklist.

"Where did you get your liquor?" asked the chief.

"I'm not going to tell where I got my liquor," answered Irwin.

"You defy the Court then?" questioned the Magistrate.

"No. But I'm not going to tell where I got my liquor."

Irwin was asked to go in the witness box, and reluctantly he moved to obey. He stood for a minute at the door of the box peering anxiously into it.

"Hurry up!" said the Magistrate.

"How am I going to get in there, with a great big dog in there?"

"Get out of there!" said the Court, and the Magistrate's dog, awakened from its sleep, yielded possession of the box and let the prisoner in, amid the laughter of the audience.

"You are on the blacklist and were drunk yesterday?" said the Chief.

"Yes."

"I want you to tell us where you got your liquor."

"I'm not going to do it."

"You refuse to answer?"

"Positively."

"Well, you'll go to jail until you make up your mind that you will answer. You're committed to jail for two weeks."

Irwin was arrested last night by P. C. Hayward.

The Magistrate intimated that if Irwin persisted in his attitude he would be given three months.

AN OTTAWA LADY WRITES ON QUESTION OF A POLICEWOMAN

Below appears a letter written by an Ottawa lady, to a friend in the city, expressing her sentiments in regard to the question of a police-woman, from information taken from the report in The Examiner of the interview of the deputation of ladies with the Police Commissioners. The lady has been very prominently associated with the sociological movements, and was a M.D. in practice previous to her marriage to a very prominent man intimately associated with educational work. The letter is as follows:

In the Evening Examiner of Jan. 19th there appears what seems to be a very full account of the appeal of the Woman's Council and others to the Police Commissioners of Peterborough for the appointment of a policewoman.

At this distance and from what The Examiner reports, it would seem as if the reception accorded the deputation and the platitudes, mistatements and excuses used by the Commissioners might have the effect of converting every one of the deputation into militant suffragists.

To repeat platitudes such as "the evil of impurity had been in the world for ages." Everything sinful is not a breach of the law. "Accosting women on the street implies bad manners and low morality." "Let the pulpits teach morality," etc., is less of a compliment to the one who uses them for argument than to the intelligence of those addressed.

Mistatements such as stating that the policewomen of Ottwa had been on probation for three months, and that he understood the appointment in Ottawa had not been entirely successful were gratuitously made. As a matter of fact the two women sworn in last summer as women constables in Ottawa, had been doing preventive police work as travellers, aid officers, for three years, but were paid by philanthrophists, not by the city—until 2nd January, when one of them was put on the pay list along with the other police. Fortunately the Rev. Mr. Peever, from Ottawa, was present and able to state from personal knowledge that Mrs. Cheney and Miss Campbell had done, and were doing excellent work.

Excuses—That the men police were on their beats day and night (the admitting the deplorable laxity of manners and morals in and around Peterborough) "that they would make a great mistake by bringing a lady into this town" (?) and last refuge of a public man without any other weapon of defence "the people do not want reckless expenditure." "We must keep down the taxes," etc. That such a delegation representing teachers, doctors, nurses, business men, and nearly all the women voters—a delegation speaking for the best members of the city—and asking for the means of moral betterment of the community should be met by an attempt "to abuse the plaintiff's attorney" does more credit to the delegation than the commissioners. The delegation ask for a policewoman so as to protect the girls on the street—and—they are blamed for not doing volunteer police work themselves.

The delegation ask for a policewoman in order to prevent immorality, and are exhorted to build rescue homes instead.

Next year, no doubt, there will be some change in the personnel of the Board—but in the meantime—many girls will have gone the downward road. Many boys have been enticed from the straight road of decency and honour, and many mothers will have troubled minds and broken hearts—but then "we must keep down the taxes."

First Entrant in the Proposed Around-the-World Race

WHITE SAYS IMPOSSIBLE

Examiner Special:

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. — Captain Thomas Baldwin to-day was the first entrant in the proposed round-the-world aeroplane flight of the Panama-Pacific Exposition for which prizes aggregating $300,000 are expected to be offered. The race will start from the Exposition Grounds in May, 1915, as now planned and must be completed within ninety days. The announcement of the Aero Club of America offer for the around-the-world air race tremendously interested Claude Grahame White to-day, but the English aviator was skeptical of anyone winning the prize. "Certainly the flight around the world, as prescribed in the aero Club's offer is impossible with the present construction of aeroplanes."

DETECTIVES IN THE QUEBEC BRIBERY CASE ARE NOT IMMUNE

QUEBEC, Feb. 2—Hon. L. T. Taschereau, chairman of the Committee investigating charges of bribery in the Quebec Legislature by the Burns detectives, who put up a "plant," said to-day that immunity, granted by the Legislature to the Burns men as witnesses would be of no value in a case of criminal proceedings under the Federal Act. The Dominion criminal code provides fourteen years' imprisonment for briberv and proceedings may be taken against the detectives by friends of the accused legislators.

STRATHCONA LEFT A MILLION TO VICTORIA COLLEGE MONTREAL

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 2 - The will of the late Lord Strathcona filed to-day settles the Scottish estates and two and a half millions on his heirs in general. Residue of the estate is left to his daughter, Lady Strathcona, wife of Dr. Bliss Howard, after numerous personal and charitable legacies, including one million to the Royal Victoria College, Montreal, and $50,000 to St. John's College, Cambridge.

WEATHER MAN SAYS THE WINTER WILL BE SHORT DESPITE BEAR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—This is bear day in Canada and ground hog day in the United States, but the observatory discredits the traditions of shadows on Candlemas Day. The general opinion of the officials here is, notwithstanding what Mr. Bear does to-day, that this will be a comparatively short winter, with an early spring.

WARM PRAISE FOR THE LOCAL POLICE DEPARTMENT

Inspector Boyle, Here to Take Brodeur Back Expresses His Admiration For Clever Work of Authorities in Arresting the Alleged Murderer

PARTICULARS OF THE CASE

"I cannot express myself too deeply in praising the good work of the Peterborough Police Department," said Inspector John H. Boyle, of Springfield, Mass., to an Examiner representative this afternoon. Mr. Boyle is the Chief Inspector of Detectives of the Springfield Department, and is here in company with Inspector Quilty, to take back to Springfield, Arthur H. Brodeur, the man arrested by the local police, and who is wanted on the other side for murder.

"When you consider that this man has been at large for months, and according to his own story has been sleeping in police stations and jails without being recognized, it speaks volumes for the work of your Police Department. They are apparently up to date in every particular, and showed it in this case, by the way in which they memorized this circular and were able to detect this man. I have been in every principal city in the United States and Canada during by twenty-seven years of police work, and your Police Department compares most favourably with any. You have a fine chief here—in fact I think he is too good for a city of this size, and Detectives Newhall and Meagher are splendid officers and thoroughly up-to-date in their work."

Inspector Boyle was also most favourably impressed with the appearance of Peterborough, its wide, straight streets, and especially its lights.

"I have never been in a city that was better lighted," he remarked, "but for goodness sake get after your council and have them place some name signs on the streets. I have yet to see a sign board here, and strangers are greatly handicapped."

Inspectors Boyle and Quilty left on the 4:38 C.P.R. train with their prisoner.

Speaking of the case Inspector Boyle stated that Brodeur was wanted for shooting a woman named Mrs. Case with whom he roomed. The prisoner had been a wild young fellow, hailing originally from Chicopee, Mass., and had served a term in penitentiary for deserting from the United States army. He had met Mrs. Case at a circus in June, 1913, and from that meeting had developed an intimacy that finally resulted in his going to live with the woman and her husband. Brodeur stopped working and the woman used to supply him with money. On Sept 20, 1913, Mrs. Case's husband gave her $7 or $8 to pay the grocery bill. Brodeur tried to get her to elope with him, and when she refused, quarrelled with her and knocking her down took the money away from her. She persuaded another boarder to go after him and induce him to come back to the house. He finally came back and apparently the trouble was over, but about 10:30 or 11 o'clock he went out, bought a revolver, and returned about 11:15, when it is said he shot and killed the woman. He made his escape and the Springfield police heard nothing of him until word reached them of his arrest in Peterborough. Immediately after the crime they had sent out circulars to every town in the North American continent with a population over 500 people. Inspector Boyle could not understand how he come through two months in Guelph gaol without being

UNIONISTS POINT TO HOME RULE FAILURE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 2 — (Special cable.)— When Home Rule in South Africa has resulted so disastrously to British liberty how can Home Rule in Ireland be more effective?" This is the tenor of articles this morning in several Unionist papers who are making the most of the situation in South Africa to cast discredit on Home Rule for Ireland. It is stated in the Times to-day that England may yet have to send to South Africa more troops to assert Imperial supremacy over sub-ordinate legislature of South Africa. Some Imperialists declare that Governor-General Gladstone should be instructed to refuse the sanction of the government measures in South Africa till Botha amends for the exiling of labour leaders. The more moderate press, however, think the most the Imperial parliament can do would be to pass a resolution of protest.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A TRUCK

Peterboro' Man Was Injured in Toronto

While waiting for the C. P. R. train for Peterborough at 4.45 Friday evening at the Union Station, Toronto, a sister of the community of St. Joseph, Peterborough, was knocked down and seriously injured by a heavy loaded baggage truck that was being pushed along the platform. Many of the trackmen seem to delight in pushing their loads through a big crowd; careless of whom they injure. The Union Station authorities have started an investigation and will mete out pumshment by dismissal to those guilty of such acts.

The injured sister was able to return to Peterborough, and last reports give her condition as satisfactory.

MEN REFUSED EMPLOYMENT

On Monday last, the contractor employed in the construction of a local building engaged six men and instructed them to report for work the following morning. When Tuesday morning arrived and none of the men had put in an appearance the contractor engaged six more men with instructions to start work on Wednesday morning. Much to the surprise of the contractor only two men fulfilled their promise.

Out of twelve men to whom he had offered employment only two respond ed.

To expedite matters the contractor decided to institute a nine-hour day instead of eight, with a corresponding increase in wages. The men on the job refused to accede to this request and intimated that they would rather sacrifice their position than work an extra hour.

This would indicate that there are very few men out of work or else those that are without work are satisfied to remain so.

Contractors are almost a unit in declaring that the majority of those who are out of work have themselves to blame for their condition.

In the first seven months of last year 263,390 persons emigrated from the United Kingdom for permanent residence outside of Europe.

EXAMINER NEWS BOYS COMPETITION OFF TO GOOD START TO-NIGHT

Those Who Are Not Readers of the Examiner in Peterboro' Can Secure it From the Newsboys at 10c a Week. It is Good Business For Both the Reader and the Newsboy

The boys of the City started off in force to-night to win the cash prizes offered by the Examiner to boys who get the greatest number of customers for themselves between now and April 30th. The first prize is $25, the second prize is $20, and so on down the list for the first 27 boys. In addition to this list of prizes, three cash prizes will be given each week to the boys making the best weekly gain in new customers. Remember the boys deliver the papers themselves and get the profit on the papers they carry, as well. It is not a hard job to get subscribers to the Examiner, and one or two new ones each week is bound to win a prize. No boy is allowed to buy another boy's route, or exchange subscribers in any way.

The public is asked to give the little fellows every encouragement in their business of being a newsboy, and to bear in mind that the Examiner gives you all the news, all the time. You can order the paper from the newsboy and you just have to pay him 10c a week, and if the paper does not please you it is not compulsory for you to have it continued, but we know that when you once get reading it you will find you cannot do without it.

The Cash Prizes offered to Newsboys for selling the Examiner is fully explained in our 4-page Circular. Ask for one at the Office

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

MONDAY, FEB. 2, 1914.

THE UNEMPLOYED PROBLEM.

Toronto, with downcast eye and the meek bearing that goes with its characteristic modesty and unselfishness, is applying to the Provincial Government to advance $100,000 to help the city in giving work to its rather tidy army of unemployed. This help is claimed on the ground that in the fall, men flock to Toronto from all points, where they had open-air employment that winter weather ends. This is an argument that will apply to any other city in Ontario. The trend of the unemployed at the beginning of winter is no greater to Toronto in proportion to its populationo than to other and smaller cities. But Toronto sends eight members to the Legislature to keep the present government in power and this seems to Toronto to confer upon it a sort of divine right to exceptional treatment. Of course Toronto is the capital city of the province, but it gets special advantages from that fact that would satisfy any other city. It is claimed that the government whose immigration activities bring into the country, and is still bringing in, immigrants with the effect of increasing the congestion of unemployment, owes something to Toronto in the way of assisting to deal with a situation that its immigration policy has created. But the government owes no more to Toronto than, pro rata, to any other city. The objection should not be to immigration as a means of peopling the country, but to the character of the immigration, and its distribution and placing. The government could not show too much activity and enterprise in placing immigrants on the land. There are many unoccupied or practically unoccupied farms in Ontario; and there are thousands of tenant farmers in the Old Country who would like to make a change and try their fortunes in a new country. It would seem practicable, as it would doubtless be desirable for the government to adopt and apply a policy that would mean assisting such tenant farmers and others, who had not the ready means, to occupy and become owners of such farms, on conditions, that would ultimately mean return of the government expenditure involved. If to this were added the importation of farm labourers to be employed on such farms or upon others—of selected men who would work and be faithful to an engagement, the conditions would be improved. It would seem that $100,000, or even $1,000,000 expended in some such way as tentatively and generally outlined, would be better than any advance to a wealthy corporation like Toronto, to be spent in a form of charitable relief of the most temporary character. Peterborough and other cities have to look after their own unemployed, and would not think of holding out the hat for alms.

IMPERIALIZING THE DRAMA.

Mr. William Holles, Canadian managing director of the British-Canadian Theatre Organization Company, was in the city in the interests of imperialization, even in the matter of the drama. We boast of being a part of the empire upon which the sun never sets, but we are, in the matter of the drama, separated from the best of the great centre, the home, the mother of our literature, by a great gulf. We have heretofore, during our cradle days, depended for our theatrical and dramatic entertainment upon the neighbouring republic, and under circumstances that have not given us the best even of that. We have got a good deal that was crude, blood curdling, morally unfit, and frothily raw and unliterary; so that the drama has lost cast even with those who wish to retain their beliefs in its educative, and cultural influence. To remedy these conditions, to bridge the gulf, Mr. Holles is organizing throughout Canada in all important cities local committees, which constitute an organization of playgoers, that without committing them to any subscription shall from time to time guarantee by their patronage the production of plays of sterling merit, under the auspices of the British-Canadian Organization Company. This Company controls the best of the British players, including Martin Harvey, who will next week present "The Only Way" and interpret in the noblest way, the noblest character in literature, "Sydney Cartin," the hero of the Tale of Two Cities; and Lawrence Irving, the great son of a great father, and other leading dramatic artists, with adequate supporting companies. The local committees, such as has been formed in Peterborough, with Mr. Peter Campbell, manager of the Bank of Toronto, as honorary secretary, will have as one of the committee's functions or privileges, the selecting of the plays and artists they think will appeal to popular support; so that the best of plays by the best of players, will be presented under their auspices, a practical guarantee of the merits of productions, which will have to be provided of the highest character in order to secure the support and patronage of the local committee and the play-going public they represent.

Similar local committee including the names of the foremost citizens, have been formed in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Halifax, St. Johns, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The internationalizing and imperial influence of such an arrangement, is an important feature to which can be added others, such as the improvement of our English language which has found its most corrupting influence in the school of slang conducted on the cis-Atlantic stage.

CIVIC OPTIMISM.

W have plenty of play for pessimism, or excuse for pessimistic outlook. As we are told we shall always have the poor with us, so shall we always have wrongs to be righted—evils to be fought; but the comfort of the situation is that we are succeeding. The cynic may argue that the world is not getting any better; but if we should, as the merchants do at the end of the business year, take stock, we should see that the good is making steady gain in the world, and even in this city. The report of the special sermon preached last night by Mr. Webb, shows that his conclusions are justified by our own experience and observations. We, whose memories cover even the span of a generation can testify to the advances that practical temperance habits and popular sentiment against intemperate use of strong drink has made. A few years ago drunkenness in a village of a thousanw was as common as it is to-day in a city of 20,000. Then the drink habit was universal. To-day it is universally condemned. The man that drinks finds the way to employment barred by his drinking habits. Business considerations co-operate with quickened moral sentiment. We are making progress and we will continue to make greater progress in proportion as we arouse and stimulate public interest.

The Examiner has frequently urged that one reason of the indifferent civic services we complain of, is the indifference of the people served, the lack of intelligent interest in the matters and modes of civic service. An alert, watchful and sympathetic and critical interest, as the case may demand, on the part of the people will be a great help, encouragement and inspiration and stimulation to the civic representatives. In like manner a generally awakened, intelligent and active interest in other problems on the part of the people is, as Mr. Webb points out, a most hopeful sign. Never in the history of the City has there been aroused so deep and timely an interest in social and sanitary problems as is evident at the present time. When the people generally take interest and unitedly and sanely demand improvement, results are bound to come. The people, the pulpit, and the press seem to be working together in a way that has not previously obtained, and though there may be friction and misunderstandings, very many unwise and imprudent things said and done, the general trend is forward. We, as a body of citizens, unofficial and official, must respect each others opinions and sentiments. We may differ in matters of detail and modes of action, but we can all be united in the one aim of working together for the advance, material and moral, of the good city of Peterborough.

A tablespoonful of vinegar put into the water in which meat is boiled will make it deliciously tender.

If oatmeal is put to soak overnight in cold water, it will only take half the time to cook in the morning. (A number of local housemaids and housewives in Peterborough follow this method.)

Pocket handkerchiefs and laces can be whitened by soaking them overnight in a bath of toilet carbolic soap.

Pack glass or china in hay which is slightly damp. This will prevent the articles from slipping about.

Ammonia will remove grease stains from white goods. Soak the spot and let it dry, then wash it with hot soap suds.

Roast pork should never be eaten by any one with a delicate digestion. Salmon and herring are also very hard to digest.

PLOTTERS BALKED

Diaz Supporters Had Everything Ready For Uprising

JOSE REQUENA IS ARRESTED

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 2.—With the arrest of Jose Luis Requena, chief of the Felix Diaz political organization, and two or three other men who were also prominent in his support in the later race for the Presidency, and the discovery of several hundred rifles stored in the capital, the War Department believes it has well in hand a new plot, which, it is believed, had as its object an attempt to overthrow the Government to-day.

The case has been handled entirely by agents of Gen. Blanquet, Minister of War, and the chief of police, Col. Francisco Chavez, many of whose men are alleged to be implicated in the treasonable plan. is inclined to doubt the accuracy of the War Department's information.

The arrests were determined upon after the submission to Gen. Blanquet of evidence discovered by a detective, who had represented himself as Juan Ortega, a well-known rebel operating in the State of Michoacan and the territory of Tepic. The detective went to the home of Francisco Serrano, a civil engineer living at Alalpam, a suburb of Mexico City, with a letter said to have been written by another revolutionary chief, hich appears to have convinced Serrano of the bearer's identity as Ortega.

The detective secured Serrano's confidence and offered to contribute $500 and five hundred guns, promising that one thousand men would join the new cause.

Serrano, it is alleged, sent a note to Requena, asking his opinion regarding acceptance of the offer.

At the department there is a letter supposed to have been written by Requena to Serrana in which Requena advises acceptance of the rebel's offer. As if to corroborate the genuineness of the investigation 500 rifles have been brought to the Government arsenal. These, it is said, were discovered in the place where Ortega said they were hidden.

Pedro Villar, an attorney who identified himself with Gen. Felix Diaz's political fortunes, went to Havana to meet him and accompanied him to Vera Cruz in November, remaining with him until the night of his flight, has also been arrested.

Enrique Fernandez Castello, son-in-law of Requena, and prominent in the political affairs of the capital, is being sought for by agents of the War Department.

The exact development of the plot and the exact form the new government was to take are things on which Gen. Blanquet is uncommunicative, nor do his agents profess to know the details. They claim to have some evidence to indicate that the plan was either to install as temporary president Gen. Fernando Gonzales, an army officer of repute, who is now in Washington on leave, or Gen. Felix Diaz.

Another feature which is interesting those working on the case is the reported disappearance from Paris of Gen. Mondragon, who was Diaz's chief lieutenant at the time of his revolt here a year ago. He was removed from the Department of War and sent to France on a special mission by President Huerta. Information from Paris is to the effect that he has not appeared at the bank to collect his last remittance from the Government, now many days overdue.

Suez Canal Deepened.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The Suez Canal Co., which has been at work for six years in deepening the canal one foot, announces completion of the task, and the waterway has a depth of 29 feet for its whole length. The original depth in 1870 was 24 feet 4 inches, and it remained so until 1890 since when the canal has been deepened four times. It is expected that the company will authorize soon still further dredging, bringing the depth to 30 feet.

Many Bishops Swindled.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—The Archbishops of Lyons, Bourges and other cities and nearly a score of bishops of France are said to be among the victims of the financial operations of Fernand Emil Leconte, a banker, who was arrested Saturday. Le Conte is charged with swindling. His liabilities reach $400,000. He had organized companies with a capital totalling $6,000,000, and placed a lot of stock in manganese mines in Canada.

WHAT IS OLD AGE

Some Younger at 65 Than Others Are at 40 Years.

Old age is not marked by years, but by the stiffened frame, the hardened tissues and arteries.

So many people whom you meet bout the time they reach 40 begin by saying "I can't do this, and I can't do that, becuse I'm getting old now," they begin to act old, feel old and they are older in appearance than many who are much more advanced in years.

When you begin to feel old, when your energy begins to fail, build yourself up with our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It is a wonderful blood-maker and strengthener.

H. C. Klyce of Corinth, Miss., says: "I am 75 years old and my blood was very poor. I was in a run-down condition and felt that I must have a tonic. Vinol was recommended and it built up my strength until I felt as strong and well as ever."

Thousands of old people have found in Vinol just the medicine they need to build up the feeble, weakened system and create strength. If it fails, we return your money.

CLARKSON REPORTS

Liquidator of Union Life Says Extravagance Ruined it

EVANS FARED HANDSOMELY

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—That the Union Life Assurance Company came to grief chiefly through the heavy financial burdens heaped upo its financial resources in a effort to acquire control of other concerns and the exorbitant operating expenses is the conclusion reached by Mr. George T. Clarkson, the permanent liquidator who filed the statement on Saturday with Mr. George Kappele, K.C., the official referee, who presided over the investigation ordered by the Dominion Government, at the instance of the English shareholders. Copies of the report have also been forwarded to the Minister of Justice, the Minister of Finance and Attorney-General Foy.

The liquidator showed that the Union Life in its twelve years of existence had a net operating loss of $646,720, and a total loss of $1,236,910. Of this amount the Union Life lost $420,000 by means of ill-judged investments, attributed by the report principally to H. Pellman Evans, the head of the concern. The expenses on the sale of shares to English investors cost $170,190 for stock subscribed to the amount of $782,287. The liabilities of the company at the time the winding-up order was issued totalled about $1,425,000, but the net operating loss of the company was subsequently reduced to $646,720 by the sale of good-will and approximate benefits obtained by reinsuring the policyholders in the Metropolitan Life Assurance Company of New York.

That H. Pellman Evans profited to the greatest extent was shown by the statement that in twelve years his total revenue amounted to $175,664 from the National Agency Company, the Union Life Company, the Canada Investment Corporation, the Home Life Assurance Company, the National Credit Clearing Company, the Agency Land & Security Company and the National Land & Fruit Packing Company. From 1902 till 1913 his revenue from the Union Life Company amounted to $92,827.18. His greatest amount received in 1912, when the report credits him with obtaining $52,357 from the Agency & Land Security Company, and $15,034 from the National Land & Fruit Packing Company, making a total for the year, along with a few other incidental receipts of $79,146.

SICK, SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION OR GAS

Take "Pape's Diapepsin" and in five minutes you'll wonder what became of misery in stomach

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt, if sour, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented into stubborn lumps; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have a bad stomach. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps this delicate organ regulated and they eat their favourite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest most harmless relief is Pape's Diapepsin which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—it digests food and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Please, for your sake, don't go on and on with a weak, disordered stomach; it's so unnecessary.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The majority for the Canada temperance act in Welland is now said to be only fifteen.

The entire Chinese section of Bluefields, Nicaragua, was destroyed by fire which broke out Friday night.

Mrs. Richard Taylor, aged 86, who was born in Belleville and had lived there all her life, died on Saturday.

The aged couple, asphyxiated on Manning avenue, Toronto, has been identified as Mr. and Mrs. John Richards.

Lorne Minshall, two years old, died in convulsions at Mount Pleasant, near Brantford, three hours after eating some pills.

Bridge Street Methodist Church, Belleville, was rededicated after alterations and improvement to the extent of $26,000.

Canada's total trade last year exceeded one billion dollars, the largest increases being in agricultural produce and manufactures.

Ex-President W. H. Taft addressed a brilliant audience at the Ottawa Canadian Club on some significant features in modern Canadian history.

Fifteen persons were injured, some of them so seriously that they may die when Chicago and Alton passenger train was wrecked near Lockport, Ill., Saturday.

An insane steerage passenger shot and killed F. Wendt, third officer of the North German Lloyd steamer Brandenburg on the voyage from Galveston, Texas, to Germany.

Sentences ranging from eighteen months to sixty days were imposed in New York, Saturday, on eleven mail wagon chauffeurs convicted of conspiracy to obstruct the mails.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY.

As "Sydney Carton," in "The Only Way," at The Grand next Wednesday, Feb. 4. Seats now on sale. Speaking of Mr. Harvey's appearance at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, last week, The Daily Telegraph says:

It is not often that a Montreal audience will refuse to leave the seats after the curtain has fallen on the final scene of a play. This, however, occurred 1st night at His Majesty's Theatre when the crowded house, ignoring the efforts of the orchestra to drive them out before the strain of the National Anthem, vociferously recalled Martin Harvey again and again at the conclusion of "The Only Way" until he was forced to speak a few words.

WHITEWASH, THEY SAY.

Bishop of London's Report Arouses Ire of Militant.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—The militant suffragettes are very angry with the Bishop of London, the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, over his report that there was no truth in the allegations of excruciating torture being inflicted on their comrades who are subjected to forcible feeding in Holloway Jail. They accuse the prelate of being an ally of the Government and Mrs. Dacre Fox, one of the leaders of the Women's Social and Political Union, wrote to him Saturday as follows:

"A whitewash brush has been placed in your hands, my lord bishop, by the authorities in order that the public shall remain ignorant of the diabolical methods used by the Government in its desire to terrorize the militant women."

The writer adds: "The whole truth of the matter is you have allowed the Government and the prison officials to hoodwink you. We hold letters from Miss Rachael Peace, now an inmate of Holloway Jail, describing the torture she has undergone. She has, on two occasions, to our knowledge, broken down under the supreme suffering involved."

Aroused by the bishop's declaration, suffragettes yesterday repeatedly interrupted the consecration services conducted by him at St. Michael's Church. The women set up a chant, in which reference was made to forcible feeding, and they called upon the bishop to put a stop to "the torture of women in English prisons."

The disturbers were quickly removed. An attempt made by the women to reach the bishop as he left the church was frustrated by the police, who were present in force in anticipation of trouble.

Million Dollars' Worth Saved.

SARNIA, Feb. 2.—Over one million dollars' worth of vessels in marine values is what the Reid Wrecking Co., with its fleet of powerful tugs and wrecking outfits, has wrestfrom the rocks and shoals and brought into port since the storm of Nov. 9. This is a remarkable record and without a parallel in maritime circles. The steamers which comprise this list are: the Matoa, Acadian, Northern Queen, Nottingham, Nicholas, Buckley and the Matthew Andrews. With the exception of the latter, each of the others can be classed as wrecks, being cast up on rocks or beach. The values of the steamers are: Matou, $650,000; Acadian, $125,000; Nicholas, $130,000; Northern Queen, $130,000; Matthew Andrews, $350,000; Nottingham, $250,000, and the Buckley, $20,000.

Death of Tay Pioneer.

VICTORIA HARBOR, Ont., Feb. 2.—The death occurred yesterday of John McDermott, one of the best-known and most highly esteemed citizens of this vicinity. Mr. McDermott was born in Glengarry about seventy-six years ago. He was one of the pioneers of Tay Township, and had served on Tay council board and later as license commissioner for East Simcoe.

Floods In Brazil.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 2.—Floods in the State of Bahia, which have been sweeping over a large section of the country districts, are increasing. Several villages have been inundated and one small town has disappeared. The inhabitants are taking refuge in the churches. Many lives have been lost, and the damage to property is enormous.

ANOTHER PRELATE DEAD.

Cardinal Gennari Passes Away at Age of Seventy-Four.

ROME, Feb. 2.—Cardinal Casimir Gennari, prefect of the Congregation of the Council, died yesterday. His death was due to heart disease. He is the third cardinal to pass away in the last two months, the others being Cardinal Oreglia and Cardinal Ramolla.

Cardinal Gennari was born at Mariatica, Dec. 27, 1839. He was created and proclaimed April 15, 1910. There are now sixteen vacancies in the Sacred College, and the holding of a consistory at an early date is thought to be necessary. The report, repeatedly circulated that the consistory has been delayed owing to the ill-health of the Pope is emphatically denied at the Vatican.

Prince von Buelow, who was received in private audience by the Pontiff Saturday, declared that he had found him in better health and apparently stronger than in 1912.

Disappointed Swain Runs Amuck.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2. — Running amuck when his sweetheart, Ethel Surrey, refused Friday night to leave her home at Long Pointe, Que., when he demanded it, John McGarr shot the girl in the head, and firing wildly, wounded her brother Evelyn, and brother-in-law, A. W. Cloake. McGarr then tried to get out of the house by the back door, which he found locked. He then smashed a window with an axe and in doing so, upset a kerosene lamp which set fire to the house. The flames were put out by Mrs. Surrey, the aged mother of the girl, who was asleep upstairs, and who also received medical attention for the wounded. McGarr got away.

Boy Killed by Bomb.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2 — One boy was killed instantly and another seriously injured Friday night, when a small tin box which they found in the street exploded and burst into a thousand atoms. Dauville Gilbert, aged 13, son of Napoleon Gilbert of 370 Mascarin street, who had the box in his hands, was struck dead when it exploded, while twelve-year-old Stanboise Divure, a companion, who lived next door, had his right arm badly burned.

KEPHALDOL BIDS PAIN DEFIANCE

This remedy, new to Canada, though well known in Great Britain and on the Continent, brings to all who are "tired on the thorny bed of pain" a means of speedy and grateful relief.

Kephaldol offers the sufferer from Lumbago, Sciatica or Rheumatism quick and certain relief, even where the cases is of long standing.

No more is it necessary to endure the long enforced immobility, backaching and exhaustion of Lumbago attacks, the torture of Sciatica-ridden nights, the cramping pain of Rheumatism. Kephaldol is the only safe, sure and natural remedy, but avoid all so-called "just-as-good" substitutes.

Kephaldol must be taken without fear. There is nothing in it to injure the heart or other organs.

Thousands of letters from grateful users testify to the wonderful power of Kephaldol to relieve pain and banish disease. Get a bottle of Kephaldol from your druggist and if it fails to relieve you, write to Kephaldol Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

THE BRIGHT SIDE OF THE CIVIC OUTLOOK

Sermon on the Above Subject, Last Night in Murray Street Baptist Church

Last night, Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of the Murray Street Baptist Church, made "The Brighter Side of the Civic Outlook the subject of his sermon.

Mr. Webb took as his text, St. John, 1:46, Nathaniel said with him, Can any good come out of Nazareth? Philip saith, Come and see?

Nazareth, the preacher began, was considered so insignificant and unworthy that even to-day the Moslems have no more spiteful term for the Christians than the word Nazarene.

Nobody claimed that Nazareth was the greatest place on earth, but Philip, who was always a careful man, claimed that those who were pessimistic about Nazareth had this against them, that out of Nazareth there had come the greatest of all good.

"I have read," said Mr. Webb, "with much interest, the discussion that has been going on lately regarding the morals of Peterborough. Up to the present hour I have taken no part and I have made no motion, not seconded any, with relation to our police force, although one paper has given me credit for doing so. I am, however, convinced that the hour has come for someone to ask the question, "Can any good thing come out of Nazareth?" and I am willing to be the one to ask and answer it.

Proceeding, the preacher said that the curtailment of the liquor traffic was one of the bright sides of the civic out look. In 1907 the City had a population of 16,000 people and twenty-five licenses, while to-day, with 20,150 of a population, we have only fourteen.

Experts on the question of temperance reform are constantly urging a reduction of licenses. If this is a good thing, Peterborough has brought down the licenses by almost one-half, while the City has increased by twenty-five per cent.

A high tribute was paid to the work of the Health Association, and the Children's Aid Society. Then Mr. Webb turned to speak of the body of sentiment created in favour of the protection of the young. As far as I have read or heard, said the speaker, the Women's Council have not criticized the work of our splendid police force. The Women's Council exists, not to criticize existing moral agencies, but to co-operate with them, and it is indeed a bright side of our civic outlook that such an organization has sprung into being. Surely every official will be anxious to go any reasonable length to retain the sympathy of such an organization.

The insistent demand of the people for adequate punishment of scoundrels is another good sign according to the pastor of Murray Street. "If I know the voice of Peterborough, it is crying out for that—not in the spirit of vengeance, but that others may be warned and saved.

"The best element in Peterborough feels that if the name of the drunk is to be published in the newspapers, the name of the man who make a young girl drunk should be published also."

The one thing that a conscientious public will not readily forget is the light sentence laid upon any bad man because he has either money or influence. The people of Peterborough deplore the publicity that is necessary to effect certain prosecutions, but some deplorable things are inevitable that the many may be protected. Moses killed and hid an Egyptian in the sand, and thought the incident was as dead as the Egyptian, but it got out and Moses had to get out. "I do not care," said the speaker, "whether it be a Moses or a David; these flagrant wrongs are not forgotten, and one of the most hopeful things about our civic life is the fact that our people refuse to forget anything that seems like giving an advantage to the rich that is denied o the poor."

The growing claim for the spirit of democracy, Mr. Webb claimed to be another bright side of our civic outlook. "Ours," said he, "is a government of the people—for the people, and by the people, and while certain appointments are made by the government no man can afford to ignore the convictions of a large company of the most intelligent people of the City."

"I am not urging the appointment of a police woman, but I am saying that when all the teachers, doctors, nurses, ministers, besides 400 property owners of a City make an appeal for any experiment they present a fair body of intelligence and it is positively foolhardy for any trinity of men to discourage and oppose their proposal without taking some days to consider their argument. If our police commission had listened to everything, and had said courteously, "Now, ladies, we will think this over and give you an answer in a few days," we should have no criticism to make; but to come there prepared to say the most discouraging things, and some things positively offensive, is to profess a monopoly of wisdom and judgment which a democratic people will not abide. The man who is always afraid of losing his dignity, usually has very little to lose. Carlisle said that "if a people who were offered light refused it, they must have 'lightning'"; and one of the most hopeful signs in this City at the present day is the determination of the people that a democratic atmosphere shall prevail.

Mr. Webb concluded his sermon by saying that reformation would never save the world. Nothing but a personal surrender to Christ as Saviour and Lord would save a soul, but the presence of saved souls in any city was made manifest by the coming together of such as a mighty projectile to be hurled against everything that makes it hard to do right and easy to do wrong. The sermon was optimistic from beginning to end and was followed attentively by the large congregation.

BOSTON'S MAYOR LIKES TO HAVE AND TO HOLD

Editor Examiner:

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 2.—"To Have and To Hold" should have a place on Dr. Eliot's "six-foot shelf" in the opinion of James H. Curley, who on Monday is to succeed John F. Fitzgerald as mayor of the city of Boston. Mr. Curley admits that he is not strong on the literary stuff, but the title of the popular novel is one that appeals to him. It's equivalent to the good old motto of "Get all you can and hold on to what you get," in the opinion of the mayor-elect of the "Athens of America."

IMPRESSIVE SERMON AT ST. ANDREW'S

Rev. Mr. Rollins Spoke on This Subject of Power

Rev. James Rollins, preaching in St. Andrew's Church yesterday morning from Acts 8: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you," said:

These words are a strange blending of ideas native to the modern mind, and of ideas which are at first sight somewhat remote from present-day thinkin..

There is scarcely any subject that holds a larger living interest for men of to-day than the subject of power. I do not mean the development of our waterfalls by public utility commissions or by private ownership, as if that were the power which is most in demand to-day. There is to-day an insistent demand for effective men and women. There is no man who is so little to be envied as the man who gets into some position of prominence and finds that he has not it in him to be effective in that position. He is ridiculed by those who have no personal interest in him and pitied by those who have. This is because of the increasd demand for efficiency and this in no other words is a demand for power in its subtlest and finest form.

"Ye shall receive power." So far our text finds in much of our modern life a rich soil prepared and made ready for it. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." Ah! the second part of our text is not so hospitably received as the first. There is a distrust abroad to-day against those who talk much about the Holy Ghost. These people have chartered ships and sailed out to meet the coming Lord. They have tried to found colonies of fanatics; they have gloried in rolling about the floors in an unconscious condition and in articulating sounds which neither they nor any one else could recognize as a language, and this they have called being "filled" with the Holy Ghost, and this they have characterized as the "gift of tongues." Had they spoken ten sentences of their own mother tongue correctly it would have been a better proof that they had received a real gift of language.

These are the kind of people who have made this age intolerant of the grouping together of such words as "power" and "Holy Ghost." The American revised version of the Scriptures eliminates the word "Ghost" and uses instead the word "spirit," and our authorized version in the 16th Chapter of John clearly refers to the third person of the Trinity under the name of "Spirit of Truth" Now, that is a phrase which is easily comprehensible, suggesting at once that fine spirit of trueness and sincerity which refines and elevates everything which it touches as necessarily. One of the Persons in any Trinity of persons called God. When that spirit comes upon a man a new driving power is brought into touch with all the man's faculties, with the result that the man becomes wonderfully more efficient and effective. It is not merely as if a man had a fine equipment of tools while his hand was paralyzed and there was given to him a splendid strength of grip so that he was able to seize upon every tool and make it fulfil its appointed purpose. It is that and more. It is not merely as if the hand were strengthened. It is as if in addition the purpose behind the hand were intensified, and as if the tools were more perfetly tempered, and more perfectly shaped and sharpened. When the spirit of truth comes upon a man he receives power—the kind of power that waterfalls cannot create—that money cannot buy—the kind of power that comes from God and from Him only to souls that are anxious to be in tune with Him—that are willing to have their lives pitched to His key. • • • • If this kind of power could be purchased at so much "per" almost any price would be paid for it. To have it you must put away insincerity, and put on sincerity and walk with God and you will find yourself linked on with the fountains of power for effective and efficient living in this year of grace, 1914.

CAUSES OF SOCIAL UNREST

Treated in an Eloquent Sermon by Rev. Robt. Pogue of St. Paul's Church

FIRST OF SERIES

The pastor of St. Paul's Church began last night a series of sermons on the Social Problem. His subject last evening was Social Unrest. He first gave a number of facts to show that social unrest existed. He quoted W. T. Stead's words, "Everwhere the old order is changing and giving place to the new. The human race is now at one of the crucial periods in its history when the fountains of the deep are broken up, and the flood of change submerges all the old established institutions and conventions in the midst of which preceding generations have lived and died." He then treated of the causes of social unrest.

The first of these is the spread of popular education. With an increase in intelligence has come an increase in ambition, in appetite and tastes. Religion, like educaton, is the enemy of stagnaton. The desire for liberty, for a larger, fuller, richer, happier life, is a divine instinct in the soul of man. Discontent with unjust conditions is not only natural, it is right, it is divine. John Stuart Mill said: "It is better to be a dissatisfied man than a satisfied pig." Men have come to see that they are not mere beasts of burden, that life was not meant for drudgery, that no class of men have a right to exploit the manhood of another, and that all men are entitled to their fair share of the bounties of nature which a loving God has given for the use of all.

Glaring Inequalities.

The second cause of social unrest is the glaring inequalities of life, as is seen in the great wealth and luxury of one class and in the extreme poverty and misery of another. He gave illustrations here of great wealth and luxury on the one hand and the great poverty and misery on the other. "Is it any wonder," he asked, "that the man who has walked the streets for days in a vain search for work and stoops to pick up a piece of orange peeling from the gutter to stop the cravings of hunger, and then reads that his late employer, who dismissed him because of the slackness of work, had spent the previous night $10,000, on a banquet to his friends, and had just completed a home for himself costing -1,000,000 — is it any wonder that he feels the injustice of things and that he declares war on a social system that permits such conditions to exist?"

The third cause of social unrest is a feeling which is more and more becoming a conviction based on intelligent observation that the immense wealth and luxury of one class are the product of the labour of the other. A true economic science sees and teaches that the only thing which can create wealth is labour, when applied to the natural resources of the earth. Labour, therefore, should have what it creates.

The fourth explanation of social unrest is the spread of the Spirit of Christ in the world. The great movements and social upheavals of our time are due to the leaven of the Gospel writing in the Social System. Religion is just two things, according to Jesus: Love to God and love to man. The whole social movement is largely a cry for justice. The more thoughtful men of our time see that our Social System is built on injustice and that the Social Quest ion is not so much a question of dollars and cents, of wages and hours, as of justice. And every man who speaks a word on behalf of our industrial slaves is as truly a servant of God, a deliverer sent from God, as was Moses when he undertook to deliver his people from Egyptian bondage. The leading Social Reformers all the world over are Christian men. Christian ministers are beginning to see that the Social Problem is a moral problem and that until it is settled right it will not be settled at all. The highest right of every man is the right to do right. It is impossible to be a part of our present Social System and do right. The more Christian men see this the more earnestly will they labour for the destruction of that system, that on the ruins of the old there may arise a new, a Christian civilization, in which it will be possible for every man to do right and to be a brother to every other man.

Tax Payer Says Outsiders Are Best Favoured

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Allow me a little space in your valuable paper to say a few words about the unemployed in this City. Now, there is a factory in this City which has done, or is doing very little for the City of Peterborough. Now, if I am not mistaken, they agreed, for the help they got, to employ thirty men of this City, which they are not doing. Since starting their plant, they have filled it with all kinds of outsiders, who get steady work all the time. The men of this town what new are there, have to take the laying off and also work for the low wages. I think this is unfair for ratepayers to be used this way, and I think that the City Fathers should see to this.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space.

Yours truly,
Taxpayer.

LINES PROMPTED BY THE SASKATCHEWAN

A member of the County Council, who represents a northern township visited Saskatchewan last summer and was so impressed with the beauty of the district that he has composed the following verses:

Silent Saskatchewan softly art stealing,
Placid and peaceful smoothly and slow
Noiseless and swift o'er thy bosam of waters
Fain would I sail away—where would I go?

Onward through prairies through golden glad wheat-fields,
Where the sweet kernels hang ripe in the sun
Traverse the valleys and circle the mountains,
Follow the winding with dog and with gun.

Low! Daybreak hath dawned on the glimmering waters,
The wavelets rise gaily to welcome the morn
To catch the first kisses that gleam in the sun-beams
To laugh and rejoice in the day newly born.

Onward through forests and flowers and sunshine,
The green leaves droop lowly to catch thy caress.
The birch-bark canoe and the tall silent Redman,
Adrift on thy waters, O, Pride of the West.

Onward past homesteads where all's solitary,
On the vast prairies the pioneers dwell
Here no steam whistle has broken the silence,
Nor sounded at evening the silver-toned bell.

A surface of glass on the shimmering waters,
The stars twinkle brightly when night shadows fall.
Now lovingly hovers the mist o'er the waters
Afar in the distance the prairie wolves call.

Silent Saskatchewan, wandering breezes,
Ripple thy surface nd dance on thy breast.
Whisper and tell me, O Father of Waters
Tell me the meaning of Pride and Unrest.

Afar in the cities where greed rules triumphant
Fathers are toiling, babes sicken and die.
Mothers grow grey in their soul-weary struggle
Whisper a Prayer to a God upon High.

LADDER BROKE FELL 20 FEET

Clifford Curtis, son of Mr. George Curtis, Otonabee, met with a painful accident the other day, resulting in three teeth being knocked out and his lower lip being badly cut. He had climbed up on the wind-mill on the farm about fifty-two feet. On coming down, when about twenty feet from the ground the ladder broke, and Mr. Curtis fell to the ground. In falling he struck with violent force against the steel ladder, thus receiving the above injuries.

NEARLY ONE MILLION DIVORCES GRANTED IN TWENTY YEARS

Conditions in the United States Call for Some Form of Moral Education Says Dr. Holmes

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 2. — "Nineteen people in every hundred thousand, or about 19,000 a year, commit suicide; in twenty years 131,940 people have been murdered, and only 1.3 per cent. of the murderers were convicted, leaving about 1000,000 homicides at large," were two of the cheerful sentences in the address of Dr. Arthur Holmes, dean of the Pennsylvania State College, on Saturday. The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the Civic Club and the Home and Social League Committee on Moral Education. Following up his subject, "The Psychology of Moral Education," Dr. Holmes said further:

"The call for moral education is heard in many quarters. American banks lost $28,000,000 in five years by embezzlement. In 1912, 198 criminals were legally executed, and 52 were lynched. Of these, 42 per cent. were native whites, 37 per cent. were coloured people, and 16 per cent. were foreign whites. The home is equally affected. About one out of ten marriages ends in divorce. In twenty years nearly a million divorces were granted. Seventy-three out of every 100,000 people are divorced. Japan is the only other nation having a higher percentage.

"Capt. Richmond P. Hobson estimates the number of confirmed drunkards at 1,000,000, the heavy drinkers at 4,000,00, and the temperate regular drinkers at 20,000,000."

PRIZE FOR WORLD FLIGHT.

Californians Offer $100,000 For Looping the Globe.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. — The Aero Club of America announced yesterday that it had given its sanction to an aeroplane race around the world, to be started from the Panama-Pacific exposition grounds in San Francisco in May, 1915, and to be completed at the same place within 90 days. The first prize will be $100,000. The sanction was given upon the receipts of telegrams stating that the Pacific Aero Club of San Francisco were organizing such a race and that application for sanction had been mailed.

Beachey Injured By Fall.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2.—Lincoln Beachey was severely injured late on Saturday. The propeller of his biplane flew to pieces while the aviator was flying at an altitude of about 350 feet. He started to volpane, but fouled a tall tree. The machine alighted on its rudder. This broke the fall and probably saved Beachey's life. He emerged from the wreckage with a cut face and severely bruised about the legs and body, but was able to walk.

A Scotchman On Box Packing

I have followed carefully the many discussions on the box versus the barrel pack. The main facts of the cases as I have gleaned them are that box fruit should all be a first-class or fancy product, while the barrel pack may be either first or second rate stuff. Here are my own conclusions.

For long distance export I believe that apples will arrive in better condition when packed in the box than in the barrel, though I believe there will always be a place on the British market for No. 1 apples in the barrel. As one who has actually purchased Canadian Spys and Kings on the market in Scotland, I found the No. 1 barreled apples were always in good condition so far as flavor and keeping quality were concerned. It is in appearance that they are deficient. I could hardly find a single apple that had not been pressed flat on one side or the other, due to excessive pressure caused by the weight of the contents and by the robust usage which is meted out to heavy weight packages.

A MARKET TO CULTIVATE

There will always be a large section of the public willing to pay for the appearance of high-quality Canadian apples, and I believe that with the advent of larger shipments of boxed fruit from Eastern Canada that the demand will correspondingly grow on the other side of the Atlantic.

For many years past a well-known grower of the Fameuse apple, Mr. Shepherd, of Como, Que., has even taken the pains to ship his best fruit in wired egg boxes to the London market. Though the market for such fruit is likely to remain more or less limited, it gives one an idea of the chance that there is for increased Eastern shipments in boxes.

I have seen in Glasgow the condition of Western Canadian as well as English (Herefordshire) boxed apples, and can testify to the superior condition in which such fruit arrives, particularly as regards appearance.

"THE ABUNDANT LIFE" WAS THE SUBJECT

Some Quotations From Yesterday Morning's Sermon at Park Street Baptist Church

Following are some quotations from a sermon at the Park street Baptist church by Rev. F. A. Conners, yesterday morning:

John 10:10—"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

"The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." To this end came He into the world, and for this purpose He died on calvary's cross. Through Him only we have this life, and in Him only can we live unto God. We live for Him only as He lives in us. "As all waters meet in the sea, and all light centres in the sun, so all life consists in Christ." "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ He is none of His." It is one thing to have the Spirit of Christ and quite another thing to be filled with the Spirit of Christ. Very few among those professing faith in Christ ever rise to this standard of Christian life. (The abundant life.)

We should not only seek this new life in Christ, but we should seek to obtain it in abundant measure, and to this end the Apostle exhorts us, "Let the Spirit of Christ dwell in you richly." And again, "Be ye filled with the Spirit." This is the Spirit-filled life, or the abundant life, which is the birthright of every true believer in Christ.

God is the author of all life, but, alas! God is not the controller of all life's forces; were this so we would have a heaven on earth.

This abundant life is not a mere fancy or fictitious name but a living reality, demonstrated in thousands of Christ's witnesses.

There are two classes of Christians: the one class is typified by the children of Isfrael in the wilderness, wandering to and fro, making little or no progress in the Christian life, or as expressed in another passage, "Ever learning and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." As the Apostle said to the Hebrews, "For after that ye should be teachers ye have need to be taught." The other class may be typified by Israel in Canaan. Victory and triumph "in a land flowing with milk and honey."

God has created man for His own glory and immortal truth is heaven's lamp to light the soul to God. Mortal life is but the gateway to life immortal. Life is a duty and a privilege. No man succeeds in life who dreams his time away. I cannot attain life's highest plains or gain hope's honoured prize but by the way of the Cross.

All good in life is our in Him to the glory of God the Father. "No good thing will be withhold from those who walk uprightly."

All nature's voices blend in one to bid my soul arise. The reasoning of man but clouds my vision. Faith in Christ alone enlarges the horizon of my spiritual vision and lifts me to loftier plains of Hope and Love.

HEART QUESTIONS

Are you a Christian? In this O be true,
Do you measure your life by His word?
Have you followed your Lord in baptism, too,
As the voice of the Spirit you've heard?

Are you growing in Grace as the days come and go?
Are you walking by faith in the way?
Are you living each day that the people may know,
That you do as you preach or you pray?

Are you meeting your church obligations?
Are you trying your part these to do?
Do you manifest Christ in your station,
As the Sprit reveals Him to you?

If so let your heart be rejoicing,
No matter what critics may say,
And you shall receive that glad welcome,
When we meet on that glorious day.

THE WEATHER

A GRIEVANCE HERE

WILL BAR SIGHTS.

No Sign of Concession To Canadians In British War Office.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable)—The Bisley correspondent of The Morning Post holds out little hope that the War Office will give way and allow the aperture sight to be used by the Canadian team at Bisley; in fact it appears from the correspondence that has passed between the N.R.A. and the Army Council that the whole subject of Canada and the Ross rifle has already been discussed.

"If Canadians have a grievance," adds the correspondent, "it is against the War Office. I don't think there is any likelihood of an exception being made in the case of the Ross rifle, as it would give Canadian marksmen a clear advantage over their comrades who were using open sights on the Lee-Enfield rifle."

Little Girl Fatally Burned.

CHATHAM, Feb. 2.—Mabel Carron, the seven-year-old daughter of Frank Carron of Charing Cross, was so badly burned Saturday afternoon when her clothing caught fire from a burning stick that he died four hours later. The child remained conscious to the last, despite her fearful burns, and one of her last requests was for a drink of water. The mother was out of the house at the time, and returned to find the clothing burned entirely off the child.

CONCLUDING MEETING OF AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION

Will be Held on Tuesday Evening and the Examinations a Week Later.

The last meeting of the Peterborough Corps of St. John's Ambulance Association will be held on Tuesday evening in the Y.M.C.A. It is the last of the course of lectures and instructions. The examination of the class will be held on Tuesday, February 10th. The class has been under the instruction of Dr. Frederick, who has been painstaking in his work. The examination will be conducted by Dr. McPherson. Mayor Butler will be present on examination night and a cordial invitation is extended to the public.

WE NEED MORE GOOD MOTHERS

Peterborough, Jan. 30th, 1914.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I herewith enclose a copy of Walt Mason's prose poetry, which seems to suit the quest ion at present agitating our City. When the Women's Council visited our Commissioners, I was struck by Mr. Dumble's speech, and think it was the only one to the point, viz.: The home training of the child. This should begin from the cradle. A mother should never be too busy to teach her children their prayers night and morning, and gossip and small talk should not be discussed in their hearing, as "familiarity breeds contempt." I heard a priest once say, "Give me a child till he or she is seven, and I dont care who gets them after." That's the idea. The average religious teaching of to-day is, "Let a child run at large till ten or twelve years of age; then convert them and they are all right." That was not Christ's plan. He said, "Suffer little children to come unto Me." But, of course, the religion He taught has been very much improved upon. It is too hard to practice. I was at a school closing in the country not long ago and out of a class of thirty-five, only two could repeat the Lord's prayer correctly. Did not look as if they had learned it at their mother's knee. I have frequently been with Christian (?) women, and men, too, who were prominent church workers, and heard them telling very questionable stories, that would shame a shanty man. Do you think if they thought they "had to give an account of every idle word at the Day of Judgment," they would have done so? What an example those women are to a growing boy or girl. The question is the same as was asked in Napoleon's time: "What is the best thing for France?" and can be answered the same way to-day, "good" mothers.

Yours truly,

A Mother.

305 Murray Street.

The following is the prose poem referred to in the above letter:

Home, Sweet Home.

(By Walt Mason.)

Oh, Home! It is a sacred place—or was, in olden days, before the people learned to chase to moving picture plays; to tango dances and such things, to skating on a floor, and now the youthful laughter rings within the Home no more. You will recall at men at games, the home of long ago, and you'll recall the frolic games the children used to know. The neighbours' kids would come along with your own kids to play, and merry as a bridal song the evening passed away. An evening spent away from home in olden days was rare, the children hadn't learned to roam for pleasure everywhere. But now your house is but a shell where children sleep and eat; it serves that purpose very well—their home is on the street. Their home is where the lights are bright, where ragtime music flows; their noon's the middle of the night, their friends are—Lord, who knows? The windows of your home are dark, and silence broods o'er all; you call it Home—God save the mark! 'Tis but a sty or stall!

MORE SERIOUS FIRES BUT NO LIVES LOST

Bad Fire In Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2.—Three fires that broke out within an hour yesterday morning kept Montreal firefighters on the jump a large part of the day, and did damage of about $250,000. The most serious was that which destroyed the premises used by the Merchants' Clothing Co. and other firms at 36 West Notre Dame street, in the heart of the downtown business district.

About the same time in the forenoon the Deaf and Dumb Institute, in the north end of the city, was in flames, and the.. another occurred in the Canadian Pacific Atlantic Line shed on King Edward pier.

Three workmen on the third floor of the downtown building when the fire broke out were unable to say how the fire started. They escaped over the roof to an adjoining building.

ABOUT ORCHARDS

I have been told that of all the orchards planted, only 25 per cent are properly attended to before coming into bearing, and a good large percentage never bear fruit at all. Those of us who have spent money in setting out young orchards, and there must be a goodly number of us if the reports of the nursery companies are true, will do well to see that the trees get proper attention this fall in order that the winter injury that plays havoc with so many trees may be avoided.

One point on which I would lay special importance is the cutting away of all growth for a space of two or three feet around each tree. Such growth is a shelter to mice, and trees so surrounded are apt to be girdled. One can cut away all the growth around a tree in less than a minute if he has a good sharp hoe. I always take a file along to the orchard with me. Throwing a shovelful of earth around the trunk of a tree to keep away vermin is a fairly good plan that I sometimes practice. A point to be noted is that the earth be lifted from the ground several feet away from the tree. If taken immediately beside the tree a hole is left in which water will settle.

Sunscald is another form of winter injury for which I am prepared. My method is to take ordinary newspapers and wrap them around the tree, tying tightly at top and bottom with binder twine. An important point here is to start tho wrapping at the top of the tree and proceed downwards spirally. When this method is followed the overlapping paper sheds snow or water, whereas if one started to wrap at the bottom of the tree the overlapping would be such as to allow of water getting in next the trunk and ice forming there. Another important point is to see that the paper is tied right tight to the tree at the top.

Other methods of protecting the trunk that I have seen practiced with good results are to wrap corn stalks around it, to protect with two boards nailed together in a "V" shape and stood against the south side of the tree and wood veneer. Newspapers, however, afford the cheapest protection, and they are quite effectual.

Useful Turpentine.

Turpentine and soap will remove ink stains from linen. It will exterminate roaches. Moths will leave if it is sprinkled about. Turpentine will remove wheel grease, pitch and tar stains. A few drops in the boiler will whiten clothes. A few drops on a woollen cloth will clean tan shoes nicely. Clean gilt frames with a sponge moistened in turpentine. Carpets can be cleansed and colours restored by cleaning with broom dipped in warm water in which is a little turpentine. An equal mixture of turpentine and linseed oil removes white marks from furniture caused by water.

FOREMEN WHO CAN BE BRIBED WITH BEER

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—In answer to ad. in the Montreal Daily Star of January 23 for a local firm, I think it is about time that our local firms were doing more of that and giving our city foremen less power in hiring and laying off hands, as we have some foremen in this fair city of ours who have a bunch of men who can leave one firm and go to the other and get hired, no matter how hard times are. They even go as far as to lay men off to make room for them who are no better mechanics than the men they have laid off. I have known of three or four cases in one of our local industries where some mechanics have been laid off for the want of work, and other men started in their place the following morning. After careful watching we discover that these men get their pull by treating the foreman to a few glasses of liquor. I was surprised to walk into one of our churches and saw this same foreman taking up the church offering! These are the men we look to for the good morals of our city. In regard to some of our mechanics being on the verge of starvation, these men prefer their starvation rather than buy their way into employment through liquor and unmanly morals.

Now, I hope our local firms will give their business careful watch, also their foremen, who they put into a position of trust. I may say that these conditions are happening to-day in one of our very oldest industries in Peterborough. Trusting to see this letter in your paper, I am,

JUSTICE TO ALL.

SLEIGH STRUCK BY STREET CAR

A delivery sleigh owned by Mr. Arthur Rountree was struck by a George Street car on Saturday. The driver of the vehicle was thrown out and sustaind a few bruises. Both Mr. Rountree and the motorman attribute the accident to a cloud of steam that was emaanting from the drying kiln of the McDonald lumber mill, which enveloped the driver from seeing the approaching car. The sleigh was somewhat damaged.

A little tragedy. Mother tells child that an angel is beautiful, has wings and flies. Child tells mother that father called the hired girls an angel. The hired girl at once flew.

The Changing Age

Girls and boys from 14 to 19 years of age undergo physical changes which tax their strength to the utmost and the strain is always apparent from pale cheeks, colorless lips, and tired bodies—sometimes eruptions of the skin and the utter lack of the ambition and animation with which their younger years were filled.

Budding into womanhood and manhood, with the duties of school or business, demands concentrated nourishment which is readily convertible into red blood corpuscles, energy and strength, and the very best thing for this changing age is the medical nutriment in Scott's Emulsion—it possesses the rare blood-making properties of cod liver oil in a predigested form; hypophosphites for the nervous system, with the healing, soothing qualities of pure glycerine.

Its nourishing force promotes assimilation, yields direct returns in abundant, red blood, fills hollow cheeks, tones the nerves, makes all good food do good, and does it in a natural easy manner.

The sustaining nourishment in Scott's Emulsion is so helpful to this changing age that it should never be neglected—every druggist has it.

An Outside Opinion On Senatorship

Peterborough wants James Kendry, ex-M.P., appointed to the Senate vacancy caused by the death of Senator Geo. A. Cox. We think a progressive place like the Electric City should have a representative in the Senate, but why people should turn to ex-M.P.'s every time for the honour we cannot understand. Surely Peterborough has other prominent men quite as worthy of recognition, some one who has not had political honours but who has done more for the expansion of the city or for the general betterment of the people's conditions. Not necessarily a wealthy man, either, for money is not the measure of a man. The appointee must per force of custom be a Conservative, and one man who has done much for that cuy is F. H. Dobbin who deserves much for his work and fidelity to that party. Two things may be said in his favour — he has more than the average intelligence and his character is above reproach. —Bowmanville Statesman.

WELL DIGGER KILLED

Charles Yeandle Is Dead and Companion Is Badly Hurt.

TALBOTVILLE, Ont., Feb. 2.—Half buried under several tons of clay and bricks, Charles Yeandle, aged 52, was killed and John Ramey, aged 45, almost completely buried, was rescued, but not until he had sustained a serious fracture of the leg in the cave-in of an old well on the farm of Thomas Fife, near this village, Friday afternoon. A third man, Philip Gilbert, scrambled out a minute before the crash came and escaped injury.

The crumbling wall crashed upon Ramey and a solid hour elapsed before he was removed. Yeandle was buried only to his waist, but falling forward on the handle of a shovel he struck his stomach and suffered what is thought to be an internal hemorrhage.

The tragedy happened in full view of several men [illegible] and among them was Yeandle's son Blake. The [illegible] to the well [illegible] and [illegible] like a [illegible] whose life [illegible] being [illegible]

The remaining five men were saved through the gallantry of the first officer, who, realizing his own end, [illegible] his whistle to a companion with orders to blow it.

This attracted the attention of the crew of a lifeboat, who rescued the men from the rigging.

The Hera [illegible] a gale at the entrance to the Bristol channel, lost her course and struck on the rocks near Porthalla Light. The vessel immediately sank and the men took to the boats, which capsized. Each succeeded in getting back to the ship, but three of them were washed off before the lifeboat arrived. The first officer, who was lashed to the rigging, blew his whistle until the rising tide had almost engulfed him. Then he passed it over with the remark: "Here, comm, you can do better with that than I can," and fell back dead.

THE CARE OF HORSES

After wholesome food and pure water for horses the next factor in importance, if there can be any degree between them, is proper light and air. Both, together with proper sewerage and a little attention, prevents the fumes of ammonia and other injurious gases. At no time is there other excuse or necessity for a foul stable.

Plenty of light, as distinguished from a glare, does wonders for the eyes, which soon become weakened if the animal is kept in a dark stall.

The floor of the stall should be as level and as soft as proper drainage will permit. Nothing is more injurious to the tendons and joints than to keep an animal standing upon a hard floor, with his fore feet higher than his hind ones.

In cold weather the temperature should never be greatly above that of the outdoors. This avoids suddenly chilling the horse when he is brought out, and the dangers arising from consequent colds.

TO PREVENT CAR SHORTAGE

Car Efficiency Best Promoted by Co-operation

The Board of Trade News of Toronto recently printed an article on how best to prevent car shortage, and among other things points out that car efficiency can best be attained in the following manner:

1. By the satisfactory handling of traffic with the least number of cars, which can best be accomplished by the ordering of cars of suitable dimensions and loading same to their full capacity.

As an illustration: Assuming a tonnage of 3,000,000 tons is loaded and transported in 250,000 cars, or twelve tons per car. An increase in the load to 15 tons would result in the same traffic being transported in 200,000 cars, thereby freely 50,000 cars for other service. A firm shipping 5 cars of 12 tons each per day for 300 working days, by increasing the average load per car to 15 tons, move the same volume of traffic in 120 instead of 150 cars.

2. Handling the business in the smallest number of car days. The railways should transport the freight quickly, supplemented by prompt loading and unloading of cars by their patrons. The full free time permitted by the Car Service Rules should not be taken advantage of unless actually necessary.

3. Shippers and consignees should ascertain whether their facilities are amply sufficient to ensure the prompt handling of their freight, and the ordering of cars for loading and unloading should be so arranged as to lose no time in handling when placed.

The News believes that the public as well as the railways have duties to perform to prevent a shortage of cars.

BOXING

Leach Cross says he doesn't want to pick up easy money by meeting easy marks.

Johnny Kilbane, the bantam champion, has engaged Steve Ketchel, the Bridgeport lightweight, as a sparring partner.

Georges Carpentier is figuring on doing his term of service in the French army instead of making the trip to Australia.

Hector McInnis, who handles fighters in Boston, has discovered a promising lightweight in the person of Tiger Downie, of Maine.

Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, is trying to land a match with Tommy Murphy before the latter meets Willie Ritchie.

Tony Ross and George Rodel, the Boer heavyweights, have signed for a mass to take place on February 9, in Albany, N.Y.

Tommy Burns, former world's champion, made $20,000 in the boxing game and then doubled it by successful investments, so 'tis said.

Times' Chief Political Writer Goes Over to Liberals.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Since the editorial staff of The Pall Mall Gazette resigned in a body, and with the assistance of the late Sir George Newnes founded the Liberal Westminster Gazette, because a new proprietor wished to change the political complexion of The Pall Mall Gazette, there have been few episodes in English political journalism which have attracted more attention than the resignation of A. P. Nicholson, who for many years has been chief Parliamentary correspondent of The Times. Nicholson has given up one of the prize positions in the London press because he was unable to accept certain methods whereby the Unionist party in Parliament intend to carry on their campaign against the Liberal Government, and which methods as a writer for The Times he would have been required to present in a favorable light.

From The Times Nicholson has gone to The Daily News, in which to-day he writes on the Unionist plans in a way calculated to stir up considerable dust in the political arena. The Unionists, according to Mr. Nicholson, are just circularized their agents throughout the country to prepare for a general election in May next, and he intimates that it is the intention to bring dissolution about either by creating disorders in the House or some other device.

Parliament meets to-day week for its third session under the Parliamentary act. If the session can be brought to an ultimedy end the two years' work which the Liberal party has spent in passing such measures as the home rule bill, to which the Lords refused to assent, will have been accomplished.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Academic or school education, however liberal or effective it may be, is, and must be, confined to the fundamentals, and is intended to enable the pupil better to present himself, both in society and in business, than he would be able to do if he were without it. To force a school or college curriculum beyond this point has been proved to be a complete and recognized failure.

The school has its province. It can go just so far and no farther. When it attempts to cross the line of business it is out of its element and flounders like a discontented fish in turbulent water.

Education never ends. He who considers himself educated, because he has a high school or college diploma, or a Ph. D. degree, is an educated fool, unfitted to assume any responsibility or to do anything beyond academically and automatically attempting to inject into others what has been injected into him.

Men of mark, men of accomplishment, men worth while, never graduate from the University of the World, for they voluntarily remain undergraduates, studying day by day, and becoming more proficient as the years roll by. Whatever their station in life may be, whether they occupy the most menial positions or are in command of great industries, assuming enormous responsibilities, they are all the time absorbing information, obtaining what is literally education, which they may or may not to use, to advantage. With a good academic education back of them, they are better able to handle this higher education acceptably and profitably. Whatever they come in contact with as their teacher, and they go to school, whether they be hod-carriers or the directors of railroads. The little, as well as the great, incidents of life teach them how to avoid failur and how to win success. They learn of the world at large, pitting the negatives against the affirmatives that they may obtain positive results. They read, they study, they become familiar with everything pertaining to their education, and frequently they examine themselves, criticise themselves, take account of stock in themselves, that they may be surer of their proficiency. They never play truant from the perpetual school of the world. They do not make excuses or skip its sessions, for they know that their success is assured by their faithfulness to study and to their work and experiment in the great laboratory of affairs.

No matter what your academic education may be, do not stop studying at the receipt of your diploma. What you have learned at school or college is worth little or nothing to you, unless you consider the world of activity your teacher, and keep on studying and learning as long as you live.

The time to stop studying is the time to stop living, for all men are as dead men when they feel that they have nothing to learn or when they discontinue their education.

All the world is a school, and all the men worth while are its undergraduates.

C. P. R. SUPPLIES COOKS AND WAITERS WITH COMPLEXIONS TO MATCH DINING CARS

The C.P.R. has displayed a subtle ingenuity in advertising, nor did this suffer impairment in a comparatively recent instance. The company wanted, to be exact, 670 cooks and waiters for its dining-car service last spring. It has tried the American cooks and waiters by the painful hundred and found them unreliable. It determined to advertise in the "Big Smoke." London is unthinkably cosmopolite. Every race under heaven has its representatives in the world's metropolis. In a delicate way the company announced that it wanted a certain number of fair-haired people and an equal number of dark "complected" individuals. The papers began to write about the "red-haired dining-car" to such an extent as to cause nothing short of a "thrill" in the general breast. And the requisite number responded—to be exact, indeed, there were at least 2,000 persons, at one time or another, who applied. There was a severe weeding process, with the result that the requisite number were employed and shipped out—fair and dark-complexioned men—to harmonize with the setting of the particular car to which each shade of colour should be confined. And it is the fact that the C.P.R. desires, in its aesthetic way, to produce in each dining-car what might be called a synthesis as to the colour and height and general appearance of the men—the idea being in decorations and general ensemble to present a harmonious whole for the delectation of the passengers. The point of interest is this—that whereas the American cooks and waiters who had aforetime been employed by the company were for the most part unreliable, leaving after two or three months' employment, the men found in London remained the whole season; and at this moment of the entire number 500 are still in the employment of the company. Some left to enter the army, a few went back; but the greater bulk are at work quite contented, as the commissioner, sent out recently, "Answers," and who talked with the men, avouches. These men are Swiss, Scandanavian, Germans to some slight degree, and British. The Swiss speak at least three languages and are most adaptive. This matter of help on the dining-cars is one of the serious problems to be faced by Mr. W. A. Cooper, the manager of the sleeping and dining-car service—the difficulty of getting and then retaining the right men; but the experiment of going to London and advertising for them has proved an unqualified success. It seems unthinkably remote to consider the big posters of the early days which announced, rather ridiculously, the advantage of the C.P.R. in the matter of gastronomic enjoyment. The delicate aestheticism which the company now provides marks the apogee of advance and elaboration.

If bamboo furniture is inclined to crack, mix together equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine and rub it on the furniture with a soft rag.

All Aboard For Whitby Is The Slogan Of The Local Hockey Fans

Special G. T. R. Train Will Leave at 5.45 p. m. Wednesday and a Big Crowd of Fans Will See Most Important Game of Season.

ROUND TRIP FARE $1.50

All aboard for Whitby, is the slogan of local hockey fans just now, and a big crowd will accompany the Petes on their excursion to the Lakeshore town on Wednesday for the most important game of the season. A special G.T.R. train will leave here at 5.45 p.m. sharp, returning immediately after the game, with a round trip fare of $1.50. This will give local fans a splendid opportunity of witnessing what should be the most exciting game played in this district this season. A large number have already signified their intention of going, and it is certain that no one who can get away will miss this outing, which promises to be one of the best in the history of the Hockey Club. A win for the Petes on Wednesday assures them at least a tie for the district, and the blue and white team may be depended upon to put up the hardest kind of a battle.

THE CORRECT STANDING OF THE GROUP

The standing for this district, as announced in the Toronto papers to-day, is incorrect as far as Belleville and Whitby is concerned. The Belleville team was given credit for beating Whitby in Whitby, whereas the game is yet to be played, having been postponed. The Peterborough Club drew the attention of Secretary Hewitt to the mistake and he has ordered Belleville to play in Whitby on Friday night. Here is the correct group standing:

	Won.	Lost	To Play.
Peterborough	7	2	1
Belleville	5	2	3
Cobourg	4	3	3
Oshawa	5	4	1
Whitby	4	4	2
Bowmanville	0	10	0

The games yet to be played are: Cobourg at Belleville, to-night; Peterborough at Whitby and Belleville at Cobourg Wednesday night; Oshawa at Cobourg and Belleville at Whitby on Friday night.

INTERMEDIATES CAPTAIN IS OUT FOR THE SEASON

O. H. A. Sub-Committee Decides to Cancel Cyril Giroux's Certificate on Account of Trouble in Cobourg Game.

FRYER OUT FOR GOOD

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—An important meeting of the sub-committee of the Ontario Hockey Association was held Saturday afternoon at The Telegram office, with J. Ross Robertson in the chair.

The Collingwood episode of January 22nd, when Referee Harvey Sproule and the Orillia team were threatened by some of the spectators after the first overtime period of the game, and also after the game, was considered. The committee decided to issue a warning to the Collingwood Hockey Club that another instance of the kind would result in a ban being placed on the town and rink. Better police protection for visiting teams and referees must be provided if Collingwood is to remain on the O.H.A. map.

Freyer's Certificate Cancelled.

The certificate of Ernie Freyer, of the Collingwood club, was cancelled, and he will not be allowed to again play in the O.H.A. Freyer received his certificate this year on probation, and having been reported by a referee for unbecoming conduct on the ice his certificate is now cancelled.

Jack Burns, of the Collingwood club, was warned that if he is again reported by an O.H.A. referee he will be expelled. The same punishment will be meted out to Thomas Riordan, of Oshawa, if he is again reported.

Giroux Is Suspended.

Cyril Giroux, captain of the Peterborough intermediate team, was suspended and his certificate cancelled for rowdyism on the ice in the game with Cobourg. Giroux used bad language to the referee and also refused to leave the ice when ordered.

The certificate of Wm. Ploethner, of Preston, was cancelled. He does not qualify under the residence rule.

It was decided to have the West Toronto Victoria game at Markham replayed if the game has any effect on the Victoria's chances for the district championship. The same thing applies to Newmarket.

Hamilton Protest Dismissed.

The protest of the Centennial Hockey Club of Hamilton against the Hamilton Hockey Club in which certain charges were laid against Oscar Cox and Frank McEwen was considered and dismissed as trivial. The certificate of Leonard Crook of the Centennials was cancelled, he being proved to be a resident of Dundas and not of Hamilton.

Schedule For Junior Church Hockey League

Following is the Junior Church Hockey League schedule for the week:

Monday, Feb. 2—Y. M. C. A. vs. Knox, 7 to 8.

Tuesday, Feb. 3—Charlotte vs. St. Paul's, 7 to 8.

Thursday, Feb. 5—Knox vs. All Saints', 7 to 8.

Owing to a double schedule being agreed upon, and the lack of ice, it has been found necessary to arrange the schedule in two groups of three teams each, the winners of each group playing off for the championship.

Hockey--That's All

The Oriental Hotel and Barber Shop staff have accepted the challenge of the Times Printing Co. staff to a game of hockey, the terrible affair to be pulled off at Brock Street rink at an early date.

The Times staff will line up as follows:

Goal—"Noodles" Kylie.
R. Defence—"Speed" Quick.
L. Defence—"Razor Back" Killenbeck.
Rover—"Benedict" Henley.
Centre—"Fddle Sticks" Pearson.
R. Wing—"Canal" Scriver.
L. Wing—"Hamlet" Thurston.
Coach—"Tiny Tad" Moore.
Mascot—"Long Primer" Miller.

The intermediates will practice to-night at 7 o'clock in the final preparation for Wednesday's big game with Whitby. Every player is expected out to-night.

The Exploits' Rooters' Club are requested to line up near the penalty box, (west side), with their colours at 7:45 p.m. to-morrow night, for the game with the Y.M.C.A.

St. Paul's Church Hockey team will practice at Parker's Rink Tuesday night, from 10-11. All players are requested to be on hand.

The big game in the Junior City Hockey League is scheduled for to-morrow night at 8 o'clock at Brock St. Rink, when the Boston Exploits and Y.M.C.A. teams clash. This is the first meeting between two undefeated teams and as the rivalry between the two is intense, there is every reason to expect a fight from gong to gong. The Wanderers and Alerts furnish the other half of the double-header. Here is the line-up for the first game:

Exploits.		Y. M. C. A.
	Goal.
Latimer		Darling
	Right defence.
Phelan		R. Smyth, Capt.
	Left defence.
Regan		Cranfield
	Rover.
Graham		Stevenson
	Centre.
Butcher, Capt.		Quinn
	Right wing.
Wolff		Knapman
	Left wing.
Rose		Jackson
Spare		E. Smyth

THE EXAMINER HOCKEY TEAM.

This team plays second game, from 9 to 10 p.m. to-night at Brock Street Rink.

Will all the members please be on time, so as to take the ice promptly.

THE MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE.

The games to be played to-night under the auspices of this League at the Brock Street Rink are as follows:

8-9—Tool Room vs. Plumbers.
9-10—"Examiner" vs. Bankers.
10-11—De Laval vs. Test Room.

LADIES' CURLING.

Following was the score of the game played this morning:

Miss Hamilton	Miss Denne
Miss Irwin	Miss Davidson
Mrs. Sanderson	Miss Gladman
Mrs. Travers, skip 10	Mrs. Matthews 8

On Wednesday morning a game will be played between the following rinks:

Miss Hamilton	Mrs. Cameron
Miss Irwin	Miss Gladman
Mrs. Adam Hall	Mrs. Walker
Mrs. Sanderson, skips	Mrs. Travers

The local club will be represented at the bonspiel in Montreal to-morrow.

LEEDS CITY BEATEN BY WEST BROMWICH SCORE 2-0

Lancashire Teams Have all the Luck, Five Qualify for the Third Round---Swindon Town Are Beaten---British Soccer League Results

Only one surprise was registered in English soccer Saturday and that was the victory of West Bromwich Albion over Leeds City on the Elland Road enclosure by 2 goals to 0. The "Peacocks" were strong favourites and with the game on their own grounds were expected to at least tie with their opponents from the first division. Last year's winners, Aston Villa, downed Exeter City, the Southern League team, on their own grounds by the narrow margin of two goals to 1. It must have been a pretty hard fight, and the "Villans" have a long way to get before they get their name inscribed on the cup for 1913-14. The team on the banks of the Irwell proved to be too much fr the "Spurs," and Manchester City have again gainer entry into the third round. The "City" boys always do well in the cup when they are down in the league, and this year is proving no exception to the rule. Liverpool, Bolton Wanderers, Burnley, Blackburn Rovers, and Preston North End are the other Lancashire teams who now have the right to enter the next round.

Preston Down Glossop.

Preston North End, the tailenders of the first division, downed Glossop, tail-enders of the second division, on the latters' ground by an odd goal. Preston an West Bromwich were the only two teams to win away-from-home games in the second round.

Blackburn Beat Bury.

Blackburn Rovers, who lead the first division, whitewashed Bury by 2 goals to 0. Swindon Town journeyed up to Lancashire where they met Bolton Wanderers, and the "Red Rose" club piled up 4 goals while their rivals could only get 2. The Sheffield soccer enthusiasts should have no reason to complain about the performance of their two teams as the "United" downed Bradford by 3 to 1, and the "Wednesday" made a tie with the 'Wolves' at Wolverhampton. This was the only tie game of the round.

Big Score at Airdrie.

Airdrieonians piled up a cricket score against Morton at Airdrie. The final score in this Scottish League game was 7 to 1. The Airdrie team now stand fourth in the league and are going pretty strong. Hibernians got a shock on their own grounds when Ayr United came along and whitewashed them by 5 goals to 0. Another Scottish surprise was the victory of Hamilton over Clyde. The former team have been doing very badly this season whilst Clyde are near the top and the 2-to-0 victory Saturday goes further to demonstrate the glorious uncertainy of the soccer game. Hearts lost another valuable point to Queen's Park, who held them to a tie of 1 goal each. The following are the league standings up-to-date:

First Division

	P	W	L	D	Gals Fr	Gals Ag	Pts
Black Rovers	25	13	5	7	59	29	33
Sunderland	25	12	7	6	46	35	30
Man. United	24	13	8	3	38	32	29

Erie In Line Eor The Season

Geo. H. O'Neill Has Come to Agreement With Erie Exhibition Co.

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 2.—The Erie Exhibition Co. disposed of all its baseball rights in this city to Geo. H. O'Neill, of London, Ont., shortly after three o'clock this afternoon for $2,000.

By terms of the agreement, Mr. O'Neill assumes the lease on Perry field and can run the baseball in this city in future.

The Erie Exhibition Co. dropped out of baseball in Erie, and only O'Neil can handle the national pastime in this city.

Mr. O'Neill is promised the good will and support of the former directors. He in turn will make every effort to give this city a winning team in the Canadian League, which consists of seven Canadian towns and Erie.

Geo. Smith, formerly with Buffalo International League club, is to manage the local team.

McNeal To Get Chance With Buffalo Team

BUFFALO, Jan. 31.—Norman McNeal, a Buffalo boy, last season a catcher for the Peterborough team of the Canadian League, will be given a chance with the Bisons next season, it was announced at the headquarters of the Buffalo International League Baseball club yesterday. Manager Clymer, when in town Tuesday, agreed to give the youngster a try-out and the local lad was signed.

McNeal is a well built lad and has every physical requirement to make a strong man behind the bat. Jimmy Murray boosts him to the skies and predicts that the Buffalo club will not make any mistake by taking him south. In 86 games behind the bat for the Peterborough team last season he batted .256 and fielded .970. He is said to be fast upon the bases and has an arm that will remind the local fans of Hank Gowdy's whip. McNeal played in Buffalo with the Simon Pures and several South Buffalo semi-pro. teams.

What do you mean? "fast on the bases?" Have a heart, Agnes.

CORRECT SCORE.

In the English Cup, second round, Preston N.E. won from Glossop by a score of 7-0, and not 1-0, as was stated in Saturday's issue.

BIG TEAMS SOON TO BEGIN SPRING PRACTICE

Chicago Cubs Will be the First to Get Away—A Bunch of Rookies Leaving Next Friday.

BIG LEAGUE NOTES

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 31.—If present plans are carried out the Chicago Cubs, at least a batch of them, will be the first major leaguers to make a getaway for the spring training camp. The Cubs will get into condition at Tampa, and Manager Evers announces he will pilot a squad of rookies out of Chicago next Friday. The regulars will depart for the South ten days later. The Cubs are to play many exhibition games on the training trip, among them a series of six battles with Connie Mack's world's champions. Three of the games will be played in Tampa and three in Jacksonville.

Connie Mack will put the Athletics through their training paces in Jacksonville, having forsaken the old training grounds at San Antonio. Before the American League season opens the Macks will play series of games with three National League clubs, Chicago, Philadelphia and Brooklyn.

The White Sox squad will leave this city for Paso Robles, Cal., on the night of Feb. 19. "Kid" Gleason will have charge of the Sox until the arrival of Manager Callahan, who is now with the world-touring ball players.

As for several years past the New York Giants will work out at Marlin, Texas. The team will start training under the direction of Scout Dick Kinsella on the first day of March. Manager McGray will arrive in New York from Europe a week later, and will join the team at Marlin at once.

The Cleveland American League team has shifted its training quarters from Mobile to Athens, Ga. Manager Birmingham will have a large squad in the Georgia University city, including many youngsters. Two teams will be formed and a daily battle on the diamond will be staged.

Manager Clarke Griffith will have fifty-five varieties of ball tossers under his wing when the Senators go on their spring training trip. He has made arrangements to care for that number of men at Charlotteville, Va., where the Washingtons will get in shape for the pennant race.

Charley Herzog, former Giant and present manager of the Cincinnati team, will try to whip the Red Birds into winning form at Mobile. Joe Tinker and "Miner" Brown will be missing from the Reds' lineup, having signed with the Federal League.

The first squad of Boston Red Sox will leave for the training camp at Hot Springs, Ark., on February 24 or 25. Manager Bill Carrigan will lead the advance guard, which will include four or five veterans and a large bunch of youngsters. Carrigan plans to have his entire squad, numbering 31 men, at work by March 9.

With Manager Fred Clarke in charge, the Pittsburg Pirates will make their getaway for West Baden Springs on March 7. After a week's sojourn at the Indiana resort, the players will leave for Hot Springs, Ark., where the finishing touches will be added to the spring workout.

Groundkeeper Fred Heisman of Detroit has been at Gulfport, Miss., several weeks engaged in putting the training grounds in shape for Cobb, Crawford and the rest of the Tigers. Fred also has to furnish alfalfa for Manager Hugh Jennings to practice his grass-pulling stunt.

Wilbert Robinson, former coach of the Giants and new manager of the Brooklyn team, will start for the Superbas' training camp at Augusta on Feb. 20. The Brooklyn recruits will accompany Robinson and the regulars will follow ten days later.

Branch Rickey, who was signed the latter part of last season to manage the St. Louis Browns, has picked St. Petersburg, Fla., as a suitable place for the Browns to get into condition. The Browns will dwell in their own "hotel," a house of 26 rooms having been built especially for them at the training grounds.

The desertion of Knabe, Brennan, Packard and Cammitz of the Philadelphia Nationals has made a big hole in the Phillies' lineup. Manager Dooin and the advance guard will leave for Wilmington, N.C., on Feb. 24. At Wilmington Charley will try to bolster up what now appears to be a pretty weak outfit.

Manager Stallings will take his Boston Braves to Macon, Ga., for spring training. He will have a squad of 32 men, among them three Cuban tossers.

Manager Frank Chance of the New York Yankee has passed up Bermuda in favour of Houston, Texas, for the training quarters of the Yanks this year. He has scheduled 30 exhibition games to be played before the opening of the championship season.

The St. Louis Cardinals have forsaken Texas as a training ground and will get into condition this year at St. Augustine, Fla. Manager Huggins and a band of rookies will leave St. Louis on Feb. 23. The veterans of the team will leave March 1. Huggins is of the opinion that he will find several real ball players in his squad of youngsters.

ONTARIO TANKARD GAMES WEDNESDAY

The Ontario Tankard finals will be played in Toronto, commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning, on Wednesday next, February 4. The draw will be made the preceding evening at the Victoria Club, Huron Street at 8:30.

Rehearsals are going on every afternoon and evening for the big cabaret Minstrels, and not a thing is going to be left undone in making this season's performance the best ever. Mr. Crane adorns the middle and with the end men will keep fun to the front. Special attention will be given to details, which always means a finished product. No one should miss the big attractions this season. All the very latest ideas in minstrelsy will be introduced. Feb. 12 nd 13 are the dates.

Old Newspapers Help.

To keep moths away from woollen material, wrap the material in old newspapers. The printers' ink keeps them away. The fresher the papers are the better.

—o—

To Clean Your Irons.

When you are ironing, if the irons make a black spot on the clothes, all you have to do is to put a little good scouring powder or cleanser on a piece of paper or a cloth, then rub the hot iron on it and you would never know it had been dirty.

—o—

A Soap Saver.

An excellent way to utilise small scraps of soap is to put them in a small baking powder tin or cocoa tin and cover them. Then punch holes in both ends of the can. This is handy for washing dishes, as the soap cannot come in direct contact with them and in this way every scrap of soap is used.

CURLING

The annual games for the Neil-Sheppard trophy will be played on Monday next, January 9th, by four rinks, skipped by J. E. A. Fitzgerald, W. G. Morrow, H. F. Foot and R. Neill.

The skips who will handle the brooms at the local rink the same day will be S. T. Medd, J. H. Connal, R. M. Waddell and D. Davidson.

The Peterborough curlers who now hold the Cup are anticipating the games with the determination to prevent it becoming one of the trophies in the archives of the Orillia Rink.

On Friday next a number of Toronto rinks will invade the local rink and play friendly games with the members of the Peterborough Club.

Sir John Fuller Retires.

The Governor of Victoria, Sir John Fuller, has tendered his resignation on account of his health and for family reasons. Sir John was taken ill two months ago while visiting England, and was for some weeks a patient in a nursing home in the West of London. His condition became improved, but his health has since been far from satisfactory, and he has remained in England. Lady Fuller, who had accompanied her husband on his visit to England has left for Australia. Sir John was appointed Governor of Victoria in 1911. Previous to this Australian appointment, from 1900 to 1911, he was Liberal M.P. for the Westbury Division of Wilts, and was Junior Lord of the Treasury in 1906. In the following year he became Vice Chamberlain of His Majesty's Household, and a baronetcy was conferred on him in 1910. He is in his fiftieth year.

Canine Etiquette.

In their relations one with another dogs have a keen sense of etiquette Unless they are on very intimate terms they take great pains never to brush against or even touch one another For one dog to step over another is a dangerous breach of etiquette unless they are special friends. It is no uncommon thing for two dogs to belong to the same person and live in the same house and yet never take the slightest notice of each other. We have a spaniel so dignified that he will never permit another member of the dog family to pillow his head upon him, but with the egotism of a true aristocrat he does not hesitate to make use of the other dogs for that purpose Henry C. Merwin in Atlantic.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Girl's Dress.

This dress is made with the new very deep yoke, forming almost a waist. The material below it is quite full and is gathered at top and bottom. The sleeve is plain and wide and the skirt, while forming a plain panel in front, is pleated all around. These suits are made of linen, gingham, cheviot, cotton fabric and the like.

The dress pattern, No. 6,528, is cut in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Medium size requires 3¼ yards of 36 inch material.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

WHAT EDUCATION SHOULD FARMERS' DAUGHTERS' RECEIVE?

THE pursuit of knowledge is elevating and refining. The earnest student soon forms ideals that lifts her life above the commonplace, and yet with all this, the sensible girl comes back from college to the farm to be a better help on the farm than before, because more intelligent.

Education does not unfit a girl for her duties at home. If it does, the fault lies in the girl herself, or in her training. It should develop abilities hitherto scarcely realized, and widen her sphere for usefulness. By being away from home—as is often the case when attending High School—she sees other women's methods of housekeeping, tests foods differently prepared, and comes home with fresh ideas for more variety in the daily menu, or for home furnishings.

Farmers' daughters should not be slaves, but free. Education should develop desires for reading and for arts. I have in mind a girl who attended High School for a term or two, having to give it up on account of her eyes. She became an excellent housekeeper, and found time to paint some very creditable pictures, which afterwards adorned the walls of the manse, where she went after marriage. She became an expert at art needlework, as well as acquiring a good musical education. She was in every way suitable for the wife of an educated man.

PRACTICAL RESULTS OF EDUCATION

In another farm household where there are two daughters, they have taken turns obtaining a short course or different courses at Macdonald Institute, Guelph, also in learning dressmaking and millinery, so that the home sewing can be well done by them.

Farmers' daughters should receive the best education possible. They are usually as bright and capable as other girls, and often make much better students than do town girls. In their earlier years, farmers' daughters are imbibing knowledge at first hand, of sanitary science, household economics, and of outside life, which is denied to the town girl.

The farm is a university where nearly every known subject may be studied, and naturally at least a smattering of knowledge of different kinds is obtained.

A COURSE AT HIGH SCHOOL.

The farmer's daughters should be given at least a short term at High School, longer if it can be given. Life on the farm is free, untrammeled, and unconventional. When the country girl mingles first with other society, she may feel awkward or ill at ease. Mingling with other kindred spirits at High School or college rubs off the sharp corners, smooths the rough lines, and soon the peg fits comfortably in the hole.

Farmers' daughters should be worthy to be the wives of good, intelligent men, whether farmers, business men, or professional men. Men want in a wife not only a home maker, but a companion, who can understand and enter intelligently into their flights of thought. For this purpose, a farmer's daughter should be given an opportunity to develop her abilities, and should be encouraged to assist in public functions and become used to living in the public eye. This will give ease of manner, freedom from self-consciousness, and ability to assist gracefully when called upon to perform some public duty.

The farm is the best place in which to develop strong bodies, sound minds and healthy spirits. The variety of work, the freedom from irksome restraint, the happy, healthy environment, coupled with an educated intelligence and kind heart, should make the farmer's daughter not only a peer, but even a superior of the girl in the city office, who knows how to do only the one thing, and not even that very well. The farmer's daughter should be worthy of any man, and is often too good for most men.

QUEBEC MEMBER UNDER INVESTIGATION COLLAPSES

His Health is in a Dangerous Condition and May Not Be Restored

THE PROBE WILL CONTINUE

QUEBEC, Feb. 3.—When the legislative investigation into the allegations by The Montreal Daily Mail that J. Octave Mousseau, who has resigned his seat in the Quebec Legislative Assembly, was resumed last night. Dr. Adelstan De Martigny, a Montreal specialist, appeared before the committee and testified that Mr. Mousseau was so ill he could not specify whether he would ever regain his health. He is lingering in a condition between coma and unconsciousness, declared the doctor. He cannot be made to understand questions asked him; he does not sleep or take nourishment.

Mr. Bisaillon, K.C.—"Is there any reason to believe that he is shamming?"

Dr. De Martigny—"Not at all. It is impossible to tell the consequences were he to come here. When I tried to quiet him he wept. To a layman his symptoms might appear strange, but to a physician they seem perfectly possible under the circumstances. The only thing to do is to try to nourish him, and, if necessary, send him to a sanitarium where he may have perfect rest."

Armand Lavergne—"Do you think he is acting a part?"

Dr. De Martigny—"It would require an extraordinary actor. He does not eat. When one of his children was brought to him no recognition was shown."

Mr. Lavergne—"Did you show him [illegible]?"

The doctor did not reply.

Though Mr. Mousseau has resigned his seat, the enquiry will proceed, first to determine whether the charges against him of accepting bribes are true, and secondly, to discover if any other members of the Legislature are guilty of the same offence.

Discussing the matter, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, chairman of the committee, said: "We will make the investigation as thorough and complete as possible."

When asked regarding the lines of the report the committee will submit to the House of Assembly, in view of the fact the only member of the House who is accused, has resigned, Mr. Taschereau replied:

"Our conclusions will be based on the evidence. We may lay before the House all the evidence heard, or we may report our findings in the evidence."

It was decided to proceed with the enquiry and leave the question of Mr. Mousseau's appearance adjourned in the meantime.

Mr. Beck, formerly editor of The Montreal Herald, under whose instructions the detectives' investigations were made, continued his evidence relating to Mr. Mousseau's visit to Mr. Hyland, when he spoke of the necessity of "settling with members of the lower House."

Mr. Marechal, counsel for The Daily Mail: "Did Mr. Mousseau admit then that he had collected $1,050 already?"

Mr. Beck: "He did. He was pleading for the balance of $1,050. He said the safest way was to pay the balance due the members of the lower House, as they had acquaintances in the upper House whom they would influence to vote for or against the bill. If, he said, the promises were not kept some of them might be inclined to oppose the bill through their friends in the upper House."

The committee adjourned until to-day.

RAILS AT ARCHBISHOP.

Mrs. Dacre-Fox Says He Had Decided Beforehand.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The only feeling experienced by Mrs. Dacre-Fox, the militant suffragette leader, while she was interviewing the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth Palace on Jan. 29, was "utter contempt," she told her militant sisters at their weekly meeting yesterday.

In reporting to her audience how she had pleaded with the English primate on behalf of the suffragette prisoners who were being forcibly fed, Mrs. Dacre-Fox said the archbishop's chaplain was "a pitiable object, trembling and with chattering teeth."

Mrs. Dacre-Fox said that while the Archbishop of Canterbury was coldly and calmly listening to her account of what was being done to her comrades in Holloway Jail, she knew all the time he had already been in communication with the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington Ingram, Bishop of London, and that the fate of their efforts had already been fixed.

"That was why I experienced that awful feeling of contempt."

MR. GAGE MAKES GIFT.

Founder of Sanitarium Movement Contributes $100,000.

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—Mr. Dunbar, treasurer of the National Sanitarium Association, has received a further contribution of $100,000 from Mr. W. J. Gage to assist in providing for the maintenance of needy patients in Muskoka. This sum is to be added to the King Edward Memorial Fund for Consumptives, and makes Mr Gage's total gifts to this work over a quarter million dollars.

Mr. Gage is practically the founder of the sanitarium movement in Canada, and as a result of his efforts and the interest he has taken in the work sanitaria have sprung up in every province in the Dominion, and there are several institutions for the care of tubercular patients besides the National Association in this province. Counties have taken up the movement.

Garafraxa Victims Buried.

GUY BIDDINGER.

BIDDINGER, CHIEF WITNESS AT INQUIRY INTO THE ALLEGED BRIBERY AT QUEBEC—UNCOVERED ALLEGED BRIBERY IN QUEBEC—Mr. Biddinger is the new chief of detectives in New York City, and secand deputy police commissioner. As such he heads the largest force of detectives in the world, except that of Scotland Yard. It was as assistant-general manager of the Burns Detective Agency that Mr. Biddinger directed the Quebec graft investigation, and, in consequence, he will be a witness at the inquiry. His most notable work was in connection with the McNamara case, and he secured the evidence that led to the arrest of their lawyer, Clarence S. Darrow. He trapped seven members of the West Virginia Legislature and five Atlantic City aldermen, most of whom were sent to prison. Biddinger was born in Cincinnati in 1875.

THE LOS ANGELES POISONING CASE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 3.—The Grondin case, one of the most baffling cases of alleged murder with which the police of Los Angeles have had to deal in a long time, was given its first airing in court to-day, when John H. Grondin was arraigned for a preliminary hearing on a charge of having murdered his wife by poison. The hearing was a necessary formality incidental to holding the accused husband to await the action of the grand jury. Meanwhile both sides are going forward with preparations for what promises to be one of the most sensational and hardest fought legal battle in the court records of this county.

Mrs. Grondin was found dead on Oct. 30 last and it is now learned that an investigation into the circumstances of her death was begun a few weeks later. But it was not until January 24 that the husband was taken into custody and a charge of wife murder laid against him.

Both the accused and his alleged victim were natives of Waterville, Me., and lived in the State of Maine from the time of their marriage until about a year ago, when they removed to Los Angeles because of Mrs. Grondin's health. John H. Grondin attended school in Waterville and for some years was employed by a publishing firm in that city. Later he studied medicine and then attended an emblaming school in New York. Mrs. Grondin, who was 21 years of age, was the daughter of George A. Daviau, a druggist of Waterville. After their marriage the couple resided for some years in Lewiston, Me. Two children were district attorney announced that poison had been found in Mrs. Grondin's body, which was exhumed a week or ten days ago.

The day after Grondin's arrest his attorneys caused something of a sensation by declaring that the "third degree," with a "ghost" as the central figure, had been applied by the police in a futile attempt to obtain a confession from the accused husband. The police denied that they had used the so-called third degree on Grondin.

Attorneys say that when the case comes to trial it will be a battle between handwriting experts who have examined the "suicide note" which Grondin alleges his wife wrote. Of two handwriting experts who examined the note one declared positively that it had been written by Grondin, while the other was equally positive that it had been written by Mrs. Grondin. One of the experts represented the prosecution and the other the defence.

born both of whom are now with the parents of the accused husband in Waterville.

When Mrs. Grondin was found dead, Grondin made public a note which, he said, had been written by his wife, and left an explanation of her alleged suicide. It contained an admission of infidelity, and the hope that he would be happy with "the woman who truly loved him." The coroner's jury that investigated Mrs Grondin's death accepted the note as genuine and reported that her death was due "asphyxiation with suicidal intent."

When Mr. Daviau, father of the dead woman, learned of the note he immediately began an investigation. About the same time there arrived here from Maine a widow in whom Grondin was said to be interested. This led the authorities to re-open the case. Meanwhile Grondin was put under surveillance and he was arrested when the

MINERS' WAGE SCALE CONFERENCE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 3.—The advance guard or coal mine operators and miners reached Philadelphia yesterday in anticipation of the meeting of the joint wage scale conference, which will begin its deliberations today. The conference will endeavour to agree upon wages and conditions of labour to govern the central competitive field, which is composed of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The new agreement will come into effect on pril 1, on which date the present agreement will expire. Unofficial statements made by both operators and miners afford ground for the belief that less difficulty will be encountered in reaching an agreement this year than has been the case in some previous years. The miners are said to appreciate the fact that the present condition of the mining industry is not such as to warrant any radical demands for increased wages. They desire a readjustment of the present scale along certain lines and will demand other modifications in the present agreement. But the most of these are of a comparatively unimportant nature and it is believed that no point is likely to arise in the negotiations on which a failure to agree might lead to a general strike.

FEDERAL AID ASKED

Nova Scotia Fishermen Want to Export Their Surplus

STEAMER SUBSIDY IS URGED

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—The Government was confronted with a series of 191 questions standing on the order paper when the House opened yesterday afternoon. Nearly all of these were from Opposition members, desiring information as to the Government's legislative plans, as to various administrative acts.

Improved means of transportation for fresh fish between the Maritime Provinces and the United States occupied the attention of the Commons for the whole night sitting. The matter was submitted to the House by Mr. J. H. Sinclair, who moved a resolution calling for prompt Government action, and the Guysborough man was vigorously supported by the Nova Scotia membership.

B. B. Law, the Liberal member for Yarmouth, N.S., took occasion to deny the newspaper reports that he was to vacate his seat for the benefit of Hon. W. S. Fielding. He said he had never been asked to resign and had no intention of doing so.

Postmaster-General Pelletier announced that he had cut down the claim of the railway companies for additional pay on account of the parcel post service from $4,000,000 to $786,000 per year.

Mr. Sinclair (Guysboro) addressed the House in support of his resolution, declaring that the Government should at once give consideration to the question of providing better transportation for fresh fish from the Maritime Provinces to the United States. He said that of late years Nova Scotia fishermen had built up a good market in Quebec and Ontario. Through the assistance of the Government they had been able to capture the market of Montreal and Toronto, formerly served by the United States. The industry had been so stimulated that the shipments of fish over the I. C. R. from Mulgrave west had increased from 1,600 tons in 1903 to over 5,000 tons in 1913. At present, however, the home market was not large enough. Two or three cars landed at Montreal would break the market. Fortunately, the United States had removed the tariff upon fish, thus opening a magnificent market at Boston, where the Nova Scotian fishermen could sell their catch at high prices.

Mr. Bradbury (Selkirk) asked whether the price of fish was not as high in Montreal as it was in Boston.

Mr. Sinclair: "I must say that the retail price of fish in Ontario is beyond my comprehension. Fish that sells for 1 1-2 cents per pound with us brings 10 cents a pound in the city of Ottawa. The point I am making is that Boston will take all our surplus and at a high price."

Mr. A. A. McLean (Queen's, P.E.I.) submitted that if the Government had any money to spend in stimulating the fish industry it should be along the line of further developing the home market.

Mr. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) said the Government was paying a big subsidy for steamship service to the West Indies and South America, and also to South Africa. A much smaller sum expended in subsidizing a line from the Maritime Provinces to Boston would yield a much larger return.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, was not in the House, but Mr. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, replied on behalf of the Government. The Nova Scotia fishermen, he said, found ever-increasing trade in the upper provinces, which had been stimulated in no small measure by the recent exhibit at Toronto. There was already a line of steamers between Yarmouth and Boston, and he believed that this service would greatly improve now that fish is admitted free of duty into the United States. He intimated that if the steamship company put on a daily service from Yarmouth to Boston that the Government might subsidize a service from other Nova Scotia ports to Yarmouth for the benefit of the fishermen.

Truce In Rate War.

BERLIN, Feb. 3—Despatches from Hamburg announce that some transatlantic steamship lines have made overtures to the Hamburg-American line suggesting that the conditions existing under the agreement which expired on Jan. 31 should be maintained during the month of February.

Released Convict Deported.

KINGSTON, Feb. 3.—On his being released from the penitentiary, Salvatera Albano, an Italian 25 years of age, was taken charge of by P. Devlin, immigration inspector, for deportation. Albano finished a term of two years and a half for wounding with intent to kill.

Appendicitis Attacks Forget.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—Sir Rodolphe Forget, M.P., is confined to his house here through an attack of appendicitis. His condition last night was reported as very satisfactory, and the doctors say no operation will be necessary.

Shrinkage In Receipts.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Customs receipts for the Dominion in January were $7,065,165, as compared with $7,779,089 in January last year. This shows a falling off of more than $700,000.

SHOOTS DIAZ ENVOY.

Gen. Villa Resents Proposal That He Change Sides.

JUAREZ, Feb. 3.—Francisco I. Guzman, who figured prominently in the revolt against President Madero in Mexico City a year ago, was executed in the front yard of a house occupied by Gen. Francisco Villa here yesterday. Guzman had just come from Havana, where it was charged he had been given a secret mission by Felix Diaz to induce Gen. Villa to renounce Gen. Carranza and throw the strength of the revolution to Diaz.

As soon as he heard of the proposal Gen. Villa gave Guzman a conference, and after making sure of the nature of the visit, ordered the messenger to be shot. Within a few minutes after his arrival Guzman was led out of Villa's room, stood up before an adobe wall and with his hands tied and eyes blindfolded, was executed. The shooting was done by a rebel officer in charge of the railroads, who happened to be present when the execution was ordered.

Guzman was formerly a private secretary to Dr. Emilio Vasquez Gomez. He was known as one of the promoters of Orozco revolution against Madero, and later joined with Huerta against the late President.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

CHAPTER III

An Unsettled Score

As soon after dinner as possible Larkin disengaged himself from the rest of the party and motioned Caldwell to follow him. He led the way around the house and back toward the fence of the corral. It was already dark, and the only sounds were those of the horses stirring restlessly, or the low bellow of one of the ranch milch cows.

"What are you doing out here?" demanded Bud.

"I came to see you." The other emitted an exasperating chuckle at his own cheap wit.

"What do you want?"

"You know what I want." This time there was no chuckle, and Bud could imagine the close-set, greedy eyes of the other, one of them slightly crossed, boring into him in the dark.

"Money, I suppose, you whining blood-sucker," suggested Bud, his voice quiet, but holding a cold unpleasant sort of ring that was new to Caldwell.

"'The boy guessed right the very first time,'" quoted Smithy, unabashed.

"What became of that two thousand I gave you before I left Chicago?"

"I got little enough of that," cried Caldwell. "You know how many people there were to be hushed up."

"Many!" snapped Larkin. "You can't come any of that on me. There were just three; yourself, your wife, and that red-headed fellow—I forget his name."

"Well, my wife doesn't live with me any more," whined Smithy, "but she makes me support her just the same, and threatens to squeal on you if I don't produce regularly; she knows where the money comes from."

Suddenly Larkin stepped close to the other and thrust something long and hard against his ribs.

"I'm going to do for you now, Smithy," he said in a cold, even voice. Caldwell did not even move from his position.

"If you do," was his reply, "the woman will give the whole thing to the newspapers. They have smelled a rat so long they would pay well for a tip. She has all the documents. So if you want to bring and ruin everybody concerned, just pull that trigger."

"I knew you were lying." Bud stepped back and thrust his revolver into his holster. "You are still living with your wife, for she wouldn't have the documents if you weren't. A man rarely lies when he is within two seconds of death. You are up to your old tricks, Smithy, and they have never fooled me yet. Now, let's get down to business. How much do you want?"

"Two thousand dollars."

"I haven't got it. You don't know it, perhaps, but my money is on the hoof out in this country, and cash is very little used. Look here. You bring your wife and that red-haired chap out to Arizona or California and I will set you up in the sheep business. I've got herds coming north now, but I'll turn a thousand back in your name, and by the time you arrive they will be on the southern range. What do you say?"

"I say no," replied the other in an ugly voice. "I want money, and I'm going to have it. Good old Chi is range enough for me."

"Well, I can't give you two thousand, because I haven't got it."

"What have you got?"

"Five hundred dollars, the pay of my herders."

"I'll take that on account, then," said Caldwell insolently. "When will you have some more?"

"Not until the end of July, when the wool has been shipped East."

"All right. I'll wait till then. Come on, hand over the five hundred."

Larkin reached inside his heavy woollen shirt, opened a chamois bag that hung by a string around his neck, and emptied it of bills. These he passed to Caldwell without a word.

"If you are wise, Smithy," he said in an even voice, "you won't ask me for any more. I've about reached the end of my rope in this business. And let me tell you that this account between you and me is going to be settled in full to my credit before very long."

"Maybe and maybe not," said the other insolently, and walked off.

Five minutes later Bud Larkin, sick at heart that his skeleton of the past had risen up to confront him in his new life, made his way around the ranch house to the front entrance. Just as he was going in at the door a man appeared from the opposite side so that the two met. The other skulked back and disappeared, but in that moment Bud recognized the figure of Stelton, and a sudden chill clutched his heart.

Had the foreman of the Bar T been listening and heard all?

Entering the living-room, where the Bissells were already gathered, Larkin expected to find Caldwell, but inquiry elicited the fact that he had not been seen. Five minutes later the drumming of a pony's feet on the hard ground supplied the solution of his non-appearance. Having satisfactorily interviewed Larkin, he had mounted his horse, which all this time had been tethered to the corral, and ridden away.

Half an hour later Stelton came in, his brow dark, and seated himself in a far corner of the room. From his manner it was evident that he had something to say, and Bissell drew him out.

"Red came in from over by Sioux Creek to-night," admitted the foreman, "and he says as how the rustlers have been busy that-a-way ag'in. First thing he saw was the tracks of their hosses, and then, when he counted the herd, found it was twenty head short. I'm shore put out about them rustlers, chief, and if something ain't done about it pretty soon you won't have enough prime beef to made a decent drive."

Instantly the face of Bissell lost all its kindliness and grew as dark and foreboding as Stelton's. Springing out of his chair, he paced up and down the room.

"That has got to stop!" he said determinedly. Then, in answer to a question of Larkin's: "Yes, rustlers were never so bad as they are now. It's got so in this State that the thieves have got more cows among 'em than the regular cowmen. An' that ain't all. They've got an organization that we can't touch. We're plumb locoed with their devilment. That's the second bunch, cut out of that herd, ain't it, Mike?"

"Yes."

Beef Bissell, his eyes flashing the fire that had made him feared in the earlier, rougher days of the range, finally stopped at the door.

"Come on out with me and talk to Red," he ordered his foreman, and the latter, whose eyes had never left Juliet since he entered the room, reluctantly obeyed.

Presently Mrs. Bissell took herself off, and Bud and the girl were left alone.

"I suppose you'll marry some time," said Larkin, after a long pause.

"I sincerely hope so," was her laughing rejoinder.

"Any candidates at present?"

"Not that I know of."

"Well, I know of a very active one—he just left the room."

"Who, Mike? Bud, that's preposterous! I've known him ever since I was a little girl, and would no more think of marriage with him than of keeping pet rattlesnakes."

"Perhaps not, Julie, but Mike would. Will you take the word of an absolutely disinterested observer that the man is almost mad about you, and would sell his soul for one of your smiles?"

The girl was evidently impressed by the seriousness of his tone, for she pondered a minute in silence.

"Perhaps you are right, Bud," she said at last. "I had never thought of it that way. But you needn't worry; I can take care of myself."

"I'm sure of it, but that doesn't make him any the less dangerous. Keep your eye on him, and if you ever find yourself in a place where you need somebody bad and quick, send for me. He hates me already, and I can't say I love him any too well; I have an idea that he and I will come to closer quarters than will be good for the health of one of us."

"Nonsense, Bud; your imagination seems rather lively to-night. Now, just because I am curious, will you tell me why you went into the sheep business?"

"Certainly. Because it is the future business of Woming and Montana. Sheep can live on less and under conditions that would kill cows. Moreover, they are a source of double profit, both for their wool and their mutton. The final struggle of the range will be between sheep and cattle and irrigation, and irrigation will win.

"But the sheep will drive the cattle off the range, and, when they, in turn, are driven off, will continue to thrive in the foothills and lower mountains, where there is no irrigation. I went into the sheep business to make money, but I won't see much of that money for several years. When I am getting rich, cowmen like your father will be fighting for the maintenance of a few little herds that have not been pushed off the range by the sheep. Cattle offer more immediate profit, but, according to my view, they are doomed."

"Bud, that's the best defence of wool growing I ever heard," cried the girl. "Up to this I've held it against you that you were a sheepman—a silly prejudice, of course, that I have grown up with—but now you can consider yourself free of that. I believe you have hit the nail on the head."

"Thanks, I believe I have," said Bud dryly, and a little while later they separated for the night, but not before he had remarked:

"I think it would benefit all of us if you drilled some of that comomnsense into your father."

CHAPTER IV.

THE SIX PISTOL SHOTS.

The next morning, after breakfast, which shortly followed the rising of the sun, Bissell called Bud Larkin aside just as that young man had headed for the corral to rope and saddle Pinto.

Gone was any hint of the man of the night before. His red face was sober, and his brown eyes looked into Bud's steel-grey ones with a piercing, almost menacing, intensity.

"I hope any friend of Julie's will continue to be my friend," was all he said, but the glance and manner attending this delicate hint left no doubt as to his meaning. His whole attitude spelled "sheep!"

"That depends entirely upon you, Mr. Bissell," was Larkin's rejoinder.

The cowman turned away without any further words, and Bud continued on to the corral. At the enclosure he found Stelton roping a wiry and vicious calico pony, and when he had finally cinched the saddle on Pinte, he turned to see Julie at his side.

"You had better invite me to ride a little way with you," she said, laughing, "because I am coming anyhow."

"Bless you! What a treat!" cried Bud happily, and helped to cinch up the calico, who squealed at every tug.

Stelton, his dark face flushed to the colour of mahogany, sullenly left him the privilege and walked away.

Presently they mounted, and Bud, with a loud "So-long" and a wave of the hand to some of the punchers, turned south. Julie, loping beside him, looked up curiously at this.

"I thought you were going north, Bud," she cried.

"Changed my plans overnight," he replied non-committally, and she did not press the subject further, feeling, with a woman's intuition, that war was in the air.

Ten miles south, at the ford of the southern branch of Grass Creek, she drew up her horse as the signal for their separation, and faced north. Bud, still headed southward, put Pinte alongside of her and took her hand.

"It's been a blessing to see you, you're so civilized," she said, half-seriously. "Do come again."

"Then you do sometimes miss the things you have been educated to?"

"Yes, Bud, I do, but got often. Seeing you has brought back a flood of memories that I am happier without."

"And that is what you have done for me, dear girl," he said in a low tone as he pressed her hand. The next moment, with a nonchalant "So-long," the parting of the plains, he had dug the spurs into his horse and ridden away.

For a minute the girl sat looking after this one link between her desolate existence and the luxury and society he still represented in her eyes.

"His manners have changed for the worse," she thought, recalling his abrupt departure, "but I think he has changed for the better."

Which remark proves that her sense of relative masculine values was still sound.

Larkin continued on directly southeast for twenty miles, until he crossed the Big Horn at what is now the town of Kirby. Thence his course lay south rather than east until he should raise the white dust of his first flock.

With regard to his sheep, Larkin, in all disputed cases, took the advice of his chief herder, Hardwinter Sims, the laziest man on the range, and yet one who seemed to divine the numbed sheep intelligence in a manner little short of marvellous.

Sims he had picked up in Montana, when that individual, unable to perform the arduous duties of a cowboy, had applied for a job as a sheepherder—not so much because he liked the sheep, but because he had to eat and clothe himself. By one of those rare accidents of luck Sims at last found his metier, and Larkin the prince of sheepmen!

When Bud had determined to "walk" ten thousand animals north, Sims had accompanied him to help in the buying, and was now superintending the long drive.

Try This Home-made Cough Remedy

Costs Little, But Does the Work Quickly, or Money Refunded.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with 1 cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You will find that this simple remedy takes hold of a cough more quickly than anything else ever used. Usually ends a deep-seated cough inside of 24 hours. Splendid, too, for whooping cough, croup, chest pains, bronchitis, and other throat troubles. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

This recipe makes more and better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasantly.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural pine elements, which are so healing to the membranes. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This plan of making cough syrup with Pinex and sugar syrup (or strained honey) has proven so popular throughout the United States and Canada that it is often imitated. But the old, successful formula has never been equaled.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts If Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

A Culinary Hint.

Mayonnaise dressing is distasteful to many people because of its oily taste. Try making a very thick white sauce, about one-third of the amount of your dressing, and adding it while still hot to the mayonnaise. There is less of the taste of oil, and your dressing goes much further.

Concerning Stamps.

Do not lick stamps. The best way is to moisten the envelope and not the stamp. When stamps stick together do not soak them apart, but lay them on a smooth surface with a thin paper over them and pass a hot iron quickly over them. This separates without destroying the gum.

The Newest Scarf.

The newest scarf is that made of embroidered tulle, bordered with marabou or swansdown and lightly fringed at the ends. These scarfs are very wide and long. The effective thing is to wind them loosely about the figure, with one long end thrown over the left shoulder.

WEAKNESS AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all weakness and heart disorders, and are recommended by us with the greatest of confidence that they will do what we claim for them.

Mrs. George Burridge, Coboconk, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited Toronto, Ont.

WATCHES THE CLOUDS.

One New Yorker's Easy and Well Paid, but Important, Job.

There is one man in New York who would seem to hold an easy and unique job From Jan 1 to Dec. 31 he puts in his whole time watching for clouds from the top of one of the tallest sky scrapers. He does nothing else, is well paid if he performs his duty vigilantly and has no one to lose or hustle him around except the clouds For tools he works with a telescope, and he can smoke, read poetry or do what he pleases, provided he keeps his weather eye keenly peeled for the first sign of a storm cloud sweeping down the Hudson On that rests his whole job, for should a thunderstorm catch him napping it would mean a serious strain on the leading electric light and power company.

In no other city but New York do conditions make for such a contingency Owing to the compact construction of the huge blocks of downtown skyscrapers an enormous amount of electric light is suddenly demanded when ever the sky becomes darkened. Thousands of bulbs are simultaneously switched on. At nightfall this need for light is easily calculated, but no certain provision can be made against the sudden overshadow of a storm cloud other than by stationing a lookout man on the top of a skyscraper Consequently when he sees a cloud sweeping down the Hudson or advancing from any other direction it is his business to watch its approach carefully.

Therein he must use a bit of judgment. If it is likely to sweep clear of the city he need not bother about it But should he reckon it will pass over Manhattan it is his business to telephone the chief power station a warning that a storm cloud is coming. At once a red light glows in the engine room, and the stokers bustle to shovel coal into the furnaces. Presently the huge generators revolve at greater speed to supply the emergency demand for electricity. Thus when the thousands of lights are switched on downtown few are likely to guess how the sudden call for light has been met.

Meanwhile the cloud watcher is in no fear that a mechanical device will deprive him of his job, for the weather instrument that can record just the direction a cloud will take in sweeping on toward Manhattan is yet in the dim future of invention.—New York Tribune.

Starting the Day Right

Do you begin the day with a "grouch"? Are you tired in the mornings? Do you fail to benefit from the restorative influence of sleep which should make good the waste and vitality consumed by the day's work?

Then you are rapidly becoming bankrupt so far as health is concerned. You should look to your habits of eating, make sure that you get lots of fresh air in your sleeping apartments, and restore waste vitality by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This great food cure does not produce sleep by any druggin[illegible] but when you have been using it a few days and get the nervous system into condition you find yourself resting and sleeping naturally and healthfully. By keeping up the restorative treatment you will be able to make good the waste and repair exhausted nervous system with new vigour and energy. This means a thorough cure of such symptoms as backache, sleeplessness, indigestion, tired, listless feelings.

HOME LOVING AUTHORS

It is a popular belief that genius can only develop in "selfish solitude." A study of the lives of some of our greatest writers and thinkers, however, reveals the fact that much of their finest work was done after marriage, when they enjoyed the companionship of wives and children. Charles Kingsley, for instance, had an ideal home, and was never happier than when playing with his children. He gave them the best of everything, the largest and sunniest rooms in the house, and the best part of the garden as a playground. He was passionately devoted to children, and their griefs made him sad. "A child weeping over a broken toy," he wrote, "is a sight I cannot bear."

Wordsworth was a happy husband, and wrote one of his prettiest poems to his wife, while Tennyson had a liking for domesticity, and in spite of a happy home, which critics contend is liable to damp genius, was able to write undying verse.

George Borrow did all his best work after his marriage, and if he had married earlier would not have wasted so much time writing pot-boilers, while Froude did better after he had started domesticity. William Black found it so difficult to write when apart from his wife that once when he went alone to Brighton to start a new novel he had to telegraph to her to join him. He tried shutting himself in a room and walking up and down the shore, but in the end he went to the telegraph office.

Browning had one of the best of homes, and some of his finest poems were written to his wife.

Southey found domesticity so necessary and inspiring that he married twice, while Carlyle's wife was invaluable as a listener. He used to rush down from the room in the roof to read chapters about the great Frederick to her and then rush back again.

MARVELS OF TO-DAY

What Are the Seven Wonders of the Twentieth Century?

Taking the concensus of opinion among noted scientists of Europe and America, Popular Mechanics compiled a list of the seven modern wonders of the world. When Antipater wrote his guide book of antiquity two centuries before Christ, he fixed upon seven wonders which have come down in history to the present time, as follows:

The Pyramids of Egypt; the Pharos of Alexandria; the Hanging Gardens of Babylon; the Temple of Diana at Ephesus; the Statue of Jupiter by Phidias; the mausoleum erected by Artemisia, at Halicarnassus, and the Colossus of Rhodes. One thousand letters were sent out enclosing a list of fifty-six subjects of mechanical and scientific achievements. The letters requested the learned men to mark the seven which, in their opinion, were the greatest wonders of modern times. The ballots on the highest seven items stood this way: Wireless telegraphy, 244 votes; telephone, 185; aeroplane, 167; radium, 165; antiseptics and antitoxins, 140; spectrum analysis, 126; X-ray, 111. The three next highest achievements received this vote: Panama Canal, 100; anesthesia, 94; synthethic chemistry, 81. Maxim, Marconi, Alexander Graham Bell, Mme. Curie, Edison, Steinmetz, Albert Zahm, R. W. Wood, David Todd, D. E. E. Hyde, members of the French Academy of Scientists, of the Royal Society of London, the American Academy, and the Great German Universities were represented.

Tribute to King Edward

A true story of charming devotion to the memory of the late King Edward comes from Marienbad.

For the past several years the congregation of the English church there, at which King Edward worshipped during his many visits, noticed each Sunday a bouquet of beautiful white roses on the seat that was always occupied by the late King.

King Edward, when Prince of Wales, went each day and bought a flower for his buttonhole at a small shop kept by a dear old lady, Mme. Kreig, and on becoming King he commanded her always to bring the flowers herself to the Wiener Hotel. These he himself took from the old lady's hands.

Each year since his death she has, on every Sunday morning during the season that the church is open, sent this bouquet to be placed on the seat as a token of her deep respect and gratitude.

Fatality of Whooping Cough

Many parents think lightly of whooping cough, and treat it as a necessary evil, not giving the child who has it any special attention.

The seriousness of whooping cough was emphasized by the Medical Health Officer in Toronto a few months ago, when he reported 14 deaths during the month from whooping cough, and only ten from scarlet fever, typhoid fever and measles combined.

So many people write to us about the relief and cure of whooping cough by the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine that we can recommend it with the greatest confidence.

It loosens the cough, aids expectoration, and by its soothing influence prevents the terrible paroxysms of coughing which are so distressing to witness, and which wear away the strength of the child. By using this treatment the disease is held in check, and cured in a few weeks, instead of months. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the bottle you buy. There are many imitations.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION
"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

AN UNDERGROUND FARM

Robert Smith Finds It Pays to Farm In a Cave

Probably the most unique farm in the world is located in Missouri, seventy-five feet underground, near the city of Springfield. True, there are small caves in France devoted to the growth of mushrooms, but the Missouri cavern produces not only mushrooms, but rhubarb and celery in quantities, to say nothing of frogs in season. It is owned and farmed by Robert Smith, who finds his labors highly profitable. Throughout the year the cavern, through which flows a gentle stream, maintains a temperature of sixty degrees. It is devoid of undue dampness and is freshened with a steady current of air. A number of years ago Smith went farm-hunting, and finally selected the property which he made one of the exceptional places in the world. It was necessary to carry great quantities of rich earth into the cavern after the owner decided to go in for mushrooms. This venture proving successful, he experimented with rhubarb, and then found the underground farm an excellent place in which to bleach celery. Both rhubarb and celery are transplanted after obtaining a good start outside. The frogs are caught in a netted pond at the mouth of the cave.

Go to Antioch If You Would Escape the High Cost of Living

"The cheapest place in the world is Antioch, in Syria," said a returned traveler. "Being on the Mediterranean the climate is just right in the colder months. I once passed a winter there, and all it cost me was $5.00 a week, though I rented a fine house and kept three servants. For the house I paid $5.00 a month rent, while the servants were satisfied with 50c a week. Mutton cost there 1c a pound. Eggs were 2c a dozen, and chickens 5c each. The finest of fresh fruit and vegetables (in February, too) were so cheap that they were not sold in quantity. You got all you wanted for so much per week. All I required for my household cost me 25c weekly. An American resident of Antioch told me that he and his family lived comfortably on $175 a year.

PIPES AND PIPERS

There is hardly a country in the world where the pipe is not smoked in one form or another.

The Kaffir loves his pipe, and, failing the genuine article, will use anything that will hold tobacco—from a piece of iron piping to a cow's horn. When not even these are available he will use the earth! He does this by making a small hole to hold the tobacco, from which he makes a passage for the smoke by pushing a curved piece of wire through the ground. He then lies face downwards, applies a light to the tobacco, and his lips to the ground, at the spot where he has withdrawn the wire, and smokes in peace.

In many villages of the north-west provinces of India are to be found public hookahs for the use and comfort of travellers.

Everyone has heard of the North American Indian's pipe of peace General Blucher's pipe-smoking was of a very different character. He appointed a man to the post of "pipe master," whose duty it was to fill a long clay pipe and hand it to the general before every engagement. Blucher would then enjoy a few whiffs, give back the pipe, and gallop into the fighting line.

World's Coldest City

The coldest city in the world is said to be Verkhoyansk in northern Siberia. The average annual temperature is eight degrees above zero, and the winter record is eighty-five degrees below zero. The rivers freeze solid to the bottom, small trees snap and split from the cold. Yet in summer the temperature averages fifty-nine degrees above zero and vegetation flourishes, though the ground a few feet below it never thaws out.

FROZEN COAL MINES

How Shafts Are Sunk Through Drift Sand and Water

It was not until 1883, when Poetsch invented the "freezing method," that Holland's coalfields became of any practical value. Where coal is encountered immediately under the solid rock there is a stratum of drift sand that contains great quantities of water. This condition of things made it practically impossible to build the shafts. The freezing method, however, has successfully solved the problem.

On the spot where the shaft is to be dug from twenty-five to thirty borings are made down through the drift sand to the solid rock in a circle five feet larger in diameter than the projected shaft. Pipes are then sunk into these bore holes, and through these is circulated by powerful freezing machines a chemical solution cooled down to below zero. In this way the drift sand containing the water is frozen as hard as a rock, and a shaft is then dug and lined from bottom to top with strong segments of cast iron securely soldered together with lead.

Police "Stop" Prize Fight

John Hopkins and George Price, colliers, of Maesteg, were charged at Bridgend, Wales, with engaging in a prize fight on the mountain side, and two other colliers were charged with aiding and abetting. The police discovered Hopkins and Price stripped to the waist and fighting in a ring formed of about forty or fifty people. They were bound over for six months.

They Taboo Mirrors

There is a sect in Holland known as the Labadists, among whose members the use of mirrors is strictly prohibited. Their founder, Jean de Labadie, a seventeenth century Calvinistic minister, attracted many followers, but after his death they dwindled down, and now they are found only in a few remote villages of Friesland. Travelling in Holland in 1893, Lecky lit on a colony of Labadists. "Intermarrying mainly among themselves," he wrote, "they have quite a distinctive type—a singularly beautiful one, with their delicate lips and a curious air of refinement. They are fishermen—very prosperous—and their houses, with their china and silver ornaments and prints of the house of Orange, and great Bibles with silver clasps and perfectly preternatural neatness, are very interesting to see."

A Chair From India

A chair presented to the professorship of colonial history at Queen's University, Kingston, was carved in Central India by Mrs. Nanton, known to Canadians as Miss Marguerite Joly, daughter of Sir Henry Joly de Lotbiniere. The chair is carved of specially selected teak of great beauty, and is probably the finest piece of modern wood carving in Canada. The design is symbolic of Canadian life.

NEWS OF WEEK FROM LONDON, BERLIN, PARIS AND CONSTANTINOPLE

KAISER'S DEFILIER COUR MARKS THE HEIGHT OF BERLIN WINTER SEASON

Court Function Followed by Bewildering Succession of Dejeuners, Dinners and Dances, Many Americans Being Among Those Who Entertain on Large Scale.

MR. THACKARA AND FAMILY LEAVE FOR PARIS

(Special Dispatch.)
BERLIN, Jan. 31.

DURING the months of January and February Berlin may claim the distinction of being the outstanding social centre on the Continent. The brief midwinter season is now at its height and will continue with unabated activity until Lent.

Impetus to the week's uninterrupted round of gayeties was given by the Defilier Cour. This brought a bewildering succession of déjeuners, dinners and dances. As usual, the Hotel Esplanade was the rendezvous for court and diplomatic society after the Cour, some of the chief personages from court society being Prince Friedrich Sigismund, of Prussia, the hereditary Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz; the Prince and Princess zu Wied, Prince Stephan zu Schaumburg-Lippe, the Prince von Stolberg-Wernigerode, the Prince and Princess von Fürstenberg, Count and Countess Schulenburg-Plessen and the hereditary Duke Fugger.

Mrs. Harry Jacques Luce, who, with her daughter, Miss Margaret Luce, was among the Americans presented at court this season, entertained a large party, including the Consul General, Mr. Thackara, Miss Eleanor Thackara, Professor and Mrs. Paul Shorey, Mrs. Jameson Winslow, Professor Archibald Coolidge, Count Strachwitz and Mr. Jack Bosia.

Mr. Robert P. Skinner is dining with his successor in office, Mr. Henry H. Morgan, until now United States Consul General at Barcelona, who had come over from Hamburg for the day to make the acquaintance of his confrères, Mr. Skinner and Mr. Thackara.

Many Private Parties.

There were also many private supper parties after the Cour, the largest being given to diplomatic society by Count von Moltke, formerly Danish Minister at Washington, and his American wife. Among those present were the United States Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, Mrs. Ernest Wiltsee, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark Grew, the United States Naval Attaché and Mrs. Gherardi, Major George T. Langhorne, Mr. Willing Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Ruddock and Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Cassatt.

Among other dances of the week was one organized by Major Langhorne at the Hotel Kaiserhof, which was participated in by diplomatic society and a number of officers from the Garde regiments.

There was a dancing party on Thursday evening, of which Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. Gherardi were hosts. Still another was given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Cassatt; of Philadelphia.

Mr. Allison V. Armour, who is a habitual sojourner in Berlin during the court season and participates in official functions as the guest of the German Emperor, was the host at a large dinner and dance given at the Royal Automobile Club this week. The German Crown Prince was present.

Other guests were the American Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard, the Introducteur of the Diplomatic Corps and Baroness von Roeder, the American Naval Attaché and Mrs. Gherardi, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Cassatt, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse, Mrs. Ernest Wiltsee, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Billings Ruddock, Miss Margaret Luce, Miss Gertrude Claflin and Mr. Willing Spencer.

Mr. Thackara's Farewell.

Many Americans were at the station on Wednesday to bid God speed to Mr. A. M. Thackara and family on their leaving for Paris. Mrs. Thackara and Miss Eleanor Thackara had their arms filled with flowers and sweets, and their compartment testified to the host of friends they have made in Berlin.

Frau von Bülow attended the first court ball of the season in Dresden this week, her formal presentation to the King of Saxony having taken place last season. Another American presented at the Saxon court on Wednesday was Miss Elizabeth Green, formerly of New York, now a member of the resident American colony in Dresden.

An afternoon musicale brought together members of the American Women's Club for the first time since the holidays. Mr. Luis Persinger, an American violinist, now connected with the Bluthner Orchestra in Berlin, and Signor Magistrati, an Italian harpist, furnished the programme, which was arranged by Mrs. Theodore Spiering and Miss Agnes Kerr, of the Committee of Entertainment.

Mrs. Devison was hostess at the Afternoon Club, still under the temporary management of Miss Geraldine de Courcy of Seattle, pending the arrival of the previous directress, Mrs. Elisabeth Pickerell, who is expected in Berlin this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schelling have arrived at the Hotel Esplanade from their chateau at Celigny, on the Lake of Geneva, and will remain in Berlin until they leave for America this month.

Among American hostesses of the week was Mrs. Henrietta V. Fisher, of Boston, whose guests included Mrs. Henry L. Whitehead, Mrs. Eginton, Mrs. Paul Shorey, Dr. Alice Luce, Miss Agnes Kerr and Mrs. George Bultman.

American arrivals at the Hotel Adlon include Mr. George E. Fuller and Miss Ruth Fuller, of Chicago; Mr. F. S. Herman, Mr. Henry Schenck, Mr. E. N. Burns, Mr. Walter Stevens and Mr. J. Johanson, all of New York; Mr. B. H. Hamm, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. Lyons, of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. L. Dimond.

Hunt Ball Season Over and Society Expected Back in London.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Jan. 31.

THE season of the hunt balls is now drawing to a close, so the prevailing dulness in matters social is expected to come to an end with the return of society from the country prior to the opening of Parliament on February 10.

The King and Queen are now at Windsor, where they will remain until tomorrow. Then things are expected to begin to hum.

The King and Queen called on Prince Christian at Cumberland Lodge on Thursday to congratulate him on his eighty-third birthday. They found the Prince in excellent health and remained for luncheon. The Prince was the recipient of telegrams from all parts of the world.

The King and Queen's stay at Windsor will be very quiet and regarded as strictly private, for though they are doing some entertaining there will be no receptions even of Ministers in their official capacity. While some of the diplomatic corps are included in the parties they are invited in a strictly private capacity.

While at Windsor the King and Queen are to have a command performance by a London company. When this was first unofficially mooted there was much stir in the theatrical dovecotes, for though it is a costly business for the manager receiving the command, it often means a long lease of life to a play whose popularity is beginning to wane. The choice has fallen on "Diplomacy," of which Mr. Frank Curzon and Mr. Gerald Du Maurier have been commanded to give a performance on February 2. Workmen already are busy converting the historic Waterloo chamber into a theatre.

The fact that the first court of the season is to be held on Friday, February 13, is making some talk about the doubly unlucky day, though not, as is well known, counts nearly so days are on Fridays. The King and Queen, who are by no means superstitious, do not see why the function should not be held on a day falling on the 13th. A few years ago a bride never would consent to be married on Friday, but this year there has been a wedding on every Friday so far.

Two Events of the Week.

Socially there have been only two events of interest this week, these being the coming of age of Lady Muriel Bertie, daughter of Lord and Lady Lindsey, and the ball given by Lord and Lady Desborough at Taplaw Court for their elder daughter, Monica Grenfell.

The former event was celebrated at Uffington House, Stamford, when the tenantry and others on the estate were entertained in the ballroom of the mansion and presented to Lady Muriel a magnificent silver plate service.

The Desboroughs party at Taplaw Court was interesting because all the girls invited were daughters of peers and all the young men heirs to well known titles. Among them were Lady Iris Capell, eldest daughter of Lord and Lady Essex; Lady Bridget Coke, daughter of Lord and Lady Leicester; Lady Victoria Cavendish-Bentinck, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Portland; Lady Moira Osborne, youngest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Leeds, and Lady Victoria Stanley, only daughter of Lord and Lady Derby.

Many parties gathered at neighboring houses for the event. Mrs. Waldorf Astor brought several friends from Cliveden Place, where they had been entertained at dinner. Winifred Lady Arran escorted a party from Queen Anne's Mead.

The death of Lord Strathcona brings into the roll another peeress in her own right in the person of Mrs. Rita Howard, Lord Strathcona's only child, but the new peeress has no liking for town or society and is expected to pass most of her time at Debden Hall, near Saffron Walden, which has long been her favorite residence.

Peeresses in their own right now number twenty, the last receiving a similar patent being Viscountess Wolseley. The roll is headed, of course, by the Duchess of Fife, now Princess Arthur of Connaught, while the Dughess of Norfolk is Lady Harris in her own right. Lady Cromartie is the only countess, but both Lady Yarborough and Lady Powis, who are sisters and Countesses by marriage, hold the title of Baroness Langdale and Conyers and Baroness D'Arcy de Knayth respectively.

New Army Officers.

Lord Chesham, who will attain his majority next year, has just passed from Sandhurst for appointment to a commission in the army. Several other well known names are among those who have passed the last examinations at Sandhurst successfully and will be commissioned in British regiments, among them being Mr. John Verney, only son of Lord Willoughby de Broke; Mr. Hugh Douglas-Penhant, second son of Lord Penrhyn, and Mr. Oswald Mosley, grandson of Sir Oswald Mosley.

While preparations are being made for the season in Dublin, which is expected to be more than usually brilliant, there are many who fear it will be interrupted by political disturbances. Many well known people in the West of Scotland are preparing Lafford assistance to women and children refugees who will require shelter in case of civil war in Ireland. The Duke and Duchess of Montrose have subscribed $500 toward the fund. Lord and Lady Glasgow, Lady Eglinton and Lady Arthur Cecil promise furnished houses. Lord and Lady Talbot de Malahide, Lady Henniker-Hughan, Sir Henry and Lady Farquhar, Sir John and Lady Stirling-Maxwell, Sir Charles and Lady Crawford, Lady Montgomerie, Lady Cassilis, Lady Blythswood, and Lady Houldsworth all promise subscriptions and to receive the women and children as guests in their own houses.

Americans are beginning to make their presence felt in London once more. Many who came by the Lusitania are still stopping at the leading hotels, and Mr. and Mrs. Maldwin Drummond and Mrs. William B. Leeds are back for a time in their usual quarters in the Ritz Hotel. Also still stopping there are Mrs. Louis Treadwell, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Proctor, Mr. T. A. Griffin and Mr. E. R. Armsby, of New York, and Mr. A. Smith and Mr. L. C. Miller, of Chicago.

At Claridge's are Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Fowler, Mr. S. O'Day and Mr. F. S. Vanstade, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Penrose, Mrs. Charles Penrose and Mrs. Lippincott, of Philadelphia.

Americans in the Hotels.

At the Piccadilly Hotel are Dr. and Mrs. McCurdy, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Culver, Mr. W. C. Teagle, Mr. H. Jones and Mr. W. Steinway, of New York, and Colonel R. W. Stewart and Miss A. L. Gill, of Chicago, and Mr. Edward Key, of Baltimore.

At the Carlton Hotel are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Struthers, Jr.; Mrs. Stephen Little, Mr. and Mrs. Adam King, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Weinberg, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wachtum, Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon Painter, Mr. J. T. Jones, Mr. J. Walter Wood, Mr. A. E. Harrison, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lewis, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mr. P. S. Muller, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Abbas, who had been stopping at the Piccadilly, have gone to Bradford.

The late Mr. Bradley Martin, who was greatly respected in Invernesshire, is to have a monument erected in his memory by the people of Glen Urquhart, near Balmacaan House, an obelisk and bronze medallion of Mr. Martin.

In view of the forthcoming Anglo-American peace centenary the Earl of Buchan has received inquiries from America regarding the portrait of George Washington which was painted about 1798 by Archibald Robertson for the eleventh Earl of Buchan, but Lord Buchan does not know where it is, for he is not a descendant of the eleventh Earl.

TURKS WELCOME MR. MORGENTHAU

American Ambassador Is Delighted with Reception in Ottoman Capital.

(Special Dispatch.)
CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 31.

I HAD an interview yesterday with the new American Ambassador, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, who received me at the Embassy soon after the reception given for the Ottoman official world.

"Constantinople and its inhabitants," he said, "have made an excellent impression upon me. I do not trust, however, to first impressions. It is my habit to always study matters and individuals in a thorough manner before expressing a definite opinion. Come to me in a few days and I will tell you what I think of the place and the people in a more ready spirit.

"It will be my duty to dive into the very heart of things surrounding me. With the help of the legal adviser of the Embassy, Mr. Shmavonian, who knows the Orient so well, I shall be able to master the task in a more or less satisfactory manner in a few weeks. The mysterious East is certainly interesting and fascinating, but, like everything else, it needs sufficient time for a good understanding of it. I dislike people who after a short sojourn in a place hazard their opinion on it, which is very often absurd.

"One thing, however, I am able to tell you already with great satisfaction. That is the kindly willingness of the Ottoman authorities to help me in the study of the city and in the proper understanding of the various phases of its motley life. From the Sultan downward one and all have shown me the utmost courtesy, and this augurs well for amicable relations for the future. To-day, for instance, the Ottoman Cabinet almost in its entirety responded to my invitation, and the official reception was completely successful. I am confident that my residence in Turkey will prove beneficial to both the country I represent and the one that extends to me its cordial hospitality."

Mr. Morgenthau told me that his wife was leaving New York with their youngest child next month, and is expected to arrive in Constantinople a little after the middle of February.

Those who know the new Ambassador personally assure me that he is in every way a most remarkable personality. He is many sided, energetic and exceedingly thorough. He has at heart every American interest, and no phase of American life in the Near East will ever escape his attention and warmest consideration.

In its last issue the American weekly paper, the Orient, remarks:—"Never before, so far as we remember, has such prominence been given in Constantinople to the reception accorded by the Sultan to an American Ambassador. It shows the growth of American prestige in the Turkish capital."

Few Big Sales Occur in British Art Auctions

Gainsborough's Picture of "The Market Cart," a Notable Painting Disposed of During the Year, Bought by Messrs. Agnew for $105,800.

REMBRANDT'S "BATHSHEBA" SOLD TO MR. DUVEEN

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Jan. 31.

AFTER surveying last year's art, the story of noteworthy sales in London is easily told, for they were fewer than they have been for many a year. Among those which stand out prominently were those of "The Market Cart," by Gainsborough, bought by Messrs. Agnew out of Sir Lionel Phillips' collection for $105,800; "Bathsheba," by Rembrandt, bought by Messrs. Duveen for $300,000; "Anne Lady de la Pole," by Romney, bought by Messrs. Duveen for $208,875, a world's auction room record; the Panshanger, or "Cowper," Madonna, by Raphael, bought from Lady Desborough by Messrs. Duveen for $350,000, and "Philip II.," by Titian, sold by Sir Hugh Lane to Mr. T. J. Emery, of New York, for a sum variously stated as $350,000 and $400,000.

The more considerable gains to the national collections during 1913 make a longer story, though less noteworthy. There were the portraits of His Majesty Edward VII., by Sir Luke Fildes, R. A., presented by the King to the National Portrait Gallery; the "Portrait Group of the Royal Family," by Mr. John Lavery, A. R. A., presented to the same gallery by Mr. Hugh Spottiswoode; seven important pictures by Annibale Carracci, Rubens, Lucas Cranach, Gainsborough, Mignard, Del Sarto, and Barnaba da Modena, presented by Rosalind, Countess of Carlisle, to the National Gallery, which also received six pictures by bequest of Sir John Murray Scott's two, by Isabey and Wee, by bequest of Mr. Samuel Joshua Cooper, and, by purchase, Watteau's "La Gamme d'Amour."

The British Museum was enriched by old master drawings from the collection of Mr. J. P. Heseltine, and Mr. Arthur Morrison's collection of Chinese and Japanese pottery, and the Victoria and Albert Museum by two thousand old English pictures from the collection of Mr. Talbot Rice, by Messrs. Harrod.

By Sir William Lever's gift of his collection to the nation for the London Museum was confirmed, and a site near the Houses of Parliament fixed for Rodin's group, "The Burghers of Calais," acquired through the National Art Collections Fund.

The Chantrey bequest purchases for the Tate Gallery were "The Wood Beyond the World," by Mr. Charles Sims, A. R. A.; "Sunshine, Breese and Blossom," by Mr. J. Walter West; "Flood on the Ken at Earlstown Linn," by the late Ernest E. Briggs; "Juliet," by Mr. W. Hatherall, and "An Encampment," by the late Arthur Lemon.

As regards personalities the death roll of 1913 has been heavy. The greatest loss to art was undoubtedly that of Sir Alfred East, president of the Royal Society of British Artists, almost immediately after his election to full Academic honors. A highly accomplished painter and etcher, with an enlightened attitude toward the younger generation, Sir Alfred East will be missed both for his work and his personality. He was one of the comparatively few artists who can talk well about their subject.

Other deaths of British or foreign artists exhibiting in England, or of men intimately concerned with art, in chronological order, were those of Sir George Reid, formerly P. R. S. A.; Mr. Charles E. Johnson, R. I.; Mr. A. C. Ball, illustrator; Mr. T. R. Way, lithographer; Mr. George Leonard Lewis, R. B. A.; Mr. William Ayerst Ingram, president of the Royal British Colonial Society of Artists; Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, Sir John Charles Robinson, painter and etcher, Sir Coutts Lindsay, founder of the Grosvenor Gallery; Mr. James Orrock, R. I., R. O. I., M. R. C. S.; Mr. Joseph Crawhall, Mr. Adam S. Proctor, Mr. Ralph Hedley, painter and wood carver; Mr. Edward Millington Synge, etcher; Mr. Louis Marc Solon, potter; Mr. John Richard Clayton, of Messrs Clayton & Bell, stained glass artists; Mr. Gaston le Touche, Mr. Ernest Edward Briggs, R. I.; Mr. George Tinworth, sculptor; Sir Frederick A. Eaton, secretary of the Royal Academy; Professor Hans von Bartels, Mr. John Belcher, R. A.; Mr. Gilbard Gibbons, A. R. W. S., and Mr. Walter Emden, architect.

Matrimonial Advertisements Cause Divorce

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, Jan. 31.

THE story of a curious intrigue conducted through the medium of the matrimonial advertisement columns of a French newspaper has just been related in the Seine Divorce Court.

The parties concerned were a Parisian painter and his wife, a woman who had already been divorced from her first husband, an examining magistrate in the provinces.

For some time past the painter suspected that his wife had been studying the matrimonial, or pseudo matrimonial, advertisements in an endeavor to start some romantic intrigue. To obtain proof of his suspicions was a matter of some difficulty, but the painter finally inserted a neat little advertisement in his wife's favorite paper to this effect:—

"Retired préfect, aged forty-five, tall and fair, with a fortune of 300,000f., would like to find a sister soul."

The bait, either of the 300,000f. ($60,000) or of the sister soul, was a successful one, for Madame, though "very confused at replying to a question of this sort," wrote a long answer in which she pathetically demanded:—"Can you indeed be the sweetheart of my dreams for whom I have looked so long?" She also suggested somewhat disingenuously that her fortune was a large one and that her heart and hand were at liberty.

Various other letters were exchanged and finally the wife, all unsuspectingly, yielded to the ardent unknown's desire and enclosed her photograph. The letter which accompanied this was confiding, and could only be reproduced in a Bowdlerised form.

When the painter had thus acquired sufficient evidence he served his wife with a writ, and she instituted a counter petition. Though her counsel pleaded "provocation to adultery," the various letters produced were considered irrefutable, and the painter obtained the decree.

Unremembered.

22 Dreadnoughts Put in the Water by World Powers

United States and Austria-Hungary Are Not Represented in 1913.

BRITAIN AND GERMANY LEAD WITH FIVE EACH

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Jan. 31.

ALTHOUGH not such a record year as 1911, when twenty-six dreadnoughts were put into the water, the total number of capital ships launched in 1913 nearly reaches this figure, and is a good deal above the average. The only naval Powers which have not put a dreadnought afloat during the last twelve months are Austria-Hungary and the United States, but for the latter both the Nevada and Oklahoma may be launched early in the new year.

Including battle cruisers, the dreadnought record of Great Britain and Germany is the same—five launched for each country—two of the British war ships being of the 1912 programme, while the German total includes one of that date. France comes next with three capital vessels, all of the 1912 programme; Italy, Japan and Turkey, now that she has bought one from Brazil, have two each to their credit, and Russia, Chili and Spain have one each.

The delay in putting the Szent Istvan, for Austria-Hungary, into the water is explained by the circumstances that this vessel is building at Pola, where facilities for the construction of a dreadnought have not yet been fully developed. Of the twenty-two vessels ten were launched during the last quarter of the year and eight went afloat from British yards.

The dreadnoughts launched for Great Britain were:—The Queen Elizabeth, on October 16; the Benbow, on November 12; the Warspite, on November 26; the Emperor of India, lately the Delhi, on November 27, and the Tiger, battle cruiser, on December 15. The Queen Elizabeth and the Warspite are of the all oil burning type, and should also be the first completed vessels to carry 15-inch guns. The other three have been delayed in construction by labor troubles in the private yards. The German dreadnoughts are the König, launched on March 1; the Grosser Kurfürst, on May 5; the Markgraf, on June 4; the Derfflinger, on July 1, and the Luetzow, on November 29. The two last named are battle cruisers.

Battle Cruisers Compared.

The first four of these vessels are of the 1911 programme, but the Luetzow, like the Queen Elizabeth and her sister, belongs to the programme of 1912. If, however, the German battle cruiser is compared with the British Tiger, of an earlier programme, it will be found that the difference in age is not reflected in the design, the Tiger having, in fact, the more formidable armament. Both vessels burn oil and coal, both are to have a speed of 28.5 knots; but while the Luetzow has eight 12-inch and fourteen 6-inch guns, the Tiger will carry eight 13.5-inch and twelve 6-inch guns.

The three French vessels launched were the Provence, on April 29; the Bretagne, on April 5; and the Lorraine, on September 30. These are dreadnoughts of the 1912 programme, and were well advanced when put into the water, indicating an acceleration of French naval construction for which Mr. Baudin, the late Minister of Marine, should have the largest share of credit.

Italy's new dreadnoughts are the Andrea Doria, launched on March 30, and the Duilio, on April 24, each vessel having been about a year on the stocks. They are practically alike in design and equipment to the Conte di Cavour class, which preceded them, with the exception that for protection against torpedo attack sixteen 6-in. guns are substituted for eighteen 4.7-in. guns.

The Japanese dreadnoughts launched were the Kirishima, on December 1, and the Haruna, on December 14. They are similar to the Kongo, built at Vickers', so that Japan has now four Dreadnought battle cruisers in the water. Turkey has bought the Rio de Janeiro, which was launched for Brazil on January 23, and has also the Reshadieh, completing, which was put into the water at Barrow on September 3. These two powerful and speedy battle ships, though not alike in design, will be a formidable accession to Ottoman naval strength.

The Imperatritza Marie, launched on November 1 at Nikolaieff, is an addition to the Russian force in the Black Sea, where another vessel of the same type is nearly ready for the water. Similarly, for Chile, the Almirante Latorre was launched at Elswick on November 27, and a sister vessel, the Almirante Cochrane, should soon be afloat.

Few Light Cruisers.

The Spanish battle ship Alfonso III. was launched on May 8, after being three years on the slips. Although this is quite an unusual circumstance in the present day, it is likely before long that in other countries than Spain, owing to the increase in size of later battle ships and to difficulties connected with labor, deliver, in two years from the date of laying the keel will be found as a rule to be an impossible achievement.

The number of light cruisers launched during the last year was not large, amounting to seven in all—five for Great Britain, one for Germany and one for Austria.

VALUE OF ENGLAND'S MINERAL OUTPUT

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, Jan. 31.

THE total value of the minerals raised in the United Kingdom during 1913 was £131,220,853, an increase of £6,041,540 as compared with 1911, according to Part III. of the annual General Report on Mines and Quarries, which has just been published.

This increase is mainly accounted for by the increased value of coal. The total output of coal was 240,416,336 tons, and the value £117,921,124, showing a decrease in output of 11,476,561 tons, but an increase in value of £7,197,441 on the figures for 1911. The average price of coal was 9s. 9.65d. a ton in 1913, as compared with 8s. 1.79d. in 1911.

The diminished output and the enhanced selling price of coal were doubtless the effect of the national strike of workers at collieries.

The average prices of metals for the year all show increases as compared with the figures for 1911, and in the case of tin the highest average price yet recorded—£212 11s. a ton for English block tin—was reached.

TOOK SEVERE COLD.

Left A Terrible Hard Cough And A Nasty Tickling Sensation in The Throat.

A bad cough accompanied by that distressing, tickling sensation in the throat is most aggravating.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is rich in the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree, and for this reason it will stop that tickling in the throat which causes that dry hard cough that keeps you awake at night.

Mr. Sanford Roode, Antrim, N.S., writes:—"Last fall I took a severe cold which left me with a terrible hard cough and a nasty tickling sensation in my throat. I tried many cough medicines, but they did not help me so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had used half of it the cough had left me, and the next one made a complete cure, and I will recommend it as the best cough medicine on the market."

See that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it. Do not accept any imitation. The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price, 25 and 50c., and manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A GIRL GENERAL

She Displayed Military Genius Unconsciously

By TIMOTHY L. DODGE

"It's all very well to educate a man in the science of war," said the old veteran, "but if he hasn't got the faculties in him that go to make a leader his education won't do him any good. We had a lot of book generals in the war between the states, and we had some born generals. The former did a lot of harm, and the latter—well, the latter did a lot of harm to the enemy.

"You wouldn't expect to find military talents in a woman, would you? Well, I spent four years under generals of all kinds, and the genius for war that came most particularly under my observation was displayed by a girl.

"In the spring of 1862, when the army I was with was at Shelbyville, Tenn., my captain told me that there was a call from general headquarters for some one to go south on secret service—learn what force of Confederate was occupying the territory south of us and come back with the information. I was a private in those days and anxious to do something by which I might gain promotion. I thought that if I gained the information to enable the general to carry out any plans he might have I could count on his influence. So I volunteered and was ordered to report at headquarters. The general questioned me, and evidently making up his mind to try me told me to scout southward and learn so far as I could just what Confederate forces were between him and the Tennessee river. He was intending to make a forced march with a view to cutting a railroad. He left me free to go in uniform or in citizen's dress, as I pleased. I concluded that I could get farther south and learn more by assuming to be a southerner, so I chose to go in citizen's dress.

"I confess I didn't like the prospect of being detected as a Yankee soldier in disguise within the enemy's lines hunting for information, for I was pretty sure in that case to be hanged for a spy. Besides, I was starting at night, which is just the time a man's pluck is at the lowest ebb. I rode most of the night and early in the morning stopped at the outskirts of a town called Fayetteville.

"Those towns down there were sure to sympathize with one side or the other. Shelbyville was known to be in favor of the Federals, in Fayetteville they were all Confederates. I didn't know this at the time, and I didn't take precautions. I stopped at a house and asked for some breakfast, for which I paid in greenbacks. This excited suspicion: the woman of the house played Union and drew a confession from me that I was of the same persuasion. If there had been a man about I would have been in trouble right off. As it was, I thought it best to mount my horse and get away.

"I went on southward, talking with the people I met, telling them that I had come from Shelbyville and had left a force of Yankees there. Then I asked them about 'our fellows' and got all they knew. At noon I stopped at a farmhouse, and this time I struck a Union family sure enough. The father was away serving with an east Tennessee Federal regiment. There were a mother, a daughter about twenty years old and some small children.

"I soon found that it was safe to confide in these people and confessed myself a Union man. I also told the daughter just what I was going to do, caught her breath and left her, knowing full well what my fate would be if caught.

"I have never known such quick growth of love between the sexes as during war. Perhaps the girls, being unprotected, and not met unawares on equality with men, and were therefore attracted to a different class of young men. Be this as it may, I had not been in the house an hour before I saw evidence in the girl of a strong predisposition in my favor. Then, too, the terrible risk I was running served to heighten her interest in me. As to my feelings for her, I will refer to that later.

"I may as well say here, however, that I couldn't tear myself away from her till evening, when I started again for a night ride toward Stevenson junction, intending to go on from there to Bridgeport, with a view to learning what force there was at the latter place guarding the long railroad bridge across the Tennessee river. I got on very well, penetrated as far as I had intended and made my way back to the house where I had left the girl.

"She told me that the family had incurred hostility for harboring me, since the woman with whom I had breakfasted on my way down had reported my presence to a Confederate cavalry force in the vicinity and they had been looking for me.

"The girl learned that there were scattered forces in my way on the watch for me, so I decided to make a detour southward and work my way back over the Cumberland plateau. I parted from my love on an eminence near her home where she could see me for a long distance. I cheered her by telling her that the Yankees would be down there soon in force and I would surely see her again.

"About a mile south of my starting point I came to a river. I crossed it by a ford and had ridden another mile when I struck a crossroad by which I intended to proceed eastward and then northward. I had just turned when I heard a voice behind me calling on me to throw up my hands. I did so at once, and three Confederate cavalrymen in charge of a corporal took me in.

"After questioning me they decided that I was the man they were looking for and started with me for the camp of the force to which they belonged.

"The road struck the river at the ford and we started in to cross it single file. Two of my captors preceded and two followed me. There was a ledge just below the ford which my girl had cautioned me against, calling my attention to the fact that the running water would deceive me as to the direction I needed to take. She told me that if I didn't keep well upstream I would go over the ledge into deep water.

"I soon saw that the first man in line, the corporal, was heading too far downstream. When he reached the middle of the river he went over the ledge and I saw him no more. The next man was frightened, but headed his horse farther upstream. I wished I could go over the ledge and be drowned, to save myself from a hanging. I was turning my horse in that direction when the man next in my rear, who had come up beside me, asked my bride-to.

"When I was looking him in the face I saw a round hole appear in his fore head. He fell from his horse and was swept away with the current. He had been shot, but who had shot him was a mystery. I glanced to the opposite bank and saw a little cloud of smoke, but no one who had fired a shot.

"Two of the four men were now eliminated. The man behind me was a brave fellow. He spurred forward and, drawing his revolver, ordered me to proceed. But we hadn't gone six yards before I heard a crack, and at the same time my man fell from his saddle. Where he was hit I did not know, but if he wasn't killed he was doubtless drowned.

"Turning my head, I saw the fourth man urging his horse as fast as he could through the rapid current toward the southern shore. He had evidently had enough of trying to run me into camp and was trying to save himself from the invisible marksman.

"I was now free as a bird, and it didn't take long for me to gather my faculties sufficiently to understand that some one had saved me from my captors, though I was not quite sure but that I would be the next victim. However, I lost no time in pushing forward to the northern side of the river, and my horse carried me up the steep ascent on to the bank. There I looked about me and at the base of a tree saw a girl lying on the ground, with a rifle beside her. I spurred toward her, dismounted and recognized the girl I had left not an hour before.

"She was in a dead faint, but I picked her up and kissed her back to consciousness.

"She had seen me captured and my captors start for the river. Her military eye had taken in the situation at once. Running home, she had got a rifle, and returning lay in concealment with a view to attacking the enemy while crossing the stream. Seeing the leader heading too far down, she had waited till he fell over the ledge; then taking advantage of the confusion, she had opened fire.

"There are many instances in history where generals have seized upon just such a moment to rout an enemy, but this is the only affair of the kind that came under my own personal observation. Besides, it saved my life.

"I got the girl back to her house and then pushed my horse to his utmost to place as many miles as possible between me and that region. Fortunately I eluded those on the watch for me and got my information in to the general. He commended me highly for my work and recommended me to the governor of my state for a commission."

"What became of the girl?" asked one of the listeners.

"Our force advanced as soon as I got to camp, and I saw her again frequently. After the war I went down there and married her."

Fifty Yards on the Head.

The curious miter shaped headdress worn by women of quality in Spain during the middle ages is described in "The Queens of Aragon," by E. L. Miron. It consisted of an undercroft with plaited edges, covered by a second, resembling a Phrygian or Catalan cap, the flat point falling over like that of a nightcap. These miters, supposed to be of oriental origin, were introduced into Spain by Beatrice of Swabia, queen of Ferdinand, the saint of Castile. Very hot and heavy they must have been, considering that sometimes as much as fifty yards of material were used to make them. They were fastened under the chin by a ribbon or band. The same writer refers to the silver bed ladders used for climbing into the high medieval beds.

Peps What are they?

Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up into tabloid or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles.

Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine—not to your lungs, but to your stomach?

Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint—indigestion or ulceration. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?

Peps—this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troubles—go to the lungs and breathing-tubes, direct. Peps are really pine fumes, and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tabloid form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!

You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so, the healing essences it contains turn into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages!

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment.

Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children, because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box or 3 for $1.25.

FREE TRIAL

Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it to Peps Co., Toronto, or 82 Princess Street, Winnipeg, enclosing 1 cent stamp to pay for return postage. A free trial packet of Peps will be mailed you by return. If you have a friend suffering from a cough, cold, or any throat or lung trouble, hand this on.

YOU'RE BILIOUS AND COSTIVE!—CASCARETS

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, Mean Liver and Bowels Clogged—Clean Up To-night

Get a 10-cent box now.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver, and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children — their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Maeterlinck Is Surprised.

NICE, Feb. 3. — Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian author and Nobel prize winner for literature, whose works have been classed as forbidden by the Sacred Congregation of the Index, said:

"It is comprehensible why the theories expressed in my book 'Death,' have been disapproved by the papacy, but I am unable to understand why the innocent fairy play 'the 'Blue Bird,' the chaste and pure Pelleas and Melisande,' the pathetic 'Monna Vanna' and the mystic 'Mary Magdalene' should be condemned."

Spaniards Routed Moors.

TETUAN, Morocco, Feb. 3.—The Moorish tribesmen sustained very heavy losses in a stubbornly contested battle with a column of Spanish troops on Friday at Beni-Salem, to the south of this town, while the Spanish forces also were severely stricken, losing four officers and 22 men killed and four officers and 116 men wounded.

To Arraign Capt. Berry.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce yesterday directed that charges of negligence be preferred against Capt. Osman Berry of the Merchants & Miners' steamship Nantucket, which collided with and sunk the old Dominion liner Monroe, with a loss of 41 lives, off the Virginia coast last Friday.

Ship Channel Nears Completion.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—The 30-foot ship channel between Quebec and Montreal is practically completed. The total length of dredging in the project is 70 miles, and the length yet to be dredged, says the annual report of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, which was published yesterday, is 4.20 miles. This, of course, was at the beginning of the present fiscal year.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Nine-tenths of All Stomach Trouble Said to Be Due to Acidity.

A Physician's Advice on Cause and Cure.

A famous physician whose successful researches into the cause and cure of stomach and intestinal diseases have earned for him an international reputation, said in the course of a recent lecture that nearly all intestinal troubles, as well as many diseases of the vital organs, were directly traceable to a deranged condition of the stomach which in turn was due nine times out of ten to excessive acidity, commonly termed sour stomach or heartburn, which not only irritated and inflamed the delicate lining of the stomach, but also set up gastritis and stomach ulcers. It is interesting to note that he condemns the use of patent medicines as well as of medical treatment for the stomach, stating that he and his colleagues have secured remarkable results by the use of ordinary bisurated magnesia, which, by neutralising the acidity of the food, removes the source of the trouble. He contends that it is as foolish to treat the stomach itself as it would be for a man who stepped on a tack to rub liniment on the foot without first removing the tack. Remove the tack and the foot will heal itself—neutralise the acid and stomach troubles will disappear. Irritating medicines and medical treatments are useless so long as the contents of the stomach remain acid; remove the acidity, and there will be no need for medicine—the inflamed lining of the stomach will then heal itself. Sufferers from acidity, sour stomach or heartburn should get a small bottle of bisurated magnesia from their druggist, and take a teaspoonful in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after meals, repeating in fifteen minutes, if necessary, this being the dose which the doctor has found most efficacious in all cases.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

John Olsen, aged 29, and Andrew Damon, aged 26, a powder man, were blown to their death by a dynamite explosion at Courtenay Bay, N.B., yesterday.

Two million pounds of frozen beef and mutton, the first direct shipment of this kind ever sent from Australia to Seattle, arrived yesterday on the British ship Waimate.

The general store of Samuel Hawkins, New Dublin, near Brockville, was burglarized by thieves opening a rear window. The till was rifled of a large sum of money.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Lomer Gouin will be the guests of honor at the formal opening of the Montreal Reform Club's new headquarters on Saturday evening, Feb. 21.

Capt. Gaston Niquet of the 1st Artillery, and Lieut. Jean Louis Delvert, of the French aviation corps, were killed yesterday at Bourges, France, by falling with their biplanes.

Katie Schwab, aged 18 months, was frozen to death in her mother's arms in the Estevan district of Saskatchewan, when her parents and another child were lost on the trail in the storm.

The Jesuit priests, Father Allain and Taille, who were captured by bandits when they sacked and burned the town of Liuan-Chow recently, have been released and have reached a place of safety.

In 1913, according to the report of the National Highways Protective Society, made public yesterday, 302 persons were killed by automobiles in New York City. This is an increase of 31 over 1912.

Workmen blasting at Popham Beach, Maine, yesterday uncovered what is believed to be a vein of cannel coal, leading in from the ocean. Lumps of coal have been washed ashore at that point for many years.

Installed as Arch Priest.

ROME, Feb. 3.—Cardinal Merry Del Val, Papal Secretary of State, was solemnly received by the Chapter of St. Peter's, when he took possession yesterday of the post as arch priest, in succession to the late Cardinal Rampolla. The canons and dignitaries paid him homage, after which the cardinal said mass.

"Pape's Cold Compound" relieves worst cold or the grippe in few hours—No quinine used.

Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until you have taken three doses, then all grippe misery goes and your cold will be broken. It promptly opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nasty discharge or nose running; relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling. Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

WHITNEY MUCH BETTER.

Premier Sits Up, But Sir George Ross Is Not So Well.

TORONTO, Feb. 3. — Much satisfaction is evinced by Sir James Whitney's medical attendants over his continued progress towards convalescence. The Premier sat up for the first time yesterday, and was feeling particularly well under the circumstances. Dr. McPhedran said last night that his condition is very satisfactory.

The reports of Sir George Ross' condition are not so sanguine. It was learned at the General Hospital last night that while his condition is an improvement over that of last week, the outlook is not so favorable as it was a day or so ago.

Alvinston Church Destroyed.

ALVINSTON, Ont., Feb. 3.—A disastrous fire destroyed the Presbyterian Church and L. Welsh's residence in this place yesterday morning. The fire started in the church, which is a fine structure valued at about $12,000, and was first noticed when the whole inside of the building was ablaze. Mr. Welsh's residence, being quite near, could not be saved.

Yaquis On the Warpath.

DOUGLASS, Ariz., Feb. 3.—After several weeks of quiet Yaqui Indians were again raiding ranches in the vicinity of Ures, Senora, according to reports which reached here yesterday. Several Mexican freighters have been killed near Ures, it was stated, and the inhabitants of that region are practically defenceless.

Sarnia Fears Influx.

SARNIA, Feb. 3.—Following the morality clean-up being made in Port Huron is a certain uneasiness among officials of the town, who are more or less afraid that if there is an exodus in Port Huron of disorderly characters, Sarnia may receive the influx. A strict watch will be kept by the immigration officers.

Oxford Pioneer Dead.

WOODSTOCK, Feb. 3.—The death took place Monday night of Mrs. M. Campbell, a well-known resident of Oxford County aged 70 years. The late Mrs. Campbell came to Oxford County 45 years ago with her husband, who was for many years actively connected with the Norwich Council.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders later come dropsy, stone rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. Don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys, and bowels will clear away the poison and pains and make you well again.

GIRLS! HAVE BEAUTIFUL, CHARMING HAIR AND NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Try This! Doubles Beauty of Your Hair and Stops It Falling Out

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowltons Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 52 carloads, comprising 852 cattle, 494 hogs, 186 sheep and lambs and 29 calves.

Butchers

Good to choice steers, $8 to $8.50; good steers and heifers, $7.50 to $8; medium, $7 to $7.35; common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $6.50 to $6.75; good, $6 to $6.25; medium, $5.50 to $5.75; common, $4.50 to $5; choice bulls, $6.75 to $7; good bulls, $6 to $6.25; common bulls, $5.50 to $5.75.

Stockers and Feeders

There was a light delivery of stockers and feeders. Prices remained steady. Choice steers, $7 to $7.35; good steers, $6.50 to $6.75; stockers, $5.50 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers

Only a few milkers and springers were on sale, at unchanged prices, ranging from $55 to $87.50.

Veal Calves

Receipts of calves were light, not being enough to supply the demand. Choice calves sold at $10.50 to $11.50; good, $9 to $10; medium, $7.50 to $8.50; common and rough, $5.00 to $6.50.

Sheep and Lambs

Sheep, light ewes, $6.50 to $7; heavy ewes, $5.50 to $6; rams, $5.25 to $6; heavy lambs, $8 to $8.75; good to choice lambs, $9 to $9.50.

Hogs

Selects, fed and watered, sold at $9.25 to $9.50, and $9.15, f.o.b.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, the offerings for sale consisted of 900 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 125 calves.

There was very little change in the condition of the market for cattle. Fully 50 per cent. of the cattle offered were carried over from last week, and as the expense to drovers was considerable, high prices were asked, which buyers refused to pay; consequently the trade was almost at a standstill. For full loads of choice Ontario steers, drovers asked $6.50, for which buyers bid $7.50 to $8 per cwt., and as some of the drovers found it impossible to obtain the above price asked, they decided to ship their cattle to the United States market, and several loads were forwarded to Boston today.

Owing to the very limited supply of lambs coming forward of late a strong feeling has developed in the market, and prices have advanced 25c per cwt., with an improved demand for small lots.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Feb. 2.—Cattle—Receipts 3500; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $8.35 to $9.10; shipping, $8 to $8.75; butchers, $7 to $8.50; heifers, $6 to $8; cows, $3.75 to $7.25; bulls, $5.25 to $7.30; stockers and feeders, $5.50 to $7; stock heifers, $4.25 to $5.75; fresh cows and springers, steady, $25 to $90.

Veals—Receipts 500; active and 75c higher; $6 to $12.25.

Hogs—Receipts 15,000; active, 10c to 15c higher; pigs, 30c to 35c higher; heavy, mixed, yorkers and pigs, $8 to $9.05; roughs, $8 to $8.15; stags, $6 to $7; dairies, $8.90 to $9.05.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts 11,400; sheep active and steady; lambs, slow and 15c higher; lambs, $8.50 to $8.25; yearlings, $5 to $7; wethers, $5.75 to $6; ewes, $2 to $5.50; sheep, mixed, $5.50 to $5.75.

Goderich ex-Mayor Dead.

GODERICH, Feb. 3.—John Butler, who twenty years ago was a prominent figure in Goderich municipal life, died yesterday morning at the age of 80 years. He was mayor of Goderich for seven years, 1869 to 1895, and afterwards held the position of police magistrate for several years. He conducted a book and stationery store until his retirement a year ago. He was not married and leaves no relatives here.

Berlin's Peace Celebration.

BERLIN, Ont., Feb. 3.—At a well attended meeting of citizens of Berlin and Waterloo held here yesterday afternoon it was unanimously decided to hold a peace celebration in 1915.

The meeting was addressed by Mr. Scammell of Ottawa, secretary of the Canadian committee, which committee had selected Berlin as one of the districts for such a celebration.

SURGEON TO A TIGER.

An Exciting Operation That Was Repaid by Gratitude.

When one of the tigers in the zoological gardens in Dublin was treated for gangrene in its paw, Rev. Samuel Haughton, M. D., undertook to perform the dangerous experiment of operating on the animal.

The mate of the tiger was first secured in a side den. A net devised by Professor Haughton was thrown over the tiger, and he was drawn forward to the door of the cage. Four stout keepers then held the feet of the struggling animal, while Professor Haughton cut away the diseased claw.

The suffering beast furiously but vainly tried to get at him during the operation, but the rage of the tigress looking on through the bars of the side den was much more terrible to behold. She roared and violently flung herself against the barriers in her mad desire to go to the rescue of her mate.

When the tigress was admitted to the cage after the wound of her mate had been dressed she turned up the paw and examined it with touching solicitude and then licked her mate as a cat licks her kittens to soothe them, purring softly the while.

But perhaps the most extraordinary part of the affair was the sequel. A week later Professor Haughton was again at the zoo to see how his patient was getting on. When the animal espied him he began to purr like a cat, allowed him to examine the paw and seemed pleased that he should do so. Indeed, for years afterward the tiger and tigress showed themselves most friendly and grateful to Professor Haughton.—Westminster Gazette.

To Have Radial Field Day.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Board of Control yesterday endorsed the Board of Trade's project for a radial field day to be held in London in the near future, and agreed to provide a place for the conference, the Board of Trade to furnish a banquet.

The idea is to have representatives here from municipalities throughout western Ontario, to discuss the radial railways scheme and to come to some mutual arrangement for securing the crystallization of the plans that have been fomenting in various parts of the province.

Settled Claims.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 3. — A definite settlement was reached yesterday of the claims of the three daughters of the late King Leopold in connection with the property left by him. A short time ago they unsuccessfully sued the Government for the entire Congo property, valued at nearly $14,000,000. Afterward the state recognized that they were entitled to some compensation and made them an offer, which they accepted. Most of Princess Louise's share goes to her creditors.

A Pretty Idea.

Have a flower like those used for the decoration of the table floating in each of the finger bowls. A bit of old fashioned herbage, which sometimes takes the place of the time honored rose geranium leaf is a sprig of lemon verbena.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1914

TUBERCULOSIS COST CITY 150,000 IN 1913

Estimating Average Life at Value of $5,000—Statement of Dr. Neal to the Council in Asking Grant From the City of $10,000

FACTS ARE STARTLING

The Health Association presented their petition to the City Council last night for a grant of $10,000 towards a sanatorium, and if the City Fathers had any doubt as to the widespread prevalence of this disease in our very midst, or inclined to regard it and its results lightly, Dr. Neal presented a statement of conditions as applied to Peterborough, that were positively startling to those who have not seriously considered the situation. The sanatorium is designed to help in the fight against tuberculosis. The Association promises to raise $10,000 and the Government will contribute $4,000.

Mr. E. A. Peck, president of the Association, emphasized the fact that it is in the interests of the ratepayers that the Association should undertake and carry on this work.

Rev. J. R. Webb stated that tubercular patients are often subject to peculiar embarrassment. As boarders in a home, their presence is not desired by other boarders and by the owner of the home. None of us want the spectacle of other cities where consumptives have been left in the streets because there was no other place for them. When we speak of $10,00 it sounds like a large sum, but simply means the passing of the civic collection plate once a year for ten years and five cents from each person will suffice.

Dr. Neal's Address.

Dr. Neal dealt comprehensively with local condit ions and emphasized with a chart some of the main points which he brought out. During the past four years from 1910 to 1913 there have been 118 deaths from tuberculosis. Of these 46.7 were females and 53.3 males. One out of every three of the deaths between 20 and 30 years are from tuberculosis, or an average of 30 deaths a year, while in 1913 the number was about 34. In other words, throughout the year we have had one death every 10 or 12 days due to a preventable, curable disease.

If such were the case in regard to typhoid fever, diphtheria or any other infect ious diseases, there would be a furore in the City, and demands for immediate investigation, but until recently no systematic efforts have been made to check the invasion of the white plague.

Worse Than Other Diseases.

This year we have been congratulating ourselves on the low mortality due to infectious diseases, but we are sorry to state that such does not apply to tuberculosis. In proportion to the population our mortality is higher than that in Brantford, Ottawa, London, Hamilton or Berlin, all of which places have taken decisive action in the fight against tuberculosis. The deaths due to tuberculosis here during the past four years exceeded the deaths due to all other infectious diseases combined, and to their number may be added the deaths due to appendicitis, cancer and diabetes. Prominent authorities claim that for every death from tuberculosis there are from 10 to 15 living cases, so we will

MEMBERS OF COX FAMILY REPLY TO THE CITIZENS

Recollections of one of Peterborough's greatest sons, the late Hon. Geo. A. Cox, whose death occurred a short time ago, were not wanting at last night's Council meeting. On the west wall of the chamber a large framed photograph was draped in heavy black, and a number of letters were received from Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Ames, Mr. E. W. Cox, and Mr. H. C. Cox, acknowledging the condolences of the Council and the citizens as expressed by resolutions, floral tributes and personal representation at the funeral of the late Senator.

The following letter written to City Clerk Armstrong was received from Mr. H. C. Cox:

"I am in receipt of your esteemed favours of the 20th instant, quoting resolutions as passed by the citizens of Peterborough and by the municipality of the City of Peterborough, in connection with the death of my father, and can assure you that myself and the other members of the family very highly appreciate these splendid and much cherished tributes to his memory. While he has been a resident of Toronto for the past twenty-five or twenty-six years he has, as you all know, always retained great affection for and interest in the welfare of his old home city, and was never happier than when he was able to be of assistance in the securing of a new enterprise for or in advancing the interests of Peterborough; it was always a great pleasure to him and nothing was too much trouble.

"I shall be much obliged if you will kindly convey to the Mayor and members of your City Council, and also to the citizens generally, my keen appreciation of, and sincere thanks for, their very kind resolutions of sympathy to myself and the other members of our family, in the great loss we have just sustained."

Broder After Cigarettes

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Andrew Broder of Dundas will, at an early date, move for legislation which will prevent the manufacture, importation, or sale of cigarettes in Canada. Richard Blain of Peel, a few years ago, moved for similar legislation, but his intentions did not crystalize into law. Broder is himself a non-smoker.

WANTS $40 LICENSE ON CIGARETTE SALE

Ald. Anderson gives notice of a Motion he will introduce.

At last night's meeting of the City Council Ald. Anderson gave notice that at the next meeting he will introduce a by-law which will require of vendors of cigarettes that they obtain a license costing $40. At present there is no license.

CONTROLLER JAMES SIMPSON Of Toronto Who Will Speak in Knox Church To-night on "The Church And The Workingman"

H. R. H. THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT AT THE YORK CLUB—Two porters, two policemen, and Sir Henry Pellatt were on the station platform when the Governor-General, the Duke of Connaught, arrived in Toronto on a recent visit from the Capital. He is seen here about to enter the York Club, hungry and ready for breakfast. The newspaper reports said that His Royal Highness was not looking as well as he did on his last visit to Toronto.

W. H. BRADBURN ON CITY TRUST

Appointed by City Council as Successor to Mr. James Kendry—Members Discuss the Manner of the Appointment.

CLAIMED IT A SURPRISE

Ex-Mayor Bradburn was appointed a City Trust Commissioner by the Council last night succeeding Jas. Kendry. When the by-law was introduced to appoint a commissioner, Alderman Johnston moved, seconded by Alderman Duffus that Mr. Kendry be re-appointed.

Alderman Gordon moved, seconded by Alderman Stratton that W. H. Bradburn be appointed.

Alderman Saunders was in the chair and on the call for a vote the amendment carried.

Alderman Johnston said it was hardly fair to spring a surprise in that manner. He was just as favourable to ex-Mayor Bradburn as any member of the Council.

Alderman Gordon—The fault was possibly mine.

Alderman Johnston—I think so.

Alderman Gordon—The fact is that Mr. Kendry's time is occupied by the largest interest which he is connected with. Mr. Bradburn's time is not taken up to the same extent. The first intimation that the matter was coming up this evening was when I heard Alderman Johnston read his motion.

Mayor Buller said he supported Mr. Kendry for the reason that he was an old official. He did not believe in turning him down after years of service.

Alderman Duffus—All the other appointments by by-law return the previous appointee. It is only right that Mr. Kendry should be returned.

Alderman Gordon—I fail to see why a man should be returned simply because he has held the position previously. There is no reason why one man should hold a position for a generation. I believe the honours should be passed about. I have a high regard for Mr. Kendry.

Alderman Johnston—Has the ex-Mayor been asked whether he will accept this position?

Alderman Gordon—Yes.

Alderman Johnston—Why did you not speak to the rest of us about it? Not a man on the Board would support the ex-Mayor quicker than I would. It was not fair when I brought up the name of the former member of the commission to spring a new one.

Alderman Gordon — It was not known to me that the matter was coming up to-night. If the by-law had been given to me to read I would have known about it and would have been in a position to tell the other members.

Alderman Duncan—I did not hear about this until a few minutes ago.

Alderman Gordon moved, seconded by Alderman Duncan, that the City Clerk be instructed to produce the by-law fixing the appointment of the members of the Court of Revision at the next meeting of the Council and that the City Solicitor be asked to prepare a by-law in the same form leaving blanks for the names to be included. Carried.

The appointment must be made before the first of March. The Mayor selects one member and the Council the other. The County Registrar is the third member. A special meteing of the Council must be held if there is to be any change made, or if the by-law is to be presented in time for this year.

Social Season in Dublin.

DUBLIN, Feb. 3.—The official social season in the Irish capital was opened to-day with a levee held by Lord Aberdeen at Dublin Castle. The park in front of the Castle was thronged with peple to watch the arrivals. To-morrow night Lord and Lady Aberdeen will hold the first drawing-room of the season.

MR. HARVEY AT CANADIAN CLUB

Members of the Canadian Club are reminded of the meeting in the Savoy to-morrow evening at 5:30 o'clock, when Mr. Martin Harvey, the famous English actor will address the club. Mr. Harvey's visit to Peterborough is a most important event in the theatrical calendar and the members of the Canadian Club are to be congratulated upon this opportunity of hearing an address from a gentleman who occupies such a prominent place in the dramatic world.

STOCK JUDGING COURSE IS NOW IN PROGRESS

Large Attendance at Yesterday's and To-day's Classes in the Armouries

The opening of the two-day stock judging course in this City was held in the Armouries yesterday afternoon and was a decided success. The judging was conducted by Mr. R. H. Harding, Thorndale, and was witnessed by over a hundred farmers and breeders of this vicinity.

Yesterday's class included the judging of beef cattle and dairy cattle. Shorthorn cattle was the only class of the former dealt with, while mature and immature Holstein cattle were judged.

The course is being conducted under the auspices of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute and the local branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Yesterday's animals were provided by Mr. Redmond, and Mr. Gillespie.

PITTSBURG POINTS WAY TO PETERBORO'

The following despatch to the New York Times shows what Pittsburgh proposes doing with the policewomen problem:

Pittsburgh, Penn., Jan. 28.—An ordinance introduced in council yesterday empowers the Superintendnt of Police to appoint four police women. The women will be known as the "Pittsburgh Police Auxiliary," and it will be their duty to look after the children in the city. They will draw salaries of $75 a month each. Club women are back of the movement, and they expect the ordinance to pass.

AN ANSWER TO "MERE MAN"

Jan. 30th, 1914.

Dear Sir,—In answer to "Mere Man" in last evenings' Examiner. I am a respectable young lady and wish to mention concerning my own sex, that a man should not judge a girl by her dress altogether.

Look "Young Man," on Thanksgiving Day. The men who race five and ten miles. How do they dress in public? Another question: Why do married men keep clean shaved? Just to look young? Is not this the answer?

Not to be Judged.

BULGARIANS ARE DISCHARGED

Judge Huycke Gave Foreigners the Benefit of the Doubt and They Are Allowed to go

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Tedor and Petor Minkoff, aged 16 and 18 years, two Bulgarian labourers from Havelock, came before His Honour Judge Huycke this afternoon charged with the theft of some tools and a blanket from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

They were defended by Mr. V. J. McElderry, and Mr. Joseph Wearing conducted the prosecution. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate dismissed the charge against them.

In the witness box Detective Harry Hawke said that he found the stolen tools concealed between the mattress and bed in the Bulgarian's room. The younger of the two admitted that he had taken the tools. The tools had the C.P.R. stamp on them. They had been taken from a car that was wrecked at Havelock, and which had been damaged at both ends. The car had been nailed up, and two boards had been removed by whoever had entered it. The blanket had been taken from a sleeping car.

The first witness for the defence was the elder prisoner, whose evidence was heard by the Court by means of an interpreter. He said to Mr. McElderry that he found the blanket in the snow and took it to his room, so that if anyone lost it he could restore it to them.

"Did you give it up when the detective asked for it?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"He didn't ask for it, he just searched the room," was the reply.

To Mr. Wearing he said he did not sew the blanket he found between two of his own until he had despaired of anyone coming to get it. Then he did do it, to keep it from getting soiled.

The younger of the two said that he found the tools in the snow and took them to the car he lived in, and left them there so that they would not get lost.

Mr. Wearing argued that the fact that the prisoners hid the tools and blanket was a strong evidence of crime. But he did not press too strongly for a conviction.

His Honour Judge Huycke said the only thing was to determine whether the boys had taken the things with guilty intent or not. He thought he should on the whole give the prisoners the benefit of the doubt. On the whole I find them both "not guilty."

Will Deliver An Address

Prof. Reynolds of the Ontario Agricultural College, will give an address in the Recreation Rooms of the Armouries this eevning. The occasion for his presence in the City is the two day stock judging course which concludes tonight. The meeting is open to hte public.

One of the best features of the course is the judging of the horses. Heavy horses were selected this morning and with a competitive judge in the person of Mr. W. J. Gardhouse of Thornhill, in charge, an educative session resulted. Horses for this purpose were supplied by Mr. W. J. Cox, of Monaghan, S. F. Redmond, and the Shaw Bros of Otonabee.

Other speakers will be Mr. Ellis of Farm and Dairy, and Mr. G. A. Gillespie. A musical has been provided.

CONFESSED YESTERDAY DENIED IT TO-DAY

DOES NOT LIKE THE POLICE WOMAN PLAN

Inspector Boyle, Head of Springfield Detective Department Says a Vice Squad is Far More Useful

OPINION OF AN EXPERT

Inspector Boyle, of Springfield, Mass., who was here yesterday to take back Albert H. Brodeur, wanted for murder, does not think very highly of police-women, and said so emphatically to an Examiner reporter who interviewed him yesterday. The head of the detective bureau of a big city, with twenty-seven years' experience, Inspector Boyle does not believe a police-woman of much assistance in preventing vice.

"Once you stamp her as a police officer," remarked the Inspector, "and her usefulness is gone. You have to have two or three officers following her around to keep her out of trouble. Your good ladies in Peterborough, whom you say are working so hard for the appointment of a police-woman, have the right spirit, but they are devoting their energy in a wrong direction."

"What system do you follow in Springfield in handling the social problem?" the reporter asked.

"We have a section of our force known as the vice squad, whose duty it is to look after disorderly houses, gambling, illegal liquor selling, street girls, etc. These vice officers constantly visit the theatres, dance halls, and other places of amusement, and if a young girl is noticed acting unwisely, the officers learn her name and address. If there is no other way she is taken to the station house and there her mistake is pointed out to her and she is given useful advice. This is not an arrest, merely a big brother chat as it were. Then we have a woman probation officer who goes to the girl's home to find out if there is anything she can do there to strengthen the girl and improve her conduct. That is where you must begin the reform work, in the home. You generally find something wrong at home, something that drives the children out. We follow the same course with the boys, with a probation officer to look after them. Both boys and girls are encouraged to go to some of the city clubs kept up by public subscription where they are greatly helped.

"A police-woman simply cannot accomplish the results required. Only the other day I noticed that Portsmouth, after trying the experiment, had decided to do away with the police-woman plan, and other cities have found the system unsatisfactory. I certainly would recommend a vice squad such as we have in Springfield in preference to a woman police officer."

Young Englishman Gives Himself Up to the Police, Saying He Was Mixed Up in a Murder Case Seven Years Ago.

HE WILL BE HELD

Yesterday afternoon a diminutive Englishman, walked into the Police Station and made a confession to P. C. Patterson and Chief Thompson that he had helped in the murder of a woman in Kidderminster, Worcestershire, which, he said, took place about seven years ago. This morning he denied everything and said he was "only kidding." But whether or not he is guilty of any crime he will not be released from gaol until Chief Thompson has secured proof that he has not done anything for which he should be punished by the law.

Alfred Kimberly is the man who gave himself up to the police yesterday. According to the story he told them, he comes from Kidderminster. About seven years ago he was passing along a road on his way home when a man came out of a laneway and asked him for a match. Then the stranger asked him to come up the [illegible] He did so and helped the man [illegible] station who said he had just "done a job," to throw the body of the woman he had murdered over the fence. The act had so preyed on his mind that he could not sleep either by day or by night, and at last he had decided to give himself up and tell the whole story, whether or not it meant imprisonment, or hanging.

While the police did not and do not credit this story as told, they have established facts from questioning other Englishmen in this city that make the case an exceedingly important one, and one that demands rigid investigation. They have learned that about seven years ago, about one and a half miles from Kidderminster, a woman was murdered one Saturday night, in a lane leading off a certain road. They have found out that at the time Kimberly worked three miles from Kidderminster, and in going home at night he would have to pass the lane where the woman was murdered. As the crime took place on a Saturday night it was, in their opinion, certain that in the usual course of events, Kimberly on his way home from work would pass the place where the woman was murdered.

Considering these facts the police suspect that Kimberly is more closely connected with the murder than he himself admitted yesterday. In the opinion of Chief Thompson no man who committed a murder would ask a stranger to lift the body over a hedge. So that in his opinion, if Kimberly is connected with the murder at all, it is not in the manner that he described to the police yesterday, but in a way that may result seriously for the prisoner.

In conversation with Mr. C. Robinson, a young Englishman, who lived on the same street as Kimberly in Worcestershire, England, The Examiner was informed this morning that at the time of the murder Kimberly did live in Kidderminster. In Mr. Robinson's mind the circumstances of the murder were still vivid, the murdered woman having been found in the lane the next morning. She had evidently been stabbed to death. Some time after the murder a man was arrested for the crime, and on him was found a note incriminating him. The note, however, he managed to get into his mouth, and destroyed to such an extent that the police were unable to prove the crime against him. He was therefore released.

Some of Kimberly's friends told the police that before the murder he was a sober young fellow, working as a plumber and painter with his father, but that he left Kidderminster right after the murder, and has been wandering all over Canada ever since.

Kimberly has just recovered from an operation for appendicitis in a local hospital, and the only motive his friends can think of for him inventing the story, if it is not true, is to secure leportation to England.

Kimberly came before Magistrate Dumble in Police Court this morning, charged with vagrancy, and was remanded for a week.

TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF FOR SAKE OF CHILDREN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Feb. 3.—"Well, our money's nearly all gone, and I thought there would be more for the children if I went," was the pitiful story of Mrs. George Vanvlack, aged 30, who took carbolic acid and is at the hospital, where death may ensue. She has a husband and several children.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

TUESDAY, FEB. 3, 1914

HAVE DONE GOOD.

While the proposal of the appointment of a police-woman for Peterborough is a question whose merits are debatable, there is no doubt of the beneficial results to come from the activities of the ladies behind the proposal. Their action has led to a ventilation and discussion of a very important subject in a way that has aroused public interest in conditions in a way that will lead to some improvement in the means of preventing and ameliorating these deplorable conditions. If the ladies cannot bring the hard-hearted men in authority to provide a police-woman, they have done this much; they have created a popular demand for larger or better distributed police service—an increase of the force or provision that part of the present force be detailed for service in the residence districts. It does not seem right that nine-tenths of the area of the city—and that part of the city where, in the season, more harm is done in a night than in the business districts in a year—should be without police protection and the business districts over protected. Then again the activities of the ladies are better employed in the effort to do real service to society, than in leading or joining in the thoughtless dance of pleasure and amusement that so engrosses society on all its levels. The police commissioners may not overwhelm these ladies with gallant attentions or embarrassing deference, but the ladies, nevertheless, deserve public gratitude for the work they have done in making the problem of protecting our young boys and girls a live question that will not down, unless, at least, some measure of improvement is forthcoming.

THE EXPLANATION.

Destitution and scant means, fireless hearths, breadless larders and hungry children are sad things; and we sometimes wonder why, in a land of plenty, there is so much of them. But there are explanations. A concrete instance will serve. A certain family in this city, in want, the husband out of work, were relieved; the Charity Board supplied a load of fuel and a charitable neighbour sent in a generous basket of provisions; from what he saw he believed that he was relieving real distress. He was naturally a little surprised to see the "destitute" man and his wife the next evening, entering a picture show, where the admission was ten cents each. That in itself, apart from economic considerations, was not bad; people naturally want some amusement. But the spending of money on amusements, that can, at a pinch, be done without, is certainly not wise, when bread, that cannot be done without for long, is wanting. The thirst for amusement no doubt largely accounted for the lack of bread. The proper use of income is one of the things that requires the greatest wisdom and judgment. From people whose calendar holds only the present, to whom there is no future, we cannot expect foresight or prudent expenditure of money. The one chief reason that prevents so many persons from making a wise use of money is the failure of training in youth that will give them a proper idea of the value of money and of its prudent expenditure. The children of such parents as those mentioned will grow up to follow in their parents' footsteps, and thus future generations will be charged with the responsibility of relieving distress which, though it is self created, is nevertheless distress, and must be relieved.

Our School Boards are slow to deal with the matter of the most important education of the young, the knowledge of the value of thrift, the value of small savings. Penny savings banks established in connection with the schools would have this tendency to a very great extent. This effect, with the general adoption and operation of such banks, would make the next generation, a generation of thrifty persons, and in time we should have a thrifty nation, such as the French, where the wealth of the nation is not concentrated in the hands of a few millionaires, but distributed generally throughout the country in the stockings of cottagers. A lesson of the value and national importance of such savings was furnished when the victorious Prussians levied a war indemnity of a thousand millions upon France. The country did not have to go to the foreign money lenders, but the whole of the loan to pay off this immense indemnity was subscribed by the people of France, from their savings. He that runs may read. Canada with its boundless acres of fertile soil with its unlimited resources, is a poor country still, if the people at large are not equipped with habits of thrift, of prudent expenditure of income, and have not ingrained in them a sense of the folly of living only for the present. In the absence of thrifty habits, we shall have always starvation in the midst of plenty, or in the midst of what would be enough for modest living with proper management and expenditure of income in the days of health and employment. It is a noble thing to relieve actual distress; but it is folly not to try to provide the conditions that will prevent nine-tenths of the destitution and poverty that prevail amongst us.

WHAT LIBERALS DID.

"In office" says the News, "the Liberal party practised protection and pretended to be free traders." The Liberals in office relieved the people of about one-third of the overcharges the Conservative tariff allowed. They went out of office trying to provide more relief. They rid the people of trade obstruction as fast as the people would let them, and were defeated through trying to afford relief too fast.—Globe.

MILLIONS FOR FOOD.

The inidence of taxation upon food and the manner in which it weighs with special severity upon the wage-earning classes is easily apparent from an examination of the Customs returns for last year. For instance during the year ending last March, Canada imported from the United States foodstuffs to the value of $22,072,160, on which duties amounting to $4816,787.82 were collected. From Great Britain food-stuffs to the value of $5,358,568 were imported, and even with the British preferences the duties upon this amounted to $1,075,480.88. France supplied us with food to the value of $1,096,001, and before it could reach the tables of the Canadian consumers almost $100,000 had to be paid into the Dominion treasury. In fact Canada imported foodstuffs from nearly fifty countries during the year, and every morsel brought in had its cost to the Canadian consumer increased from twenty to thirty-five per cent. before he could eat it. Is it any wonder that he people of Canada, facing a hard winter, lack of employment, and money stringency are eager to buy their food in the cheapest market without any artificial inflation by tariff?—Brockville Recorder.

GOVERNMENT UNDER THUMB OF COMBINES

Canners' Combine, With Help of Manufacturers' Association, Dictates Borden Government Administration

Proofs of the ready heed which is given by the "Big Interests" government to the will of the combines and of the mergers continue to multiply. The latest evidence is found in the government's course in connection with the regulations prohibiting the export of sockeye salmon from British Columbia. These facts, brought out in the Commons a few days ago by J. H. Sinclair, the Liberal member for Guysboro, N.S., establish clearly that when the word was spoken by the British Columbia canners' combine and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Government refused to come to the aid of the fishermen against the monopoly of the packers, while at the same time the Minister of Fisheries, Hon. J. D. Hazen, had promised such action, and had actually declared in the Commons that the desired relief had been granted.

In the days of the former Conservative Government a regulation was passed prohibiting the export of sockeye salmon from British Columbia waters. The fishermen must sell their catch in British Columbia or not at all. Protests against the regulation were made on many occasions by the fishermen and by those who spoke for them. In the session of 1912 these protests were renewed by Conservative members from British Columbia. They condemned the regulation in strong terms. They declared that it operated against the fishermen and operated unfairly in the interests of the canners who were now united in one large association.

Hon. Mr. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, joined in the discussion He denounced the regulation in vigorous sentences. He expressed surprise that it could be in force. And then, amid the cheers of his supporters, he made this announcement: "On Saturday last I had that regulation repealed.'

What happened? A day or so after Mr. Hazen announced that the regulation had been repealed, a telegram came to him from Mr. D. W. Burdis, secretary of the British Columbia Salmon Canners' Association. In that telegram the Association entered "their earnest protest against the removal of the restriction." Within a few days another telegram of protest was forwarded by the canners, this one to Premier Borden, and the Government was urged to take no action until a deputation of canners could interview the Ministers. Lest these protests should not serve their purpose the aid of the Manufacturers' Association was called in by the combine and a telegram urging the retention of the regulation pending a thorough investigation of experts was sent to Mr. Hazen by the Advisory Committee of the manufacturers' organization.

This was sufficient for the Government. The regulation was retained in force. It is in force to-day.

The regulation had been denounced by supporters of the government as unfair and unjust, as a restriction which placed the British Columbia fishermen at the mercy of a combine to which they must sell at whatever prices the combine was graciously pleased to pay or else must throw their fish back into the water or upon the short to rot. The regulation had been denounced by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries himself and its repeal announced.

But when the combine spoke the government listened. The combine said that the regulation must not be repealed. The Manufacturers' Association said that the regulation must not be repealed. They spoke and the Government obeyed. The will of the combine was law to the Ministers.

So it has been since Mr. Borden took office; so it will be until his Government is replaced by one which puts the interests of the people first.

WHY SOME OF THE UNEMPLOYED REMAIN IDLE

The story which appeared in yesterday's issue of the Examiner, concerning a local contractor who, it is alleged, experienced difficulty in securing enough workmen, has aroused the ire of a number of workingmen, who claim that it is practically impossible to secure work of any kind. The story, which was given to a representative of the Examiner by one who was engaged in the construction of the building, alleges that out of twelve men employed by the contractors, only two turned up, and that those who accepted the position, refused to extend thir labours over a nine-hour period, instead of eight.

Several men informed the Examiner this morning that there were several hundred workingmen in Peterborough who would only be too ready and willing to accept employment of any kind. They laim that the labour market is overstocked and that work has almost resolved itself into a negligible quantity. They resent the action of some one in perpetuating a story which investigation proves to be incorrect.

Mr. James Gates, who headed a deputation of about twnty men, stated that a movement is on foot to form a "Workingman's Club," then, said Mr. Gates, "we will make the employers of labour come to us."

A spokesman of a subsequent deputation expressed similar views, regarding the formation of an organization designed to better the conditions of its members. "We will have them eating out of our hand before long" said another, whose reference was obviously directed at the employers of labour.

One purpose the article might have served is to reveal conditions in their true light. It has been clearly shown that there are several hundred men out of work at the present time, due largely to the condition of the industrial interests, who, like contractors and other employers of labour, are not in a position to provide work which is so essential and necessary to the welfare of the men and the community in which they live.

THIS NEW MEDICINE SAVES YOU MONEY

We are druggists right here in your town and make a living out of the drug business, but it is because people have to have drugs and not because we like to see people suffer—we don't. Our duty is to render the best service we can, and when someone is ailing, we are interested in seeing them take the best medicine there is for their particular trouble. We don't recommend "cure-alls," as we don't believe there are such things. We don't want you to spend more than you have to. Some of you get small wages, and when you're sick, none at all, and you should get the most you can for your money.

We recently came across a new remedy for increasing strength and building up people who are run-down and emaciated. We know that a slight trouble sometimes grows into a serious one, and to stop it in the beginning, will save you money in the end. This new compound is called Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is the best remedy, when you are run-down, tired out, nervous—no matter what the cause. It doesn't merely stimulate you and make you feel good for a few hours, but takes hold of the weakness and builds you up to a healthy, normal condition. It is a real nerve-food tonic and builder of good blood, strong muscle, good digestion. It contains Hypophosphites, which tone the nerves, and pure Olive Oil, which nourishes the nerves, the blood and the entire system. Pleasant to take. Contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. We promise that if you are not perfectly satisfied with it, we'll give back your money as soon as you tell us. Sold only at the 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00.

—McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, Peterborough, Ont.

The remarkable speed with which some birds can fly was illustrated recently in France, when an express train travelling from Nice was beaten by twelve minutes by an eagle which raced it over a distance of eighteen miles.

MADE BIG BEQUESTS

Strathcona Left $1,000,000 to Royal Victoria College

BULK GOES TO DAUGHTER

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable)—The following legacies by Lord Strathcona were made public yesterday.

One million dollars to the Royal Victoria College, Montreal, after the deduction of any payment in his life time and in addition to college buildings and sites provided by him.

Five hundred thousand dollars each to the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, and Yale University.

One hundred thousand dollars to Queen's University, Kingston, extension fund.

Sixty thousand dollars, Presbyterian College at Montreal.

Fifty thousand dollars, St. John's College, Cambridge, in addition to $50,000 given in his life-time.

Fifty thousand dollars, Leanchoil Hospital, Forres.

Fifty thousand dollars, Church of Scotland reform ministers' fund.

Twenty-five thousands dollars to Aberdeen University for the chair of agriculture.

Ten thousand dollars each to Strathcona Home for Incurables, London University College and Middlesex Hospital.

Lord Strathcona settled his Scottish estates and $2,500,000 in cash on the heirs succeeding to his titles, the first of whom is his daughter, to whom he also leaves the residue of his property.

The trustees of the will are Lord Strathcona's daughter, now Lady Strathcona; John W. Sterling of New York, and William Garson and James Garson of Edinburgh, Scotland.

TEACHERS ON STRIKE.

Pupils In Hertfordshire Take a Hand In the Affair.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Lively scenes marked the first day of the strike of elementary school teachers in the County of Hereford, Eng., the first of its kind in the British Isles.

Seventy schools are closed and at the other schools the children resented the appearance of new teachers and made demonstrations in sympathy with those who have resigned. When the school at Ross, the largest in the county, should have opened, the boys paraded the town, singing songs and cheering.

Towards 10 o'clock they were induced to enter the school. Immediately there was pandemonium. Inkpots were thrown about and desks overturned. Finally the boys broke out of the building and marched again through the town, the demonstration still proceeding last night, with the apparent approval of the townsfolk.

JUST ONE MORE WOMAN RISES

To Tell Her Sisters They Can Find Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. John Cabot, After Six Years' Suffering, tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and Found New Life and Energy.

White Head Perce, Que., Feb. 2.—(Special)—One more woman has risen to tell her suffering sisters they can find relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. That woman is Mrs. John Cabot, well known and highly respected here and she expresses her enthusiasm in these words: "I certainly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills. There is nothing better."

Asked to give her experience, Mrs. Cabot continued: "My trouble started in a cold, and I suffered for six years. Rheumatism, neuralgia, stiffness of the joints, cramps in the muscles and heart flutterings were among my symptoms, and finally Bright's Disease developed. It was then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and they helped me almost from the start. After taking four boxes I fell like a new woman."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Healthy kidneys strain all the impurities and poisons—all the seeds of disease—out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills not only cure the disease but by ensuring good blood give new life and energy to every part of the body.

MINIMUM WAGE FOR WOMEN WORKERS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 2.— Acting in the belief that a self-respecting woman cannot live in comfort on less than $40 a month or work to her full efficiency if employed more than 51 hours a week, the Industrial Welfare Commission to-day put into effect a ruling establishing the minimum wage and hours for women office workers in this city. Two thousand women are affected by the ruling, the list of employments including stenographers, bookkeepers, office clerks and cashiers in stores, moving picture theatres and other establishments.

TO TRY WOMAN FOR KILLING HUSBAND

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW LONDON, Mo., Feb. 3.— Preparations are being made for the trial here this month of Mrs. Mary England, who is under indictment on charge of murdering her husband, Harry England. The case was brought here on a change of venue from Hannibal. It is said that the womans plea will be self-defence.

NOT ROBT. IRWIN OF 148 PARK STREET

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Editor,—As the person mentioned in last night's paper bears the same name as myself, I wish to inform your readers that it is not Robert Irwin, Scotchman, of 148 Park street, known in some social clubs of the city, who has been in trouble. Hoping this will satisfy annoying questioners, I am,

Yours,
Robert Irwin.

BOTHA'S ACTION IS UPHELD

South African House Gives Indemnifying Bill First Reading.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 3.—The bill to indemnify the Government for all its acts under martial law, and prohibiting the return of the strike leaders recently deported from South Africa, was introduced in h assembly yesterday by Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, Minister of Defence, and passed its first reading. Prior to this a Labor amendment proposed by Frederic Creswell, the acceptance of which would have been equivalent to a vote of censure, was defeated, the Laborites alone supporting it.

The Unionists voted with the Ministerialists in all the divisions. Their spokesman, Sir Thomas Smartt, defined their attitude as "one of suspension of judgment until all the facts are before the House."

Gen. Smuts promised a full explanation of the Government's action when the bill will come up for second reading to-merrow.

Gladstone Not Responsible.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Rt. Hon. H. L. Samuel, Postmaster-General, speaking at Harrogate last night, made reference to the depertation from South Africa of the strike leaders. He declared that no responsibility for this act attached to Viscount Gladstone, the Governor-General, because under the constitution of South Africa his assent was not required and was not asked.

LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

Asquith, Redmond, and Birrell Discussing Home Rule.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, and Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, were closeted with Premier Asquith at his official residence in Downing street yesterday afternoon, and it was understood that the Government had determined to make another effort to conciliate Ulster before the heated debates in Parliament fan into flame the admittedly dangerous situation in the northern province of Ireland.

It is generally thought that Mr. Redmond holds the key to the position, and it is pointed out in some quarters that if he is willing to go to the same lengths as Premier Asquith and the members of his Cabinet are ready to advance in order to place the north of Ireland, the threats of civil war in that country can be averted.

NEW SPECIES OF TROUT

For some years several very interesting specimens of trout have been taken in the lakes that are found in the boundaries of Algonquin Provincial (Ontario) Park, situated in the "Highlands of Ontario," 200 miles north of Toronto, 170 miles west of Ottawa and 280 miles west of Montreal.

During the year 1913 specimens were brought in from Delano Lake, within a few miles of the "Highland Inn," situated at Algonquin Park station on the line of the Grand Trunk Railway. These specimens resembled both the salmon and the speckled trout, so much so that the Superintendent of the Park sent one of the specimens to Professor Prince of the Fisheries Department, Ottawa, who is probably the best authority on Fish Culture in America. Professor Prince's report on this specimen is a most interesting one to anglers and reads as follows:

"The specimen of peculiar trout have been carefully examined and it really appears to be a hybrid, namely, the Brook Trout and the Grey Trout (or Lake Trout). The dental features and the nature of the vomer, as well as the peculiar colour and the shape of the tail, all indicate a combination of the two species, which as is well known, are now separated further than they used to be. The Brook Trout and the Lake Trout were at one time included under the same one time included under the name Genus Salvelinus, but they appear to be now separated into two Genera, the Grey Trout being put into the Genus Christivomer. A hybrid specially connected with two separate Genera is a remarkable and exceedingly interesting occurence. I am most interested in this specimen and intend to look into the question further as the nature of the egg and the features of hybridisation are so remarkable scientifically that it is worth while trying some experimental work to see if the hybrids can be produced artificially."

A WOMAN NEVER LOOKS BETTER THAN HER HAIR

HERPICIDE

Thousands of women owe their youthful appearance to Newbro's Herpicide. No matter what may be her age, a woman with a nice head of hair, hair that is soft, glossy and fluffy, always looks younger than she is.

Chafing Dishes.

Chafing dishes, perhaps more favoured for little supper parties than other occasions nowadays, have developed from their exclusive utilitarian purpose, along with other culinary utensils, to one of artistic novelty and interest as well. The chafing dish particularly referred to has a clay casserole, with long handle, and a cover, support and lamp of hammered copper. The designer's imagination stretched only a little from the appetizing "rarebit" to "rabbits" for the original decoration. The accompanying hot water boiler is of shimmering copper.

Will Be Warm Debate Upon Bickerdike's Bill

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Robert Bickerdike, M.P., of Montreal, in securing evidence to support his bill to abolish capital punishment in Canada, has ascertained at least fifty instances of men hanged in England, and afterwards found innocent. One of his own ancestors was hanged, drawn and quartered at York because he wouldn't turn Protestant. It is expected that the Bickerdike bill will provoke much discussion, as there are many strong debaters on both sides of the question.

WILL TARIFF REDUCTION HELP?

Editor Examiner:

In last evening's issue of your paper you state that there is in Ottawa a rumour to the effect that the government has in view a reduction of the duties on agricultural implements, and that the Opposition seeks either the abolition of, or a very considerable decrease in, the duties on agricultural implements.

I shall be pleased if you will explain how this will benefit the farmer, etc.

Yours respectfully,
A Workingman.

Feb. 2, 1914.

Note.—If, as is asserted, the exporting Canadian manufacturers of agricultural implements sell machinery made in Canada, at lower prices to the farmers of foreign countries than the Canadian farmer is compelled to pay; and if this power to make the Canadian farmers pay higher prices than foreigners have to pay, is due to the tariff, which prevents competition, would not the reduction or removal of duty, result in cheaper agricultural implements? A combine to raise prices cannot long or effectively exist, when there is effective competition.

Murphy Is Asked To Give Up Leadership

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 3.—Amid riotous scenes the National Democratic Club, in the early hours of this morning, adopted a resolution demanding the retirement of Charles F. Murphy, Chief of Tammany Hall, from the leadership of the Democratic party in New York.

Bad Fire In Lodging House

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ST JOHN, N.B., Feb 3.—Four men are missing and may have lost their lives; twenty were carried out unconscious, and several firemen and police sustained minor injuries this morning when fire attacked the seven storey Salvation Army lodging house, when seventy men were in there asleep. There was a great panic in escaping. In some quarters incendiaries are blamed. The building was partially destroyed.

ENTHUSES AND DELIGHTS

The publisher of The Endeavour Herald says of Rev. Dr. Speer: Stalwart in form, with a voice strong and flexible; possessing a splendid platform presence, rich in intellect, fluent in speech, with dramatic powers of a high order; full of Celtic fire and vigour; a great word painter; a lover of wit and humour; his subject and himself always under perfect control. He never fails to enthuse and delight his hearers.

Rev. Dr. Speer will give one of his best lectures, "Songs and Singers," in the George Street Methodist Church on Monday night next. Tickets, 25 cents.

WHEN YOU'RE SICK YOUR WAGES STOP

You know what that means—misery—worry—big bills—debt!

You know you can't afford to get sick. Keeping in good health means food and clothing for you and your family. It is up to you to take care of yourself. It is up to you, whenever you don't feel right, to take something to make you right, to strengthen you, build you up, ward off worse sickness—protect you and your family. That thing we have in Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. In offering it to you, we protect you against money-risk, by personally promising you that, if it does not restore your health, we will give back your money without word or question. We believe it is the best builder of health, energy and strength you can get. It is helping many of your neighbors. If it don't help you, we will give back your money.

Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is composed principally of pure Olive Oil and the Hypophosphites. Each has long been endorsed by successful physicians. Here they are for the first time combined. The result is a remarkable nerve, blood and strength-building remedy that is both food and medicine. For all who are nervous, run-down and debilitated—no matter what the cause; for old people; for convalescents; for puny children, we know of nothing that will give health and strength as quickly as Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. It is a real builder of good blood, strong muscles, good digestion. Pleasant to take, it contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs. If you don't feel well, economize both money and strength by beginning today to take Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion. Sold only at the Rexall Stores, and in this town only by us. $1.00. —McDermid & Jury, E. L. Payne, Peterborough, Ont.

"Stand Pat" Is Mayor's Warning To The Council

The question of increase to civic employees was brought to the attention of the City Council last night when Alderman Gordon moved that Dr. McPherson and Sanitary Inspector Spence receive a salary increase of $200 each. Their respective salaries at present are $800 and $700.

Alderman Gordon said he felt that Dr. McPherson's work should receive a larger remuneration that it does. Mr. Spence is competent, he said, and faithful to his duties, and to his employers.

Alderman Langford said that when any of the civic employees do anything there has always got to be an increase in their salaries. Our object should be to keep salaries where they are or decrease them if we can.

Alderman Duncan said this matter had been before the Property Committee and no action was taken until it was known whether the city would extend the garbage collection system.

Alderman Gordon agreed to let the matter stand until some decision in this respect was reached.

Alderman Duncan mentioned the fact that Mr. F. W. Miller had applied for an increase in salary. He understood that Mr. Harry Evans, who is receiving $1,000 a year would apply for an increase. Alderman Duncan did not think that Mr. Evans was receiving enough for his services.

Mayor Buller — If the aldermen want to keep the rate at 25 mills they have to stand pat. There is a list on increases from every department. The Police Force, the Fire Department, and pretty nearly every official that you can lay your hnds on is looking for an increase. I do not say they should not be paid a fair wage, but I think that more attention should be given the working man and his wages.

Alderman Gordon—Well, pay the working man a fair wage. That does not apply to this matter.

Alderman Johnston—We want to go slow this year. The trunk sewer is an absolute necessity.

Alderman Anderson—I might favour an increase to Mr. Spence. I feel that he has done a great deal of work and has made a great improvement in the sanitary conditions of the city and for a small salary. Dr. McPherson received an increase two years ago. We must not begin now making increases all along the line. The increase in assessment gives us a spending increase of $16,000.

Alderman Gordon said that Chief Thompson was now using one of his men as a morality officer. He referred to the moral conditions of the city to which extensive reference has recently been made, and stated that there was no provision for girls who should be sent to some institution in their trouble. Four or five cases had been brought to his attention, and he did not deem it advisable that they should be left in their own homes. These girls are not church-goers.

Alderman Green—That's where the trouble is.

Alderman Gordon—And they cannot get a recommendation for the homes now existing. I think the city could afford to make an appointment which I understand will be augmented by personal subscriptions. Three hundred dollars could be apportioned under the control of the Mayor and Alderman Anderson to be expended as they see fit in cases where charitable assistance requires it.

Mayor Buller said he regarded it as a charitable work and something should be done.

Alderman Duffus looked upon it as a precedent and asked for more information regarding the proposal.

Alderman Johnston suggested that it be left in abeyance for the time being.

MANY WOMEN VOTERS HAVE REGISTERED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 3.—At noon today 50,000 women had registered under the recent suffragette act of Chicago, and it was estimated that before night and closing time there would be 125,000 on the rolls. This is thought to be the largest woman's voting registration in the history of the world.

Deputy Is Released On $3,000 Bail

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WELLAND, Feb. 3.—E. C. Coulburst of Bridgeburg, Deputy, under arrest for the alleged making of false returns re the Canada Temperance Act voting, was released this morning on $3,000 bail, furnished by Reeve Louis Douglas and Harry Hawkins, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, Bridgeburg. Temperance leaders of the County meet this afternoon to decide on the future action. The election will certainly be protested before the County Judge.

OTONABEE TELEPHONE COMPANY

The Municipality of Otonabee is making great progress with its telephone system. In The Weekly Examiner the township is advertizing for 2,000 telephone poles. Already one hundred and twenty-five subscribers have been secured, and the canvass is not yet completed. The township hopes to get its poles locally as far as possible.

MEMBERS OF SCHOOL BOARD EXPLAIN THE INCREASE IN DEMAND

Dr. Morrison, Mr. V. Eastwood, and Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., composed a delegation from the Board of Education to the City Council last night. Mr. Eastwood stated that the purpose of their visit was to explain the reasons for the increase of $8,200 in their requirements for the year.

The Board felt that many ratepayers may enquire of members of the Council the cause of this increase and it was due the Aldermen and Mayor that should be in possession of the facts in order to reply to such questions. The staffs of the new schools, the upkeep of the buildings, the appointment of a trained nurse for medical attention to the Public School children, and other items are reasons for the increase. The details of the remarks will be published tomorrow.

WHITNEY MAY GO HOME IN TWO WEEKS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, FEB. 3.—It is expected that Sir James Whitney will within two weeks be well enough to be removed from the Hospital to his home. On the other hand Sir George Ross is considered today to be showing no improvement.

THE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY ASK FOR A GRANT OF $1000

A deputation from the Horticultural Society asked the Council last night for the usual grant, adding that it be made $1,000 this year. The allowance for 1913 was $900. Mr. Harry Beal outlined the work that would be attempted during the coming year, and Mr. H. B. Cowan stated that other cities spend more money on their parks than Peterborough. Galt expends $8 to every $1 spent by this city. The association is planning a system of civic driveways passing through all the wards and linking up the various parks. This is just an advance notice of what is being planned. It is proposed to adopt some phrase such as "Picturesque Peterborough" and the plans will aim to strengthen the application of the name.

Alderman Anderson—The grant last year was a considerable increase over the year before.

Moved by Alderman Gordon, seconded by Alderman Johnston, that them atter be referred to the Finance Committee and that the Association submit their plans.

GEORGE LYNCH

Singing "Oh How She Dances," with Belmont Club Big Cabaret Minstrels.

When the curtain raises on the big production, the audience will witness the prettiest stage picture ever seen upon the local stage, the big cabaret setting will be a novelty in this part of the entertainment, catchy dancing numbers will be introduced, lively coon songs, pretty ballad, and one of the largest singing choruses ever seen in the city.

In this portion of the show, George Lynch will make his appearance in his up-to-the-minute faker side show number, this song was almost written for George. He will be a surprise to his many friends, who will see him in this number, owing to the fact that he is doing something different than he has ever been seen in before. The show this season can be described as a prancing, dancing concoction of mirth and music. The advance sale opens for ticket holders a day before the regular sale, so get your tickets and secure good seats. Don't forget the dates, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 11-12th.

The February Mark Down Sale Brings Its Annual List of Greater Values.

The Items Below Being Instances of Seasonable Goods All Over The Store That Bear Prices Specially Marked Down.

Women's and Misses' Coats $6.95

The price can certainly not be accepted as a measure of the value in this instance, for many of these Coats were formerly more than twice the figure that they are now selling for.

While it must also be noted, that they are cut in the newest of styles, with smart cutaway fronts, belt effects, convertible collars, etc., and offer rare bargains to Misses and Women who need a Coat just now.

February Mark Down Sale $6.95.

DEBATER TALKS OF THE REAL ESTATE BUSINESS

Peterborough, Ont., Jan. 31, 1914.
To the Editor, The Examiner:

My Dear Sir,—Please see page 14 of to-day's Examiner. The letter by Mr. W. C. Austin seems worthy of a reply.

Since what date has the real estate and insurance agency business been considered a "profession?" Does its general reputation and the standing of some of the numerous failures in other classes of business that flock to this business entitle it to be other than under suspicion?

As an occasional debater on questions of the day I have noticed that it is absolutely impossible to discuss any question of business, no matter what the business was without having the debater called a "pin head" or a "small man," if he so much as suggested that the men conducting the business could possibly conduct it on lines that would be more beneficial to the people.

Now then I believe that the real estate business, as it is at present conducted in Peterborough, is by no means carried on to the benefit of the city or even to those conducting the business. If any real estate man cares to debate this question, he may be accommodated and by men whose standing is at least equal to his own.

I will cite a few reasons for thinking that possibly real estate could be sold to better advantage than it is now in Peterborough. I mean by this to the advantage both of the buyer and vendor.

Real estate and insurance agents, for instance, could stop cultivating personal friends and then trying to sell them insurance and real estate. They use these friendships for the purpose of getting a chance to call on you in the evening at home. This is going on constantly and I know of few other respectable businesses that use this method to any great extent. One of these "friends" will come to you and try to sell a lot on the installment plan. He uses what he leads you to think is a deed, this deed is nothing more that a lease, it puts you in the position of being liable to lose all you have paid if you so much as miss a single payment by a day. The agent will tell you that this is simply to kill off crooked customers. Where the agent could lose by taking payments on account, the same as any reputable merchant will do with a customer unable to pay all his account at once, is a mystery to the writer. Far be it from me to insinuate that there is anyone who would take advantage of such a clause to deprive a man of his share in the land, but the admittedly fraudulent statements used to sell some lands in the West, lead one to think there might be some chance in a billion at least that there might be a tricky real estate man who might take advantage of such clauses in their so-called contracts. I may be mistaken in my reading of these contracts, but having had a fairly good business law as well as a general education some one with a clearer mind than I have will have to convince me that it is to the advantage of the average workman to purchase land on contracts (leases) such as I have outlined above. If my idea on this subject is not correct I hope that some one will show me their incorrectness. I want to buy a few acres of land in Peterborough and came here with the intention of settling down and living in this city, I think it is one of the best small cities, if not the best in North America, I come from the United States, and have seen most of the cities in that country and Canada as well, and Peterborough in spite of its numerous imperfections, seems to me about as good a city to stay in as any, better by far than most other cities.

Real estate speculation has, however, made it impossible for me to obtain a home here. The prices asked are such as any man with "real money" is handicapped by fictitious values based on what I call lease sales. Land has been laid out into lots so far from the centre of the city that there would have to be a much greater population than anyone can ever anticipate will be here, that where a man ought to be able to buy, say, 2 or 3 acres for $1,200 at the most, he finds it laid off into small lots at the rate of $1,200 for one acre. Of course a lump sale of this land would be made for much less, but how with the inflated values is a stranger wishing to settle here to know whether or not he is paying the real value of what he is buying. The people prevented from buying are those with real money.

Another thing about the life insurance business, I read a report of the business of one large company, it was stated that a large proportion of their policies (70 per cent.) were never completed, that is if I understand aright they were lapsed for non-payments. Does this not show that either life insurance is not so valuable as the agent thinks, or that the price is higher than the insurance is worth, or greater than the ordinary man can afford to pay? Does the agent ever explain the exact foundation of life insurance, which is, simply the laws of chances or probability of all gambling games, legitimate or illegitimate, and that a man can carry his own insurance far cheaper than any insurance company? Is it not a fact that laws have been passed to compell agents to cut out certain arguments, guaranteeing dividends for instance, and in the United States from splitting their commission with customers, allowing some shrewd men to carry insurance for nothing? Are there not numerous insurance companies, fire and life, carrying on business in Canada in such a way that a contract cannot be enforced against them in the Canadian courts?

While the real estate and insurance business is as legitimate as any, is the general standing of this business such that it is considered a very great honour to be an insurance or real estate agent. It is at least as fair a subject for debate as any.

I think myself that real estate speculation has done more to harm Canada in the past few years than all the gambling games that could be played in the next ten years. I have heard some good men lay the present dull business in Canada more to land speculation than anything else.

I have tried to make a fair statement of why I consider that famous debate a legitimate one as any debate can be. I am judging from what I read as I did not hear the debate.

Yours,
"Debater."

Council Talked Until Midnight

Four Hour Stretch Tucked Away Last Night at the Regular February Meeting — Finance Committee's Report.

THE COMMUNICATIONS

Gone were all the guests and two of the members when the City Council adjourned the first Marathon meeting of the year at a few minutes to 12 o'clock last night. Three deputations were responsible for all but twenty minutes of the first two hours after eight o'clock. Committee reports, by-laws and a desultory discussion of various items ate into the remaining time until every member was willing to join the amen chorus. When 11 o'clock approached, the time was extended by periods of fifteen minutes, until it appeared as if the nightwatch would have to eject the City Fathers and send them home to their beds. Ald. Duncan and Ald Green departed to catch the midnight train, and a quarter of an hour later the other members were satisfied with the length of one night's records for the Clerk's big book.

The humble ratepayer in his little home had probably reached the snoring stage in his slumbers, content in the feeling that those whom he had honoured with his vote and support were paying the price. If he saw visions of the aldermen fighting against the enemy of higher taxes, his dream was vestured with reality, for with the accepted necessity of retrenchment as the writing on the wall, the tugs at the strings of the civic wallet were no mere nibbles. However, there is nothing material to be alarmed as—yet. Requests and intimations concerning new expenditures were guardedly handled. They were temporarily consigned to the shelf, or rather, placed carefully in the incubator of careful consideration. And it is a mighty good hatcher that returns a chick for every egg.

All the Aldermen were present, with Mayor Butler in the chair. The communications were dealt with as follows:

Suffragism Here.

Margaret Gordon, M.D., Toronto, "chairman" of the Municipal Franchise Referendum Committee, wrote asking that the Council pass a resolution stating their belief that the existing Municipal Franchise Act be enlarged so as to include the married women taxpayers.—Legal Committee.

Ozias de Laplante notified the Council that in behalf of the Peterborough Hardware Co. he would bring an action for damages caused by water flooding the cellar of the store on the 27th and 28th inst., and damaging a large quantity of their goods. The amount of the damage is not yet ascertained.

This communication was not in connection with the recent fire test staged on George Street.—Legal Committee.

Band Wants $200 Increase.

R. Shelton, Secretary-Treasurer of the 57th Regimental Band wrote asking that the City's annual grant be raised from $500 to $700. Two or three new instruments have to be purchased. Other cities are more generous than Peterborough: Woodstock pays $600, St. Catharines $800, and Berlin $1000 to their bands.—Financial Committee.

Mr Miller's Request

Mr. F. W. Miller wrote as follows: I beg to apply for an increase in salary. I would call the attention of your honourable body to the extra work that I have been asked to do by the Chairman of the Finance Committee in the special investigations of hospital cases during 1913. I have investigated 108 cases. I think I should receive some remuneration for this extra work.—Finance Committee.

Applies for Position.

Vernon R. de Boissiere who, during his holidays has been employed with Dr. Johnston, wrote that he is pursuing a course in Bacteriology and Dairy and Milk inspections, in Toronto University and applied for the position of Dairy and Milk Inspector in Peterborough. — Property Committee.

Expresses Appreciation.

Dr. C. Hewitt Amys wrote the Council expressing his appreciation of the confidence placed in him by selecting him as a member of the Board of Health for the City.—Received.

Finance Report.

The report of the Finance Committee was adopted as follows:

That the City Engineer be instructed in making the assessment for the local Improvement Works of last year to calculate the interest on the debentures at five per cent. and the sinking fund on the four per cent. basis.

That a grant of $50 be made to the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto.

That one copy of the Municipal World be ordered and that the check be issued for the subscription price.

That the amount of the demand of the Board of Education for this year be paid in monthly instalments as requested by the Board.

That the Clerk write to the National Sanatorium Association in reply to their notice that patients from this City will be charged for in the Free Hospital for Consumptives, that their stamps were sold here and that their Association was being aided from Peterborough.

That a request from R. Sheehy for a refund of $12.53 taxes paid by him on the lots purchased by the City be granted and a cheque for that sum be issued to him.

HONOUR VETERAN THEATRICAL MANAGER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 3.—Despite his protests that February 3 was not the anniversary of his birth and that he was still several years in the sunny side of three-score-and-ten. Will J. Davis, the veteran theatrical manager, was showered with congratulations today and tendered a dinner by his friends in honoud of his "seventieth birthday." Mr. Davis is a native of Michigan, and has been prominent in theatrical circles since 1887. He has controlled a number of leading theatres in Chicago and New York and was one of the owners of the Iroquois Theatre in this city when it was burned during a matinee performance and more than 60 lives lost.

BIG CUT IN EXPRESS RATES

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 3.— In accordance with the recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission lower express rates were put into effect to-day throughout the country. The experts of the commission estimate that the reduction in charges averages about seventeen per cent. The commission's order for reduced charges also requires the various express companies to comply with some new regulations for improved methods of service.

NEW YORK'S CHARITY BALL

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—In the name of charity society will don its prettiest frocks and dance to its merriest tunes next Thursday evening at the Waldorf-Astoria. With the comfortable assurance tucked away down in the heart that a worthy need is to be performed in a manner infinitely agreeable to the dispenser of charity, the average society person will start ut for the ball in a heavenly frame of mind and complete satisfaction with himself and his neighbour, which in itself is a sure guarantee of the pleasant evening which invariably is experienced on these occasions.

For upwards of half a century the Charity Ball has been one of the leadthe features of New York's social season. During the whole of this long perid the proceeds of the entertainment have been devoted to the needs of the Nursery and Child's Hospital, one of the oldest charitable organizations in New York. The ball this year promises to be as brilliant as any of its predecessors. It is hoped that the President's wife and daughters will come on from Washington, and there will be present officers from Governors Island and the navy yard, who with their uniforms always add to the brilliancy of the occasion.

BROTHERS FACE TRIAL FOR MURDER

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Brothers Face Trial For Murder.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 3.—The most important case to come up at the term of court which convened here to-day is that of Antonio and Frank Viola, who are under indictment for the murder of Philip La Rosa at Nay Aug on December 14 last. Antonio Viola confessed to having killed La Rosa when he was arrested in New York shortly after the crime. It is said that in his confession he implicated his brother, Frank Viola, but the latter maintains that he knows nothing of the crime.

Meeting of Custom Cutters.

WASHINGTN, D.C., Feb. 3.—Delegates and visitors from many cities of the United States and Canada are arriving in Washington to attend the annaul convention of the International Association of Custom Cutters. The convention sessions will begin to-morrow and continue until Saturday.

OBSERVE FEAST OF CANDLEMAS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.— "Candlemas Day" was observed with special services yesterday in all the Catholic churches of New York. This ecclesiastical festival was instituted by Ppoe Getasius I in the year 492 in commemoration of the presentation of Christ in the temple and of the purification of the Virgin Mary. The festival is celebrated throughout the Christian world annually on February 2, and derives its name frm the fact that in the Roman churches candles are blessed on this day and carried in procession in commemoration of the words of Simeon spoken of the infant Christ, "A Light to Lighten the Gentiles."

THREE LEADERS WON IN MERCANTILE LEAGUE STANDING IS UNCHANGED

The Tool Room defeated the Plumbers in the opening game last night by 4 goals to 1, leading at the half by 2 to 1. The Plumbers made it interesting in the early stages, but were driven back in the second period, when the Garnet and Grey team outplayed and outskated them. It was an interesting engagement all the way with the checking hard and close. The Tool Room were the first to score, Barrie scooping one past Dunsford after a combination rush. Reynolds evened up the count on one of his cyclone rushes. His first shot went wide, but he followed in and, bringing the rubber round from behind, bounced a goal off Cassidy's pads. The Tool Room took the lead a moment after by banging one through from a scrimmage. In the second half, Barrie and Primeau scored for the Tool Room, while the Plumbers failed to find the nets.

Barrie, Primeau and Jackson were the Tool Room stars, while Reynolds was the pick of the Plumbers. The teams lined up as follows:

Tool Room		Plumbers
Cassidy	Goal	Dunford
Kelly	Right defence	Reynolds
Hillier	Left defence	Millette
Robinson	Rover	Logan
Barrie	Centre	Helson
Primeau	Right Wing	Clarke
Jackson	Left Wing	Grange

In the second game the Examiners and Bankers met in a lively clash that finally resulted in a victory for the latter, who, after a hard fight, managed to blank the Garnet and White brigade 4 to 0.

But the money men were contested every minute of the game in which the winners were inclined to rough it not a little. Twice Minorgan was benched for scrapping, and other members of both teams seemed more than ready to mix things whenever they were given a chance. The first half was, after the first couple of minutes, an even break. But the Examiner seven were slow and wide in shooting and before the rest the score stood 1 to 0, in favour of the Bankers.

In the second half the net guardian for the losers stopped some difficult shhots, but he was beaten by a long lift and an easy scoop that would have been easy picking for him in his usual form. As it was the Bankers, who had very little more than 50 per cent. of the play, and who shot with average economy, piled up three goals in the second half, leaving th score 4 to 0. For the winners Moore, Phelan and Minorgan got away with the fastest stuff. Leen, Heard and Manion did a good deal of effective work for the Examiner, and Barringer was there with his dangerous shot all the time. Len Dobson handled the game well.

The Examiner team is not so strong as it was last year. One of Manager Russell's best men of last year is, from purely private and personal reasons, not playing hockey this year. Added to which last night a strong man on the defence was away on the sick list, and their usual goal-keeper was absent. Take it all round the "Examiner boys" put up some very smart play.

The teams were:

Examiner		Bankers
Gorham	Goal	McCrimmon
Clancy	Right defence	Corkery
Heard	Left defence	Phelan
Manion	Rover	Paton
Armstrong	Centre	Minorgan
Barringer	Right Wing	Smith

Test Wan Again.

Playing hard, the De Laval seven went down to their third defeat of the season last night, when the Test Department aggregation from the C. G. E. trimmed them 8 to 1. The victory puts the winners at the head of the League. Although behind from the very outset, the dairy machine brigade were game till the last ring of the bell and the Test team had to fight for every goal they got. In the first half Spratt guarded the nets, and made a number of sensational stops, at the same time allowing a couple of easy ones to beat him. In the second half Huggins was in goal, and had an easier time of it, as with the help of Spratt, the De Laval seven managed in this half to annex their share of the play. The Test played their usual consistent game, but were a little slow in their combination. L. Dobson refereed. The teams were:

Test Room		De Laval
Dwyer	Goal	Spratt, Huggins
Brackenreed	Right defence	Ruiter
McKean	Left defence	Huggins, Spratt
McDougall	Rover	Fitzgerald
Carter	Centre	Todd
Boone	Right Wing	Hill
Munro	Left Wing	Byers

A Win For The Petes To-morrow Will Give Them The District

Another rapid-fire change in the situation in this group developed last night when the Cobourg team invaded Belleville and handed the Railroaders a 5 to 3 trimming. The result is that the Petes can win the district outright by beating Whitby to-morrow night, while at the worst they cannot get anything but a tie. In order that the group be tied up the Petes would have to lose to-morrow and Cobourg beat Belleville again and Oshawa, or else Belleville would have to beat Cobourg in Cobourg and Whitby in Whitby. T-morrow night's game at Whitby should decide the issue and it will be a hummer, well worth the journey to the Lakeshore town to see. A big crowd of fans will accompany the team on the special G.T.R. train which leaves at 5.45 to-morrow afternoon. A round trip fare of $1.50 has been secured with a 1.15 rate from Port Hope and 45c. from Bowmanville. A special car will be reserved for ladies and their escorts. Refreshments may be obtained on the train, and every effort will be made to make the trip one of the most enjoyable of the season.

The group standing follows:

	Won.	Lost.	To Play
Peterborough	7	2	1
Cobourg	5	3	2
Belleville	5	3	2
Oshawa	5	4	1
Whitby	4	3	2
Bowmanville	0	10	0

SECOND ROUND OF THE ENGLISH CUP TIES IS OVER

The second round of the English cup ties is over, the most conspicuous feature of the round being that the results contained only one tie game. No real surprises took place, though not many people bargained for Bradford City being defeated, even at Millwall, and the Dockers in making provision for the Yorkshiremen from the city of Bradford only demonstrated that they must have made a firm resolve to be a little consistent in this year's cup-tie warfare. In the Scottish league, however, some startling results occurred. Pride of place on the honour list easily goes to Ayr United, who defeated Hibernians on their own battleground. Aberdeen at Dumbarton, and Third Lanark at Motherwell being also extremely good performers on foreign soil. Airdrie, however, gave one a regular eye-opener on their own pitch where they entertained Morton, who have done great work this season in proving themselves to be one of the most improved sides in the Scottish tourney. Does the fact of Airdrieonians running up the lucky number seven portend anything in relation to the Scottish cup ties? It will be interesting to take particular note if it does.

The game between Manchester City and Tottenham Hotspurs at Hyde Rd. served as an apt illustration to demonstrate the fact that the Citzens have improved beyond recognition, their defeat of the Hotspurs from London signaling their sixth successive victory. With the exception of Hooward, the City management swept away the whole front rank, while the intermediate line has disappeared altogether. It was a drastic change, but results have justified its being done, and in that case one must give some credit to Mr. Magnall on account of his securing the necessary talent, and the repeating of last Saturday's league score against the same club in the cup round may be considered as a good type of consistency.

In the Mersey seaport, Liverpool got home comfortably against Gillingham, a Southern league aggregation, against whom it was thought the Anfield Road men would not make any mistake, so that in lieu of Everton's early disappearance the Liverpool public is still on good terms with itself.

Swindon Town, Southern league leaders and conquerors of Manchester United in the initial round, came a cropper at Burnden Park, Bolton. But in the light of past events, one is not at all surprised, because the men from the Great Western railway centre have proved themselves to be far from being invincible away from home, though in that respect they have done moderately well. But the Trotters are very fast goers, and at the present time possess a very finely balanced side. The Wanderers, however, cannot boast of much in the way of proud pedigree as pot hunters. On two occasions they have fought their way to the final round, the first appearence as such being in 1893-4, when Notts County beat them by 4 to 1. Ten years later they came again, when they were beaten by Manchester City and Billy Meredith's famous goal. W. M. was cartooned by Tom Brown, the celebrated artist, on the Great Central Railway posters advertising trips to the final, in the act of scoring a goal, which, strange to say, occurred just as the artist predicted. The company was asked to present Meredith with the original on account of the peculiar coincidence. So far as the writer is aware this never took place, but it was passing strange just the same.

Burnley at Turf Moor entertained and put an end to the aspirations of Derby County. Somehow or other I thought the East Lancashire men would rise to the occasion. The fight for supremacy, however, must have been a great and glorious struggle. Everybody knows that as at present constituted, Burnley are strong, robust and virile, and seeing as how they only got home by a close shave, this fact alone backs the Derby men up as being in every way worthy foemen and visitors. Had Derby have had choice of ground, there is the possibility things may have been different.

Blackburn Rovers did not exactly run away with Bury after all, though they may be said to have won comfortably. What a difference has prevailed at Blackburn of late years since the Directorate decided on paying big prices for men who they considered worth the expenditure. But some clubs have been doubly unfortunate even in their enterprise on a large scale in the same direction—Newcastle, to wit, being a glaring example. One must, however, give the Rovers a whole-hearted credit for what they have accomplished just the same. B

Scottish Saturday Next.

The second round of the Scottish Cup ties is due to be played on Saturday next. The following are the games: Queen's Park v. Arthurlee: St. Mirren v. Dundee; Nithsdale v. Partick; Broxburn United v. Dumfries; Clyde v. Celtic; East Stirling v. Dumbarton; Kirkcaldy v. Stevenson; Alloa Athletics v. Rangers; Leith v. Motherwell; Raith Rovers v. Hearts; Forres v. Peebles R.; Aberdeen v. Albion Rovers; Airdrieonians v. Dundee Hibs.; Kilmarnock v. Hamilton A.; Morton v. Hibernians.

Correct Score.

The correct score in the Glossop-Preston game Saturday was: Preston 1, Glossop 0.

Situation Is Most Satisfactory In Erie---"Yankees" Are In Line

Every arrangement for the playing of Canadian League ball in Erie this season was completed yesterday afternoon when the Erie Exhibition Company, holders of the Perry field lease, turned their holdings over to George H. O'Neil, of London, Canada, owner of the Erie franchise.

While clouds were almost cleared away at the Friday afternoon conference between the club owner and the directors of the company which held the lease on the park, it was not until yesterday afternoon that the papers were signed which aligns this city with the circuit across the border.

In buying the lease O'Neil pays the $600 due the ground owner by the exhibition company, and $1,400. The settlement was larger than the directors of the company hoped for, and as it was satisfactory to O'Neil, the new owner of the Erie franchise will have the full support of the men who have supplied Erie fans with baseball in the past.

Happy over the clearing away of all difficulties, O'Neil left last night for Buffalo, where he will sign George H. Smith as manager of the Erie Yankees, as the only American team in the circuit will probably be known. Smith, one of the brainiest ball pilots in the minors, will immediately start to gather his players into the fold.

Has Nucleus for Team.

With the entire roster of the former Guelph team to choose from, Smith will have the nucleus of a club which will defend the American colours in the 1914 campaign. Smith has been a second baseman of ability, but he will probably manage the Erie squad from the bench.

From now on until reporting day there will be real doings in the local camp for already the managers of the other teams are scouting for their players. Erie bugs need have no cause for worry, though, for O'Neil declares that he will place an outfit in this city which will be up in the running throughout the season.

Canadian fans are well pleased with the addition of Erie and the team from this city will be a big drawing card over the Canuck circuit, the new owner feels assured. Still Erie may not be the only American city in the League over the border for the directors of the St. Thomas club may transfer that franchise to Youngstown.

Youngstown would be a valuable addition to the circuit, that is sure, but the ball magnates of the Ohio city have failed to take interest in the pastime this season, and there will be no baseball there unless another franchise is transferred. Mr. O'Neil said yesterday he doubted that the trnsfer would be made.

Get Holiday Games.

The Erie team will run into many holidays during the season, for while at home they will have their Decoration day, Fourth of July and Labour day games; abroad in the Dominion they will find holidays May 24, the anniversary of Queen Victoria's birthday; June 3, the king's birthday; July 1, Dominion day; July 12, Orangeman's day, the different civic holidays in August, and Labour day is also observed.

WINTER IN THE ALGONQUIN PARK

Hundreds of Canadians and our cousins across the border have been enjoying the pleasures offered by Algonquin Provincial (Ontario) Park during the past two months. The Highland Inn, the Grand Trunk Hotel, in this wonderful territory, has been the scene of jolly crowds from all parts of the continent. In the past a southern trip seemed to be the best, and to seek for heat where the cold proved unendurable; but more recently there has been a keen appreciation of the dry frigidity of the north, and Algonquin Park is becoming more popular every winter for those who desire rest and recreation. The territory is 2,000 feet above sea level and the air is always dry and cold, and the days usually bright. Write any Grand Trunk agent or to the Resident Manager of the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park Station, Ontario, for handsome descriptive booklet.

Hockey--That's All

In the Junior Church Hockey League opening fixture at Parker's rink last night the Knox Church team defeated the Y.M.C.A. Colts by 3 goals to 2. Harold Knapman was a satisfactory referee.

Charlotte Street and St. Paul's meet to-night between 7 and 8 o'clock and All Saints' and Knox on Thursday at the same hour, both games at Parker's rink.

The game of all games is scheduled for Thursday night between 9 and 10 o'clock at Brock St. Rink, when the Midnight Sons and R. U. Wells clubs will collide in what promises to be the most blood-curdling battle in the history of the great winter game. From both camps comes the story that the teams are right on edge. The rivalry is at fever heat, and with Kenneally, the Newsy Lalonde of the Midnight Sons, and Razor Blade Riley, the Joe Hall of the R. U. Wells after each other's scalp, it looks as if the ambulance drivers will have a busy night. "Hog Dog" Denison will handle the bell. The names of the guilty parties have been ascertained as follows:

Midnight Sons.

Goal—Shrimp Outram.
Right Defence—Big Head Ballard.
Left Defence—Wizard Fair.
Rover—Monster Kenealy.
Centre—Snookey-ookum Hamblin.
Right Wing—Bird Seed Bartley.
Left Wing—Spot Ball Manion.
Mascot—Hates.
Work—Buster Leach.
Goal Umpire—Race Horse Geary.
Timekeeper—Noisy Sullivan.
Water-boy and Trainer—Limburger Haus.
Referee—Hot Dog Denison.
Manager—Salome Graham.
Rooters gather early and avoid the rush. Gallery reserved. Joe Minicolo rooter leader with the Jews harp. Warsaw papers will please copy.
Air Tight Mowry will face the puck.

R. U. Wells.

Goal—Butcher Grady.
Right Defence—Curly Lebarr (Captain).
Left Defence—Razor Blade Riley.
Rover—Slocum Murray.
Centre—Clipper Donoghue.
Right Wing—Tutti Frutti Levasseur.
Left Wing—Claw Hammer Lazure.
Trainer—Big Head Ernie Parker.
Manager — Auto Driver Bruce Blanchard.
Mascot—Farmer Franks.
Ambulance drivers, nurses, doctors, insurance agents, police and coroners are asked to take notice.

MERCANTILE HOCKEY LEAGUE.

A special meeting of the Executive of this League is hereby called for Friday next at 7:30 p.m (sharp) at the offices of The Examiner. Will all concerned please make a point of being present?

Owing to absences, last evening sufficient members could not be present to transact some important business.

BIG GAME IN THE JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

The ice is in good shape for to-night's double header in the Junior City League at Brock Street rink, and with the hot rivals, the Boston Exploits and Y.M.C. teams, clashing in the first game, the biggest City League crowd of the year will be on hand. Both teams have numerous supporters and will start to-night even in the public fancy. Fred Kelly of the Peterborough intermediates, will handle the bell, which means that the teams will have to play hockey all the way. The puck will be faced at 8.10 sharp, with the teams lining up as follows:

Local Curlers Carried Off District Cup

Piling up end after end the lead they secured early in the games, the local curlers defeated the two Lindsay rinks yesterday by 16 shots. As a result of the games the Peterborough curlers win the handsome silver trophy known as the District Cup, which is battled for annually by the clubs of this district.

Some splendid curling was done on the good ice yesterday, and more than once the Scugogville curlers looked dangerously near overcoming the lead.

The rinks were:

ART EXHIBITION IN CENTRAL SCHOOL WORTHY OF PATRONAGE

Large Number of Beautiful Pictures is Now on View and Will Be, Through Entire Week.

FOR A GOOD CAUSE

Last evening there opened in the Central School an exhibition of pictures.

These consist of reproductions of the masterpieces of the world. There are two hundred large pictures and one hundred and fifty smaller ones. They are all finely executed and give a good conception of the original paintings.

The Italian School is well represented, as also are the Spanish, French, English, American, Dutch and German schools.

In addition to the reproductions of the world's famous paintings, there are a number of views of famous buildings, such as the Vatican, the celebrated cathedrals of Southern Europe and of England.

In every respect the exhibition is a source of delight and profit.

In addition to the pictures a short musical programme will be provided each evening.

Last evening the Charlotte Street Church Orchestra delighted the visitors with excellent music.

The exhibition will continue throughout the balance of the week. The pictures will be on exhibition from 4 to 6 p.m., and from 7 to 10 p.m., each afternoon and evening.

The admission fee is only 10 cents, and the funds are to be used to purchase pictures for the schools of the city.

The efforts of the teachers deserve encouragement and the pictures afford a very profitable way in which to spend an evening.

This morning an Examiner representative was invited to a private view of the pictures in company with Inspector Mowat. Apart from the very worthy object for which the exhibition is being held, the instruction to be gained from an educational standpoint, cannot be lightly estimated. The scholars of the city alone will reap untold profit as a result of the exhibit. All the old masters are here shown, and with the able assistance of teachers, some of whom are always present, the boys and girls of the schools have a splendid opportunity to view the pictures in such a way as to receive the greatest amount of good.

The public in general, too, ought to avail themselves of this privilege to see some really great pictures, reproductions of the world's finest in art.

TO-NIGHT IN KNOX CHURCH

CONTROLLER
JAMES SIMPSON
TORONTO, on
"The Church and the Working Man"

SERVICE BEGINS AT 8 P.M.

TUBERCULOSIS COST CITY, ETC.

leave you to form your own conclusions as to the number of cases in our community.

Dr. Neal stated that the City is spending practically all its money on other communicable diseases to restrict and eliminate the source of infection, and this should be applied to a diseases which is also communicable and which causes more death than all the other communicable diseases combined.

Average Life is Shortened.

The average age of death from tuberculosis is for males 27.6 year, and females 33.4 years. If tuberculosis were absent, those who now die of it would conform to the ordinary mortality, we find that tuberculosis cuts life short in the average, 29.4 years for males and 34.5 for females, or few years for all persons.

Of this the major part occurs in the working period between 17.5 and 60 years. Males lose of this working period an average of 19.3 years, and females 23.4 years, or an average of the two sexes combined, 21.4 years. But putting it as the lowest figure we find that the deaths from tuberculosis cuts off at least 24 years, of which 17 are in the working period.

Monetary Loss to City.

Apply this to our own City, and the 118 deaths since 1910 means that the City has lost on an average 17 years of working time to each patient, and calculating that each patient would earn $500 this means a loss of $1,003,000.

Or looking at it from another standpoint, Dr. Fisher concludes that the most conservative estimate that can be placed on the economic loss of the community from the death of each tubercular patient is $8,000, but to fall well within safe figures we will make it $5,000. The death rate last year placed at 30, which is also low, means a loss of $150,00 to the City. Surely the request of the Health Association for $10,000 is not unreasonable, but a wise investment in the interest of all the community.

Examination of Children.

Dr. Neal referred to the utter lack of a place in Peterborough for the care of tubercular patients. With the introduction of School Inspection, without doubt the work of the Health Association will be greatly increased, as experience in Hamilton, Toronto and elsewhere, show the number of tubercular children is found to be large. The percentage of tubercular children in Toronto is 30 to 40 p.c. of those examined. In Hamilton the school nurses referred 129 children to the dispensary for examination and 117 to other doctors. Of the 129 examined 109 were found to be suffering from tuberculosis. Hamilton's school population is six times as great as Peterborough's. Therefore in all probability we will find ten to fifteen children in our schools.

Dr. Fisher asserts that 75 p.c. of the deaths from tuberculosis could be prevented.

Ald. Gordon—Will the patients be kept from down town, from street cars, stores and such places?

Dr. Neal—By agreement they could be, but not by law. The careful patient is not a danger. It is the uneducated tubercular person who is a menace to others.

Ald. Gordon—Is it the intention to receive patients from other counties around here.

Dr. Neal—Yes, if they pay the regular rate.

Ald. Gordon—There would be a danger of this becoming a centre for them.

Ald. Langford— Will the City be called upon to maintain the sanatorium?

Dr. Neal—The City would have to pay for its indigent patients.

Ald. Green—If we don't send them?

Dr. Neal—Then you will leave them on the street.

Ald. Gordon stated that a clause had been included in the City bill which has been duly advertized, covering the $10,000 asked for. This gives the Council authority to spend the money when they decide to do so.

Ald. Langford—I don't see that we should hurry in this matter. They admit the cost will not stop at $10,000. We will have to pay practically for the upkeep of the institution. I am thoroughly in sympathy with the movement, but I don't think there is a call for haste.

Ald. Johnston—The precaution has been taken of including a clause for this matter in the City Bill, but I believe it should be referred to the committee of the Whole. We should become more familiar with the details.

This was decided upon by the Council and a discussionof the petition will be held in the near future

Sentence Was Not Pronounced

John McClay Will Come Up Again Before Judge Huycke on Feb. 14

John McClay, who was a week ago convicted of having supplied drugs to a local girl for an illegal purpose, came before His Honour Judge Huyce in County Court this afternoon for sentence.

As his case is being referred to the Appellate Court His Honour deferred sentence until 11 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, Feb. 14th.

CONCERNING MEN ENGAGED NOT REPORTING

Mr. William Langford, Sr., superintendent of construction on the Turnbull building, who is understood to have been referred to in a statement in yesterday's issue as to men engaged for work not reporting, was seen this afternoon. He said that no such condition as described exists or had existed. He had of late employed no new men and therefore could not have been disappointed. Moreover he is rather reducing his staff than increasing it, owing to lack of materials.

Inspector Mowat Explains to the Board of Education Why the Prices to Pupils Will Not Be Lowered---Mr. Firth, of Collegiate Staff Resigns.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night, there being present Dr. Morrison, chairman, and Messrs. Hill, Ackerman, Hayes, Crane, Miller, Smith and Dr. Burnham.

Mr. Firth of the Collegiate Institute, and Miss F. King of the Public School staff, wrote tendering their resignations. Both were accepted according to contract.

A communication was received from Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, thanking the Board for appointing him their representative on the Public Library Board.—Received.

On the motion of Messrs. Hill and Hayes the Committee on Appointments was authorised to secure teachers for the vacancies created by the two resignations received last night.

Miss Kennedy, the medical supervisor, submitted her report for the first wek in January. She had visited six schools, examined 176 pupils, and found that 64 needed medical attendance. Six of these had to be temporarily excluded from their respective schools. Only those suspected of needing attention had been examined in her first round of the schools.

Mr. Hayes: That report more than justifies our action in making the appointment.

Mr. Smith: What does she mean by medical attendance—a dose of salts or something like that?

Miss Kennedy also reported that she had visited thirty homes, and recommended that a new slate blackboard be put in one of the rooms occupied by a class of the Public School.

Her report was referred to the Property and Supervision Committee.

Mr. W. H. Hill asked the Board why it was that some children who had the mumps had to remain out of school four weeks and others only two. Then, too, in some cases the brothers and sisters of the afflicted youngster had to stay at home from school during all or part of his sickness and in other cases they were allowed to attend. This was obviously unfair to many.

Inspector Mowatt explained that the law required a boy or girl with the mumps to remain out of school four weeks, but that the pupils' brothers and sisters were allowed to attend school during his or her illness.

The Board authorised Mr. Mowatt to take the matter up with Miss Kennedy and M.H.O. McPherson, and have the law complied with by all.

Fees Remain the Same.

Public School Inspector Mowatt, who was present, explained that because textbooks had decreased slightly in price some expected a corresponding diminution of the Public School fees. In answer to this he explained that the textbooks formed less than 25 per cent. of the cost of school supplies, and that while they decreased in price, a greater number than formerly were needed. That was the reason the lowering of the cost of the textbooks did not warrant a decrease in the amount of fees required. He submitted the following statement of the cost of supplies, showing that the utmost economy must have been used to secure all the supplies at the figure paid:

Textbooks ... ... Including Primer, Book I., Book II., Book III., Book V., Pub. S. Arith., History of Canada, History of England, Reader, Geography, Grammar, Dictionary, Speller, Hygiene for Lower Forms, Hygiene for Form IV., Public School Composition, Supplementary Readers.	$730 73

Committee on Appointments.

The report of the Committee on Appointments was as follows:

To the Chairman and members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen,

Regarding the matter of the form of Teachers' Contract, your committee, after a very full consideration, recommend that clause 6 be amended to read as follows:

"That the Board of Education and the teacher may, at their option, respectively terminate this engagement prior to or subsequent to the expiration of said year, by giving notice in writing to the other of them at least two calendar months previously, but so that such engagement may terminate on the last day of December or August.

"That clauses 8 and 9 be eliminated, and that the following clauses be embodied therein:

(9) "Said salary may be increased from year to year, according to the schedule adopted by the Board from time to time.

(9) "This agreement shall also be construed to continue in force from year to year unless and until it is terminated by the notice hereinbefore prescribed."

"That the secretary be instructed to have new forms printed and a copy forwarded to the Principal of the Collegiate Institute and the Inspector of Public Schools, advising them that all the members of the staff will be required to sign the same on or before the 30th of June next."

Respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL, Chairman.

TWINS JOINED TOGETHER BY A TISSUE OF FAT—Another pair of "Siamese" twins born in France. The most astonishing case before the medical world to-day is that of babies Susanna and Madeline, who were born with a tissue of flesh connecting one to the other. The young ladies, as shown in the photograph, will be for some time compelled to live in the awkward face-to-face position seen here. Medical men the world over are watching and studying the case with the interest it deserves. A formation of cells about three inches long and seven inches in thickness, joins the two babies just above the navel. Professor Le Filliatre, the noted surgeon and dean of the French Academy of Medicine, will personally perform the operation, which he feels certain will separate the two youngsters, who will then become normal children. They were born about six weeks ago at Champagne, France. The operation will be a bloodless one, the tissue substance being similar to a lump of fat.

Captain Censured For Wreck

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Wrecks Commissioner Lindsay is to-day giving judgment after investigation into the wreck of the steamer Cobequid, which ran into the end of Nova Scotia while trying to make the Bay of Fundy, severely censured Capt Jno. Howson, who was in command, for attempting to make the Bay before the weather cleared. Owing to Howson's fine handling of the situation after stranding, however, his certificate was not dealt with.

Jabez Wolfee, the Glasgow swimmer, famous through his efforts to swim the English Channel, is to make an attempt to swim from the Eddystone Rock to Plymouth, a distance of 14 miles. The swim has never been accomplished, and it is thought impossible of achievement, as it is across the tideways.

It has been asserted by many eminent specialists that there is no doubt that by the beat of the pulse alone the sex or age of a person could be told.

WOULD NOT ACCOMPANY HER MOTHER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—There was an unusual scene at staid old Osgoode Hall to-day when the court ordered that a six-year-old girl be returned to her mother, Mrs. Mabel Spinlove, an actress. The child, who was for two years in thec ustody of her paternal grandmother, was in court and refused to go with her mother, beating her face and screaming when the mother tried to carry her off. It was finally decided that the child should remain with the Sisters of St. Joseph until she is prepared to go with her mother willingly.

WELLAND DEPUTY JAILED

Scott Act Defeated According to Official Count of Returning Officer

CHARGE OF FALSE RETURNS

WELLAND, Feb. 2.—Majority of six votes against the Canada Temperance Act was found by Hugh A. Rose, returning officer, when he made his official summing up of the sworn statements of the deputies to-day, consequently, he declared the act defeated. In the presence of representatives of both sides Mr. Rose began the work of summing up this morning. There was little change in the figures until the ballot box of E. C. Coulthurst, of Bridgeburg, was opened when the statement showed 63 against and 12 for, a difference of 17 from the statement he gave to the temperance agent on the day of the voting. Mr. Coulthurst did not deliver his ballot box until Saturday and then the returning officer had to send for it. He was called to Welland, but left again on the 3:30 train for home.

Coulthurst Arrested.

The ontcome was that Coulthurst was arrested shortly after 11 o'clock this evening at his home in Bridgeburg by Provincial Constable John R. Dowd on a warrant issued by Police Magistrate Menno House, charging him with having issued a false election return from his poll. The warrant was issued on information sworn out by William Christian, scrutineer at the poll on the day the voting took place.

The temperance people have a certificate which was given to their agent at the polls declaring the result to be: For the Act, 20; against, 54; spoiled, 1; total, 75; majority for "wets," 34. This was signed in ink by Coulthurst and certified correct in the presence of four scrutineers. When the ballot-box was opened by Mr. Rose to-day the returning officer's declaration read: For the Act, 12; against, 63; spoiled, 1; total, 76; majority for "wets," 51. Thus a temperance majority of 11 was converted to a liquor majority of 6, and Mr. Rose had no choice but to declare the Act defeated as his power in the capacity of returning officer prevented him from examining the ballots.

There is a humourous side to the question as the result of a rumour current in Welland that the liquor forces were contemplating an attack upon the courthouse, where the ballot boxes were stored, in an effort to destroy them and thus invalidate the election, causing the temperance men to place a guard of four policemen at the courthouse last night. Following the anonuncement that the returning officer had declared the Act defeated, the "wets" were seized with the same fear, and to-night there are four "wet" policemen guarding the courthouse.

O. H. Garner, president of the Temperance party, says criminal prosecution will follow in connection with other irregularities.

GIVEN A FREE HAND.

Quebec Investigation Was Expected to Cost $50,000.

QUEBEC, Feb. 4.—Keen interest followed the testimony of Mr. S. C. Maloney in the proceedings last evening before the Committee of Inquiry into the charges made against Mr. J. O. Mousseau, ex-member for Soulanges, of having accepted bribes for assisting the passage of the Montreal Fair Association bill through the present session of the Quebec Legislature.

This witness, who is an agent of the Burns Detective Agency, told of how he had been sent by Mr. Biddinger to Montreal to see Mr. D. Lorne McGibbon, then owner of The Herald, who sent him to Mr. Beck, who gave him carte blanche to make whatever investigation he pleased. The cost of the investigation he figured would be about fifty thousand dollars. He said that he had acted on the legal advice of L. C. Casgrain, in each step of drafting the decoy measure.

His testimony was mainly a repetition of what has already transpired, except that he told it from the point of view of one dealing directly, instead of, like the others, who heard it over the detectaphone. He told of giving $500 to Mr. Mousseau. He also told of a member of the Upper House whom Mr. Mousseau said he could get for $400 down and $500 on the passage of the bill. This man he called Devlunes, and later Mr. Mousseau said this man wanted $5,000.

He told Mr. Mousseau "that man can go plum to —— before I will give him two thousand dollars, one thousand dollars down." It was arranged on that basis, according to the witness.

The report that warrants for the arrest of the Burns' detectives had been issued in Montreal is denied. Edward Beck says if such action is taken he will immediately secure the arrest of Mousseau, Berard and Bergevin.

A Canadian cheese-maker will accompany the machinery to Russia.

MORE ABOUT THE BOSS AND THE BEER

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In reply to foremen who can be bribed with beer, I may say that I know of one case where the beer system was used to secure work. This man, who used the system, has been fooling the public and brother members by carrying a union card. But the men who were laid off to make room for him, I may say, are looking fine and healthy after a hard winter, but have sworn never to use the beer system in getting employment. Now, if that is the way our local industries have of using their men by allowing their foremen to lay off men for the want of work, and by putting on a man the very next day because he buys him beer, it would have been more to his credit if he "fired" them honorably instead of laying them off for four or five days which stretch into four or five months. Now my advice to this foreman is to go and hear Oontroller Simpson in Knox Church, who will speak on "The Church and the Workingman." I am disgusted with this man.

THE ALLAN LINE

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

On his advice the drive had been divided into five herds of two thousand, he contending that it was dangerous, as well as injurious to the sheep, to keep more than that number together. The others were following at intervals of a few days. Larkin had left the leaders just north of the hills that formed the hooked southern end of the Big Horn Mountains, and expected that in two days' time they would have come north almost to the junction of Kirby Creek and the Big Horn, near where it was calculated to cross them.

After grazing his horse for an hour at noon, and taking a bite to eat himself, Larkin pushed on, and in a short time made out a faint, whitish mist rising against the horizon of hills. It was the dust of his leaders. Presently, in the far distance, a man appeared on horseback making toward him, and Bud wondered if anything had happened.

His fears were partially justified when he discovered the horseman to be Sims, and were entirely confirmed when he had conversed with the herder.

"We've sure got to get them sheep to water, and that mighty quick," was the latter's laconic announcement.

"Nonsense! There's plenty of water. What's the matter with 'em?"

"Ten miles out of the hills we found a water-hole, but the cattle had been there first, and the sheep wouldn't look at it. At the camp last night there was another hole, but some imp had deviled the herd an' they lay alongside the water, dyin' of thirst, but they wouldn't drink. We pushed 'em in an' they swam around; we half-drowned some of 'em, but still they wouldn't drink.

"So we made a night march without finding water, and we haven't found any to-day. They're gettin' frantic now."

Bud quirted the tired Pinte into a gallop, and they approached the herd, about which the dark, slim figures of the dogs were running. From the distance the first sound was the ceaseless blethering of the flock that proclaimed its misery. The next was the musical tinkling of the bells the leaders wore.

"Reckon they've found another hole," said Sims. "Thought I seen one when I was ridin' out."

On nearer approach it was seen that the herd was "milling," that is, revolving in a great circle, with a number of inner circles, half smothered in the dust they raised, without aim or knowledge of what they did, or why. About the herd at various points stood the half-dozen shepherds, their long crooks in their hands. Whenever a blatting animal made a dash for liberty the dogs drove it into the press, barking and nipping.

Larkin rode to a tall, dark-skinned shepherd, a Basque from the California herding.

"What is it, Pedro?" he asked. "What is the matter with them?"

"Only the good God can tell. The leaders they take fright at something, I do not know, and we 'mill' them before any damage is done."

Larkin rode around the trampling bawling mass to the rear, where were the cook waggon and a couple of spare horses. He at once dismounted and changed his uncomfortable riding-boots for the brogans of the herd. Pinte he relegated to the string, for the use of a horse with sheep is ludicrous, since the dogs are the real herders, and obey the orders given by the uplifted arms of the men.

When he rejoined Sims, the sheep had become calmer. The flock-mind, localised in the leaders, had come to the conclusion that, after all, there was nothing to fear, and the circling motion was gradually becoming slower and slower. In a quarter of an hour comparative quiet had been restored, and Sims gave the order to get the flock under way. Since they had not come upon water at this place, as the herder had hoped, it was necessary to continue the merciless drive until they found it.

Immediately the dogs cut into the dirty-white revolving mass (the small of which is like no other in the world), and headed the leaders north. But the leaders and tail-enders were inextricably mixed and for a long time there was great confusion.

Sheep on the march have one invariable position, either among the leaders, middlers or tailers, and until each animal has found his exact post, nothing whatever can be done with him.

Until night fell the animals fed on the dry bunch-grass, and then, under the rotting of the dogs, took positios on the brow of a rising hill, as though bedding down for the night. But all did not rest, for perhaps fifty remained standing in the perpetual flock-watch.

In an hour these would lie down and others take their places, but all through the night, and at any time when the flock rested, this hereditary protection would become operative—seemingly a survival of a day when neither man nor dog had assumed this duty.

The cook dug his trench, built his fire and set his folding table out under the pale sky that was just commencing to show brilliant stars. After the last cup of steaming coffee had been downed and pipes lighted, Sims gave the order to march. The herd was nearly still now, and roused with much complaining, but the dogs were inexorable, and presently the two thousand were shuffling on, feeding sow and then, but making good progress.

There was but one thing left to do, for it was certain that all the springs on the plain would have been visited by cattle, and that, therefore, the sheep would stand by and idly perish of thirst.

Sims knew his country, and directed the flock toward a shallow, rocky ford of the Big Horn, some five miles distant. In the meantime Bud Larkin was facing two alternatives, either one disastrous. The crossing of the Big Horn meant a declaration of war to the Bar T ranch, for in the loose division of the free country, the Bar T range extended south to the river.

On the other hand, should he turn the herds east along the bank of the Big Horn, it would be impossible to continue the march long in that direction, since the higher mountains were directly ahead, and the way through them was devious, and attended with many difficulties and dangers. On such a drive the losses to him in time and strayed sheep would be disastrous.

Larkin had no desire to clash with the cattlemen unless it were absolutely necessary, but he he decided that his sheep should go through, since the free range was his as well as another's. On that long night march, when the men were behind the sheep, driving them, contrary to the usual custom, he told Sims of his interview with Beef Bissell, and the herder cracked his knuckles with rage at the position taken up by the cowman.

"Send 'em through, Mr. Larkin," he advised, "and if the Bar T outfit start anything I allow we'll return 'em as good as they give."

It was within an hour of dawn when the leaders of the flock lifted their heads and gazed curiously at the line of trees that loomed before them along the banks of the river. The next instant they had started forward on a run, blethering the news of water back along the dim, heaving line. The dust beneath their sharp feet rost into a pall that hid the sky as the whole flock got into motion.

Then dogs and men leaped forward, for now the blind singleness of purpose that pervaded the animals was more disastrous than when they refused to drink. Working madly, the dogs spread out the following herd so that all should not crowd upon the same point of the river and drown the leaders.

It was unavoidable that some should be lost by being pushed into the deeper waters north or south of the ford, but for the most part the watering was successfully accomplished, and at the first glow of dawn the animals were contentedly cropping the rich grasses in the low bottoms near the river.

But the work was not yet finished. When it had become light enough to see, the leaders were rounded up at the ford, and, nipped into frenzy by the dogs, began the passage across the shallow bar. With the leaders safely over it was only a matter of time until the rest had followed, and by the time it was full day the last of the tailers were feeding on the opposite bottoms.

For Bud Larkin this was a very serious dawn. He had cast the die for war and led the invasion into the enemy's country. Any hope that the act might remain unknown was shattered before the sheep had fairly forded the stream. Against the brightening sky, on a distant rise of ground, had appeared the silent figure of a horse and man, one of the Bar T range riders.

Six distant warning pistol shots had rung out, and then the horse and rider had disappeared across the plain at a headlong gallop.

CHAPER V.
STRATEGY AND A SURPRISE.

"Gub pi-i-i-le!" yelled the cook at the top of his voice.

The weary herders with Sims and Larkin answered the cry as one man, for they were spent with the exertions of the night, and heavy-eyed from want of sleep. The meal of mutton, camp-bread, beans, and Spanish onions was despatched with the speed that usually acocmpanied such ceremonies, and Sims told off the herders to watch the flock while the others slept.

A general commanding soldiers would have pressed forward, thus increasing the advantage gained in the enemy's country, but when sheep compose the marching column, human desires are the last thing consulted. After their long thirst and forced drive it was necessary that the animals recover their strength for a day amid abundant feed and water.

Immediately after breakfast Larkin called a small, close-knit herder to him.

"Can you ride a horse?" he asked.

"Si, senor," replied the man, who came originally from the southern range.

"Then saddle the piebald mare and take provisions for four days. Travel day and night until you reach the Larkin ranch in Montana, and give this letter to the man who is in charge there."

Bud drew a pencilled note from the pocket of his shirt and handed it to the other. Then he produced a rough map of the country he had drawn and added it to the letter, explaining a number of times the distances from point to point, and tracing the route with his pencil. At last the herder understood.

"Tell them to hurry," was Larkin's parting injunction, as the other turned away to saddle the mare.

"Si, senor. Hurry like blazes, eh?" said Miguel, comprehending, with a flash of white teeth.

"Exactly."

Hardly had the man galloped away north, following the bank of the river for the better concealment past the Bar T range, when Sims languidly approached.

"I reckon we're in for trouble, boss," he remarked, yawning sleepily. "An' I'm plumb dyin' for rest, but I s'pose I better look over the country ahead if we're goin' to get these muttons out o' here."

"I was just goin' to suggest it," said Larkin. "I am going to stay by the camp and meet some friends of mine that I expect very shortly. Come back pronto, Hardy, for there's no telling what we may have to do before night."

Larkin's predictions of a visit were soon enough fulfilled. It was barely ten o'clock when several horsemen were seen riding toward the banks of the Big Horn. Bud mounted Pinte and advanced to meet them.

First came Beef Bissell, closely attended by Stelton, and after them, four or five of the Bar T punchers. The actual encounter took place half a mile from camp. Looking back, Larkin could see his sheep feeding in plain sight, amid the green of the river bottoms.

"Howdy," snapped Bissell, by way of greeting. And then, without waiting for a reply: "What does this mean?" He indicated the placid sheep.

"My flock was dying of thirst, and I brought them up last night," said Bud. "They crossed the river early this morning."

"Why didn't you keep them on the other side? I warned you about this."

"I warned you first, Mr. Bissell. My sheep have got to go north, and the range west of the Big Horn is the only practicable way to drive them. They would never come through if I started them through the mountains. You ought to know that."

"Never mind what I ought to know," cried Bissell angrily, his red face flaming with fury. "There's one thing I do know, and that is, that those range-killers don't go a step farther north on my side of the river."

"If you can show me clear title to ownership of this part of the range, I will risk them in the mountains; otherwise not," replied Bud, imperturbably. "This range is free, and as much mine as yours. There's no use going into this question again."

"That's the first true thing you've said," snarled the cowman. "Now, you listen here. I don't go hunting trouble nowhere, but there ain't a man between the Rio Grande and the Columbia that can say I don't meet it half-way when I see it headed in my direction. Now, I've given you fair warnin' before. I'll give it to you again, but this is the last time. Either you have them sheep t'other side of the river by this time to-morrow, or you take the consequences."

"Is that your final word on the matter."

"Yes. An' I've got witnesses to prove that you were given a chance to clear out."

"Then you give me only twenty-four hours?"

"Yes."

Bud's face took on a look of discouragement and failure, and he sat for a time as though seeking a loophole of escape from his ultimatum. At last he lifted his head and looked at the cowman with a listless eye.

"All right," he said, hopelessly; "I'll be gone by that time."

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

So. Wellington, B.C.—"For a year during the Change of Life I was all run down. I was really too weak to walk and was very despondent and thought I was going to die, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier my health and strength returned. I am very thankful to you and praise your medicine. I have advised several women who suffered as I did to try your remedies. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. DAVID R. MORRIS, South Wellington, Vancouver Island, B. C.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and we believe it is unequalled for women during the period of change of life.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

White Bread.

Hygienists have long called attention to the serious consequences of the increasing popular preference for white bread. At present dark colored bread is despised as "peasant's food." In the towns the meanest workman will eat only white bread. The flour used for making this bread is obtained by passing the meal through a very fine sieve, so that it contains hardly anything but starch and cellulose. White bread, which plays an important role with the French people, is thus extremely poor in really nourishing food, and it is to the increasing consumption of it that many hygienists ascribe in France the racial enfeeblement, the diminution of stature and even the present development of tuberculosis. Representations have frequently been widely made on this subject, but without effect, for the bakers can provide only what the public demands.—Paris Letter to London Lancet.

Some Surprises For the Doctor.

There is a story current about a widely known London doctor. About 8 o'clock one morning he was rung up by a wealthy patient and begged to come over at once. Turning out of bed he rushed off, expecting to find the man in extremis. Imagine his surprise at being ushered into a dining room where a gay supper party was assembled. The first remark made to him was: 'Oh, doctor, I am so glad you have come. We wanted you to settle a bet as to exactly where the diaphragm is." He not only told them where the diaphragm was, but a good many other things. The patient tried to mollify him by asking his fee. Still furiously angry, he named a staggering one, which, to his surprise, was paid on the spot.—London World.

"No, sor," asserted Pat. "I niver lie about thim. I always tell th' thruth in ivery particular—only I adds to it."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NAVY WORKSHOPS.

Fully Equipped Naval Dockyard Is a Hive of Industry.

The principal workshops of the British navy are, of course, the dockyards. The fully-equipped naval dockyard of to-day, the Government establishment where war vessels of every kind are built and repaired, is a hive of industry. There are slips for building ships, and dry docks for repairing them, machine shops for the making of engines, and machinery of all kinds, together with stores of arms, ammunition, coal, oil, and provisions.

Nowadays, the building of men-of-war, which is a highly specialized and complicated business, involving the employment of a powerful and costly plant, and thousands of highly-trained artificers, is naturally centralized and confined to a few great dockyards. The construction of warships is also entrusted to private firms, who build them to an advanced stage, leaving their completion and final equipment to the dockyard authorities.

Previous to the reign of Henry VIII. there were neither naval arsenals nor dockyards in Britain, nor, in fact, any regular establishment of ships of war or sailors to man them. The foundation of a regular British navy, with a board of commissioners, a fleet, and dockyards, was, in fact, laid by bluff King Hal.

The first dockyard established during his reign was that of Woolwich, which remained the chief naval dockyard until the coming of iron ships, while those of Portsmouth, Deptford, Chatham, and Sheerness followed in succession. Depots for ships and stores had existed at Portsmouth and Southampton from an earlier date; but, as has been said, there was no regular dockyard in existence until the middle of the 16th century.

Of the other naval dockyards, that at Plymouth was founded by William III. Pembroke was established in 1814, a small yard having previously been located at Milford.

The most important British naval dockyards, are those at Portsmouth, Devonport, Chatham, Malta and Gibraltar, which are each in charge of an admiral-superintendent. There are also dockyards or naval establishments at Sheerness, Pembroke, Portland, Queenstown, Hong Kong, Sydney, Simons Town, Ascension, Bermuda, and Wei-hai-wei, as well as Indian Government dockyards at Bombay and Calcutta.

The administrative control of the naval dockyards is within the province of the controller of the navy (the Third Lord of the Admiralty), to whom the director of dockyards is responsible. The latter official is accountable for the building of ships, boats, etc., in the dockyards and for the construction of all machinery for use afloat or ashore. The work of construction which he superintends employs an army of artisans and laborers at the different dockyards.

Portsmouth is the most important of the workshops of the navy, at least, so far as the building of ships is concerned. There many of the most famous ships in the British navy, past and present, have been built and launched, notably in later years the epoch-making Dreadnought and such super-Dreadnoughts as the Orion, etc.

War vessels share with passenger ships the greatest complexity of structure and the necessity for the highest degree of accuracy in building. The British Government Dockyards where shipbuilding is carried on, are equipped with modern plant of the most approved type.

ALASKA'S MIGHTY RIVER.

The Yukon Is Navigable For a Stretch of Over 2,100 Miles.

Dismiss from your mind any notion that the Yukon river is a puny stream fed by eternal glaciers and trickling away to the sea. It is a river so mighty that it can spread out over a width of sixty miles on the Yukon flats and still have depth enough in the main channel to float heavily laden freight steamers. From its mouth (near St. Michael) at the Bering sea it is navigable all the way to White Horse, in the Yukon territory of Canada, an unbroken stretch of over 2,100 miles—two-thirds of the distance from New York to San Francisco. Add to this the navigable water of its tributaries—370 miles on the Innoko river, 220 on the Iditarod, 620 on the Koyukuk and 392 miles on the Tanana—and you will begin to have a fair idea of what a big river we have in our great empire beneath the Northern Lights.

The valley drained by this wonderful river system of the north is the hope of Alaska. The wealth of the past and of today has come from mines and fisheries, and the lifetime of all mining regions is briefer even than human life. It has been only a few years, you remember, since the Klondike was the most active mining camp in the world. Today it is a valley long since deserted by the individual miner and turned over to two big dredging companies, which work the low grade tailings. And these also must shortly pass.—Edgar Allen Forbes in Leslie's.

SKIN OF A SABLE.

It Takes Lots of Treading to Make It Soft and Fluffy.

"Otter hunts are fashionable in England," said the manicurist, "and I call that a sensible kind of hunt. Look at the otter skins the girls can collect—and otter coats so fashionable now too!

"I wouldn't mind collecting an otter coat myself. But how would you like to belong to a sable hunt, girls, and collect a sable coat?

"A customer of mine, though, a fur dealer, told me I wouldn't know a sable if I saw one. I thought, of course, they'd be soft, fluffy little fellows, but he says they have a hide as flat as a rat's. He says that when the skins are taken from the animals they are so hard that they are placed in a tub and a barefooted man steps in and begins to tread on them to soften them. The tub is tilted so that at each step the man takes the skins slide down the slope and are kept moving. The man treads for hours and hours before any pile appears. When it begins to rise the skins are oiled and the treading begins again. This is continued until the skins are as supple as chamois and the pile has become so high that the fur has that soft depth and beautiful rich gloss which we see in Fifth avenue.

"I always thought a sable was a pretty creature, with fluffy fur like a kitten, didn't you?"—New York Tribune.

A Way to Distinguish Twins.

Twin brothers who have been called up for service in a Paris regiment are so alike that it is impossible to distinguish between them. The other day one was confined to barracks, and by changing his cap, with its regimental number, for that of his brother he was able to pass the guard whenever he wished to go out. The colonel has now issued the following order to obviate such tricks: "The soldier bonhomme (even number) will wear his hair as long as the regulations, construed with the utmost leniency, will allow and will shave his beard and mustache. The soldier bonhomme (odd number) will allow his beard and mustache to grow full and will have his hair regularly cut as closely as possible by the regimental barber."—London Mail.

Out It Went.

"Good night, my sweet; farewell, my love; my soul goes out to thee! But time is speeding fast, my love, and I must quickly flee! 'Tis but a few short hours, my love, and you must think of me till we meet again tomorrow, love! My soul goes out to thee!"

Thus spoke a lover to his lass. Deep in her eyes gazed he. Now, one fond kiss, one fond embrace—how sweet it was to see!

Oh, horror! Then her pa appeared.

"What means this, sir?" said he. Then, with an angry snarl, he roared, "My sole goes out to thee!"—London Mail.

Logic of Youth.

"Father," exclaimed John vigorously, "why don't Quakers take off their hats?"

"Because, my son, it is their belief that to remove their hats is a mark of respect that they think they should pay to no man."

"Well," remarked the boy after a moment's silence, "how do they manage when they have to have their hair cut?"—Youth's Companion.

Overstudy.

SEVERE COLD ON LUNGS AND CHEST QUICKLY RELIEVED

by Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne

Mr. J. Seward, Bromptonville, Que., writes:

"Two weeks ago I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs and my chest was very sore, breathing tight and severe hacking cough. I was feeling miserable. I bought a bottle of Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne and after a few doses I felt great relief and I went into a sound sleep, a thing I was not able to do for some nights. Next day I was able to be around again, and before completing the bottle, felt as well as ever. It is a fine cough and cold cure."

Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne relieves the irritation and "stuffed-up" feeling in the air passages, soothes the tickling which makes you cough, loosens the phlegm and drives out the cold before it gets troublesome.

Silence Heir.

One mother of a large household has a system of recreation which is really a novelty. The day and its duties are carefully apportioned, and the schedule is followed as closely as possible. By doing this the mother is able to take one afternoon hour a day for complete rest. In her case it is from 2 to 3 o'clock. She places a large placard at this time on the stairs, proclaiming "Silence." By the mother's persistence in taking this quiet hour others have grown to respect it until it has become a part of the home. In her home the mother really rests or else reads. No one goes near her unless it is absolutely necessary. The children close doors quietly when they see the placard and play where their voices will not reach the mother's room. At the end of the sixty minutes the mother reappears and takes up her usual duties. Seven hours of absolute freedom a week can do a great deal to make over and refresh a weary body and still more weary brains and nerves. An hour for rest is almost every household can be found if things are done systematically.—Buffalo Times.

There Were Others.

He was a rather persevering young man, and he had proposed to a beautiful girl something like a dozen times, and on each occasion the answer had been a negative one. Still he persevered, and one night on a moonlight walk with the soft south wind blowing caressingly he once more started to tell her of his wondrous love.

"Delia, dear," he tenderly remarked, throwing away his cigarette to give his eloquence further play, "there is something that I must tell you before we return. You have heard it before but"—

"Look here, Jimmy," impatiently interrupted the beautiful girl, "how many more times are you going to ask me to marry you?"

"Not many, I guess, Delia, dear," answered the young man with great frankness. "One of the other three girls that I am proposing to is beginning to show signs of weakening."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Till a dream face out of the long ago
Smiles with her eyes and her cheeks aglow.

Sinister Preparations.

Little Willie had been permitted to enter the sickroom to view the small stranger who had arrived a few days before. He looked the little one over with the disapproval natural to a deposed monarch. The nurse brought out the baby's bathtub and filled it with water. Then she started unwinding the baby's outer shell, preparatory to bathing it, while Willie stood by watching the procedure with interest. Suddenly the light of understanding illumined his face, and he rushed to the door.

"Hey, Sis!" he shrilled down the stairs. "Come on up quick. They're going to drown it."—New York Times.

White House Tragedy and Gayety.

Between 1841 and 1844 the White House saw a greater mingling of tragedy and gayety than it ever did in any equal interval before or since. William Henry Harrison, Tyler's immediate predecessor, died when only a month in office, and Tyler served out the remainder of the term. Mrs. Letitia Tyler died a few months after her youngest daughter, Elizabeth, was married to William Waller of Virginia. This was on Sept. 10, 1842. In February, 1844, a great gun burst while exhibiting it on a trip down the Potomac in the midst of a brilliant company, among whom were Tyler, many members of congress and of the cabinet, and other distinguished guests. About forty persons were killed or injured. Among the killed were the father of Miss Gardiner, who soon afterward became Tyler's second wife. Although married while her husband was in the White House, the second Mrs. Tyler had her wedding at her home in New York, but she held her reception in the executive mansion. She became popular in Washington society and undoubtedly strengthened the social side of her husband's administration.—Charles M. Harvey in Leslie's.

Salt Germs.

"Salt, of all things, we deem germ proof; but, as a matter of fact, salt is one of the most germ ridden foods we eat."

The speaker, a physiologist, continued:

"You know gray salt, the 'gros sel' that gourmands eat with boiled beef? Well, that salt is made gray by the addition of mud, plain mud; hence it always contains from 6,000 to 75,000 bacterial colonies per gram. Refined salt, white salt, is almost as bad. It lies, you know, in the refinery under a blanket of clay, and its refining consists of a sea water bath, after which it is dried and heated to the point of crystallization. All this fails; of course, to remove from it its 2,000 or 3,000 bacterial colonies per gram that it imbibed from its clay blanket. The pure food people should look to our salt. This white, clean stuff is alive with germs. Yet it would be easy to refine it so as to make it germ free."—Exchange.

Unexpected.

One of the dignitaries of the Church of Scotland was a minister of a remote parish before he leaped into fame, but was not considered a particularly eloquent preacher. At his suggestion extensive alterations were made in the church, which had the effect of sweeping away considerable seating accommodation. One day after the alterations had been effected he visited the church to see how it looked.

"What do you think of the improvements, John?" he asked the beadle.

"Improvements!" exclaimed John in disdain. "They're no improvements at a'. Whaur are 'se goin' to put the folk?"

"Oh," said the minister, "we have abundance of room, John, considering the size of the congregation."

"That's a' very weel the noo," retorted the beadle. "But what will we do when we get a popular minister?"—London Tit-Bits.

Newton's Shock.

The immortal discoverer of the law of the attraction of gravity was at one time beside himself. In his fiftieth year Newton suffered the severe shock from which he never fully recovered. A dog upset a lighted candle, and precious manuscripts embodying the results of many years' experiments in optics were destroyed. In consequence of this Newton's mind lost its balance. Brewster denies this, but about its truthfulness there is not much room for doubt. It is certain that for a considerable time his letters were quite incoherent, and to be accounted for upon no other hypothesis than that of a disordered mentality. Newton slowly recovered and lived to be eighty-three years old.

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

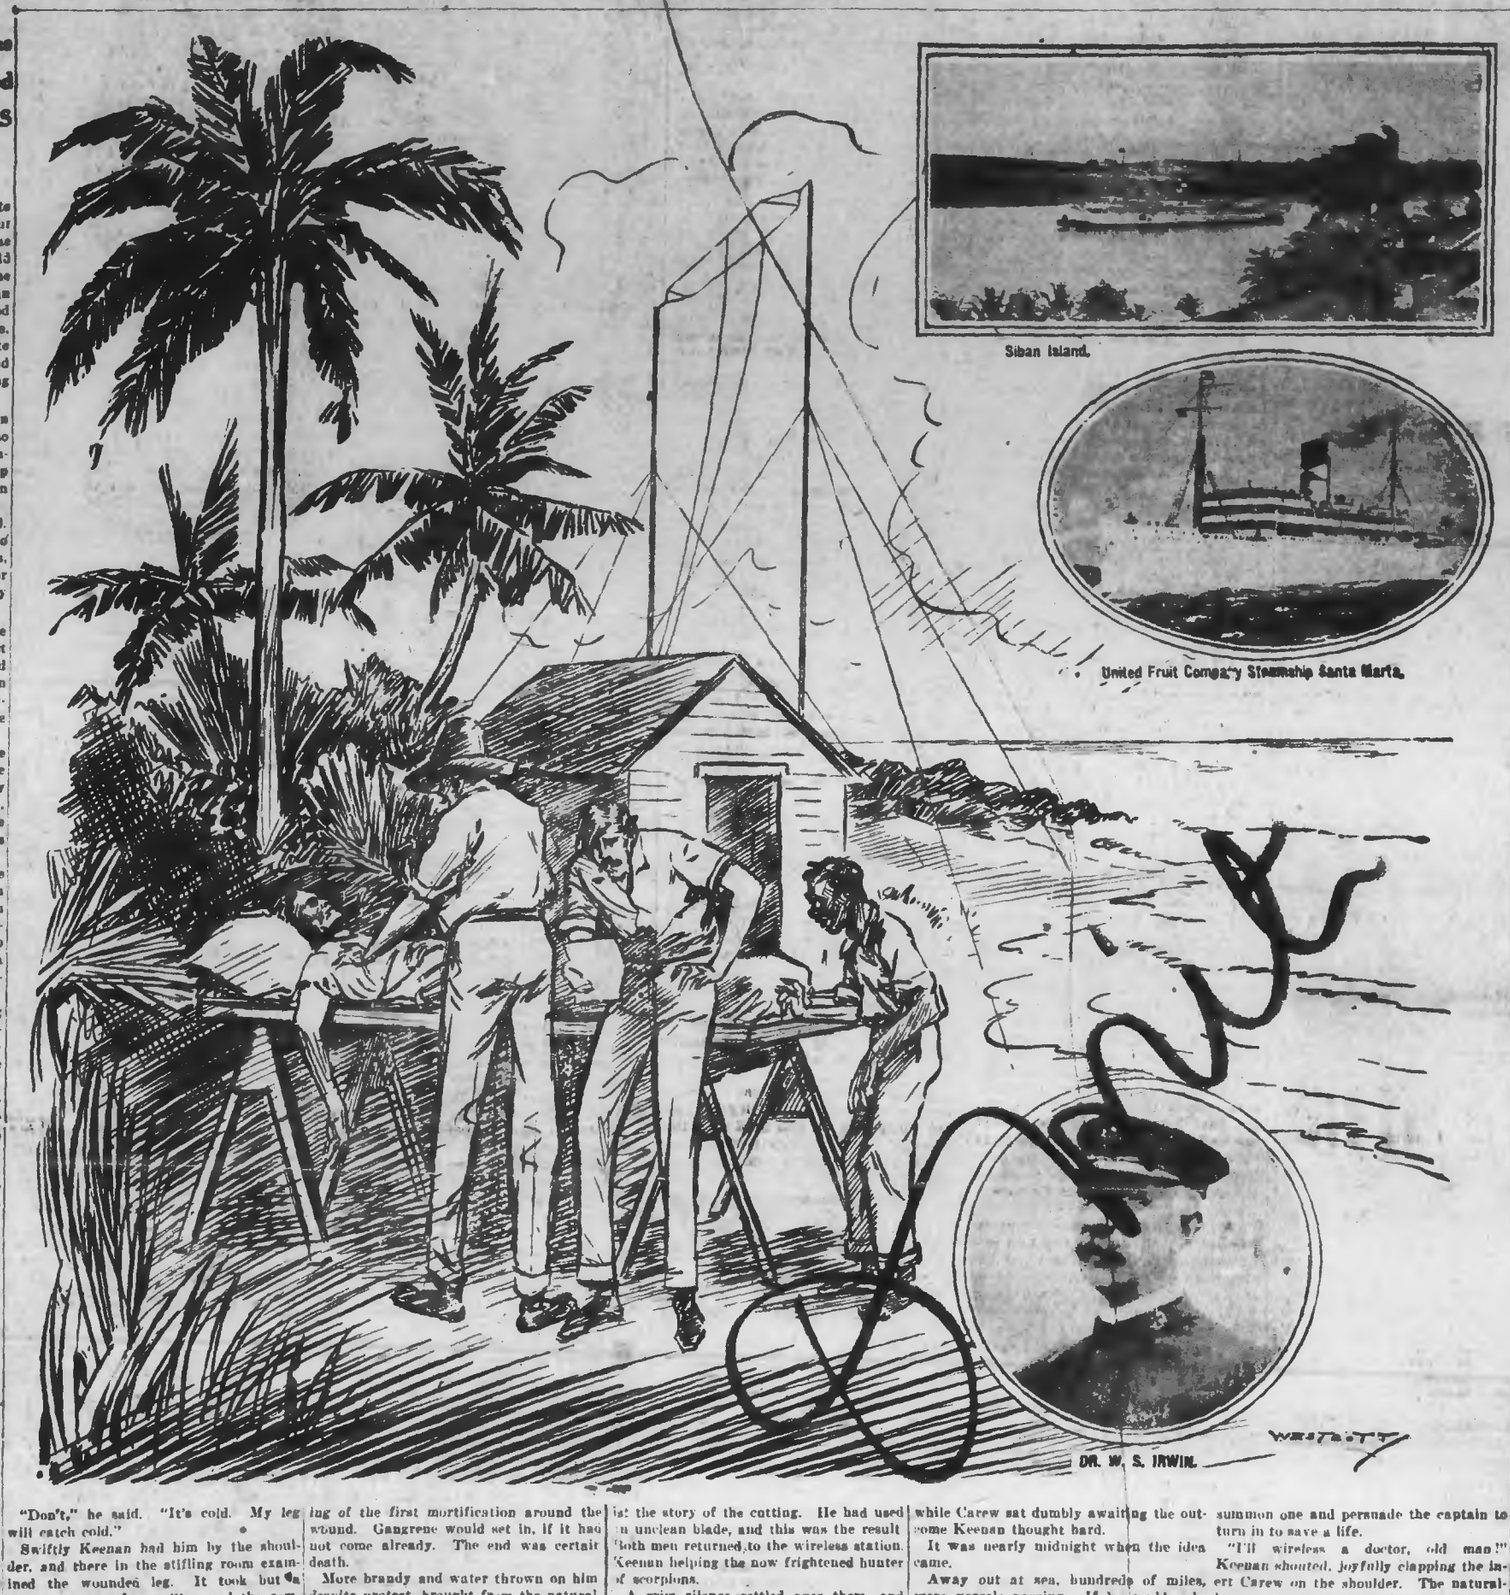
True Tales of Adventure

THRILLING ACCOUNT OF HOW DIFFICULT SURGICAL OPERATION WAS PERFORMED BY MEANS OF WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Life of Naturalist, Who Was Threatened with Blood Poisoning, Saved by S O S Call from Shore to Sea.

Surgeon on Board Passing Steamer Sends Wireless Directions to Operator on Barren Island, Who Wields Knife Successfully.



Siban Island.

United Fruit Company Steamship Santa Marta.

DR. W. S. IRWIN.

THE wireless spark that cries to the shore for help when night and terror settle down on the doomed steamship, and the wild moment of thanksgiving as the message of deliverance drums in the weary operator's ear, has furnished many a thrill, but the cry from shore, searching the sea and finding the white speck on its bosom that means hope and life, is rare ind, to put it mildly ,reversing the order of things.

Of course, in story books the hero often finds himself cast away and in put to no great shift to rig a wireless whose uncouth patterings turn the great steamship from her path and bring the right girl in the bargain.

But this is a story of Swan Island. Despite the name you would not care to live on Swan Island. There are no swans, nor are there any dainty ox-eyed Junos or peroxide Junos to marry the castaway earl.

Swan Island lies in the tropics, some hundred miles off Honduras—if you insist on getting out your Rand-McNally—and by common report is the most forsaken thing in the Caribbean Sea, which is saying much. The Caribbean is no Lake Geneva.

It would be hard to imagine a more dreary place or one less suited for the local color to a story with a thrill. A few huts scattered over the swampy ground, some palms, some cocoanut trees, and the tally is complete, all but the wireless station.

Commerce must be served, and the United Fruit Company has erected on Swan Island a little station that keeps in touch with steamships passing five hundred miles out to sea. The station also relays messages from Port Limon, Costa Rica (see your map again), over to Jamaica.

Nothing else remains in the summing up of Swan Island but scorpions, tarantulas and a multitude of carnivorous insects whose execution would drive the New Jersey product to envious suicide.

Thither at the close of a sweltering day in summer came a new wireless operator and a visitor. Necessity brought the operator, curiosity brought the visitor. The same steamship deposited both on the white beach, to call a month later with another operator. Keenan, the wireless man, was in luck, for after a month alone on Swan Island—that is, alone so far as white companions are concerned except for a single "beach comber," which is deemed sufficient by the company—men show the beginnings of a line of self-addressed conversation which would not entitle them any too firmly to the major premise, "Man is a rational animal."

Curiosity and scorpions brought the visitor, one Warren Carew, who hailed from New York and should have known better. Carew had money and troops of friends, picked up in odd parts of the globe, but he preferred to list scorpions. He was a naturalist, he told the wireless man, and Keenan, accustomed to strange men and strange places, shrugged his shoulders and was glad for the companionship the naturalist brought.

At daylight, before the heat of the sun made life a burden, Carew collected his ugly specimens, and later he talked with Keenan, who furnished gossip of the world snatched from passing craft. Two weeks passed in desultory fashion, with morning searches and afternoons looking over the hot blue sea before and the lagoon behind, that lay like a spot of tarnished silver showing through the scrawny palms.

Carew was careless and one morning it happened. The lobster-like claws of the scorpion nipped and Carew went off balance. The nip was not dangerous, but the sprawl threw him into line for the stinging tail of the holder of venom that meant death—death unless heroic measures were adopted. Whatever else Carew was he was not a coward. The report of Keenan and all information that can be gathered shows he acted with Spartan courage but again he was careless.

The small spot in the calf of the leg where the poison entered was bared by him and a common jackknife brought into play. Quickly Carew cut at the place, and slashed until there was a free flow from a wound three inches long. He bound up the leg with strips of clothing and hobbled back to his hut.

Keenan saw him and hurried to his assistance. Carew was made comfortable in a bunk, and sweltered cheerfully through the afternoon, believing he had saved himself. Copious doses of brandy muddled his senses and Keenan returned to his post. There were no signs of the swift death that follows the sting of the scorpion.

Two days passed and on the evening of the third Keenan noticed the mat curtains drawn in Carew's hut. A group of natives gesticulated before the door, but none would enter. The wireless operator pushed aside the drawn matting, wondering why Carew should have closed himself in when the slightest breath of sultry air was a blessed relief. Carew sat in a corner of the hut laughing. He had lighted the lamp, which added to the almost unbearable heat of the hut.

The wireless man gasped out:—"What's the matter? Don't you want any air? You'll suffocate." He started to draw aside the curtains, when the naturalist stopped him.

"Don't," he said. "It's cold. My leg will catch cold."

Swiftly Keenan had him by the shoulder, and there in the stifling room examined the wounded leg. It took but a glance to note the swelling and the coming of the first mortification around the wound. Gangrene would set in, if it had not come already. The end was certain death.

More brandy and water thrown on him despite protest, brought from the naturalist the story of the cutting. He had used an unclean blade, and this was the result. Both men returned to the wireless station, Keenan helping the now frightened hunter of scorpions.

A grim silence settled over them, and while Carew sat dumbly awaiting the outcome Keenan thought hard.

It was nearly midnight when the idea came.

Away out at sea, hundreds of miles, were vessels passing. If he could only summon one and persuade the captain to turn in to save a life.

"I'll wireless a doctor, old man!" Keenan shouted, joyfully clapping the invert Carew on the shoulder. The naturalist was too amazed for the time being to grasp the idea, but after he caught the spirit his anxiety was pitiful.

"But the steamship would not turn so far," he wailed. Then he cried out:—"Promise them anything. I can pay."

His dynamos running smoothly, Keenan fingered the key and the blue sparks crackled. He repeated at intervals and waited. There was no answering click in the receivers. Through the night the crackling kept up while the awakened natives and the comber hurried to the station to watch the blue spark that snarled out into the tropical night.

Toward morning Port Limon answered, but here was no help. At daylight the swelling had increased, and with the approach of what he believed the end the New York man became insane.

"I am sorry, friend," he said, "but I think it's pretty near over. We are too far from help, and, besides, it is all impossible. No ship would turn. I promise not to break down again. If I do become crazy and there is no hope, I depend on you to"—— and he nodded significantly toward his revolver.

Keenan did not answer. Somewhere out on the Caribbean he knew the Santa Marta was ploughing along, so he plied the wireless unceasingly.

The answer came about nine o'clock in the morning from the Santa Marta, which reported her position exactly 400 miles to the southeast. Rapid exchanges brought a refusal to turn to Swan Island. The ship's surgeon, Dr. W. S. Irwin, standing beside the wireless, said it would be useless. And the message was sent to Keenan, who dared not look at the doomed young man.

That seemed to be the end for a moment. Then there came a new sputtering in the receiver.

"The doctor says to perform the operation yourself."

"How can I?" the spark from Swan Island questioned the Santa Marta at sea.

Back came the instructions.

"Get him ready," said the wireless. "You have Warren's medical book there and you can go on the pages I mention. Describe the symptoms."

Keenan told of the condition of the wound and the circumstances, but he insisted on his fears when it came time to amputate.

"No amputation necessary," came back the message. "A lot of cutting according to direction and your man is saved."

Keenan bowed this message to the trembling man and made ready for further directions.

"Take a tourniquet," said the wireless. It was hard to believe that out of sight beyond the horizon a trained mind at another instrument was directing through space the way to save a human life.

With the aid of the beach comber the tourniquet was applied and a knife—Carew's own, which had caused the trouble—plunged in boiling water to make it clean. More brandy was [illegible] man and everything was ready for the operation. A native boy who acted as Herman's helper ran after articles as directed.

By turning to the page he had been directed Keenan found a chart of the leg.

"Ready," he flashed to Dr. Irwin.

The first direction came, he repeated it back and it was verified, so there could be no mistake. Each part of the lancing was gone over carefully under repeated instructions. Meantime the Santa Marta continued to plunge along on the blue Caribbean.

And when the cutting was over there came the query from the ship to shore:—

"Have you any tar?"

Keenan had, and the instruction came to boil it and pour it on the raw clean wound. It was rough surgery, but the best thing under the circumstances. Carew fainted under it and was revived.

"Tell him he's safe now," came the wireless.

The tourniquet was removed and the numbed leg, still horribly painful under the searing tar, was bandaged.

"Got plenty of brandy?" asked the spark.

"About the only thing we have," Keenan pounded back.

"Let him have enough to forget his troubles," ordered the surgeon, and the message was sent.

Now by rights all should have been over with the saving of Carew. But there remained the one touch that will be a long time finding its duplicate.

The following day the young naturalist appeared dragging himself along with a cane in defiance of orders. He stopped by the wireless man who had taken his instrument out under the trees.

"Forget it," he said when the other began to remonstrate. "I feel great. It's wonderful to know you're going to live after all. I want to thank that doctor."

So Keenan raised the Santa Marta again and the surgeon was called to the wireless room.

"Tell him I can't operate the key as it means anything," said Carew, "but if he will sit down at the instrument I'll make some dots with the thing and then open it for the present. You know all hands will be busy [illegible] when he has the key and I can [illegible]."

And so it happened that through over the blue Caribbean there passed only dots that meant nothing and everything.

WHEN W. S. Gilbert wrote his ditty about "the policeman's lot is not a happy one" he did not have the Indian policeman in mind, but his song would have been just as true and just as effective if it had been written of the red-skinned guardian of the peace on one of Uncle Sam's Indian reservations.

For the Indian policeman who maintains law and order on the domain of the government's ward is not an idle being. The place is not one for a weakling or a faint heart, for the Indian policeman must be a hard rider, a sure shot and ready and willing to spend many hours in the saddle chasing some desperado who is more than likely to put up a fight with rifle and revolver.

Probably the best body of Indian police in the world is on the Crow Indian reservation, in Montana. The Crow reservation is one of the largest in the country. It is larger than the average New England State and it is the mecca of desperadoes and unscrupulous persons who look upon the Indian as a lawful prey and who count it no crime to rustle the red man's cattle or sell him vile whiskey at outrageous prices. Yet this great reservation, containing hundreds of miles of rolling plains and secret mountain fastnesses, where there is "good hiding" for the lawless, is patrolled by less than two dozen policemen, who have made cattle rustling, liquor selling and other violations of the law a dangerous game for any one to follow.

The Crow Indian police were brought to their present state of efficiency by Major S. G. Reynolds, who has been Crow Indian agent for five years and who has brought the tribe from a lazy, ration drawing lot of blanket Indians to a self-supporting community of farmers. The chief of police is Big Medicine, a full blooded Crow, who is one of the most fearless riders of the reservation. Big Medicine is an Indian of tremendous stature and possesses a fine figure which in the saddle. One glance at his broad shoulders and deep chest are usually had the bad luck to fall in the clutches of force of policemen. His force is divided part of the reservation. Big Medicine up and shot the messiah dead.

himself looks after the Crow Agency section, where he has his hands full. A railroad bisects the reservation and trains make long stops at the agency. "Bootleggers" who think they can make a few dollars by smuggling whiskey to the Indians drop off freight trains, but are promptly seized by the vigilant chief and escorted to the agency lockup. At the first show of resistance there is a fight, and Big Medicine has never been worsted in a combat with the red man's hereditary foes.

Next to Big Medicine are the lieutenants, Fire Bear, Josh Buffalo, Bear Claw and Scolds the Bear. All are absolutely fearless, and Fire Bear and Bear Claw are particularly dreaded by the hobo fraternity. Fire Bear has achieved the distinction of killing the only Crow Indian who ever went on the warpath against the white men. The Indian in question was a young messiah known as Wraps-Up-His-Tail, who conceived the idea that he could lead a successful revolt against white domination. The young Indian made several strange prophecies that came true, and this brought a following of young and impressionable braves under his banner. The Indians took to the hills and sent defiances to the agent, who telegraphed for troops. A regiment was ordered to the agency and the commanding officer sent for the messiah to come in. Wraps-Up-His-Tail came in, but only to kill the "long swords." He had become possessed of the idea that he could cause all the soldiers to fall dead when he brandished his red sword which he wore at his side. He charged at the soldiers and shot a cavalryman whose horse had become unmanageable and had bolted from the line toward the messiah. At this a Hotchkiss gun was fired at the messiah, and his horse was killed. Wraps-Up-His-Tail plunged into the Little Big Horn River and would have made his escape had not Fire Bear, the Indian policeman, dashed

Could Not Walk, Until "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Him

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd. 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continual exposure, left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk. My bowels were so constipated that I only had one passage a week until I got to using "Fruit-a-tives". They cured me of both the Rheumatism and Constipation. In my regular employment, I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health. No more Rheumatism or Constipation. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE WEREWOLF

An Adventure In a Chinese Temple

By CLARISSA MACKIE

In front of the wretched Chinese inn John Thornton made his decision. His bearers had paused in the gateway leading to the filthy, ill smelling courtyard, while the landlord of the inn peered distrustfully at the foreign devil who had applied for a bed.

"Len Ho!" called Thornton, and his guide and interpreter stood forth.

"Hi?" shrilled the man.

"I cannot stop in this place. I will go back and sleep in the ruined temple we passed beyond the city wall; better rats and bats than—vermin and other evils."

"As my lord wishes. But the temple is a most wretched abode," said Len Ho doubtfully, "and the bearers would refuse to go with you."

"Let them remain here. You may accompany me and bring one who can carry my food and bedding. I will cook my own food. Hasten." Thornton strode away down the narrow street darkening in the twilight.

He had reached the city wall and the gate by which they had entered a short time before ere Len Ho and the reluctant bearer caught up with him.

"I AM NOT AFRAID," REPEATED THORNTON WEARILY.

"My lord is determined to go on?" asked Len Ho after they had passed through the gate and plunged into the darkness of the rutty road beyond.

"Yes. I prefer the sky for a roof if I cannot find a more cleanly place than the best inn of the city," said Thornton severely.

"Better the open sky than the fallen roof of a temple," said Len Ho darkly.

"What do you mean?"

"Spirits lurk in the ruins of the Temple of the Thousand Eyes and Ten Thousand Ears."

"I'm not afraid of spirits, Len Ho! I am more wary of a merciless Chinese pirate than of a dozen ghosts."

"This is a fearsome one. My lord has never heard of the werewolf?" whispered Len Ho, afraid that some evil spirit might bear his slandering words.

"Of course. One can't travel in China for eighteen months without being introduced to the werewolf and all the dragons that infest land and sea," returned Thornton.

"This is worse than dragons, worse than the fox faced woman! 'Tis the wolf man. He devours humans," shuddered Len Ho.

"I am not afraid," repeated Thornton wearily. "All I ask is a cleanly bed and a night's rest."

"If my lord looks on the face of the werewolf he will rest forever," predicted Len Ho gloomily.

"I'll take a chance on it," said the traveler grimly, as they turned into the grass grown path that led up to the ruined temple on the hilltop.

A full moon was climbing the heavens and the ruins were plainly visible in the white light. At the foot of the hill the river Soo rushed through rocky gorges, and its passing sent up a dull, reverberating roar that was very soothing.

"I can fancy I am sleeping down on the Quanxtet shore," mused Thornton who was from New England and loved the rugged Atlantic coast.

As the two Chinamen climbed the hill in advance of him Thornton thought rather grimly that it might be difficult to imagine oneself listening to the Atlantic's roar amid these intensely Asiatic surroundings. He was glad that his journeying was nearly over and that within three months at the latest he would be back in New York relating his adventures to the interested members of the Travelers' club.

Len Ho and the bearer disappeared through a broken archway and Thornton found himself climbing crumbling steps to follow after them. On either side of the steps were large stone figures of dead and gone priests of the temple, and as they stood in various menacing attitudes the American imagined that they looked at him with glaring eyes.

Len Ho had made a faint light, and as he swung the paper lantern in the archway to light his master through the darkness Thornton felt a strange presentiment of impending evil.

It seemed that he was surrounded by unseen enemies. He almost felt the impact of their crowded forms as he moved forward.

"I will sleep in the courtyard," said Thornton decisively, as Len Ho would have entered another dark archway through which the bearer had disappeared.

"The spirits will be displeased," warned Len Ho.

"Rubbish! Let me hear no more of this talk," said Thornton.

The two Chinese moved to and fro preparing some cooked rice and preserved fish for their own supper. Thornton lighted an alcohol stove, made coffee and ate some tinned meat and dry biscuits. Then, lighting his pipe, he flung himself on a blanket spread over a slab of stone and smoked dreamily.

Presently Len Ho brought him a pillow and a can of cold water, and then, the Chinese having withdrawn to the darkened cloisters of the temple, Thornton composed himself for slumber.

From his stony couch he could command a view of the archway through which they had entered the temple courtyard, as well as the cloisters. In the gloom of which the trusty Len Ho and his countrymen were resting more or less timidly, for in the face of the supernatural the native Chinaman is an arrant coward. He will stolidly meet acute physical suffering, but the mental anguish of encountering a spirit from another world is more than his courage can endure.

Thornton slept heavily while the shadows changed on the flagstones of the courtyard. Once or twice the face of Len Ho or the terror stricken countenance of the bearer peered fearfully from the cloisters, where they were passing a sleepless night.

Suddenly Thornton awoke with a start. Something wet and cold had dragged itself across his hand.

It was only a snail traveling slowly over his body, but the contact thoroughly awakened Thornton.

He watched the moon floating across the dark sky spaces, and then his glance fell to the black mouth of the arch.

While he looked something pale came into the black opening.

What was it? Was it the face of one of his men or the sneaking form of an intruder? He stared intently.

The thing grew larger and took form. Was it a man walking on all fours or was it a beast walking on two legs?

Thornton asked himself these questions, for the creature, whatever it was, walked sometimes on two legs and sometimes on four.

When it reached the middle of the courtyard it uttered a short barking yelp and turned its head toward the moon.

Then the American saw what the thing was. The upper part of the body was that of a gray wolf, sharp furry head and body. From the knees down it was a man with stout bare legs and feet that pattered on the stone as it went.

Again it lifted its head and howled, and a muffled scream of terror came from the cloisters, where Len Ho and his companion were sheltered.

Thornton kept very quiet. It was evident that the creature had not spied him.

There was no doubt in his mind that this was the werewolf, the spirit which Len Ho had warned him haunted the spot; the werewolf, part man and part wolf.

What an adventure to relate to the Travelers' club!

Thornton half lifted himself, and as he did so the thing turned and launched itself at him, with another yelping howl.

Thornton's revolver was always handy in these China prowlings, and he had whipped it out and fired it at the werewolf without recollecting that spirits care nothing for material bullets.

But the werewolf stoped short in his tracks, screamed lustily with a human note of pain in his voice and fell to the paving stones.

From the black arch there poured a number of dark clad forms, yelling with the shrill hysteria of a Chinese mob.

By this time Thornton had reached the cloisters where Len Ho, though shivering with dread, grasped him by the hand and was fleeing with him through the darkness. By some rare intuition Len Ho guided his master safely through tortuous passages, up and down broken steps and finally through a narrow arch that gave upon the other side of the hill.

Silently they fled down the hill, the friendly moon drawing a dark cloud over her face and hiding their escape from the murderous eyes of the band of Chinese pirates who made the ruined temple their headquarters and whose chief, wearing a wolfskin, terrified all unwary intruders by assuming the spiritual role of the dreaded werewolf.

Thornton and his guide reached the American mission just at dawn, and the weary American decided that his adventure with the werewolf was a fitting close to his journey through central China.

As for the Travelers' club, when it heard the story it asked to a man:

"How do you know that the thing wasn't a werewolf after all?"

And Thornton couldn't find an answer to that question.

HAD INDIGESTION.

Almost Despaired of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that Indigestion and Dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several Doctor's medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from Indigestion."

REMARKABLE BOY PREACHER

Charles Forbes Taylor is 14 and has earned the title of "the boy Moody and Sankey." He has a splendid voice and sings evangelical hymns in such an appealing way that many converts have been made in meetings where he was the soloist.

Master Taylor is a Yorkshire lad. His father is the Rev. Charles Taylor of Leeds, so it is quite natural that he should be interested in church work, too. The boy singer is quite an athlete, too.

Antiquities in Danger

Hidden away in the national museums and libraries and zealously guarded are a number of priceless manuscripts and books which but for a fortunate chance might have been lost to the world. The chief treasure of a museum at St. Petersburg is the oldest known Greek manuscript of the New Testament, which was about to be burned by the monks of a Syrian monastery, when by a lucky chance one of the priests, struck with the antiquity of the manuscript, interfered in time to save what had been thought valueless.

Course of the Panama Canal.

There is a somewhat popular delusion about the Panama canal—to wit, that the course from Colon, on the Caribbean or Atlantic side of the isthmus, to Panama, on the Pacific side, is from east to west. Of course the Atlantic is at the east and the Pacific is at the west, but the isthmus is very crooked and at this point tends from a little south of west to north of east, and Colon is actually farther west than Panama. As a result the canal runs from north-northwest to south-southeast, and on reaching the Pacific one finds himself farther east than he was when he left the Atlantic. Queer, isn't it, to go westward by going eastward? But it's a geographical fact, all the same, which few realize until they study the map.—New York Tribune

He Curbed Cecil Rhodes.

Rhodes' masterfulness and sense of importance met with little opposition, as a rule, but a little German clerk in the Transvaal government offices at Johannesburg before the war once taught him a lesson. "Please attend to me at once!" thundered the colossus. "I can't wait." "When your turn comes, mister," replied the clerk. "Confound you, man, don't you know who I am?" asked Rhodes. "Oh, yes, I know you, but don't worry about me," was the clerk's unruffled reply. "If you were in Cape Town I'd have you discharged at once!" roared the great man. "Yes," said the clerk, very coolly, "I've heard they discharge people in Cape Town for doing their duty. But this isn't Cape Town—this is a republic."—Manchester Guardian.

MOTHER! MOTHER! YOUR CROSS, SICK CHILD NEEDS ONLY "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

If Peevish, feverish, tongue coated, give "fruit laxative" at once

No matter what ails your child a laxative should be the first treatment given.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign your "little one's" stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless fruit laxative. Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

VALUE OF RHEUMA FROM THE COURT

Judge Barbarat Was Relieved of Rheumatism After Doctors Failed

If you have tried many other remedies and doctors' treatments for Rheumatism and found they failed, do not be skeptical about trying RHEUMA. Read the testimony of Judge John Barbarat of Fort Lesaine, O.:

"After treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previously, I was a cripple, walking with crutches."

Such testimony should be convincing, 50 cents at Warne Drug Co., guaranteed.

Three Hundred Killed.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Feb. 4.—Three hundred men of the rival revolutionary armies were killed in the hard fought battle reported in progress Monday at Gonaives, in which the adherents of Senator Davilmar Theodore were signally defeated by the followers of Gen. Orestes Zamor, formerly government delegate at Cape Haitien.

Zamor has proclaimed himself chief executive of the republic.

ACTION IS DEFERRED.

U. S. House Decides Not to Exclude All Asiatics.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — Asiatic exclusion agitation was quieted, temporarily at least, in the House yesterday after a heated debate that brought both Republican and Democratic leaders to the floor with pleas for calmness and deliberation. By overwhelming votes the House stripped from the immigration bill under consideration all amendments which would have placed a bar against Asiatic immigration.

The action was taken after Republican Leader Mann, Representative Sherley of Kentucky and other leaders had made a vigorous fight to overcome the sentiment which Monday night expressed itself by a vote of 111 to 90 in favor of the perfection of an amendment to exclude Mongolians, Malays and negroes. The speakers insisted that there should be no hasty action that might embarrass the State Department in its relations with the Japanese Government.

The House was in confusion, with half a dozen members vociferously demanding an opportunity to be heard, when the tide was turned by Republican Leader Mann, who strode to the centre of the chamber and, quieting the tumult, began in a low, grave voice:

"I have been long enough in this House, I hope, to place the country above party. I do not believe any of these amendments should be adopted at this time. Dealings with our foreign affairs is a matter of delicacy at best.

"I am not prepared to invite war with Japan or any other country; though if that war should come as the result of any legislation, I would not shrink from it."

Representative Mann concluded amid a tumult of applause. The debate continued, and when votes were forced the amendments were decisively defeated.

MAY IMPORT ARMS

Carranistas Given Means to Make End of Huerta

U. S. EMBARGO IS REMOVED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—President Wilson yesterday issued a proclamation rescinding the official embargo placed on the exportation of arms and ammunition from the United States into Mexico. Through the removal of restrictions on such shipments the Constitutionalists will be able to obtain munitions of war from this country, and will be given the opportunity to prove their claim that with the embargo raised they will drive Gen. Huerta from power in short order.

With free shipments of arms permitted, the matter of withdrawing a large portion of the American regular troops on the Mexican border is said to have been considered, and developments in this connection are predicted. Recognition of the Constitutionalist as competing the de facto authority in the Mexican territory, their control is expected to be proclaimed shortly as a second step in the program of affording material aid to the revolutionary cause initiated by the President's proclamation concerning arms and ammunition.

In his proclamation, President Wilson gives as his reasons for lifting the embargo, that conditions "have essentially changed," and "it is desirable to place the United States with reference to the exportation of arms or munitions of war to Mexico in the same position as other powers."

The understanding that shipments of arms to the Huerta Government from Japan and other countries had been a matter of serious concern to the Administration appears to be confirmed by this quoted extract from President Wilson's proclamation. The Administration felt that the Constitutionalists, unable to obtain war materials from the United States, their only source of supply, were being placed in an unfair position by this Government.

Grave Step Says Telegraph.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Few of the London newspapers this morning comment on President Wilson's proclamation lifting the embargo on arms at the Mexican frontier.

The Daily Telegraph, however, describes the proclamation as a grave step, which finds no parallel in modern history.

The Daily Chronicle considers that it was impossible for President Wilson to remain indefinitely a spectator of the chaos of which in some sense it says, he is the cause, and that he had to choose between suppressing Huerta himself or in helping the rebels suppress them. The newspaper adds that the American problem is to eject Huerta from the Presidency, but to replace him by anybody who is better than he.

GLASS TANK BROKE.

Celebrated Exhibition Swimmer Is Hurt During Show.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Feb. 4.—While giving a performance in the Bermuda aquarium yesterday afternoon, Annette Kellermann, the Australian swimmer, and Herbert Brennan sustained severe injuries owing to the bursting of a glass tank, containing eight thousand gallons of water.

In one of the scenes the pressure became too great and the glass front gave way with a crash. The tremendous rush of water sucked the occupants across the jagged edges of the glass. Miss Kellerman was badly lacerated on the left side, while Brennan was gashed seriously in the arms and legs.

Brennan was removed to a hospital and Miss Kellerman was taken to the hotel where she had been staying.

To Look For Explorers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 4. — A relief expedition to search the Arctic seas for Lieut. Sedoff, the Russian explorer, who started for the North Pole from Archangel in August, 1912, is being organized by the Russian Government.

Lieut. Sedoff, who was said to be using polar bears as draught animals for his sledges, was reported to have been seen at Nova Zembla last October, but this was erroneous.

To Dine Paardeberg Veterans.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—The Paardeberg dinner will be held at Government House on Saturday evening, Feb. 28. The invitation from H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught have been issued to all the officers in Canada who served in the South African war.

Students To Make Diet Tests.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—Next Tuesday 20 students of the normal school of physical education, affiliated with McGill University, will start a three months' diet test. Five will take a meat course three meals per day. Fifteen students will adopt a modified meat-vegetable diet, four more will try out strict vegetarianism, while others will go over to subsist for 13 weeks upon a "strictly scientific" bill of fare. The students will show up on June 2 for medical examination, and the experiment is being watched with interest.

Woman Took Carbolic.

ST. CATHARINES, Feb. 4.—Mrs. George Van Slack, who came here recently from British Columbia with her husband and two children, swallowed carbolic acid during the night and then awakened her husband and told him what she had done. She gave as a reason that their little savings were dwindling, and if she was out of the way there would be more left for the children. The woman was rushed to the hospital and may recover.

SIR JAMES ACTIVE.

He Confers With Acting Premier Foy —Sir George Ross a Little Better.

TORONTO, Feb. 4. — Indications are that Sir James Whitney is on the high road towards recovery. He is able to sit up in his room for extended periods, and his medical attendants are permitting him to be interviewed by members of the Cabinet. He had a long conversation with Hon. J. J. Foy, acting Premier, on Monday, after which he showed no signs of fatigue.

Asked if Sir James is really out of danger, Dr. McPhedran declared that while the unexpected may happen, the patient is reasonably expected to recover. It is understood that the Premier will be removed to his home in about two weeks. No more bulletins will be issued.

Sir George Ross was declared to be just a little better at a late hour last night, and had rested comfortably during the day. The doctors believe that he will regain his strength, though slowly.

Negotiating Peace Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, had a long conference with Secretary Bryan yesterday, regarding the formulation of a peace treaty between the United States and Great Britain similar to those the Secretary already has negotiated with eleven countries, six of which have actually signed the convention.

Great Britain has approved Mr. Bryan's plan in principle. It is not regarded as probable, however, that the provision for stopping the development of armament for a year while international commissions of inquiry are at work would be included in a British-American peace convention.

Aylmer Recount Fails.

AYLMER, Feb. 4. — The recount asked for by local opticists of the recent bylaw vote took place here yesterday before Judge Colter of St. Thomas. The recount left the vote as it was at the time of the election. It has not been decided if the local optimists will carry the case further on other grounds, but should they do so the case will be heard at St. Thomas on Feb. 16.

My Meals Don't Hurt A Bit

A Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet Will Aid Your Exhausted Stomach to Digest Any Meal.

Isn't it a real joy to see children eat? There is almost a ridiculous humour about it. The same joy that a child feels at meal time should be experienced by "grown ups" and would be if they would only do as children do.

The work, worries and woes of adult life exhaust the digestive apparatus and nature very often is not allowed time or opportunity to renew or repair the exhausted organs and depleted digestive juices.

"Well Whata You Think o' a Big Feed Without Pain?"

A Stuart's tablet goes into the stomach like food. It contains nothing but natural digestive elements and when at work in a weak stomach it aids the worn-out gastric glands, supplies the right mixture of stomach juices and under the action of the stomach it thoroughly permeates all the food. Thus when the stomach work is done the meal goes into the small intestines in better shape to be assimilated by the system.

One element of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is so strong and efficient that one grain of it will digest 3,000 grains of mixed food such as meats, vegetables, grains, fluids, etc.

The simple habit of eating a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after each meal will readjust your digestion in a very short time so that you will not longer need assistance.

FIVE MINUTE CURE IF STOMACH IS BAD

When "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches Stomach All Indigestion, and Gas Sourness Disappears

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach troubles has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Train and Track.

Austria will shortly spend $120,000,000 for new railway lines.

New Zealand's railways in 1913 yielded a profit of $6,150,000.

The Pennsylvania railroad employs 151,000 persons, of whom 109,000 live in the state of Pennsylvania.

The Prussian state railways are using 280 storage battery cars at less cost than steam locomotives or gasoline-electric cars.

No Cause For Actors.

There is one profession that has always refrained from carrying a walking stick. The actor knows well that on the stage he must walk without extraneous support, and he knows that the mere hint of a walking stick in his hand as he walks the streets is a temptation to lean this way or that. Actors, even when out of a job, never lean on a stick. They know that their balanced walk is their asset. If the whole of society recurs to walking sticks the actors will refrain.—London Chronicle.

Crematorium In Demand.

Regret was expressed at the recent annual meeting of the Cremation Society of New South Wales, that the Government had not yet been induced to provide funds to establish a crematorium. The president said there was a very strong desire on the part of many people to have their remains disposed of in this way; and added that he had himself made explicit arrangements for his body to be cremated, even if it had to be burned in a willow log.

Quick Way To Make Ugly Hairs Vanish

(The Modern Beauty)

Here is a quick and very effective treatment for banishing objectionable hairs or fuss: Mix a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water and apply to the hairy surface for about 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off and with it will come every trace of hair. Washing the skin to remove the remaining paste leaves it firm and free from blemish. Rarely is more than one application required, but results are more positive when the delatone is purchased in an original package.

BOTH WERE DRAMATIC.

A Story of Frederick the Great and One of His Officers.

Frederick the Great had a strong sense of the dramatic. He had a certain lieutenant colonel in the Prussian army. Accordingly there is plenty of "plot" in the following story:

The officer, who had been discharged at the close of the Seven Years' war, importuned the king to be reinstated. Weary of the incessant solicitations of his troublesome visitor, Frederick at last gave orders that he should never be admitted to his presence.

Some weeks later a most bitter libel against his majesty appeared. Frederick seldom gave himself any concern about such pasquinades, but the present one exasperated him so much that he offered a reward of 50 friedrichs of gold for the discovery of the author.

The day following the discharged lieutenant colonel demanded and obtained an audience.

"Sire," he began, on being admitted, "your majesty has just promised 50 friedrichs for the discovery of the author of a recent publication. I am come to claim the reconpense. Behold in me the unfortunate libeler. My life I forfeit freely, but remember your royal pledge and, while you punish me, send to my poor wife and children the reward due to the informer."

The king, although struck with the end extremity and self sacrifice of the officer, said sternly:

"Go instantly to the fortress of Spandau and there await my judgment."

"I obey," said the culprit; "but the money?"

"Within two hours your wife shall receive it," said the king. "Take this letter and give it to the commandant, but be must not open it until after dinner."

The lieutenant colonel arrived at Spandau and gave himself up as a prisoner. At the prescribed moment the commandant opened the royal mandate. It ran:

To the bearer I give the command of Spandau. I shall be with him in a few days. The present governor is to take the command of Berlin as a reward for past services. FREDERICK.

Suggested Loan of Rifles.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—In view of the fact that owing to a War Office decision, only open sights, as used on the British service rifles, will henceforth be permitted at Bisley, which excludes the Ross rifle with its peep sight, it is understood that a suggestion will be sent from Canada that the Militia Department here loan the British territorials sufficient Ross rifles to equip all those competing at the N. R. A. meet, thus putting all competitors on the same plane and giving Canada an opportunity of sending over a team.

Woman Is Honored.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Feb. 4.—Miss Sarah Purser has received the appointment of governor and guardian of the National Gallery of Ireland from the Earl of Aberdeen, the Lord Lieutenant. The position is equivalent to that of trustee of the British Museum, and is of the most important in the British art world. Miss Purser was elected an honorary member of the Royal Hibernian Academy.

Still Under Martial Law.

SAN JUAN DEL SUR, Nicaragua, Feb. 4.—The Nicaraguan Congress yesterday approved the President's decree prolonging the state of siege for 60 days. Nicaragua has been under martial law for several months owing to the danger from revolutionary movements, and at the same time a strict censorship has been exercised over despatches.

SAY COUNTY WAS STOLEN.

Temperance Workers In Welland to Press For Inquiry.

WELLAND, Feb. 4.—The arrest of Deputy Returning Officer H. Coulthurst at Bridgeburg Monday night, charged with irregularities in connection with the vote on the Canada Temperance Act in Welland County last Thursday, was followed by a mass meeting of the temperance workers in the Baptist church here yesterday afternoon, when the whole situation was thoroughly discussed and committees were appointed, which will likely result in an application being made for an official scrutiny before the County Judge. The temperance forces declare that the irregularities are a deliberate plot to steal the county from them.

Coulthurst's arrest was on information laid by William Christian, who was scrutineer for the temperance party, and he is now out on $2,000 bail, $1,000 provided by himself and the remainder by two other sureties. The preliminary hearing will be held before Magistrate House at Bridgeburg to-morrow morning.

GATHERS UP POWER.

Yuan Shi Kai Does Away With Chinese Provincial Councils.

PEKIN, Feb. 4.—All the district councils in the provinces of China were ordered to be dissolved in a Presidential mandate, issued yesterday by Yuan Shi Kai. This is regarded in authoritative circles here as another important step toward the suppression of popular government in China.

The final move in this direction, it is said, will be the dispersal of the provincial assemblies, a mandate for the dissolution of which is to be submitted to the administrative council in Pekin for the purpose of giving legal color to Yuan Shi Kai's dictatory action.

The administrative council which to approve Yuan Shi Kai's decree consists of two representatives from each province, four cabinet ministers, a representative official from each ministry and eight members of the Presidential secretariat. The council takes into consideration only those questions submitted to it by Yuan Shi Kai and the Government, and owing to its composition is said never to consider them but to take them as orders.

Sage Tea Darkens Hair To Any Shade

Don't Stay Grey! Here's an Old time Recipe That Anybody Can Apply

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, grey hair to its natural colour dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is musty and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

Seven Men Jailed as Climax To Daring Series of Burglaries

Toronto Police After Long Search Round Up Five Men Charged With Shop-breaking and Two Charged With Receiving.

MOTOR CARS USED

TORONTO, Feb. 4. — One of the biggest clean-ups made by the Toronto police in many years was concluded last night by the arrest of seven men, on charges of shopbreaking and receiving. The arrests are the culmination of several days 'of hard work on the part of every detective and policeman on the Toronto police force. These men, it is claimed, for months have been burglarising stores and dwellings and making their getaway each time in motor cars which they would steal from streets and leave standing on other streets after they had no further use for them.

The men held on charges of shopbreaking are: James Walker, no address; Jack Goldsmith, 42 Beverley; A. Surat, 42 Beverley; Howard Phoenix, no address; John Mott, no address.

Those held on charges of receiving are: Herman Silverman, 136 Huron; Herman Starkman, 115 St. Patrick street.

Albert Crittenden, 32 Shaftesbury street, who is believed to be the brains, organizer and leader of the gang, has been in custody since last Friday night, when he was arrested while attempting to enter a tailor shop at 326 Spadina avenue. At that ti ne he gave his name as Smith, but subsequent investigations by the police justified their suspicions that he is the leader of the seven men arrested last night.

The gang operated principally among small tailor shops, from which large supplies of cloth would be taken, whisked away in the stolen motor cars to the shops of Silverman and Starkman, and then shipped out of town.

The local detective department state that over a dozen downtown clothing and tailoring stores have been entered and robbed by members of the gang within the past six weeks. Although the matter had been kept quiet pending police investigations, shop breakings in the downtown sections were of almost nightly occurrence, and the police list of missing articles runs into thousands of dollars. In Starkman's tailoring store on St. Patrick street alone, Detective Guthrie unearthed over a thousand dollars' worth of stolen goods. Silverman is a junk dealer who has been in the hands of the police before on similar charges. His place was searched, but nothing found.

In every robbery pulled off by the gang, a stolen motor car was utilised for the purpose of carrying the booty and making a quick getaway. Crittenden was caught Friday at midnight in the act of burglarising a tailor shop at 326 Spadina avenue. The officer on the beat walked into a lane at the rear, and found the man picking the lock on the back door. Two of Crittenden's pals made their escape by scurrying up a ladder and along the roofs of nearby stores. Whether they are among the number now under arrest, the police do not know. Standing on St. Andrews street about a block away from the scene of the arrest, police officers found the gang's motor car, which had been stolen that evening from a garage at 30 West Wellington street.

Silverman and Starkman were got yesterday afternoon at their stores by Detectives Taylor and Plainclothesman McConnell. Detective Guthrie arrested Jame. Walker walking along Queen street last night. Goldsmith and Surat were detained at their Beverley street rooming-house by Guthrie and Holmes at three o'clock yesterday morning, and Phoenix and Mott were caught walking together along Queen street last night by Plainclothesmen Koster and Scott.

SPECULATION AS TO ASQUITH'S ULSTER SPEECH

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 4.—There is much speculation concerning the important declaration which Premier Asquith will make about Ulster during the opening debate of Parliament on Tuesday of next week. Among the concessions that he will offer are Imperial retention of customs, excise and post office, and educational and financial legislation affecting that Province. Further provisions will safeguard Ulster's rights in regard to judiciary, marriage, religion and police. He may offer to consider amendments providing for the retention of judiciary and police under the Imperial control for a period of years. Ulster will be guaranteed a most liberal measure of home rule within home rule, but the Government will not assent to the demand for exclusion. It is generally expected that Asquith's speech on this occasion will be the crowning effort of his life.

"CANADIANS SEEM FOND OF TALKS AND ADDRESSES"

"More So Than They Are in England" Says Martin Harvey, the English Romantic Actor.

APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCES

"It seems to be a thriving little town," replied Martin Harvey, the celebrated English romantic actor, in answer to a query from an Examiner reporter, as to how he liked Peterborough. "Having only been here but a few hours, I am not in a position to say, but everyone appears to be busy."

Mr. Harvey, who is playing a two-night engagement at the Grand Opera House, and who speaks before the Canadian Club early this evening, is staying at the Oriental, where he was busily engaged in unpacking, when the reporter rapped on his door, and was kindly invited to "come in."

Mr. Harvey is the possessor of a charming and altogether kindly personality, being most cordial in his reception of the newspaperman.

"We played in Brockville last night," he began. "They have a very fine little playhouse there, and we had quite a large audience."

"How do you like Canadian audiences, Mr. Harvey?" he was asked.

"Very well, indeed," was the ready response. "They are very appreciative. Only the other night, after playing the "Only Way," a friend came to see me in my dressing-room. He said 'Do you know how many curtain calls you received to that last act?' I said I don't. How many? and he replied, nine. I have had a very busy time since coming to Canada. Apart from my regular engagements, we have been entertained a great deal, and I have addressed several gatherings. You Canadians seem to like 'talks,' and addresses. I think more so than we do in England."

"This is not your first visit to Canada, is it, Mr. Harvey?"

"No, it is not. I was here about eleven years ago, but only played in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and London. I came out then under American management, so I played mostly in the United States. This time we are brought out by the British-Canadian Theatre Co. organization, and our itinerary includes all the chief cities from coast to coast."

"The British Canadian Theatre Co. is something new, is it not?"

"Yes it has just lately been formed, but it ought to do very well. I intend to say something about it to the Canadian Club this afternoon."

Mr. Harvey remarked as he left to dress for a sleigh drive about the city, that he was greatly in love with the Canadian winter. "The air is so fresh and dry," he added, "and everything seems so charmingly picturesque here. We have all been so well too. It appears to be agreeing with us."

FIRE LOSS FOR JANUAAY LIGHT

The fire loss for the month of January was a very light one in Peterborough. During the past month there were only nine fires, with a total damage of but $135, a figure that is very small. January is usually one of the heaviest months in the year for the fire department. In the first month last year there were twelve fire, causing damage amounting to $5,915.

CHILDREN SLEPT IN A CUPBOARD

Inspection of East City House Reveals Deplorable Conditions

WILL BE CONDEMNED

Housing conditions that might justly be described as deplorable were unearthed yesterday by Sanitary Inspector Spence while on his rounds. In a house in East City, which was no bigger than a small-sized chicken house, children were found sleeping in a cupboard, without light or ventilation. The Inspector notified the owner that the house would be condemned unless alterations were made forthwith.

The Inspector states that similar conditions are encountered almost daily. He attributes a large amount of immorality to such conditions. It is also productive of tuberculosis. In the instance referred to, the breadwinner of the family was earning a fair wage in addition to the rent that he received from two other adjacent houses.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WILSON

The funeral of the late Mrs. David Wilson, beloved wife of David Wilson, J.P., took place from the family residence, Springville, Ont., on last Sunday afternoon, Feb. 1st, 1914. The services, at both the home and the grave, were conducted by the Rev. Robert Pogue, moderator of the congregation, and minister of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough. In the face of very stormy weather, the funeral was largely attended. The place of burial was in the family plot on the 9th Concession of Cavan.

Mrs. Wilson, whose maiden name was Jane Gibson, was born in the County of Cavan, Ireland, in August, 1836, and came to Canada accompanied by her brothers, John R. and William, in April, 1855. On the 5th of November of the same year, she became the wife of Mr. David Wilson, and for 58 years, this union continued upon the homestead still occupied by him at Springville. Seven children were born of this union, three of whom predeceased her; two in infancy; Miss Priscilla on January 29th, 1885, at the age of sixteen. Four, with her faithful husband, mourn her loss. Those being Rev. M. E. Wilson, residing at Pontypool; Mrs. John Hooten, of Cavan; Fred E. Wilson and Miss Elizabeth are residing at home. The lady was a faithful wife and loving mother. Her sympathetic kindness and loving deeds are indelibly imprinted in the memory of many. She was a faithful member of the Springville Presbyterian Church for 57 years. The immediate cause of her death was acute influenza, which culminated very suddenly on the morning of Jan. 30. The family, which is amongst the oldest in the municipality, have the sympathy of the whole community in their sorrow.

New Warehouse For Salada Tea

The "Salada" Tea Company has just purchased from the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company a parcel of land at the corner of Berkeley and Stuart Streets, with a frontage of 100 feet on Berkeley Street and 55 feet on Stuart Street, Boston Mass. The land is part of the old Park Square station property, and owing to its location is very valuable. The price paid was in the neighbourhood of $100,000. A seven-storey granite and terra-cotta warehouse is to be erected on this site, and it will be made the headquarters of their United States business. They will employ from 75 to 100 men.

The "Salada" Tea Company have branches in several of the principal cities of the United States.

SPECTATORS BURIED BY FALLING WALL

Cup Game Between Sheffield and Wolverhampton Came to Sudden Stop Just After Half Time

DETAILS NOT AVAILABLE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 4.—(Special Cable)—During replaying of the soccer tie this afternoon, a wall collapsed burying many spectators, and the game was stopped just after half time. The details of casualties are not yet to hand. The score at half time was Sheffield one, Wolverhampton nil.

DR. SYMONDS FAVOURS A POLICEWOMAN

Rev. Dr. Symonds, vicar of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, who was in the City last evening, was asked by a member of the local Council of Women what he thought of a police woman.

"I am greatly in favour of a police woman," he said. "It will not be ten years before we will wonder why we did not have them before. I think it will be an excellent thing to have a police woman in Peterborough.

Stoney Lake Cottagers' Association

The annual meeting of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association Limited will be held at the offices of the Equity Life Assurance Company, Confederation Building, Toronto, on Tuesday, February 10th at two o'clock p.m. for the election of directors and the transaction of other general business.

REVIVAL MEETINGS AT TABERNACLE

A series of revival meetings will begin in Bethany Tabernacle Thursday night of this week, and will continue through Feb 22nd.

Rev. L. J. Long of Toronto will be the speaker for the first four days, followed by the mountaineer evangelist, Rev. Lucius B. Compton of Ashville, N.C.

Both Mr. Long and Mr. Crompton are able evangelists, having had a very wide experience in this kind of work. Their messages will be found both interesting and inspiring. Christians of all denominations are invited to co-operate in what is expected to be a revival of unusual interest and importance. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

PETERBORO' OFFICIALS ARE IN TORONTO

For the Purpose of Conferring With Hon. Adam Beck—One or Two Details to be Arranged

HYDRO ELECTRIC

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—His Worship Mayor Buller, Ald. W. J. Johnston, chairman of the Power Committee of the City Council, Clerk S. R. Armstrong, are in Toronto to-day in connection with matters pertaining to the Hydro-Electric system. The delegation waited upon Hon. Adam Beck and Chief Engineer Gaby in the offices of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, and a lengthy discussion concerning the Hydro situation in this city, resulted.

It is understood that the Provincial officers of the Commission consider Peterborough's plans on the whole satisfactory from their standpoint, but there are one or two details on which an agreement is to be arrived at.

Suggests A Commission For Toronto

The report of the civic survey in the City Treasurer's Department of Toronto, as reported in to-day's Mail and Empire, censures the existing practices in the conduct of Toronto's sinking funds and recommends a new policy in the appointment of a board of trustees to administer the fund. It may be noticed that the character and duties of the proposed commission are identical with those of the Peterborough City Trust which has existed and performed the duties referred to in protecting the City's interests for a period of over fifty years.

AN EDUCATIVE ADDRESS BY CONTROLLER SIMPSON

In Which the Speaker Advocates the Unification of the Church and the Labour Movement—The Workingman is Responsible.

SCIENTIFIC PROGRESS

"The workingmen are largely responsible for their condition because they refuse to study their own problem." The speaker was Mr. James Simpson, member of the Board of Control, Toronto, and one of the foremost exponents of the labour movement in Canada to-day. Controller Simpson addressed a large gathering in Knox Church last evening, and judging by the frequent and prolonged applause, the speaker's remarks found favour with the large audience that filled the auditorium of the church. "The Church and the Workingman" formed the basis of Mr. Simpson's address.

Rev. H. J. Keith, opened the meeting with devotional exercises, following which a couple of selections was rendered by the choir.

Mr. Simpson's Address.

Upon rising to speak, Mr. Simpson made a verbal appeal to the audience for thoughtful and earnest consideration of the message which he proposed to deliver. He then launched into the subject of his address which concerned the relationship of the church to the labour movement, and the potentialities that such an alliance evolved. The speaker regarded the occasion as inevitable, when the church would co-operate with the international labour movement in a joint effort to elevate the standard of the human race and institute a measure of social reform. He also forecast the abolition of the system, whose object, he claimed was the accumulation of profits.

A Responsibility.

"It is fourteen or fifteen years since I became associated with the labour movement," said Mr. Simpson, "and during that time I have had considerable practical experience in matters pertaining to organized labour. The object of the movement is to bring more sunshine into the home of the workingman, and facilitate the means by which his wife and family may exist in comparative comfort. If the church fulfills its responsibility towards the workingman, it must recognize the purpose which forms the basis of the labour movement. They both are capable of uniting and participating in the fulfillment of this one great purpose."

Hydro-Electric.

The speaker enumerated the many contributions that have during recent years been provided by scientists, also their instrumentality in supplying the needs of the human race. He instanced the utilization of electricity and the means that enables the farmer in Western Ontario to milk the cow by means of electricity generated at Niagara Falls. These things, said Mr. Simpson, have all subscribed to the creation of a higher type of human being, endowed with the power to develop soul and body.

Andrew Carnegie.

The labour movement is represented by two groups, one representing skilled labour and the other unskilled labour. The two are serfs to the same purpose, and that is to obtain shorter hours and more wages in harmony with their individual productivity, and also to provide for old age. Speaking of Andrew Carnegie, Mr. Simpson said that the Laird of Skibbo deserved commendation for his contributions towards the establishment of public libraries throughout the country, but were it not for the work accomplished by the labour movement, the workingman would have little time in which to make use of the libraries. Continuing Mr. Simpson said:

Arrogancy Alleged.

"Had it not been for the productive power of the labour employed by Andrew Carnegie and the Steel Trust Carnegie would have been unable to supply the money for libraries."

Asking and answering the question —"Is the labour movement arrogant in their demands?" The speaker outlined a number of things that had been accomplished through the medium of organized labour. He approved of the action of Mr. Ford, of the Ford Motor Car Company in establishment a minimum wage of five dollars for their employees, which was worth fifteen hundred dollars a year to each employee.

The Unemployed.

Mr. Simpson asserted that there was one hundred and fifty thousand men in Canada to-day, who were unable to attach their productive power to the wheels of labour due mainly to industrial depression. "This is the saddest king of sight," said Mr. Simpson, "and is a reflection upon the men to whom we look for the administration of the industries of the country.

TO SUCCEED SENATOR COX

Choice is Likely to be Between Mayor Beattie and Mr. David Henderson

IS UNDECIDED

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Considerable pressure is being brought to bear upon the Government to grant representation to the Ontario French-Canadians in the upper Chamber, and Hon. Dr. Reaume, as the representative of that element, would naturally present their views to the Government here. While no decision has yet been reached by the Government as to Senator Cox's successor, it is understood that the choice is likely to lie between Major Beattie, the member for London, and Mr. David Henderson, the veteran member for Halton, if the Government is prepared to risk another bye-election in Ontario.

SIR GEO. ROSS BETTER TO-DAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—The condition of Sir Geo. Ross is somewhat improved this morning, and according to the physicians it was the advent of a grandson to perpetuate his name that helped some. A child was born to Sir George's son, Dr. G. W. Ross, of this city early this morning, and when the news was communicated to Sir George he was cheered immediately. The Condition of Sir James Whitney, who is ill in the same hospital, continues to improve.

Against Revision Of Tariff

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.— The Conservatives will hold another full caucus at an early date to consider the question of tariff and other announcements to be made in the coming budget speech. Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, is expected to be present at the next one. To-day the corridors are full of small groups chatting about the question. The general impression prevails that when the caucus vote has been taken it will find a great majority in government ranks favouring no revision in the tariff during the present session at least.

The Wonders Of A Salmon Run

The world's greatest salmon runs are to be found along the shores of the north Pacific Ocean, in the States of Washington, Oregon and California, the Provinces of British Columbia and Alaska, on the American side, and Siberia and Japan on the Asiatic side. So far, however, but few salmon have been canned on the Asiatic side.

To one who has never witnessed these annual runs it si almost an impossibility to convey an adequate impression of the countless numbers of fish that swim in from the sea in the late Spring and Summer, all imbued with the same desire—to gain suitable grounds in the upper reaches of the rivers, some of which are from 1,500 to 2,500 miles in length, where they may perpetuate the species. No obstacle appears to be too great to be surmounted in this feverish rush. Jumping falls, shooting rapids, dodging nets, bears, birds, mink, otter and other enemies, fighting with other males, whom the near approach of the breeding season renders especialy savage—all these are taken as a matter of course. And yet one sometimes wonders if the heroic struggle is worthily repaid, for the moment of victory is also the moment of death, as sad to relate, these valiant voyagers can breed but once and then must die, their wasted bodies which have received no nourishment since leaving salt water, becoming the prey of any prowling bear or carrion bird who may chance upon them. Why these fish should all die after spawning remains one of the great unsolved mysteries of the scientific world. — Wide World Magazine.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled."

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 4, 1914

A HUMAN TRIBUTE.

The illness of Sir George Ross has led not a few Conservative papers to say kindly things of him. Here is one from the Guelph Herald: "Irrespective of politics, the people of Ontario will pray for the recovery of both the Provincial Premier and the leader of the Liberals in the Dominion Senate. Hon. George W. Ross is a broad-minded Imperal man, who has given good service to this, his native Province. We need such men as he and Sir James Whitney, particularly now, and it is sincerely to be hoped that both these political opponents may be spared to face one another once more—this time with hand clasped in hand in mutual congratulations that in the greatest battle of their lives both have come off victorious against man's common enemy—death."

NATIONALISTS STILL "IT".

One cannot accuse the Borden Government of ingratitude towards the Nationalists, who helped the Government gain, and helps the Government hold, power. We are even to have the help of the Nationalists in solving the high cost of living problem. An influential Nationalist, Mr. J. U. Vincent Asst.-Deputy Minister of Inland Devenue, has been added to the personnel of the Commission on the High Cost of Living. Mr. Vincent has many political qualifications for the position. He is an Ottawa lawyer. He was the Nationalist-Conservative candidate in Russell county in 1911. He speaks French fluently. At the time of his appointment to the Civil Service he was the law partner of Hon Bruno Nantel's son-in-law. He is not prejudiced by any close study of economic problems and supports the Government through thick and thin. He expects to become Deputy Minister of Mr Nationalist Nantel's department as soon as the present deputy-minister is retired on superannuation.

SIR JAMES BETTER

Everybody will be pleased to learn of the great improvement in the condition of Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, whose case not long since seemed almost hopeless. The news that he is soon to be removed from the hospital to his own home is welcome news to the thousands of Canadians who for days were led to believe that his removal to his long home would be the result of his serious illness. The Examiner differs from Sir James in politics, but it does not forget that he is a public man who has given long years of valuable public service, nor forget that he is a fellow citizen and fellow man, and when we come to such considerations party considerations lose their force. It is not at all probable that Sr James will be able to take any active share in public life, this session of the legislature, if ever. But he has done his share; he has fought a good fight, and has earned the rest and relief from the labours of office, which we all hope he may enjoy for many years.

PROFIT AND LOSS

If the reports of the Conservative caucus at Ottawa concerning free wheat are reliable the Government is confronted with the making of a choice between the farming interests of the West and the "big interests," including the Manufacturers' Association and the combines. It is stated the Government supporters from the West said in caucus that unless the Government yields to the demands of organised agriculture in the West for the removal of the duties on wheat and wheat products, there would not, at the next election be a Government suppirter returned between the head of the lakes and the Rocky Mountains. This is a matter that counts; the Government, however, will not probably settle the matter on principle, but take the course that will be most profitable from a party point of view. They will weigh the loss and gain as between yielding to the influences of the big interests and consulting the farming interests The greatest good to the party, not the greatest good to the greatest number will no doubt be the dominating basis of action or inaction.

THE GRAND GORGE.

The Calgary Eye-Opener, which had been banned from the mails, as an indecent publication, came into favour again, remarks the London Advertiser, with the return of the Borden Government. In the recent list of money spent for "advertising" this journalistic pariah is listed for favours, among the very newspapers that demanded its exclusion from the mails. Has its standard gone up or has the Government given all its newspaper allies an "Eye-Opener" classification? During the year it received $261.70 from the public treasury, or just four times as much as the Canadian Churchman received.

Talk about a subsidized press! The Borden Government gave $1,400,000 of public money to the newspapers. All newspapers believe in advertising, and no one will set up that these journals do not believe themselves justified in putitng their thumbs into the pie. But was there ever a pie so full of plums before, served to so select a company? Only those hirelings, ever ready with blade or knife, a few assassins in the group, were invited to the spread, and then for the grand gorge! No Conservative journal of ever so slight independence got a share. Newspapers on the other side have been favoured by politicians in the past, but such a barbecue was never known before.

TRANSMISSION AND DISTRIBUTION.

For seven hours on Saturday night last, Toronto and many other cities supplied by Hydro-Electric, were in darkness and without power—if they had needed power. The storm disconnected two transmission wires in such a way as to reduce these places to darkness. Complaint is made by Toronto of the conditions that place it and other places at the mercy of a two-wire transmission service, and a four-wire service is demanded. This, of course, would be better; but a storm in winter or a lightning bolt in summer might, one would think, make as little of putting four wires "out of business" as two wires. It may not be practicable with long electric transmission lines to put them underground, but it could be done. We should have the risk of accident by storms in winter and lightning in summer reduced to a minimum, if not to nothing. If, however, it is impracticable to underground transmission wires, it seems to be the proper thing to so treat distribution lines in a city area. Not only is the matter of safety an element in the argument for underground wires, but the freedom from obstruction represented by ghastly lines of poles in our streets is a further argument. As to the matter of safety it seems to be true that underground wires would be free from accident from storms or lightning, and we should then be insured against interruption of current that would deprive us of light and power. With so much depending upon a regular and interrupted current,—light for our homes and business places, our churches and public halls, and power for our industrial establishments—"safety first" is a good motto; and if underground wiring is the best, why not have it? It may be claimed that it is more costly. But is it? It my be so in the beginning; but in the long run, with its longer—practically permanent—life would it not be cheaper in the end, as it would be better in relation to the freedom of our streets from obstruction. Paved streets, permanent streets, cost a good deal more in the beginning than mud streets, but the cost is abundantly compensated for by the benefit received. No one denies the value of permanency in street and other construction and apart from engineering objections, one cannot see why the undergrounding of our electric and other wires, extended to the city streets generally, though perhaps more costly in the beginning, would not be the better way. We are committing ourselves to a large expenditure, whose extent we do not yet know, for the sake of permanency in the supply of light and power, for the civic ownership of light and power, for all time—a permanent possession; and why should we not at the same time consider permanency of distribution systems.

By the way, what progress is being made with the settlement of the Hydro-Electric problem in Peterborough? Here we are in the second month of the New Year, and the people who voted so strongly for municipally-owned power cannot see that we are any nearer to it than we were a year ago. It strikes some self-respecting citizens that we are, as a city, in a somewhat humiliating position. In the matter of the supply of light and power we are at the mercy, at the good-will and generosity of a corporation, which, by our votes, we denounced as a "monopoly." And now, after voting to put it out of business and do our own lighting and power supply, we are accepting favours from this "monopoly." The people have been patient; they have recognized the difficulties in the way; whether the result of incapacity or otherwise, they seem to be real difficulties. But we look to our city representatives, the managers of our business to overcome these difficulties, and the people would like to know what is being done and when they may expect to reap the advantages of public ownership which they demanded two years ago with such strong voice.

MR. BORDEN'S PLEDGE

The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux managed to elicit from Premier Borden last night the interesting statement that the question of dealing with election corruption has not been abandoned. It will be remembered that one of the planks in the Halifax programme of Mr. Borden, as laid down in 1907, was the appointment of a prosecuting officer to act in cases of electoral corruption, to see that cases are pressed expeditiously and that offenders are duly punished. Mr. Borden has never recanted the principles he then laid down. On the other hand he has done nothing to put those principles into practice. Until the Hon. Mr. Lemieux pressed the Premier for a statement on the question last night there has been no hint that the government intended to deal with the question. The matter has simply been treated as a pre-election pledge —only that and nothing more.

That there is greater need now than there ever has been of an official prosecutor in cases of election corruption is abundantly evident. Up till now the sympathies of the Borden Government, so far as the mere man in the street may judge, are against anything that may interfere with the work of what we will, for the moment, call "election experts." There have been irregularities calling for investigation—but investigations have been allowed to be smothered by every legal technicality that could be dragged in for the purpose. There has been corruption admitted—but the man admitting it has been sent back to Parliament, and no inquiry held as to the extent and nature of the corruption.

We are now told from Ottawa that Mr. Borden still thinks corruption cases should be "pressed expeditiously," and that offenders "should be promptly dealt with." Furthermore, Mr. Borden declares that the Minister of Justice 'has had, and now has, the matter under consideration." The country will wish that Mr. Borden had been more explicit in the matter. Such a vague and non-committal statement is hardly in keeping with the enthusiastic zeal for righteousness which marked his Halifax speech. And it is very hard to believe that to take back into Parliament a man who has admitted corruption is exactly the treatment which Mr. Borden meant when he promised legislators to see that offenders are "properly dealt with." — Montreal Herald-Telegraph (Independent.)

A Word To The Wise

The exceptional conditions prevailing during the last year have made it possible for us to offer to shrewd investors some great bargains in real estate.

You can purchase through us several properties at from one-half to two-thirds their real value, that will in the Spring be in demand for building purposes owing to their location in the heart of the section which saw such phenomenal building activity last year.

Reports show that business in all lines is picking up and 1914 is said to promise the greatest development for Canada that she has yet enjoyed.

PAINFUL AND SCALY PIMPLES

Like Boils. Worst on Face. Watery When Rubbed. Also Hands Cracked and Smarted. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Main St., Eye-Brow, Sask.—"I was bothered with small pimples similar to little boils for four or five years. They were all over me but worst on my face. Of course they gave me a bad appearance. The pimples were both painful and itchy so I scratched till quite large sores would be the result and they seemed to be very watery after I rubbed them to the sore. My face was very scarred during the time it was sore.

"I was troubled with sore hands most all winter for two years. They kept cracked till they would be bleeding, and they smarted and were so sore I could hardly bear to get them wet.

"Upon seeing Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised I thought there would be no harm in trying them so I started with a small sample. I purchased a full-sized cake of Cuticura Soap also a box of Cuticura Ointment and before I had quite finished this I saw I was lots better so the second cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment was purchased. But little was used when I was entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Wm. Dickson, May 23, 1913.

For treating poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have been the world's favorites for more than a generation. A single set is often sufficient. Sold everywhere. For a liberal free sample of each, with 32-p. book, send post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U.S.A.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER, JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Nobody wants a spreader, the sort of a chap who knows a little of everything and mighty little of any one thing.

Versatility is not to be encouraged. I do not mean to say that one should confine his energies within narrow limits and not have a broad grasp upon affairs, for the possession of general information assists one in concentration. It is a fact, however, that those who know several things equally well are not proficient in any one thing, and, therefore, are of little use in any department of life, especially in these days when specialization, rightly or wrongly, appears to be necessary to bring about anything more than ordinary success.

The capacity of the human brain is practically, if not theoretically, limited. While its memory power is enormous, its effective working ability cannot be spread indefinitely.

The versatile man is at a tremendous disadvantage. You find him everywhere, in society and in business. He is generally a hail-fellow-well-met sort of chap, a good conversationalist, a delightful companion. He can successfully handle a dance or a party, and is not a complete failure in business; but he does not actually get anywhere worth while. He spreads himself over too large a territory, and, therefore, does not intensively do anything.

I recall several men, some of them in the public eye, whose work will not be remembered, because they have done altogether too many kinds of things and are not recognized as authorities on any one thing. They may be good salesmen, but never will be great salesmen. They may be fair speakers, but what they say will seldom make an impression. They may hold minor offices to the satisfaction of their constituents, but they will not be able to assume large responsibility.

The eminent men of the world, those who have made, are making, and will make, history, have confined the major part of their energies to perfecting themselves in some one line of work, and in this they have become experts. They are not unfamiliar with general affairs, and their education is broad; but they give to their specialty the better part of themselves and earn a reputation which will live after them.

Our best and practical educators are to-day questioning the advisability of so great a variety in educational curriculums, and are of the opinion that too many academic studies, while tending to broaden and give culture, handicap usefulness.

If we were permitted to live a thousand years, we could be effectively versatile; but, in the limited span of our life, we have not the time or the capacity to know more than one thing well, although, of course, we should not be ignorant of those things which, indirectly as well as directly, pertain to our work and position in the world.

It is unprofitable to store the mind with that which it cannot distribute. Many an educated man is but a storehouse with a thousand entrances and no exits. He receives but does not deliver.

Better know little and use what you know, than know much and be unable to do anything with it. Of course, nobody knows just how much to take in and just what to take in, and there will be a waste or overstocking, but this may be reduced to the minimum. The best advice I can give a young man is to obtain a general broad knowledge of things, and then to confine his education, whether he be in school or out of it, to those studies and experiences which will directly contribute to his success and to the rounding-out of his manhood.

Mrs. R. N. Stuart, of Young's Point, was in the village on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hasen Richie, of Peterborough, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hilliard at "Cowley" on Sunday last.

A fancy dress ball will be given by Mrs. O. Stuart at "Uplands" on Friday evening. Prizes will be given for the best costumes.

Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Hilliard have closed their house and have taken rooms at the Lakefield House, where they will spend the remainder of the winter.

Messrs. Levi Payne, A. Jory and John Botterill drove up to Stoney Lake on Tuesday to cut and lay in a stock of ice at "Paynesborough."

Mr. Leonard, of Peterborough, spent the week-end visiting his daughter, Mrs. Hewitt, at "Uplands."

Mrs. White, of Toronto, was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie at "The Grove" on Tuesday.

Wool which never saw the back of a sheep is being largely used in Europe for making men's clothes. It is known by the name of limestone wool, and is made in an electric furnace. Powdered limestone mixed with a certain chemical is thrown into the furnace, and after passing under a furious blast of air is tossed out as fluffy white wool. After coming from the furnace the wool is dyed, and finally made into lengths of cloth.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR THE MONTH

The building permits for the month ending January 31st reached a total valuation of $27,900. A total of four permits were issued.

The figures for the corresponding month of the past five years are as follows:

Year.	No. of Permits.	Valuation
Jan., 1914	4	$27,900
Jan., 1913	6	5,402
Jan., 1912	6	3,035
Jan., 1911	1	15
Jan., 1910	5	7,15.

As will be seen by the above figures this year's record exceeds that of the four previous years. Local contractors assert that this year will witness a large increase in the building record.

BADLY ULCERATED LEG

Zam-Buk Cured Her When so Bad She Had to Use Crutches

For varicose sores, bad leg, or chronic ulcers, Zam-Buk is without equal as a healer. A proof of this is just to hand from Montreal. Mrs. T. Edwards of 164 Amherst street, writes—"Some time ago a bad sore broke out on my left leg near the ankle. For a week or two I did not heed it, but it got so bad that I could hardly walk. I sent for our doctor and he told me that I would have to lay up with the wound. I did so for three weeks. At the end of that time the ulcer healed a little, but I could only move about by using crutches.

"The sore then broke out badly, and the doctor told me that the only thing that would cure it would be an operation, and that I should have to lay up for a year. This, I knew, was impossible as I had a family to attend to.

"My son had cured a bad cut on his finger by using Zam-Buk, and he advised me to give this balm a trial. I did so, and in less than a week's time it gave me wonderful relief. It stopped the pain, which had been so bad that many nights I did not get a wink of sleep. In a very short time the wound was so much better that I had no more sleepless nights, and was also able to move about and do my work. I persevered with Zam-Buk, with the result that the wound is now perfectly cured, and the limb is as sound and strong as ever. To any person suffering from ulcerated sores I would say 'try Zam-Buk.'"

Zam-Buk is just as good for piles, abscesses, boils, scalp sores, blood poison, festering wounds cuts, burns, scalds, bruises eczema eruptions and all other injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores 50c box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful substitutes and imitations.

Have you tried Zam-Buk Soap? 25c tablet.

"SUCK IT, PATSY."

When one reads the countless articles and books on advertising, and finds in them plans which their formulators firmly believe to be cure-alls, one cannot very well help remembering the advice Patsy gave:

Patsy and Tom were working near where there was a beehive and a bed of onions, when a bee stung Tom on the wrist. Patsy exclaimed: "I always told yez whin ye'd get a sting av a bee to suck it and thin rub in onion juice." After a short time a bee lodged on Patsy's neck, when he shouted: "Oh, Tom, there's wan on me neck. Oh, 'tis gone down between me shoulders. Begorra, I'm stung!" "Suck it, Patsy," ordered Tom; "suck and I'll rub in the onion juice."

A plan that will work well in one place may prove to be a failure in another. Common sense is a good thing to have in usable quantities around an advertising office.

The annual meeting of the Lakevale Church was held in the Church on Monday evening. Mr. J. Tully occupied the chair.

The secretary, Mr. John Darling, read the annual report which was very satisfactory.

The following officers were elected:

Managers — E. Mahood, G. Deyell, R. Tully, S. Stinson, J. Hunter

The Ushers— W Darling, S. Tully, with Bruce Darling and Fred Fowler assistants.

After the business meeting the ladies of the congregation served refreshments.

On the whole a very profitable evening was spent.

THE DOMINION ROYAL COMMISSION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, FEB. 4.—Having completed the consideration of their report on Australia and New Zealand, the Dominion Royal Commission of which Sir Edgar Vincent is Chairman, will sail next Saturday for South Africa, to take evidence there. The Commission expresses itself as well satisfied with the progress it has made thus far in gathering information on the great question of empire development and organisation. In Australia particular investigation was made on the subject of immigration and the labour problem, and the data obtained is expected to be of value when the same problem is investigated in Canada and other parts of the Empire.

In South Africa the Commissioners will hold sessions in Cape Town, Durban, Johannesburg and one or two other centres. They expect to return to London in June. In July the Commission will proceed to Canada, and after taking evidence, will return in November to complete its Canadian report.

"PRIMROSE AND DOCKSTADER"

The Big Minstrel Celebreties Here Next Monday

What promises to be the most joyous minstrel event of a decade is the forthcoming appearance in this city of the reunited veteran minstrel stars, Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader, and their all-prominent company of celebrities in their big spectacular production of 20th Century minstrelsy. This attraction is booked for the Grand Opera House, Monday night, Feb. 9th, coming direct from the Royal Alexandra, Toronto, to this city.

After a separation which had existed for nearly ten years, Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader decided to consolidate their respective minstrel companies into one mammoth organization and to present to the public their big revival of 20th Century minstrelsy. This arrangement was entered into last year. The success of the undertaking was instantaneous. Practically every city of importance in the United States and Canada were visited and on several occasions engagements of from two to five weeks were played in order to accommodate the many who sought admission. Although a strict adherance to minstrelsy as it was created by Billy Whitlock, some seventy years ago, is maintained, Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader have given their revival a most sumptuous scenic and costume investiture. The presenting company, which is a very large one, numbers among its members more than a score of names that have been identified with this form of amusement for years, and several of them have been at the head of their own companies. A street parade will be given a noon on the day of the performance, headed by Messrs. Primrose and Dockstader. The tour is under the personal direction of Earl Burgess.

Loss of Life Narrowly Averted In Fire In St. John, N.B.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 4.—Several men overcome by smoke were carried unconscious from the burning Salvation Army lodging-house at Prince William and Water streets early yesterday. Many others among the seventy-five lodgers, forced into the street lightly clad, suffered severely from exposure. There was no loss of life. The seven-story building was destroyed, causing a loss of about $25,000. The fire started in the basement. Warned by the smoke, many of the inmates had escaped before the firemen arrived. After rescuing those who remained the firemen found that the flames had spread so rapidly that they could not save the building. Several of the lodgers were taken to a hospital.

Participating vs. Non-Participating LIFE ASSURANCE

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a prominent Merchant on George St. took out a 10 pay 15 year Endowment Policy No. 68979, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a Non-Par Policy his Premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

Participating Results		Non-Par Results
$2637.75	Total Cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total premiums paid	1725.00
742.75	Amount received over that pd. in	275.00
Almost 40 p.c.	Percentage returned over Premium paid	almost 16 p.c.
1299.70	or, Cash returned and a paid up Policy of $2000	661.25

Now this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, Call at or 'Phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

The above Policy-holder thinks he had a splendid result. Don't you?

Mr. Bruce Elmhirst, of Campbellford, and Mr. Weller, of Peterborough, who lately have left town to reside elsewhere, were invited back to Havelock on Wednesday evening last and given an evening by the congregation of St. John's Church of which they belonged, and were earnest workers. These two young men left town so quietly that the church did not have time to bid them a farewell or in any way show the appreciation of their services during their stay in town. During the course of the evening a presentation of beautiful brass reading lamps were presented to both Mr. Elmhirst and Mr. Weller, accompanied by suitable addresses. The remained of the evening was pleasantly enjoyed, and a dainty lunch served.

We are sorry to report the illness of Miss Lila Riley, who met with a painful accident on Thursday morning last. She had been ill previous to this misfortune, but was recovering rapidly, and was on her way down stairs ready to start to school, and had her books and a pair of scissors, when it is thought she must have fainted, from perhaps being weak, and fell, the scissors going in just above her stomach and breaking a rib. Dr. Holdcroft was at once summoned, and it is not known as yet just how serious the injuries will be. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

A moving picture show was held in the Town Hall on Friday night of last week. Programme of pictures: 1. "Her Guardian"; 2. "Bronco Billy Captured"; 3. "He Answered the Ad.vt."; 4. "The Enemy's Baby."

HE MAKES NO DENIAL

Hon. Dr. Reid Will Have "Alert" Affair Examined Into

TALE OF MYSTERY YACHT

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—"It will now be fitting for the Minister of Customs and his party following to transfer the vocabulary of invective which they have for years devoted to the exploits of the Arctic and the Minnie M., and apply it in all its forcefulness to the 1914 exploits of the Borden Government steamer Alert," declared Mr. E. M. Macdonald, in concluding the Parliamentary revelations which yesterday followed Mr. W. F. Carroll's charges of last week.

The day was spent almost entirely in supply and considerable progress was made with the estimates.

When the customs estimates were under review, E. M. MacDonald (Pictou) demanded a satisfactory explanation of the recent voyage of the revenue cutter Alert from Sydney to Victoria County, N.B., where a bye-election was in progress. He repeated the charge recently made by Mr. Carroll (South Cape Breton), that the Government vessel had been used by the Conservative candidates and organized for election purposes, and that these gentlemen had been carried to the scene of action, together with a considerable amount of liquor intended for distribution among the electorate.

Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, promised an immediate investigation. If there had been any misconduct it had been committed by the local officials without any direction from Ottawa. He could not undo what had been done, but he would deal with the matter as the facts of the case could be ascertained.

Hon. Charles Murphy described a mysterious yacht which put in port at Valleyfield, Que., while the Chateauguay bye-election was in progress. The name-plate had been removed, and there was no clue to the identity of the vessel, which was supposed to belong to the Government. One of the men on board introduced himself to the townspeople as secretary to the Minister of Public Works. The yacht then proceeded to the Government shipyard at Prescott, Ont. Mr. Murphy demanded some further information from the Government.

Dr. Reid said he knew nothing of the affair. He was sure no such boat belonged to his Department.

Replying to a suggestion that Government vessels should be built in Canada, Hon. Mr. Hazen announced the policy of his Department. All tenders calling for the construction of vessels for the Marine and Fisheries Department required the vessels to be built in Canada. The Canadian shipbuilding industry in his opinion had a great deal to contend with. No tariff protection could be afforded them because we could not exclude ships of British register from Canadian waters.

Ships built in Britain, not only came in duty free, but so did all their equipment, eve to china and glassware. Wages and material were cheaper in England than in Canada, and the Department believed that the Canadian shipbuilders should have a monopoly of the Government business. Several dredges and other vessels had been contracted for, and within a few days the contract would be let for an icebreaker to cost $500,000 and to be constructed in Canada.

When civil government estimates for the Railway Department were reached, Hon. J. D. Reid took the laboring oar. He said that Hon. Frank Cochrane's physician had forbidden his attendance upon the House in the evening sittings. Good progress, however, was made with the estimates, Dr. Reid promising to bring down the famous Gutelius-Boworthy agreement, and all correspondence and papers relating to the present arrangement by which Canadian Pacific passenger and freight traffic is carried by the Intercolonial between Halifax and St. John, N.B.

Mr. Macdonald to ask the Railway Department to task for buying American coal in Pennsylvania, instead of purchasing Nova Scotia coal, and carrying it over the I.C.R.

Dr. Reid defended the Railway Department upon the ground that the Canadian coal was not available when needed. With this statement, the member for Pictou took issue, and further information upon the subject will be furnished from the House later on.

Conservatives In Caucus

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—The first ministerial caucus of the session was held this morning and was largely attended by the supporters of the Government from both houses. The caucus was to have been held last week, but was postponed owing to the illness of Premier Borden. Premier Borden got a warm reception. He impressed upon his followers the desirability of close attendance to the sessional duties in order that the business of the session might be facilitated. The question of tariff came up in a general way, but Hon. W. W. White, Minister of Finance, is still confined to his home. A more considerable difference of opinion prevailed on the question of the removal of wheat duties, certain of the western members, more notably those from Manitoba, expressing the opinion that this could be done without prejudice to Eastern interests, and to the advantage of the Conservative standing in the West. An opinion prevailed among the Eastern members that in view of dropping revenues and the necessity of increased expenditure on large public works, it would not be wise at present to contemplate any more revision of tariff.

An Educative Address, Etc.

The average wage earner of Canada earns four hundred and eighteen dollars a year and the female one hundred and forty dollars. To live comfortably for one year, a family residing in Toronto would require at least nine hundred dollars. In the light of these figures it can hardly be said that the demands of organized labour are arrogant," said Mr. Simpson. "There is something radically wrong with a system of society that regards such a condition as satisfactory. It is a reflection upon civilization and the time will come when such conditions will be abolished."

The labour movement has also been instrumental in regulating the employment of child labour, and providing compensation for widows and for the aged.

Are Responsible.

"The workingman," said Mr. Simpson, "are largely responsible for their own condition because they refuse to study their own problem. If they get two dollars more in their pay envelope than they did two years ago they clap themselves on the back and think they are progressing. There are real wages and nominal wages. Nominal wages are wages in name only. Four years ago the postmen of Toronto received an increase of fifty cents a day in their wages. The scale of wages previous to that had not been changed in seven years, yet the cost of living during that period had increased by about thirty per cent. Which practically meant that the postmens' remuneration had decreased that much. The increase in wages as obtained in various branches of labour through the medium of the labour movement is more than counter-balanced by the increase in the cost of living.

Political Labour Movement.

"These things," said the speaker, "are not obtained by the labour unions, but in the legislative halls of the world. Consequently men are being influenced to exercise the power of the ballot.

"The great international labour movement does not discriminate in creed or colour, but unites in one common bond to preach the gospel of the emancipation of the workingman. Preaching the sentiment of love and brotherhood, and it is upon these grounds that the church and the labour movement will ultimately join forces."

Human vs. Animal Life.

In referring to the lower or animal forms of life Mr. Simpson asserted that professors were working overtime in the agricultural colleges in an endeavour to raise the standard of the lower forms and to increase the productivity of the soil, also the products. A few years ago when an epidemic of tuberculosis broke out in the United States an appeal was sent to Washington for funds with which to combat the scourge. Word came back that there were no funds available for this work. It was only a short time later that an epidemic of hog cholera broke out in one of the States, and in response to the request of a number of farmers a train equipped with the necessary facilities for fighting the disease, was hurriedly dispatched to the scene. This contended the speaker was one instance where animal life was regarded as more important than human beings.

Social Reform.

"We pride ourselves," said the Controller, "upon our industrial development, forgetful of the fact that we are disregardful of the intellectual and moral conditions of the men who do the work and make such development possible. The church of God is awakening to a sense of responsibility along these lines. In the City of Toronto a number of ministers are manifesting practical interest in the labour movement. A wave of social reform is sweeping over the country."

Soap-box Oratory.

Mr. Simpson recalled the time when he became a convert to the socialistic cause; when he advocated the principles of socialism from the street corners, mounted on a soap-box, and how he was elected to the Toronto Board of Control without having sacrificed one of the principles that owed its inception to the labour movement.

"Let us unite in one common bond of Christian brotherhood. The time will come when life will not only be a theory but a reality," said the speaker in conclusion.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Simpson, who replied briefly, stating that he appreciated the warm welcome afforded him and anticipated the privilege on some future occasion of again visiting Peterborough. The resolution was moved by Mr. J. J. Hartley, and seconded by Mr. D. Moore.

GRATEFUL TO LOCAL PRESS

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—The committee who had in hand the arrangement of the W. O. W. basket social, at a meeting held the 22nd inst., passed a unanimous vote to the newspapers of the City showing their appreciation for the free advertising given them for the above social, which helped to keep th sum received intact and allowed us more money with which to aid the unemployed.

On their behalf I extend your paper most hearty thanks.

Yours truly,

Goderich After Military Camp

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 4.—Goderich citizens, it is learned, are making every effort to have the Government locate a big military training camp there permanently, rather than in London. The leading militia men will also try to have the training season changed from June to October, in order to get farmers' sons and hired farm help unavailable in the rush of spring work.

MAY BE HULK OF CARRUTHERS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 4—What may be the sunken hull of the James S. Carruthers, the ill-fated freighter which went down with all hands on Lake Huron in a terrific storm that swept the lakes early in November, carrying death and destruction in its wake, has been located north by north east of Alpena by several fishermen of that Town.

AEROPLANE SIGNALS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PARIS, Feb. 4.—An ingenious method which a French firm has invented for signalling from aeroplanes is attracting much attention, particularly in military circles. The device consists of a tube placed in such a position that a strong current of air from the propellor passes through it, and is connected by a valve with a reservoir filled with soot. This valve can be operated by the passenger in the aeroplane in such a manner as to release either a large or a small quantity of soot from the reservoir into the tube. The soot whirled out of the tube by the draught forms in the wake of the machine long or short streaks of black, by means of which messages can be given in the Morse code. It is stated that during the course of some experiments made with this device the dots and dashes of a message were made out with the help of powerful field glasses over five miles away.

The whole apparatus weighs not more than nine pounds.

CORN SHOW IS READY FOR OPENING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 4.—All arrangements are practically completed forth e opening of the Sixth National Corn Show in this city next week.

The exhibits already in place give assurance that the exhibition will be the largest and most representative of its kind that has ever been held in the United States. Though corn and corn products will form the bulk of the exhibits there will be interesting displays of many other varieties of farm products.

A majority of the States have responded to the invitation to make exhibits at the show. Practically every State of the South and middle West will have displays. Many of the States of the far west will be represented for the first time. Idaho will be represented with a wool display, and Wyoming will show some methods of dry farming that were originated in that State.

California will exhibit some of her choicest products of the garden, orchard, and vineyard. Arizona, Nevada, and Utah will show the wonderful results accomplished by irrigation.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, has the distinction of being the wettest place in the western world. It has an average annual rainfall of 180 inches.

NOT ASSOCIATED WITH KIMBERLY

In connection with the case in which Alfred Kimberley confessed to being implicated in a murder in Kidderminster, England, seven years ago Mr. C. Robinson, of Gladstone avenue, wishes to state that he is not associated with Kimberley in any way. Mr. Robinson is an abstainer, whose character will bear the strictest investigation, both in England and Canada, and his parents are highly respected in Kidderminster, England. Of course living on the same street as Kimberley, he knew the man well.

BERARD REFUSED TO ANSWER

Examiner Special:

QUEBEC, P.Q., Feb. 4. — Louis Philip Berard, Legislative Councillor for DeLanaudier, was a pathetic figure this morning before the Assembly Investigation Committee. He declined to answer the questions relating to the Montreal Fair Association Bill. "For fear of incriminating myself," as he put it, "and on the advice of my lawyers." There are rumours here to-day that seven other members may be named this afternoon as being implicated in this scandal

REVOLUTION IN PERU

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 4. — President Billinghurst was imprisoned, War Minister Varella was killed, and several other ministerialists wounded when the military mutined to-day at dawn, overthrew the Government, and placed Colonel Benavides in the Presidential chair. A carnival of bloodshed is expected to follow, as both sides are strong.

FINED $1000 FOR CONSPIRACY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 4.—Joseph Cassidy, former Democratic boss, and William Willett, Jr., a former Congressman, were fined one thousand dollars each and sent to jail for eighteen months for conspiracy to sell the Supreme Court Judgship nomination to Willett.

Passed Over West In Will

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 4.—Regarding the omission of the Canadian West in Lord Strathcona's will, the Winnipeg Telegram says to-day: "It will not escape notice that the Canadian West, which laid the foundation to Strathcona's fortunes and opened the way to the public career which made his name famous, is quite passed over in Lord Strathcona's public benefactions, as announced in his will published yesterday."

PHYSICAL CONFERENCE AT THE Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. Physical Directors of Eastern Ontario will hold a conference here on Friday and Saturday of this week. The directors from Ottawa, Belleville, Kingston, Oshawa, Orilia and Brockville, are expected to be here. Dr. Brown of New York, who is in charge of the physical work in Canada under the National Council, and C. M. Copeland of Toronto, the Territorial Secretary, will be present. The local Y.M.C.A. will tender the delegates a dinner on Friday night.

EXPENSIVE PUBLICITY

How Government Advertising Goes Where It Will Do the Most Good —Illuminative Instances of Reciprocity in Government Advertising

The Borden Government, subsidized by the Big Interests, is busy subsidizing, as far as it can, the agencies directing public opinion in its favour.

One of the handy methods for doing this is by way of extending advertising and printing patronage to newspapers and printing companies which support everything that the government does, and look with disfavour on Liberalism and Liberal policies. Several hundred Conservative papers throughout the Dominion shared during the last fiscal year in the distribution of something over $1,400,000 of public money for advertising and printing. Whether or not their editorial comment on issues of the day was thereby prejudiced may be left for their readers to gauge.

Some of the amounts paid to government organs are decidedly interesting. The Winnipeg Telegram, for instance, controlled by Sir Redmond Roblin and Hon. Robert Rogers, came in during the last fiscal year for $20,237. The Nationalist organ of Hon. L. P. Pelletier, L'Evenement, of Quebec, got the tidy sum of $23,327, and La Patrie of Montreal, which printed the picture of the proposed bridge across the St. Lawrence as a lure to the voters of Chateauguay in the recent by-election, received pay to the extent of $23,408. That the Conservative-Nationalist alliance is still in effect is evidenced by the fact that Le Devoir, Mr. Bourassa's paper, received $1,312 during the year for "advertising" the various departments of the government. The Halifax Herald, edited by the recently appointed Conservative Senator Dennis and which reaches that Mr. Borden can do no wrong, and the Liberals no right, was helped to the extent of $13,312. The St. John Standard, in which the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, John D. Hazen, is interested, did even better than that. It got $16,133. The Mail and Empire of Toronto, which used the fulminate roundly against "the reptile press," came in for $12,641 for inserting government advertising at top rates. The Toronto News, which recently referred to Hon. Robert Rogers and Hon. Frank Cochrane, as "the two strong men of the ministry," was subsidized to the extent of $10,165. This may or may not have something to do with the unequivocal support accorded Mr. Borden by Sir John Willison, the one-time eulogistic biographer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

It is interesting to note that the Orange Sentinel and the Catholic Register ran a close race for a share in government advertising patronage. The Sentinel received $1,544 during the year, and the Register, $1,413. But ,as compared with this liberality of patronage, the Canadian Churchman got only $60.60 for advertising, the Congregationalist, $74 and the Christian Guardian, $22.70. The Presbyterian and the Westminster were not put on the list at all. The Calgary Eye Opener, however, which was formerly banned from the mails as an indecent publication, is restored to favour. During the year it got $261.70 from the public treasury for "advertising"—or over four times as much as the Canadian Churchman.

Practically every Conservative paper throughout the Dominion, daily or weekly— several hundred, all told — were favoured during the year with generously paid advertisements.

Finally it may be noted that the government paid $19.35 for advertising the Canadian Naval Service in the United States, and $126.16 for advertising it in British and foreign countries—to say nothing of the cost to Canadian pride and patriotism of Mr. Borden's advertising of Canada as a country which can neither build nor man her own vessels, or do her own fighting.

MERCHANTS TO GO TO SCHOOL

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 4. — What is believed to be the first school for merchants ever conducted in this country, was opened to-day under the auspices of the extension department of the University of Minnesota. The course is modeled after the short courses conducted in the various States for the farmers. The instruction will be carried over a period of five days and will embrace lectures by experts on important questions connected with the buying, selling and displaying of goods. Salesmanship, store management, pricing, advertising, window dressing, store accounting and methods of meeting mail order competition are some of the subjets that will be dealt with in the lectures.

Art Exhibit Is Popular

The Art Exhibition being held this week in the Central school has become very popular in this City. In the neighbourhood of 400 people visited it yesterday afternoon and evening, and all speak highly of the large number of pictures shown. This afternoon and evening the staff of the West Ward school will be in charge of the exhibit.

When a fishing vessel went ashore recently on the north coast of England a number of men swam out on horseback and succeeded in boarding her.

Mr. Haslam Replies To Debater's Letter

February 4, 1914.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Will you please allow this space for a short answer to Debater of yesterday. If he will confine his remarks to the insurance business I will endeavour to enlighten him upon the subject of which he apparently has a wrong impression. It appears to me that Mr. Debater has some time or other met with an insurance agent whom he has considered a bore or a pest in as much as the insurance agent has probably tried to impress upon him the necessity of protecting his family when he thought that they probably were able to protect themselves (possibly some of them infants.)

He states that a man can carry his own insurance cheaper and this is true of two classes of men. The first is the man who has sufficient securities to protect his beneficiaries—real estate if you please, or other collateral. The second is the man who is of very little value to either himself, his family or the community at large and whose death would be a benefit instead of a loss. Mr. Debater is not in the former class as he states that he is not able to buy a small parcel of land, and we trust he is not in the latter.

I would be quite willing to enlighten Mr. Debater, as I said, on the subject of life insurance, providing it is done in a gentlemanly manner and in order to do so I would ask that Mr. Debater retract his insulting statement when he says that insurance men force their company upon society merely for the sake of benefitting their business.

I am unable to see why Debater got away from real estate and dragged insurance into this controversy.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your valuable paper, I beg to remain,

Yours truly,
William A. Haslam.

Circular Saw Lacerated Hand

Mr. Rupert McClennan, of the Peterborough Canoe Company, suffered a painful injury this morning, as a result of which he will be disabled for some days, and his left hand may be permanently effected.

Mr. McClenan was operating one of the machines this morning about eight o'clock, when in some manner his left hand came in contact with a circular saw, which cut the fingers of his hand in a painful manner. He was rushed to the Nicholls Hospital where Dr. Greer attended the injuries. This afternoon The Examiner was informed that his condition was the best possible under the circumstances which will be welcome news to his many friends.

Arranging For A Peace Celebration

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 4.—Premier Asquith, Viscount Bryce, and a dozen other notables of Britain and the United States this afternoon met at the Mansion House to discuss plans for celebrating the centenmary of one hundred years of peace between the Anglo-Saxon nations. It is quite probable that one of the interesting and impressive incidents of the celebration will be the meeting between the Governor-General of Canada and President Wilson on one of the big bridges which span the Niagara River. It was in that locality where the fighting in the war between the United States and Britain a hundred years ago, was the severest.

Somewhere in the Bible it reads: "In that day seven women shall take hold of one man." They must have held Church fairs when that was written.

SLEIGH DRIVE

The annual sleigh drive of the Young People of St. Luke's Church took place last evening to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Curtis in Otonabee. Over seventy assembled in the men's club rooms, Hunter street east, where 'busses were in waiting to carry them to their destination. After a very pleasant drive through the country the young people arrived in due time at their destination. Progressive euchre was played, the winners in the contests being awarded handsome prizes. The ladies' prizes were won by Misses Lucy Baxter, A. Curtis and Leah Rogers, while the honours for the gentlemen were sustained by Messrs. Lee, Hayward and Johnston.

At midnight refreshments were served. The young people were loud in their praises of the kind hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis, who spared nothing to make the evening a pleasant one for all. The party arrived home at an early hour after the most successful and enjoyable outing yet

HIS RESOLUTION

"Well," said Walter to his wife at the breakfast table on New Year's morning, "I am going to swear off smoking."

"I am so glad, dear," said pretty little Mrs. Rich, in her dainty boudoir cap, as she put "two lumps" in her husband's cup of coffee.

"Won't you find it rather hard? You always find so much solace in smoking, and what will you do when you play cards with the boys and they all smoke?"

"Oh, well, I expect it will be rather hard at first; but I will soon become used to it. From now on, I am not going to smoke any more. I will save quite a little money in that way and that will help toward the machine."

As he walked down town that morning he met his first temptation with a smile. Of course, it would be easy to overcome such a foolish habit.

As he approached Jim's house he met Jim as usual; and, also, according to custom, Jim was smoking a cigar.

Seeing that Walter had not his customary cigar he took out his case and proffered him one. Walter, of course, declined and spoke of his resolution.

All went well through the morning. Although several clients offered him cigars, he declined with thanks, but he now longed for the weed with which he was accustomed to quiet his nerves.

In the afternono he was so busy that he didn't have time to think of anything but his work.

That night as he walked home with Jim, he congratulated himself upon his self-restraint, but somehow he felt more tired than usual.

After supper Mrs. Rich suggested running over to her friend's for a few minutes; but as Walter was rather tired he prepared to stay at home and read while she was gone.

What a day it had been, he thought as he sat with the paper in his hands and feet encased in soft slippers in front of the blazing fireplace in his study.

But what of it? Had he not won out and kept his resolution? He settled back in his chair with a sigh of satisfaction, and he opened his paper and started reading.

He read for a few minutes, and then as he sat thinking he unconsciously lit a cigar and started to smoke.

He sat thus with half-closed eyes and unusually content when his wife returned.

She glanced at the remains of the cigar.

"Why, dearie! I thought you had resolved not to smoke any more. You told me to-day that you had restrained from smoking all day."

He gave a start. After a day's restraint, he had unconsciously, from force of habit, broken his resolution.

FOUR HORSES KILLED BY TRAIN

The Port McNicoll train ran into five horses on a crossing two miles east of Peterborough this morning, and four of the animals were killed. The horses were the property of Mr. W. T. Branson, of Otonabee. The engineer of the train did not see the horses until the engine was upon them, and it was too late to prevent the accident. Mr. Branson will be a heavy loser.

EAT AN APPLE AT BEDTIME

"He who eats an apple before going to bed robs the doctor of his daily bread" is an old saying, and I doubt not a true one.

In our country where apples are so plentiful and such choice ones, they should be one of the staples on our tables. They should be served every day in some fashion, cooked, baked, fried, eaten raw or stewed (with the skins on). The best flavor is next the skin.

A Norse myth says the gods and goddesses courted perpetual youth by eating the apples furnished by one of the gods. And the Romans crowned Pomona, goddess of fruit trees and gardens, picturing her seated on a basket of flowers with a bough and apples in her hands. The high place given the apple by the ancients is worthy of imitation, for they are not only pleasant food and nutritious, but have valuable alterative properties and correct acidities in the system.

APPLES TO REPLACE MEAT

The malic acid in the apple regulates the proteids eaten that they do not clog the system, hence it is especially beneficial to eat apples in the winter season.

So great is the food value of apples that they may be used to replace a portion of the meat usually eaten. This alone, in view of the almost prohibitive price of meat, should bring the apple to the front.

Apples are an excellent tonic to the brain and spur it on because no other fruit contains such a large proportion of phosphorus, which is a needful constituent of the brain and spinal cord. The apple is one of the best foods for those that use their brains a great deal, and whose occupations are sedentary.

In my student days I used to eat six or seven baked apples during my evening study. The apples chosen were Tolman Sweets. Medium-sized ones were selected, placed on a granite pie plate, placed in a slow oven and baked. It proved a most delicious adjunct to a hard night's study. They are easily digested, satisfy and are a good night cap. In lieu of the variety mentioned, others may be used, but none are quite so rich.

SET AN EXAMPLE

Encourage the children to eat apples. Eat them yourself, and so set them the example—that is better than telling them. Eat all you can, raw, dried, baked, stewed, fried—only eat! No other fruit is half so good, and it is usually easy to get. Encourage the child to spend his pennies for apples and oranges rather than candy.

Apples are the best and most reliable cosmetic on the market. A liberal daily supply of this fruit will give to most people a good complexion.

Apples, too, are known to possess great solvent powers over coarser foods, therefore they must be good food for horses and cattle. I have seen horses grow sleek and fat after running for a few weeks in the orchard. It is the sour apples that are especially beneficial for stock. A half or whole pailful a day fed to the milch cows is a relish they delight in as much as you like a tit-bit. They yield more milk on the apple diet, are healthier and their milk is richer and of finer flavor.

Government To Take St. Peter's Reserve Surrender Into Courts.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—The Government has decided that the surrender of the St. Peter's Indian reserve in Manitoba should be annulled, and instructions were sent yesterday to F. G. Taylor, K.C., of Portage la Prairie, and C. P. Fullerton, K.C., of Winnipeg, agents of the Justice Department, to take action in the courts to set aside the surrender. The case, which will be threshed out in the Manitoba courts involves the large sum of two and a half million dollars.

The action is the outcome of an inquiry instituted in 1909 by Geo. H. Bradbury, M.P. for Selkirk.

Mr. Bradbury took the ground that the surrender was illegal and would not stand the test of the courts.

The St. Peter's Indians petitioned the Manitoba Government asking restitution of their lands, and the Manitoba Government appointed a royal commission to investigate the conditions of surrender. A majority report sustained the position that the transfer was illegal.

EXPLOITS TAKE LEAD IN CITY LEAGUE RACE

Beat Y. M. C. A. 6 to 1 in Hard Fought Game on Soft Ice Last Night--Alerts Drove Wanderers Into Cellar by Beating Them 4 to 0.

The Boston Exploits have a clear lead of one game in the Junior City League, with the first half of the schedule completed. The Exploits handed the Y.M.C.A. a 6 to 1 beating last night leading at the half by 3 goals to 1 after a hard fought game on soft ice. The score does not represent the play, although the winners were the better team after the first fifteen minutes. The Y.M.C.A. gang opened with a burst of speed that swept the Exploits off their feet for a few minutes. They notched their only goal 45 seconds after the start and for a while bussed around like bees. Then the Exploits began to come on, and when Butcher tied the score, the purple and white team gained confidence and they had the edge from then on, although not by as large a margin as the score would show.

The fast skating and close checking of the Exploit forward line was what turned the scale. They smothered the Y. attack after the first quarter of an hour and when the red and black forwards neglected to check back the Exploits shot in and got goals.

The game slowed up after the fast pace of the opening twenty minutes and the second half was poor hockey with the teams bunching and little of the spectacular in evidence. The checking was close and hard. Both teams showed a tendency to wade into each other with trips, butt ending and heavy tosses into the boards, Referee Len Dobson having his hands full. He had a constant procession of offenders to the penalty box, both sides suffering equally.

Rose, Butcher and Graham started for the Exploits. The left wing man played the best game he has shown this season and he looks like one of the most promising boys in the League. He is a younger brother of Ray Rose of the juniors and will be out with next years juniors. Butcher was going all the time and Graham, although very light, showed fine speed.

For the Y.M.C.A., Smyth and Knapman were probably the best, while Stevenson did nice work at rover. He is another promising boy with three or four years yet as a junior.

The teams were as follows:

Exploits		Y.M.C.A.
Latimer	Goal	Darling
Phelan	Right Defence	Smyth
Regan	Left Defence	Cranfield
Graham	Rover	Stevenson
Butcher	Centre	Quinn
Wolff	Right Wing	Knapman
Rose	Left Wing	Jackson

The Y. started out at a speedy clip and within a minute of the start, Stevenson bulged the nets after a pretty rush by Cranfield.

The black and red came right back with a three man combination and beat Latimer again, but the play was called back for an offside pass. The penalties came thick and fast. At one stage both Graham and Rose were off the Exploit line-up, but the Y. could not score. Finally, after fifteen minutes' hard playing, Butcher shoved the puik past Darling after a shot by Wolff had been blocked.

The Exploits were coming strong now and Darling had several hard ones to stop. Graham put the Exploits ahead on a shot from the side and Butcher made it 3 to 1 on an individual rush. The Y. assumed the aggressive after the rest and made things interesting for a few minutes, but they could not find the nets. Then Rose got an easy counter on a lob from the side, which bounded into the nets. Graham went in alone and got Goal No. 5 and Wolff made it 6 to 1 shortly before time was called.

ALERTS WIN SECOND

The Alerts shoved the Wanderers down into the cellar by beating the East City aggregation handsomely by 4 goals to 0, getting all their goals in the first half. The Alerts showed great improvement over their previous games and the team that beats them in the second half of the schedule will know that they have been in the races. They have weight and speed and their team work is constantly improving. They were pretty well over the Wanderers in the first half nd the half time score about represents the play. The Wanderers improved after the rest and neither team could score in the second half. Heath, Legendre and Doughty showed up well for the Alerts, while Brotherson, Primeau and Walker were the best of the Wanderers.

The teams were:

Wanderers.		Alerts.
Walker	Goal	Legrow
Revoy	Defence	Davidson
Guerin	"	Legendre
Brotherson	Rover	Lowes
Patterson	Centre	Doughty
Primeau	R. Wing	O'Connell
May	L. Wing.	Heath

Referee: Len Dobson.

SWINDON IS A HARD TEAM TO BEAT--A TELL-TALE RECORD

They Have a Way of Winning Which Cannot Be Explained by Any Theory of Accident--English Team Chosen

Swindon's Amazing Record.

Swindon Town have preserved their invincibility on their own ground, Manchester United being the victims of a last minute goal from the foot of Harold Fleming, a forward as dangerous as he is unorthodox. It may be that the United had a patched-up team, and that their shooting was distressing to their followers, but Swindon at home, have a way of winning which cannot be explained by any theory of accident. The Mancunians had just as much chance of victory as the other side, but Fleming got the all-important goal. What is more, Swindon should have obtained other goals.

If one wants to understand how difficult it is to beat Swindon in a cup tie on their meadow, the study of the appended list will tell a tale:

1907—8
Sheffield United	(H)	0—0
Sheffield United	(A)	3—2
Queen's Park R.	(H)	1—0
Wolverhampton	(A)	0—2
1908—9
Plymouth	(A)	0—1
1909—10
Crystal Palace	(A)	3—1
Burnley	(H)	2—0
Tottenham	(H)	3—2
Manchester City	(H)	2—0
Newcastle United	(A)	0—2
1910—11
Notts County	(H)	3—1
Woolwich	(H)	1—0
Darlington	(A)	3—0
Chelsea	(A)	1—3
1911—12
Sutton Junction	(H)	5—0
Notts County	(H)	2—0
West Ham	(A)	1—1
West Ham	(H)	4—0
Everton	(H)	2—1
Barnsley	(A)	0—0
Barnsley	(A)	0—1
1912—13
Rochdale	(A)	2—0
Huddersfield	(A)	2—1
Sunderland	(A)	2—4
1913—14
Manchester United	(H)	1—0

This table presents 25 cup-ties, giving 11 wins at home and one draw, with Sheffield United, the only club which has ever escaped to play another day. Five games away from Swindon have yielded success, and two have been drawn.

This leaves six defeats, two of these being on neutral grounds in the semi-final stage, while in these six reverses they were mastered by Wolverhampton, Newcastle and Barnsley in years when these teams captured the cup, and by Sunderland when they were the runners-up.

This is certainly one of the finest records in the English cup, for Swindon has not lost at home since the season of 1906-7, when Burslem Port Vale overcame them by 2—1. Ever since then Swindon has been among the exempted, and have proved value for the favour extended to them.

The McCracken Impasse.

The supporters of William McCracken, the Newcastle United right back, on the council of the Irish Football Association received a severe rebuff at the meeting of that body last week. They were a valiant three, but outside that little party the entire council was against reinstating the Irish International, that it, to permit him to take part, if he desired, in Irish football, or to include him in the International.

There is a little need to recapitulate all that transpired in February, 1908, when McCracken unless paid a specific sum, would not assist Ireland against England. While a newer generation has been added to the Irish council the same position as was taken up practically six years ago holds good to-day.

It is urged that in a measure the Newcastle player has himself to blame that he has not been reinstated ere this. It is said he considers himself the aggrieved party, but it has been his attitude towards the I.F.A. which keeps him out side the pale of Irish football even if he cared to come back to it. According to his opponents now, a simple expression of regret for his unfortunate attitude in 1908 has been all that at any time has been required to restore him. His friends who suported him ot the I.F.A. would have welcomed an apology. So would his opponents, but none ever arrived.

Englands First Team.

Following is the English team chosen to play against Ireland for the game on February 14:

Hardy (Aston Villa), goal; Crompton (Blackburn, and Pennington (West Bromwich) backs) Cuggy (Sunderland), Buckley (Derby) and Watson (Burnley), half backs; Wallace (Aston Villa), Shea (Blackburn), Elliott (Middlesbrough), Latheron (Blackburn) and Martin (Sunderland), forwards. Reserves—Brittleton (Sheffield Wednesday) and Holley (Sunderland).

This will be Hardy's 13th cap, Crompton's 32nd, Pennington's 11th, Cuggy's 2nd, Watsons' 2nd, Wallace's 2nd and Elliott's 2nd. For the first time Buckley, Sheat, Latheron and Martin are honoured. It is a good all-round selection and should beat the "Bhoys."

EVERYBODY IS GOING TO WHITBY TO-NIGHT

The change to colder weather today is welcomed by the Peterborough Hockey Club, as they consider the chances in to-night's big game at Whitby will be considerably enhanced by good ice. It looks as if there will be a big crowd of fans in line on the special excursion which leaves here at 5.45 o'clock this evening. Everybody is talking of the game, as a win for the Petes will give them the district. It is likely that "Chad" Thoms of Toronto will handle the game. The appointment is quite satisfactory to Peterborough. The ex-'Varsity was in charge of the game at Cobourg and proved a strict, impartial official. The Peterborough line-up will be as follows:

Goal—Janes.
Right defence—Bond.
Left defence—Denison.
Rover—Halpin.
Centre—Park.
Right wing—Bradshaw.
Left wing—Kelly.

KINGSTON, Feb. 3.—The Frontenac and Belleville juniors played a tie game here this evening in the first of the semi-finals for the O.H.A. series for groups No. 1 and 2. The game ended with the score standing four to four. At the half time Belleville was leading by two to one. The largest crowd of the season was present at the game. The return game will be played in Belleville on Thursday evening. The ice on Tuesday evening was the worst surface which any team has played on this season. Pools of water were on the ice in many places. The teams:

Referee—Allan T. Kinder, Preston.

BASKETBALL

The championship of the Employed Boy's Basketball League was decided last night, when the Leaders defeated the Giants in the final game by a score of 12-8, and thus became the holders of the Sanford R. Hall Shield for the season 1913-14. The teams lined up as follows:

Leaders—H. Copp F. Montgomery, forwards; M. Pringle, centre (captain); P. McCracken, P. Ecobichon, defence.

Giants—G. Thorndyke, V. Thorndyke, forwards; D. Feinberg, centre (captain); D. Hunter, K. Sturgeon, defence.

The standing of the teams as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
Leaders	5	0
Brownies	4	1
Giants	2	3
Champions	2	3
Invincibles	2	3
Ramblers	4	5

BASEBALL

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—President McCaffery of the Toronto ball club returned from New York yesterday. He secured during his trip three new pitchers for the local Internationals, one a college pitcher and two from big league clubs. The deals are not yet completed.

The following contracts are in for the Toronto Ianadian League team: F. Killian, outfield; F. Schultz, El Paso, infield; Mike Burns, Toronto, catcher; Mark McGinnis, Toronto, outfield; E. Kierley, Pittsburg, pitcher. Auld of Toronto, has not yet signed.

The contracts of W. A. O'Hora, Alexander Graham and F. Shwab with the Toronto club of the International League have been promulgated.

Charlie Carr's baseball college, in Texas has not attracted many students.

Dr. Frank Bassett of Hopkinsville, Ky., is the new president of the Kitty League.

Pete Noonan, former Holy Cross star and later a leaguer, has bought the Wilkesbarre franchise in the New York State League.

A dinner in honour of the world-touring Giants and White Sox will be given in New York, March 7, by the National and American Leagues.

"Germany" Schaefer, Washington's all-round player, is the first ball tosser to accept the terms of his club by cable. Schaefer is with the White Sox on the world tour.

The Union Association will be made up of six clubs the coming season. Boise, Idaho; Butte and Helena, Mont., and Ogden, Murray, and Salt Lake City, Utah, will form the circuit.

Four ex-Giants (Bresnahan, Bowerman, Dahlen and Tenney) having failed as Managers, it is up to Robinson, Herzog and McCormick to show that the McGraw school can turn out successful pilots.

The American Association will go back to the four-trip schedule, because several of the A. A. magnates are opposed to having their teams away from home too long on a single stretch.

President Gilmore of the Federal League claims he has signed 35 men of the American and National league and that he will add a few more big leaguers before the first game of the season.

James Cooney, the clever young shortstop of the Worcester New England League team, has signed with the Boston Red Sox. He is a son of the Jimmy Cooney who was a member of the Chicago team in the days of Captain Anson.

The above is an exact likeness of Mr. Edward Carr, who is responsible for the business end of the big production. He seems more than pleased with the way rehearsals are going, and guarantees the public a great performance. Nothing is going to be left undone in making this season show the best thing ever attempted by the club.

The big dancing specialty by eight young ladies and gentlemen, introducing Winnifred Fick, Miss Edith Smart and Art Graham will be the artistic hit of the evening. Whatever you do don't miss the big entertainment this year. Every one selling tickets. Two nights, Feb. 12 and 13.

BOXING

Manager Jim Buckley says "Gunboat" Smith must be handed $15,000 for his end of a go with George Carpentier.

Bud Anderson, who has been fighting in the lightweight division on the Pacific Coast, has entered the welterweight class.

Jim Coffroth, the San Francisco promoter, has offered Eddie Murphy a chance to meet some star lightweight in the near future.

Freddie Welsh, the English lightweight champion, says he is willing to meet Tommy Murphy of New York on a winner-take-all basis.

Snowey Baker, the Australian prize fight promoter, is on his way to America. Baker is making a tour of the world and incidentally signing up attractions for his fight club.

Eddie Reidy, Manager of Mike Gibbons, is authority for the statement that the Packey McFarland—Mike Gibbons match is clinched and will be pulled off in New York, in the near future.

The National Sporting Club of London will stage a fight between Pat O'Keefe and Harry Reeve. The winner of the bout will be presented with the English middleweight championship belt.

WHEN IS A MAN DRUNK?

Ticklish Question Before Chief Justice Falconbridge at Osgoode.

"There are many definitions of what constitutes drunkenness," remarked Chief Justice Falconbridge at Osgoode Hall yesterday on a motion before him to quash the conviction of William J. Healey, of Plymouth township, Lambton. Mr. Healey was mulcted in a fine and costs amounting to $36.45 or thirty days on a charge of being found drunk in a public place in the local option village of Wyoming.

"Some people don't think they are drunk as long as they can lie down without hanging on to something," continued his Lordship. "Many medical men say that a man is not entirely sober after he has had one glass of spirits."

"The constable thought a man was not drunk as long as he could walk," suggested Grayson Smith, who asked that the conviction be quashed.

For the applicant it was alleged that there was no proof of intoxication, and that the magistrate had not jurisdiction to try a case along in the village of Wyoming.

It was admitted that the accused had had some drinks of gin. His wife knew he had had liquor because he turned pale when he had liquor in him. He was not quarrelsome under the influence. It made him jolly.

The application was dismissed and the conviction sustained.

SECRET TRIAL ENDS.

German Army Officer Goes To Prison For Three Months.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.—Baron Von Der Goltz, a former lieutenant-commander of the German navy, yesterday was sentenced to serve three months in a fortress for subornation to espionage. He was acquitted of the charge of personally betraying military secrets.

The greatest secrecy surrounded the trial which began Monday, the authorities claiming that the safety of the state was involved. Even the accusation against the prisoner was not read in public.

The baron is a nephew of Field Marshal Baron Kolmar Von Der Goltz, the famous Prussian general and Turkish pasha, and formerly acted as the Berlin representative of the Krupp cannon works of Duesseldorf.

POLICE COURT

The court room was crowded to such an extent this morning, that the large double doors could not be closed. The only case of any importance that was heard was that of a local man who was charged with theft, although Ernest Kennedy also appeared, charged with being drunk while on the blacklist.

In the former case, a local man was charged with stealing a couple of spoons, valued at about $1.00, from the Montgomery House. Chief Thompson conducted the prosecution, and Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant.

Mr. F. Montgomery was the first witness for the Crown. He said he was proprietor of the Montgomery House on Simcoe street. He saw the accused at his hotel a week ago last Friday. That day he lost a number of spoons from the bar. The spoons found on the prisoner were produced in court, but Mr. Montgomery could not identify them positively. Some of the spoons, however, he recognized, as they had been marked by him with a hammer and nail.

Alfred Switzer, bartender at the Montgomery House, said that when he went on duty at 20 minutes after six last Friday, the prisoner and two other men were standing near the bar. One of the men called for a drunk, and the prisoner ordered hot whiskey. Witness saw him drink the whiskey and put the glass down on the bar. The tea spoon he dropped into his left-hand overcoat pocket. In a few minutes one of the party called for another drink and the prisoner ordered hot whiskey. This time as before he pocketed the spoon. Witness then notified Mr. Montgomery.

"Were you there when the policemen came?" asked the Chief.

"Yes sir."

"What did they do?"

"They took the prisoner into the centre of the room and searched him. They got the two spoons out of his pocket."

"When did you see the spoons next?"

"To-day."

"Are they Mr. Montgomery's spoons?"

"Yes. I know them by the mark on the handle."

Constable Reid was the next witness. He said that about seven o'clock last Friday night P. C. Hayward and he received a complaint regarding the stolen spoons. They went into the bar and asked the bartender which was the man he meant. They then went over to the prisoner and told him he was suspected of stealing spoons. Witness searched him and found the two spoons produced in court in his left-hand coat pocket. The two constables then went to prisoner's home on Park street, where his mother and father produced all the spoons in the house. They took the silverware to the Montgomery House where no one could identify any of the spoons as theirs.

To Mr. Gordon witness said that the prisoner was drunk when arrested.

Mr. Gordon called the defendant to give evidence in his own defence. He said that on Friday last he spent the afternoon in the bar of the Montgomery House. If he took the spoons and put them in his pocket he could not remember it. He was very drunk. Witness had never been arrested for anything like that before.

Mr. G. N. Gordon asked that leniency be shown, as up to the present the prisoner had lived a clean and honest life. He came of a respectable family and was a hard working young man.

"I find his guilty of the theft," said the Magistrate. "But all circumstances considered, I will allow him to go on suspended sentence.

Ernest Kennedy, a local young man, who had previously pleaded guilty to being drunk, came before the Magistrate this morning. His case was adjourned for a month to give him a chance to show that he is capable of throwing off the drink habit.

ENTERTAINED AT MR. TELFORD'S

Last evening a number of young people drove out to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Telford, Chemong Road, where a very enjoyable evening was spent. The time was passed in playing games and in music. Mr. Treneer and Mr. Thorpe kindly favoured the gathering with a number of instrumental and vocal selections. Lunch was served at half past twelve, and at three o'clock the happy party left for home.

REPRESENTATIVE OF HOLMES RESTAURANT IN THE CITY

Mr. S. J. Thomas of Toronto is in the City for a few days. Mr. Thomas is one of the original promoters of the "Cafitarine," the new restaurant just opened in Toronto. These restaurants are waiterless and are proving very satisfactory in Toronto and Montreal. The parent stock of this concern is paying 40 per cent. dividends. Mr. Thomas is in the City now in the interest of the Holmes Restaurant, which flotation he is handling and was called here by several Peterborough citizens, who wished to invest. He is at the Oriental Hotel.

MR. CULVERWELL'S GIFT

COBOURG, Feb. 3.—The choir of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, of which Rev. Wm. Beattie is pastor, appeared yesterday in Geneva gowns and "mortar boards" for the first time. These vestments were the gift of Mr. J. A. Culverwell of Port Hope. In referring to the gift, Mr. Beattie said that the wearing of gowns was a very old custom, dating back to the days of Calvin. He spoke in appreciative terms of the generosity of Mr. Culverwell, who is himself an Anglican, and who some time ago presented vestments not only to his own church, St. John's, but also to the choir of the Baptist Church in Port Hope.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

Lady's Coat.

With the coming of spring the coats are less long and this model, which is 47½ inches, is just right for a long garment. It has an extended shoulder and a wide, plain sleeve, while front and back are both plain and scant. The lower edge may be straight or cutaway in front and the neck may be high or a little open with wide collar.

The coat pattern, No. 6539, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 3⅝ yards of 54 inch material.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

MR. BANCROFT UNABLE TO COME

Local labour men and all those interested in workmen's compensation will learn with regret that Mr. Fred Bancroft of Toronto, who was to have addressed an open meeting in the Labour Hall to-night, will be unable to be present, and the meeting will be postponed, although the Trades and Labour Council will meet.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

The market should witness special bullish operations on omderate soles. Efforts on the part of professionals to bring about reactions of more than a point or two, fail on account of the fact that the technical position is better than surface conditions reflect. A factor of inherent strength in the stock market technique is the absorption that has been going on by investors who are continuing to buy good securities. The floating supply has been materially reduced and when the professional speculative element tries to force down prices following profit taking, buying orders are found from institutions and individual investment quarters. Under the circumtances there is little encouragement to work for more than moderate recessions. The best sources continue to suggest purchases of good stocks on small reactions.

Report from various parts of the street continue to show that the demand is very good on slight recessions for such stocks as G.Q., N.P., S.P., St. Paul, N. & W., Atch, U.P. and U.S. The copper shares are well bought, including A.C.P., T.C., Anc. and Utah.

C.P.R. should be a buy on any recession.

BIBLE CLASSES' SLEIGH DRIVE

Sixty Young People of George Street Church Enjoyed Outing and Oyster Supper Last Night

Sixty of the young people of the George Street Sunday school, comprising the young ladies of Miss Ferguson's Bible class and the young men of the Excelsior Young Men's Club, held a most enjoyable sleigh drive and banquet last night.

The preparations for the affair, which proved to be an exceedingly delightful one, were looked after to a large etxent by Miss Ferguson and her class, and to them is due in a great measure the credit for the ample provision and splendid arrangements for the young people which were appreciated by all present.

The party assembled at the Church early in the evening, then taking to the sleighs they were driven several miles out into Smith township, returning about 9.30 o'clock to a sumpuous oyster supper at Coleman's.

After the good things provided had been disposed of, a course of action which seemed to be relished by the members of both classes, a brief but splendid programme and toast list was given.

Miss Ferguson presided, and fulfilled her duties as "Madame Chairmistress," in a charming manner. Mr. Asa Huyoke supplied beautiful music during the banquet.

A splendid solo was rendered by Mr. C. Walton and Miss E. Kemp gave a vocal solo that was very beautifully sung.

"The Sunday school was honoured in the first toast. It was proposed in a clever address by Mr. E. C. Logan, and responded to by the superintendent, Mr. W. Taylor.

The toast to "The Classes" was heartily honoured. It was proposed in a neat speech by the Mrs. (Rev.) Peever. Miss Morrow, in a few well chosen words, replied for the young ladies' class and Mr. Hadcock made a suitable response on behalf of the young men's class.

The Rev. R. G. Peever, who was present, spoke, congratulating both classes on the work they were doing, and expressing his pleasure at the fact that they could conduct their social activities with such evident enjoyment under the wing of the Church.

The singing of Auld Lang Syne, with three cheers for Miss Ferguson and Mr. Logan, brought the evening to a close.

TENSION DECREASES

Germany and Britain on Very Good Terms, Says Minister

SOCIALISTS ARE GLOOMY

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Anglo-German relations are "very good," according to the German Foreign Minister, Gottlieb Von Jagow, in a speech before the Ways and Means Committee of the Imperial Parliament yesterday. This utterance is the strongest official characterization of the relations between the two countries that has been expressed in years.

The Foreign Minister declared that the one-time tension was steadily decreasing and that the relations of the two Governments were now marked throughout by mutual trust.

Admiral Alfred Von Tirpitz, Minister of Marine, declared he had nothing to add to his statement of last year that England's proposed fleet ratio of sixteen to ten as compared to that of Germany was acceptable to the German Empire.

Both Herr Von Jagow and Admiral Van Tirpitz expressed the opinion that the unofficial suggestion of a year's naval shipbuilding holiday made by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, was impracticable.

Their view was shared by the representatives of all the parties with the exception of the Socialists.

Admiral Von Tirpitz refuted the argument that Germany was setting the pace in naval armaments, and showed by statistics that Germany had increased her naval expenditures during the last five years by 56,000,000 marks ($13,750,000), as compared with an increase of 216,000,000 marks ($54,000,000) by Great Britain, not counting 60,000,000 marks in the anticipated supplementary estimates. In the same period the naval expenditures of France increased 134,000,000 marks, and Russia 303,000,000 marks.

TAX ROLL IS GONE.

Caradoc Township Loses Valuable Document In Fire.

MOUNT BRYDGES, Feb. 5.—An unusual loss was sustained in a fire which destroyed the branch of the Union Bank here yesterday, when the tax-roll of Caradoc Township was destroyed.

Manager Lee, formerly teller in the head office, when it was located in Quebec, and who was absent in London at the time of the fire, had collected considerable money during the past week for the township, taxes being payable at the bank. The tax roll, it is understood, was not placed in the vault Tuesday night, and as the fire occurred yesterday morning before office hours, there was no one to save the township records.

The bank was located in the best business property in the village, a large general store, conducted by Mr. Walter Snelgrove, adjoining. The fire broke out in the basement of the bank about 8 o'clock, destroying the entire building, with most of Snelgrove's stock. As the building alone cost upward of $10,000, the total loss will be quite heavy.

TO MEET ULSTERMEN?

Sweeping Concessions From Asquith Are Prophesied.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Feb. 5.—Concessions of the most sweeping description are to be made to Ulster in connection with the introduction of home rule in Ireland in the course of a statement to be made by Premier Asquith on the reassembling of Parliament, according to yesterday's Glasgow Herald. The concessions, says the newspaper, are to cover practically everything short of the exclusion of Ulster from the provisions of the home rule measure.

The announcement made by The Herald is regarded in political circles as particularly significant since it coincides with the arrival in Glasgow of David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to speak on the land question.

Train Hit Auto; Two Dead.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Feb. 5.—Two men were instantly killed and two others, both priests, were severely hurt when a New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, train struck their automobile at a grade crossing near the East Blackstone railroad station yesterday.

The dead: J. F. Arthur Robeg, real estate agent, Woonsocket; Oreste Leoni, chauffeur.

Rev. Henry J. Gaudet, Woonsocket, and Rev. George Trottier, Gardiner, Mass., were severely injured.

Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at Any Price, Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2½ ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It loosens up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequaled remedy for whooping cough and croup.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

SMALL FIRE IN LINDSAY

LINDSAY, FEB. 4.—Tuesday night at 8 o'clock an alarm of fire was sent in from the east ward and the brigade made a quick run. The scene of the blaze was in a stable in the rear of Mrs. Chas. Hall's residence, on Queen Street. The structur was a mass of flames when the brigade arrived, the reflection lighting up the heavens to such an extent that many thought a more serious fire was in progress. The structure was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars. Seven hens and a rooster were also consumed and a tonsorial outfit belonging to Mr. Vin Hall was also practically destroyed.

THAT BRITISH TRIP

Col. Hughes is Interrogated Regarding Summer Jaunts

THE FENIAN RAID BOUNTIES

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes trip to England last summer, with entourage of officers, officers' wives and daughters, and lady private secretaries, his participation with Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton while on military duty, in the picnic of Ward Four Conservative Association of Toronto at Queenston Heights last summer, and his showering of Fenian raid bounties over the country outrivalling the United States pension record, were the chief subjects of inquiry by Liberals in the Commons yesterday.

At the question hour Col. Sam Hughes answered a number of interrogations about his trip to England and the famous visit with Sir Ian Hamilton to Queenston Heights. The cross-examiner was Mr. Proulx (Lib., Prescott) and he asked if the Minister of Militia had accompanied Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton to the political picnic of Ward Four Conservative Association at Queenston Heights in July last wearing a badge inscribed "Borden and our Empire," and was so photographed.

Col. Hughes said that he was there with Sir Ian as his guest on the day in question, inspecting Queenston Heights from a military point of view that there were a great many picnics going on, that he were a badge showing "a stalwart young Canadian grasping, across the Atlantic, the hand of John Bull," that the Minister and Sir Ian was photographed some score of times that day "with a lot of fine people," and "doubtless many of them, apparently intelligent, belonged to the Conservative Association."

With regard to the trip to England, Hon. Col. Hughes said there were 21 officers, a private secretary and her assistant, and two orderlies in the party, no wives and daughters were in the party "officially." The expense of the ladies were borne by their husbands and fathers, and the expenses of the party paid by the Government amounted to $24,262. The officers, while on the trip, received pay according to rank, amounting to $3,984, and for subsistence and other allowance received $10 a day. Members of the party other than officers received actual expenses and their permanent pay.

The officers saw the French, Swiss and British manoeuvres, while the Minister of Militia visited the German divisional manoeuvres, and the Dutch and Belgian military centres.

Mr. Michaud was told that men enlisted for military service to resist the Fenian raid in 1866 consisted of 123,631, divided as follows: Upper Canada, 12,199; Lower Canada, 7,598; Nova Scotia, 59,379, and New Brunswick, 44,055.

In the year 1870 the men called out numbered 43,541, divided as follows: Ontario, 20,986; Quebec, 15,066; Nova Scotia, 4,192, and New Brunswick, 3,327. The total called out to resist the two raids numbered 166,572.

Col. Hughes stated that already 16,470 bounty payments had been made. There are many more applications still coming in, the influx being now principally from Nova Scotia.

CHARMED HIS ROLL.

But Gipsy Incantation Cost the Gentleman $35.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—Two women posing as gypsies and charged with conducting a clever fim-flam game were arrested by detectives yesterday on the complaint of Moisen Lalonde, a grocer, who claims that they relieved him of $35. A number of complaints have been made to the police of women temporarily renting small stores, telling fortunes, and by sleight-of-hand work extracting bills from rolls of money handed them to have a "good luck" charm put upon it.

The women arrested gave the names of Katherine Helena, aged 55, and Alexandra Frederica, aged 22.

Mr. Lalonde states that after mumbling incantation one of the women handed back his roll apparently in the same condition she received it, but he later missed from it two bills, a $20 and $5.

Heroic Captain Rewarded.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Captain Francis Inch, commander of the steamship Volturno, which was burned in mid-Atlantic on Oct. 11, 1913, with a loss of 135 lives, was presented yesterday with the freedom of the City of London in a silver casket and also with a gold medal, a gold watch and chain, a purse of gold and Lloyd's silver medal. The presentation was made by the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House. He told Capt. Inch that the tokens were in recognition of his heroism and staunch allegiance to duty."

At the same time a diamond and sapphire pendant and a silver tea service were presented to Mrs. Inch.

Rate War Will Aid Immigration.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—The shipping rate war, in the opinion of local agents, is likely to lead to a large increase in the immigration of Europeans of the laboring class, providing ample material for railway and other construction work. This may result in lower wages being paid to laborers in Canada. Further reductions in third-class steamship passages are anticipated.

ALLEGES CONSPIRACY.

Strike Was a Syndicalist Plot Says South African Politician.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Feb. 5.—Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, Minister of Defence, was cheered by all sections except the Laborites when he arose in the Assembly yesterday to move the second reading of the bill to indemnify the Government for its acts under martial law. After he had spoken for nearly four hours in justification of the Government's action in declaring martial law and deporting the strike leaders, the House adjourned. Gen. Smuts will resume his speech to-day.

The Minister of Defence argued that the Government had to deal with no ordinary strike, but a Syndicalist conspiracy of the worst type. The Trades Federation had attempted to paralyse trade and transportation, and terrorize and starve the community in order to compel surrender to its demands. To defeat this conspiracy and prevent the country from succumbing to anarchy, it became necessary to mobilize a larger military force than was employed in the Boer Republics at the outbreak of the war. He declared that Secretary Bain of the Trades Federation, one of the men deported, was the most prominent in inciting violence. He had known Bain when he was employed in the secret service of the Boer Government, and declared him to be one of the most desperate characters he had ever encountered.

New Ruler In Peru.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 5.—The President of the Republic of Peru, Guillermo Billinghurst, was taken prisoner yesterday by military revolutionists, who attacked the Presidential palace under the leadership of Col. Bonavides.

Gen. Enrique Varela, Premier and Minister of War and Marine, was killed in the sharp fight which ensued.

Dr. Auguste Durand, a former revolutionary leader, whose arrest was sought by the police Tuesday, took possession of the palace and will form a new government.

The Double Work of the Blood

The circulation of the blood is one of the most perfect pieces of mechanism in the universe. Besides carrying nourishment to every part of the body, the blood collects the waste products and passes through the kidneys in order that these poisons may be eliminated.

Hence you see the tremendous importance of keeping the kidneys in healthful working order so that they free the blood of these impurities before they find lodgment in some weak spot and set up serious disease.

Aching back and aching head, troubles with the digestion, deposits in the urine, constipation and biliousness—such are the symptoms which indicate the need of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. The liver is awakened to action, the bowels regulated, and the kidneys made vigorous in their work of purifying the blood.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are kept at hand for use in just such cases. They save many doctor bills, and by keeping the digestive and excretive systems in health do much to prolong life and bring comfort in old age.

In a storm off the coast of Jutland a Danish vessel recently shipped a huge sea which swept one of the crew overboard. The vessel was brought round and life belts thrown out, one of which he caught. While arrangements were being made to lower a boat another wave carried the man back on deck, where he was grasped by his shipmates.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

And, without further words, he wheeled his horse slowly and rode back to the camp. As he rode he maintained his dejected attitude, but his mind was actively laying plans for the overthrow of Bissell. Under the mark of seeming defeat he sought to find means for an unexpected victory.

Though his whole being rose in revolt against the arbitrary claims of the cattle king, he had become so hardened to this injustice everywhere that he no longer wasted his time or strength in vain railings against it. Instinctively he felt that this was to be a struggle of strength against cunning, for the very thought of physical resistance to thirty fighting cowboys by half a dozen herders was ridiculous.

Many similar skirmishes, both on his home ranch and on the trail, had sharpened Larkin's wits for emergencies, and it was with really no spirit of humble complacence that he faced the future. Much, however, depended on the result of Sim's explorations.

By the time Larkin arrived at the camp the visiting cowmen had disappeared. But this did not mean for a moment that they had all returned to the Bar T ranch house. Merely to top the first hill would have been to see a horse with hanging bridle, and a cow-puncher near by camped on the trail that led to the north.

As fortune would have it, Sims slunk into camp just at the dinner hour.

"What'd they say to yur?" he asked abruptly. "I seen the confab from over on that hogback yonder."

The herder's respect for his employer sometimes diminished to the vanishing point.

"Got to clear out in twenty-four hours or take what's comin'."

"What'd ye tell 'em?"

"I said we would."

The lank herder started back in amazement.

"Oh, blazes!" he grieved. "That I should've ever took on with a milksop boss. I'm plumb disgraced—" His voice trailed off into silence as he recognised the twinkle in Larkin's eye. "Oh, I see what yuh mean," re apologised, with a wide grin. "We'll clear out all right. Oh, yes! Sure!"

He sat down.

"Depends on you a good deal," remarked Bud, shoving the beans toward him. "What did you find this morning?"

"Found a new way north," was the muffled and laconic reply. "Yaas," he continued presently, after regarding his reflection in the bottom of a tin cup that had been full of coffee the moment before, "an' it's over on that hogback."

A "hogback," be it understood, is a rugged rocky mound, carved by weather erosion. It is the result of the level rock strata of the plains suddenly bending upward and protruding out of the earth.

"That ridge runs north for about two miles, and at the end seems to turn east into the Big Horn foothills. So far as I can see, no man or critter has ever been there, for there ain't any water in that crotch, and nothin' else but heat and rattlers. The point of the thing is this: Spring rains for a couple of million years have wore a regular watercourse down that crotch, and I think we can run the sheep over it, single file."

"Yes, but won't they be out on the open Bar T range when we get them over?"

"No, boss. D'ye think I'd do a thing like that? Honest, the way you misjudge a man! Well, across that hogback, where it turns to the east, there is a strng of range hills covered with good feed, and leadin' north, for twenty miles. My idea's this:

"I'll send Pedro with about a hundred rams and wethers directly north from here, as they're expecting we will. All of them will have bells on, and Pedro'll have to prod 'em some to make 'em bawl. While he is drawing all the trouble, we'll hustle the rest of the flock along behind the hogback, over the pass, and north behind the shelter of the hills.

"Fine, Sims; just the thing!" exclaimed Larkin, taking up with the idea enthusiastically. "It will be a thundering brute of a man who won't let the flock north once it has gone twenty miles."

"I allow that perhaps the Bar T punchers will be watchin' that hogback, although I couldn't find tracks there, new or old. If they ever catch the sheep in that gully, you're due to wish you'd stayed East."

"Well, that's our risk, and we've got to take it. Now, I think we'd better roll up for a few hours this afternoon, for we didn't sleep last night, and I don't believe we will to-night. Have Pedro call us at half-past four, and have him round up the sheep about five."

Sheep, because of some perverse twist in their natures, cannot graze standing still. They must walk slowly forward a few steps every few moments. To-day, however, because of the luxuriant grass along the river, the progress of the flock had been comparatively slow. Their day's "walk" would bring them, Larkin figured, to a point less than a mile distast from the hogback, and an ideal spot from which to start the march.

Pedro called the two men at the appointed hour, and they reached the flock just in time for the bedding down. Immediately all hands went through the sheep, removing the bells from the animals that usually wore them, and fastening them about the necks of those delegated to act as a blind and cover the advance of the main body.

To a Bar T cow-puncher who knew anything about sheep, the evening scene would have exhibited nothing out of the ordinary. From the reclining hundreds came the soft bleating of the ewes calling their young, which is only heard at the daily bedding, the low-toned blethering of the others of the flock, and the tinkle of the bells.

Beside the cook waggon the fire glowed in the trench, and everything seemed to be progressing normally.

Twilight came early among the trees and brush near the river, but it was not until absolute darkness had descended over the vast expanse of prairie that Larkin gave the order to march. Then the main body of the herd, with Sims at its head, the dogs flanging and Bud bringing up the rear on horseback, moved silently out toward the unknown hazards of the hogback pass.

Pedro and his hundred had been ordered to wait fifteen minutes, until the head of the column should have almost reached the shelter of the hogback. This he did, and then he headed his small flock straight up the open prairie of the range., amid a chorus of bells and loud-voiced protest. Larkin, half a mile away, heard these sounds and smiled grimly, for the flocks before him made scarcely any sound at all.

In the darkness ahead he could hear the low voices of the men talking to the dogs and encouraging the unresponsive sheep. Overhead were the brilliant, low-swinging stars that gave just enough light to show him he trend of the long, heaving line.

For another half-hour there was silence. The sounds of Pedro and his flock became fainter as the two bodies diverged from each other. Now the dark wall of the hogback rose up on Larkin's left; the last of the flock was behind shelter. The going was rough and Pinte chose each step carefully, but the sheep made good progress, because there was no grass to tempt them.

After another long space, broken only by the clatter of hard little feet on stone, distant shots rang out, accompanied by faint yells, and Larkin knew that Pedro had met with the first of the Bar T outfit.

The sheepman was resigned to losing the hundred, just as cattlemen do not hesitate to cut out and abandon all weak animals on a long drive. It is a loss credited to the ultimate good of the business, but Bud had not consented to this sacrifice if it meant also the sacrifice of the herder.

Pedro had, however, with many winks and glintings of teeth, made it clear that he did not expect to depart this life yet a while, hinting mysteriously at certain charms, amulets, and saints that made it a business to keep him among the living.

Pedro, to Bud's knowledge, had been in numerous seamy affairs before, and had always reappeared, rather the worse for wear, but perfectly sound in all respects. He did not doubt but what the Spaniard would turn up at the cook waggon for breakfast.

The sounds of distant conflict continued for perhaps five or ten minutes, at the end of which time perfect silence reigned again. Larkin wondered how many of the animals had been killed, or whether they had been merely scattered—the equivalent of death, for a sheep is unable to find water, and if frightened, will back against a face of rock and starve to death.

Another half-hour passed, and now Larkin could see the dim white backs of the herd rising before him as they climbed the steep watercourse. He judged that more than half the flock must be down the precipitous other side, and his heart beat with exultation at the success of Sim's strategy. His plan was to hide the sheep in some little green valley during the day and march them at night until discovered or until the upper range was reached.

Suddenly, just as the last of the flock was mounting the ascent, Larkin drew Pinte up short and listened intently. Then he quickly dismounted and placed his ear to the ground, only to leap into the saddle again, swing his horse quick and ride back along the trail.

He had heard the unmistakable pounding of feet, and an instant's sickening fear flashed before him the possibility that the Bar T cowboys had discovered the ruse after all; either that or they had extorted the secret of it from Pedro.

Larkin loosened the pistol in his holster, one of those big, single-action wooden-handled forty-fives that have settled so many unrecorded disputes, and prepared to cover the rear of the herd until it was safely across the hogback.

Pinte's ears twitched forward. The sound of galloping feet was nearer now. Larkin clapped on spurs and trotted to meet it.

Closer and closer it came, a mingled clatter of hoofs. Then suddenly there rang out the frightened bawl of a bewildered calf.

The aspects of the situation took on another hue. If these had been cattle stampeded by the shots and shouting on the plain, they would have made a vastly different thundering along the earth. Cattle never ran this way by themselves; therefore the obvious inference was that they were driven.

Again, the Bar T punchers had no call to drive cattle at night, particularly this night. Who, then, was driving them? In an instant Larkin's mind had leaped these various steps of reasoning and recalled old Beef Bissell's vehement arraignment of rustlers in the State. The answer was plain. The calves were being driven off the range into concealment by cattle-thieves.

Larkin knew that all the sheep had not yet passed the top of the hogback. It was absolutely necessary that their passage be unknown and unobserved. here was but one thing to do.

Spurring his horse, he charged toward the oncoming animals, whose dark forms he could now discern a hundred yards away. As he rode, he shouted and drew his revolver, firing into their faces. When at last it seemed that he must come into violent collision with them, they turned, snorting, to the east, and made off in the direction of the river.

His purpose accomplished, Larkin wheeled Pinte sharply, and dug in his spurs, but at that instant two dark forms loomed close, one on each side, and seized the bridle.

"Hands up!" said a gruff voice. "You're covered."

CHAPTER VI.

UGLY COMPANY.

Larkin's revolver was empty, and his hands mechanically went up.

The capton on right relieved him of the useless weapon, and in a trice, produced a rope, with which he bound the sheepman's arms tightly behind him. With the other end of the rope turned about the pommel of his saddle, he dropped back into the darkness, while his companion rode to a position ahead of Larkin.

At a growled word from behind, she little cavalcade advanced, Larkin mystified, uncertain and fuming with impotent rage. Never in his life had he been so needed as he was at that time by Sims and the herdsmen; never is his life had he so ardently desired liberty and freedom of action.

Why these men had captured him he did not know; what they intended doing with him he had no idea—although his knowledge of plainsmen's character supplied him with two or three solutions hardly calculated to exhilarate the victim. Where they were taking him was almost as much of a puzzle, for Bud, after the first few turns of his captors, completely lost his sense of direction, except for the general compass of the stars.

No longer the friendly loom of the hogback was on his left. He felt the free wind of the plains on his face, and calculated that they must have returned to the open range.

Who the captors were was another puzzle. If these men had been driving the cattle why did they not continue to drive them instead of turning aside to make prisoner a harmless sheepman? If they were not driving the cattle—

A horible suspicion crossed Bud's mind. If these were punchers from the Bar T outfit he was indeed in a bad way, for no one knew better than Larkin by hearsay) the wild stories told of Beef Bissell's methods in a cattle war.

The young man told himself calmly that if he got away with a few head of sheep and an entire body he would consider himself fortunate in the extreme.

For seemingly endless ages the leader trotted on ahead—so far, in fact, did he ride that Larkin's arms and elbow joints were racked with pain from being held so long in an unnatural position. At the end of what was probably three hours, a small fiery glow made itself evident at some distance across the plain, and the sheepman knew by this camp-fire that the goal of his ride was in sight.

A solitary man sat by the fire, rolling and smoking a continuous stream of cigarettes. Dimly seen in the near-by shadows were the long figures of other men rolled in their blankets. Bud knew that not far off the cobbled horses grazed, or had lain down to rest.

"Kick up the boys, Bill," said the man who held the rope. "Got somethin' queer to look into this time."

"Aw, let 'em sleep, chief," drawled Bill without moving. "Some of 'em ain't closed their eyes in nigh on three days. What's the matter?"

"Got a young captain here who 'lows he's some brave man, I reckon. Leastways he come drivin' at us with fire a-poppin' out of his gun, an' Shorty and me thinks we better investigate. So we nabs him with gun's empty, and brings him in. A man that'll shoot around reckless the way this feller did is plump dangerous to have runnin' loose.

(To be continued.)

HEART WAS SO BAD

Could Not Do Her Housework

Many women get run down and are unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Thomas Melville, Saltcoats, Sask., writes:—"I thought it my duty to write and tell you how much your Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. My heart was so bad I could not sleep, eat nor walk about the house. I could not do my housework at all, and what my husband could not do had to go undone. I had two small children depending on me besides three men to cook for, and it worried me to not be able to do anything. My husband had taken some of your pills some years ago, and insisted on me trying them, so I started, and before I had taken them two weeks I was considerably better, and before I had taken two boxes I was doing my own work again. Any one suffering from heart or nerve trouble should just give your pills a trial. If anyone cares to write me I will gladly give them all the information I know concerning your wonderful medicine."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

URIC ACID SUFFERING

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

SHADOW-TIME.

Lay by the story and lay by the rhyme,
The shadows are here and it's Hush-a-bye Time;
Mother Goose children are all fast asleep,
And little tin soldiers their night vigils keep;
Nary a sound in the nursery is heard
Save clatter of hoofs way out Banburyward,
Whence the cockhorse of the nursery theme
Goes galloping out of a little tad's dream.

Put by his rompers and put by his toys,
And grown-ups step lightly without any noise—
Childhood is weary and worn for its rest,
And trustingly snuggles at Motherhood's breast;
Shadows fall gently and winds whisper low
Along the sweet paths where his dream fancies go—
Bless him and guard him and guide him away,
And bring him safe back to the Kingdom of Play.

Lay by your worries and odd little frets
That light-hearted Childhood so quickly forgets—
Gallop your dream horse afar and away
From gardens of youth and the orchards of play;
Dream, little chap, while we picture anew
The time we were carefree and happy as you—
Nights when we mounted the dream-horse of rhyme
And rode off to slumber at Hush-a-bye Time.

Detective Stories as Told by Real Detectives

"CLEANING UP" NEW YORK'S DESPERATE ROWDIES

"CLEAN up the toughs of the west side."

This was the order that percolated from the sanctum of the Police Commissioner to the Detective Bureau, to the chief inspector and thence through every police precinct of the west side of New York until every man of the uniformed force was made to realize that lawlessness on the west side was at last to be checked.

"Go get those fellows," was the instruction each man who had been especially picked for his "strong arm" tactics received, and with a do or die determination this squad started out to do its chief's bidding.

Detective Lieutenant John J. O'Connell.

Readily they realized that their work was cut out for them. Rounding up a west side band of rowdies makes the present crusade against the gun carriers of the east side look like a pink tea in comparison.

The east side slayer lurks in the protecting shadows of the night and from ambush abbots down his victim and flees after tossing his pistol at the head of his prey. Sheltering hallways of Chinatown swallow him and he is free to emerge through some subterranean passage into a back street and at his leisure rejoin his comrades and report progress. Chances are he had been sent to "get that man" and he is eager to tell his leader of his success and then, perhaps, buy another package of cocaine and sit and dream and prate of his mighty prowess.

The west side rowdies, among whom the McVetty brothers—Bob and George—were prime factors, were of different calibre. In the dazzling glare of saloon lights that cast their piercing rays far into the inky black of night they would ply their trade with profit. Leaping through the swinging doors of the saloon marked for plucking, they would battle their way to the bar, brandish revolvers in the cry of "Hands up, everybody!" and then send forth a volley of shots that would deafen the terror stricken barkeeper and his cowering customers. It mattered not how many men there happened to be loafing in the place at the time. Numbers meant nothing to this pair and their followers. There was money in sight, and they were thirsty. Whiskey was their god, and without money parched throats could not be wetted.

"Shoot up the joint and stick up the barkeep," was their slogan, and they invariably worked close to form. It was not a case of a single saloon a night when they went forth on one of their marauding exploits. Keep going as long as the going is good was their motto, and sometimes a dozen places within a radius of a mile would be "shot up" and looted before they suspended operations for the night and retired to the back room of some favoring saloon where the night's loot was equally divided.

These were the men that had spread terror along the water front, and each knew that sooner or later he would be "collared" and sent away. He knew that once he fell into police toils there would be no clemency for him, for his brand of crime stamped him a highwayman, and that meant from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing. Perhaps they were fatalists, too, just that fate befell the McVettys and their boon companions, Patrick Bolger and Charles C. Clark, the latter known as "Yellow the First." Each received his ten to twenty year term at the hands of Judge Foster, and each is hard at work in Sing Sing to-day.

The work of rounding up these toughs did not look difficult at first. Their very daring had marked them from one end of the water front to the other, and every man who had quaked before their belching guns gave a minute description of the bandits. Despite this, when the time came to get them they proved as elusive as a will o' the wisp. Each night new crimes were reported—barkeeper shot, innocent bystander limping forth with a bullet in his leg in back, the cash register looted and the place wrecked. These reports never varied and they trickled into Police Headquarters with monotonous regularity.

The strong arm squad was spending sleepless nights. Harried by their superiors, who were feverishly demanding action, they were becoming almost desperate from their failure to show results. Arrests a-plenty had been made, but somehow when these suspects were haled to police courts the cases against them didn't stand up and they were turned out. More arrests followed, and still the squad knew that the men they really wanted were still at large, for their depredations continued and loomed more daring each day.

Suddenly these saloon holdups ceased. The detectives were beginning to believe that their constant presence on the west side had acted as a deterrent, and as carefully as they had sought to disguise themselves these disguises had been penetrated. Police Headquarters was somewhat appeased and the orders to "clean up the toughs became less insistent in tone.

But after a hiatus of a few days a new brand of crime appeared. Highwaymen were at work in the very heart of the city robbing any and every body who looked like "ready money," and then making their getaway in a waiting taxicab. Straightaway they were branded as "taxi bandits," and new and frenzied orders were issued to Inspector Faurot, head of the Detective Bureau, to press into service every available detective and round up these bandits. The streets were scoured from end to end and every suspicious person was picked up and taken to Police Headquarters for examination. But as numerous as these arrests were there was no letup in these highway robberies.

Inspector Faurot spent restless nights following every possible lead, never failing to run down each clew that his men brought in to him. Detective John J. O'Connell, one of the Inspector's most valuable allies, was doing yeoman service, and inaugurated the system of taking stenographically the questions put and the replies vouchsafed in the course of these "sweating" sessions at Headquarters. These reports he would then piece together, and when something concrete appeared O'Connell would sally forth and run down his clews.

O'Connell learned that the McVettys had been implicated in the saloon holdups. He knew where both had lived with their respective wives—little girls—but after tracing them from abode to abode the trail was finally lost, and search as he might he could not pick it up again. One or two of the hold-ups by the taxicab band savored of the tactics employed by the saloon bandits, and O'Connell felt confident that if he could locate either of the McVettys he would have either principal or accessory to many of the crimes so long unsolved.

Getting a minute description of the brothers, he made out a report which was left at Headquarters, and this report presented such a vivid pen picture of his quarry that many of the detectives who scanned it declared they believed that through this agency they would sooner or later pick up the men wanted.

But despite these acquaintances new holdups were occurring each day. All smacked of the same procedure—messenger or depositor emerging from a bank struck down and fired upon by two or more men and left weltering in the street as his assailants leaped into a taxicab or big motor car and fled with their loot. Sometimes the sums thus obtained were trifling. At other times large amounts were procured, and always a sum sufficient to keep the bandits in funds for a few days anyhow. By laying low awhile and then rallying forth to operate in a section of the city remote from the scene of the previous hold-up they ran less risk of capture.

After all, chance played an important part in the final round-up of the band, and George McVetty, one of its ringleaders, was the man who, through a fit of sullen and brutal temper, made this possible. While sauntering through Thirty-first street, near Ninth avenue, McVetty was stopped by John McGinnis, thirteen years old, who asked for a match. Without a word McVetty landed a crushing blow on the boy's mouth, knocking him insensible to the street. Several men standing near saw the attack, and fronzied by the unwarranted and cowardly assault leaped upon McVetty, and by the time their cries of rage and the roar of combat had subsided five hundred frenzied men and women were pursuing the fleeing bandit, who at every few paces would turn and fire upon his pursuers. Three men were shot down in the running fight and each was seriously wounded.

Policemen came running from every direction and joined in the chase. McVetty sped on, and upon reaching Ninth avenue he was accosted by Joseph Lynch, who had just emerged from a saloon to ascertain the cause of the uproar. As Lynch seized the fugitive McVetty fired at him and Lynch fell, with his thigh shattered by a bullet. The crowd then closed in on McVetty, and but for the clubs and pistols of the police they would have lynched him then and there. A furious fight ensued between the police and their prisoner before he was finally subdued and taken to the police station.

The next day O'Connell looked the prisoner over. As soon as he clapped eyes on McVetty he knew he was one of the men he had so carefully sought. The prisoner was taken before Inspector Faurot and put through a rigorous cross-examination. Contrary to the customary sullen attitude assumed by men of his calibre when cornered, McVetty grew loquacious, and before the Inspector, Captain Tunney and Detective O'Connell were through with him they had a fair idea of all the crimes with which the bandit had been connected. Better still, they learned the identity of his accomplices and their haunts.

Here is where Detective O'Connell's stenographic notes came into play. Later events showed that the loose ends he had pieced together from scraps of information he had gleaned when other band men were being sweated were of vast aid. In the first place he was able to pin a crime—that of the hold-up of a saloon—on McVetty at the outset. This placed the prisoner [illegible] and he soon became aware that the detectives knew far more about [illegible] than they did. Hoping to clear himself, he revealed the names of his brother Robert, Bolger and Yellow the First. He also told where they could be found. McVetty "squealed," and his "squeal" proved the one link in the chain the detectives had been striving so earnestly to forge. It was only a question of a few hours before the other three were at Headquarters being put through the same "sweating" process that had befallen George McVetty.

Robert McVetty proved both a valuable and voluble prisoner. The more he talked the deeper he sank into the meshes of the law, and his contradictions of salient points were so weak and far fetched that when he was returned to his cell he had divulged all the police wished to know, and, furthermore, had established the guilt of all four beyond a question of doubt. These extracts from the frank and voluminous confession of Robert when commanded by Inspector Faurot to "start at the beginning of the crimes you were implicated in" will bear this out:—

"The first hold-up I was concerned in was at the corner of Twelfth avenue and Twenty-fifth street. I was drunk, I expect, and needed money. There was six of us in this job—me, 'Jerry' (I don't know his last name), 'Pat' Bolger, 'Joe Reilly,' 'Yellow First' and George McVetty, my brother. We had been drinking pretty hard, and were just walking past the place when the bunch left me and entered the saloon. I was on the outside.

"There were about six men in the saloon when the bunch entered. Pretty soon the side door burst open and the five of them ran out. George had the gun in his hand and it had just been fired. I didn't know anybody had been hit, but we all beat it away, and hustled to a saloon and split up the money. Reilly had the coin, for he was the man that went behind the bar to the cash register when my brother made the barkeeper throw up his hands."

"How much did you get?" asked Faurot.

"Ninety-four dollars."

"Were the customers in the place held up, too?"

"Sure. We frisked them, too. My brother went through the bunch while he covered them with his gun, always keeping his eye on the barkeep and making him stand with his mitts in the air."

"How did you split this money?"

"Five ways. We each took $15."

"There was some left over?"

"Four dollars. I gave that to my baby."

"There is still $15 unaccounted for."

"We blew that in on drinks in Baldy's place."

"What became of the gun?"

"My brother gave it back to Yellow the First. It was his."

"Didn't you stick up McDermott's saloon the same night, and not go straight home, as you previously said?"

"I believe we did. You see, there were so many of these stick-ups that it's hard to keep names and dates straight."

"Did the same crowd go inside again?"

"Yes. I was the lookout and stayed outside."

"Who did the shooting in this place?"

"My brother carried the cannon, and he let her go two or three times, but I don't think he shot to kill. He just wanted to scare them a bit. And he done it, too."

"How much did you get in this saloon?"

"About $35, and we split it the same way."

"Ever arrested before?"

"Once. But I was discharged. That was for a saloon stick-up, too, but they couldn't identify me."

Upon further cross-examination George McVetty admitted that he had wielded the gun in these hold-ups. He protested that he had been drinking heavily, was without funds and was in desperate straits. He almost would have committed murder for a drink, he said, and that was his sole excuse. He admitted a half dozen other saloon hold ups and the case against the quartet was then clinched.

All during the interrogation of these gunmen O'Connell was working away on the theory that they knew something about the taxi-cab jobs. Every word bearing on these hold-ups was treasured up by the detective, and at opportune moments he would turn on one of the prisoners with a direct question which invariably caught him unaware. Enough evidence was procured in this way to bring about their indictment, and when they were brought up for trial they were arraigned not only as saloon highwaymen but as taxicab bandits as well.

By this means other arrests followed, among them that of Joseph Taylor, the self-confessed leader of one of the most murderous bands that ever operated hereabouts. It was easy to prove that Taylor had outlined and personally conducted the Bethune street hold-up, in which two messengers of the Silk Finishing Company of America were beaten and robbed of [illegible] Robert indicated Bolger in this robbery, who, until this moment, had not been suspected of having part in it.

Taylor proved a disconcerting witness, for he is smart as a whip, and his ready replies often caught the lawyers for the defence off their guard, and damaging testimony crept in where it had been the lawyer's intention to bring about an opposite result.

But the District Attorney had not been idle. Aided by the notes Detective O'Connell had stored away, he was enabled to piece out a strong case against his four hold-up prisoners, and an even stronger one against Taylor and his band. Taylor had been arrested after a furious fight at 125th street and Third avenue. He was well known as "Joe" Young, and he readily assumed responsibility for the series of robberies, some of which netted him several thousand dollars. He smilingly announced that he was the man who conducted the Douglas Shoe Company robbery, in which $310 was taken, and a day or so later held up John Pepper, a prosperous produce merchant, from whom he got $922, after knocking him insensible.

Before the police inquisition was at an end Taylor had revealed enough to bring about the arrest of eleven others, all of whom were more or less implicated in his long string of crimes.

Detective O'Connell, while comparatively a young man, has made an enviable record for himself in the Police Department. Born in this city just thirty years ago, he was educated at the public schools, later being graduated from De La Salle Academy. After filling several positions as an expert stenographer, he entered the Police Department in 1905. He was assigned to the staff of Inspector John F. Flood and later to that of Inspector Hogan. When transferred to the Detective Bureau he was on the staff of Inspector Hughes, and when that official was succeeded by Inspector Faurot O'Connell was taken over by him and has since become one of his valuable aids.

For one so young in years he has won many words of commendation from his superiors, being especially commended for marked bravery at the fire at Carmine and Bedford streets, when eight firemen were killed. Again he was commended for his good work in rounding up the taxicab bandits who robbed two bank messengers of $25,000 in Church street, and again for his work in the Hans Schmidt and the Rosenthal murder cases. He also did excellent work in bringing about the conviction of Dr. Muret on a counterfeiting charge, the dentist being implicated in some of the operations of Schmidt, the slayer priest.

Grade by grade he has been promoted until he now ranks as a detective sergeant. He is an expert in finger print work and the descriptive portrait system of identification. It was his knowledge of stenography that brought about the round-up of the saloon bandits, all of whom received long terms, and this in turn was responsible for the conviction of the taxicab robbers.

Thirteen-Year-Old Girl and Her Home-Made Wireless Apparatus

ALICE McCONAUGHY

ONE of the proudest girls in the United States is Miss Alice McConaughy, of Cincinnati, thirteen years old, who has been granted the first license under the new federal law to operate a wireless apparatus in the great lake district of Ohio.

Miss McConaughy, who is the daughter of H. G. McConaughy, a national bank examiner, operated a wireless apparatus in the kitchen of her home in Madisonville, a suburb of Cincinnati, during the Ohio floods, and in spite of the fact that her instrument was inadequate in many ways received messages from the flooded cities which gave her information of what was happening in some of them long before the local newspapers had been able to obtain any authentic information from these districts.

She heard the call for boats from Hamilton, fifty miles away.

Ambitious to continue her work with wireless, Miss Alice applied for a license when she found that without it she would not be permitted to talk to the licensed stations. All that she could do was to listen when messages were being sent out by the stations, and she grew dissatisfied with playing this passive part in the game of the wireless.

"So I sent to Cleveland for the blanks," explained Alice to an interviewer, "and then I filled them out—all the examination questions, &c.—and sent them back to the inspector in Cleveland. But the strange part was that when the license came, instead of my age being given as thirteen, as it is, it was eighteen on the paper. This was a mistake of the government.

"Now I am a regular government station; that is the reason it is such fun to have a license. My official number and call is 8-F Z."

Alice holds the license for a general amateur radio station of the second grade. This enables her to operate a receiving and sending station for eight months of the year.

The little blond haired girl who has become a licensed wireless operator has always been more interested in electric toys than in dolls. She herself built the wireless apparatus in her home and with very little assistance mastered the complex intercontinental code.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Around Snake Corner

A Stagecoach Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The stage climbed the steep mountain road, the black horses straining against the heavy load of passengers.

"Whoo-up!" shouted Ike Williams as he guided the team around a sharp corner where jutted a great split rock.

"Are there any snakes around here?" asked a timid passenger.

Ike Williams turned a ruddy face toward the passengers, and as his light brown eyes met those of a plump little woman in the corner he winked significantly.

The plump little woman looked very severe and turned her eyes away.

"Yes, sir; this is called snake corner, and it's a funny thing that every time I reach this particular rock every stranger aboard wants to know if there are snakes hereabouts."

"Well, are there any snakes?" demanded the thin woman sharply.

"There are snakes sometimes, ma'am. Once I was coming up from Cherry Brook with a load of folks, and just as we reached snake corner one of the wimmen screamed and fainted, and the others all hollered to beat the band. Of course I stopped and looked to see what was the matter."

"What was it?" demanded the passengers breathlessly.

"Trash!" sniffed Debby Bowne.

"It was a whole passel of blacksnakes a-sunning themselves on the big rock.

"I was some flustered, because I knew, all my passengers being wimmen, I'd have trouble between the wimmen and the snakes and the hosses here, who ain't got no use for reptiles.

"I'm a quick thinker, and"— Mr. Williams paused and cast a suspicious glance among his passengers. "I thought somebody laffed," he said aggressively.

No one made reply. Debby Bowne

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very hard to get a doctor to us, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

as staring through the open doorway, and the little dark man appeared to be asleep.

The other six passengers were hanging breathlessly on the words of the stage driver.

"Go on!" they cried impatiently. "What did you do then?"

"I got down from my seat and, taking my whip, I went up to the rock and laid it on to them snakes till there wasn't one to be seen. Then I climb back to the stage and drove on.

"The wimmen all cried with joy over getting rid of the snakes, and when we reached the top of the hill—this one we're climbing now—I happened to look back, and what do you suppose I see?" Ike paused dramatically.

"What did you see?" they asked in chorus.

"Snakes!" said Ike, frowning at the recollection. "About fifty blacksnakes, assorted sizes, all humping themselves along the road, trying to catch up with me. I reckon they would have climb up over the wheels and right into the stage if I hadn't done some quick thinking.

"I'm something of a reader," pursued Ike modestly, "and, being interested in the critters, I'd read considerable about snakes. So I took my harmonica out of my pocket and, getting out of the stage, I went back and played 'Yankee Doodle' to them pursuing reptiles, and I'll be blamed if the hull lot didn't stand still like they was charmed, and then I played a march called 'The Retreat.' And you'll hardly believe me when I say that the hull regiment of blacksnakes turned tail and humped themselves back down the road.

"Whoa! Here you are! Willow House!"

With the words Ike halted his horses with a flourish before the door of the little mountain inn.

With the single exception of Debby Bowne the occupants of the stage dismounted at the inn. While some of them were paying the driver, the foreigner leaned toward Debby Bowne.

"Does he speak of a truth?" he inquired, nodding toward Ike Williams.

Two red spots glowed in Debby's cheeks.

"The truth is not in him!" she said emphatically.

"You know him of a certainty, that he lies?" asked the man sharply.

"I was engaged to marry him," said Debby with dry bitterness.

"Was?" repeated the man doubtfully.

"Was," emphasized Debby, "until fifteen minutes ago."

"Ah, with many thanks for the confidence," smiled the stranger, bowing himself away with his heavy basket.

Just as the stage was about to resume its journey with Miss Bowne as its sole inmate that small person skipped alertly down the steps and slammed the door upon the empty vehicle.

"Ain't you going to ride up to the inn with me, Debby?" demanded Ike in dismay.

"Not today," returned Debby crisply. "I'd rather walk than ride with such a story teller as you are. You remember what I said the last time you told that snake story?" Debby Bowne gathered her linc skirts neatly from the dust and tripped away, leaving Ike Williams to stare after her until she had quite disappeared into the opening of Whippoorwill lane, where she lived.

"I'll be blamed!" ejaculated Ike, slapping his knee with one big brown hand. "Well, what do you want?" he growled at the little foreigner who was standing by the wheel looking up at him.

"Beg pardon, but I forgot to pay you for transportation and most enjoyable ride and agreeable story," said the stranger politely.

"Huh!" was Ike's reply.

"And the little lady with the eyes of a dove, she has gone away?" asked the man.

"You mean Miss Debby Bowne?" growled Ike ominously.

The man nodded doubtfully.

"The lady who said she was engaged to you."

"Was?" bristled Ike. "Is, you mean."

"Beg pardon, but she said, 'Was engaged till fifteen minutes ago.' Ah, monsieur is most rude!" cried the stranger as he skipped back beyond reach of Ike's whip.

"Little rat!" growled Ike, his face now sobered to grim anger as he turned the stage about and returned down the mountain. When he passed snake corner he smote the black horses so savagely that they ran all the way down the mountain side, requiring all of Mr. Williams' strength and nerve to control them.

Back in Whippoorwill lane Debby Bowne was crying softly to herself over her broken engagement to the bluff stage driver, and at Willow inn the little foreigner was preparing to entertain the guests that evening with sundry conjuring tricks.

* * * * * * *

The next afternoon Ike Williams drove his stage up the mountain road. There was only one passenger inside, and she was strangely silent and unresponsive. So quiet was Debby Bowne that Ike began to believe that there was some truth in what the foreigner had hinted to him.

Was his engagement to Debby a thing of the past? He did not dare ask her for fear of the answer.

Debby Bowne worked in the postoffice and rode home in the stage every afternoon. It is not surprising that she grew tired and annoyed at hearing Ike's oft repeated snake stories, which were calculated to inspire strangers with dreadful fear.

Only a short week ago she had told Ike that if he ever repeated the blacksnake story in her hearing their engagement would cease at once.

Now he shot a glance from his merry brown eyes at the third finger of her left hand.

The garnet engagement ring was gone.

Their engagement was at an end.

Now they were turning around snake corner.

Ike was lost in gloomy meditation on the front seat when the off horse shied violently.

"Whoa!" shouted Ike, and with a glance at snake rock he pulled the trembling horses to a standstill and turned his head to stare at the great fissured rock about which he had woven so many tales to scare the unwary traveler.

Coiled on the rock was an immense serpent, scaly and glistening, with horrid head lifted and swaying gently to and fro.

"Good heavens!" breathed Ike through his set teeth.

Debby leaned from a window and stared, terrified.

Then, stepping jauntily out of the mountain path, came the foreign passenger of the day before.

He bowed politely to Ike, laid his hat against his heart when he saw Debby and at the same instant glimpsed the snake on the rock.

"Mon Dieu!" he squealed shrilly. "Kill it, monsieur!"

"Kill it yourself!" roared Ike testily, his muscled arm straining at the reins as his horses plunged madly.

"But has not monsieur a happy thought in this great emergency? It is true these are not blacksnakes but"— he shrugged his shoulders suggestively.

"Get out of the way!" shouted Ike angrily.

"Perhaps monsieur would play 'Yankee Doodle' on his harmonicon?" grinned the amused foreigner. "Thus could he soothe the frightened serpent, even as he did in the good story he related. Ah!"

At that moment the black horses broke away and dragged the careening stage after them.

Debby Bowne, white lipped and trembling, saw Ike Williams regain mastery of his team, turn them about and drive back to snake rock just in time to see the foreign conjurer stuffing the great serpent into an odd looking basket.

"Ha! Monsieur is the brave runaway," chided the joke loving Frenchman as he securely fastened the cover of the basket that contained the ancient, half stupid and entirely harmless reptile, which was one of the properties of his performance.

Ike Williams grew redder and redder as the Frenchman disappeared, and Debby Bowne sat silently within, witness of his humiliation.

Glancing out of the corner of his eye, he discerned Debby in the act of slipping the garnet ring back on its accustomed finger.

"You coming over this evening, Ike?" asked Debby softly.

"Yes, if you want me," he said hoarsely.

"Of course I want you," said Debby Bowne gently.

And Debby had part of her reward when the very next time she rode in the stage a timid passenger asked:

"Why do they call this snake corner?"

"Because there ain't any snakes here," replied Ike, with a twinkle in his eye.

Sir Archibald Geikie, the recipient of the Order of Merit, once told a story which illustrates one view of keeping the Sabbath in Scotland. Donald was mending a wheelbarrow at the bottom of the garden, and the noise shocked the Sabbath calm of the neighbourhood. His wife came out with protestations: "Donal', man, ye're makin' an awfu' row. What wull the neebors think" Donald went on nailing a board on the barrow. "I maun get ma barra mendit," he replied. OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Around Snake Corner

A Stagecoach Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The stage climbed the steep mountain road, the black horses straining against the heavy load of passengers.

"Whoo-up!" shouted Ike Williams as he guided the team around a sharp corner where jutted a great split rock.

"Are there any snakes around here?" asked a timid passenger.

Ike Williams turned a ruddy face toward the passengers, and as his light brown eyes met those of a plump little woman in the corner he winked significantly.

The plump little woman looked very severe and turned her eyes away.

"Yes, sir; this is called snake corner, and it's a funny thing that every time I reach this particular rock every stranger aboard wants to know if there are snakes hereabouts."

"Well, are there any snakes?" demanded the thin woman sharply.

"There are snakes sometimes, ma'am. Once I was coming up from Cherry Brook with a load of folks, and just as we reached snake corner one of the wimmen screamed and fainted, and the others all hollered to beat the band. Of course I stopped and looked to see what was the matter."

"What was it?" demanded the passengers breathlessly.

"Trash," sniffed Debby Bowne.

"It was a whole passel of blacksnakes a-sunning themselves on the big rock.

"I was some flustered, because I knew, all my passengers being wimmen, I'd have trouble between the wimmen and the snakes and the hosses here, who ain't got no use for reptiles.

"I'm a quick thinker, and"— Mr. Williams paused and cast a suspicious glance among his passengers. "I thought somebody laffed," he said aggressively.

No one made reply. Debby Bowne was staring through the open doorway, and the little dark man appeared to be asleep.

The other six passengers were hanging breathlessly on the words of the stage driver.

"Go on!" they cried impatiently. "What did you do then?"

"I got down from my seat and, taking my whip, I went up to the rock and laid it on to them snakes till there wasn't one to be seen. Then I climb back to the stage and drove on.

"The wimmen all cried with joy over getting rid of the snakes, and when we reached the top of the hill—this one we're climbing now—I happened to look back, and what do you suppose I see?" Ike paused dramatically.

"What did you see?" they asked in chorus.

"Snakes!" said Ike, frowning at the recollection. "About fifty blacksnakes, assorted sizes, all humping themselves along the road, trying to catch up with me. I reckon they would have climb up over the wheels and right into the stage if I hadn't done some quick thinking.

"I'm something of a reader," pursued Ike modestly, "and, being interested in the critters, I'd read considerable about snakes. So I took my harmonica out of my pocket and, getting out of the stage, I went back and played 'Yankee Doodle' to them pursuing reptiles, and I'll be blamed if the bull lot didn't stand still like they was charmed, and then I played a march called 'The Retreat.' And you'll hardly believe me when I say that the hull regiment of blacksnakes turned tail and humped themselves back down the road.

"Whoa! Here you are! Willow House!"

With the words Ike halted his horses with a flourish before the door of the little mountain inn.

With the single exception of Debby Bowne the occupants of the stage dismounted at the inn. While some of them were paying the driver, the foreigner leaned toward Debby Bowne.

"Does he speak of a truth?" he inquired, nodding toward Ike Williams.

Two red spots glowed in Debby's cheeks.

"The truth is not in him!" she said emphatically.

"You know him of a certainty, that he lies?" asked the man sharply.

"I was engaged to marry him," said Debby with dry bitterness.

"Was?" repeated the man doubtfully.

"Was," emphasized Debby, "until fifteen minutes ago."

"Ah, with many thanks for the confidence," smiled the stranger, bowing himself away with his heavy basket.

Just as the stage was about to resume its journey with Miss Bowne as its sole inmate that small person skipped alertly down the steps and slammed the door upon the empty vehicle.

"Ain't you going to ride up to the lane with me, Debby?" demanded Ike in dismay.

"Not today," returned Debby crisply. "I'd rather walk than ride with such a story teller as you are. You remember what I said the last time you told that snake story?" Debby Bowne gathered her linc skirts neatly from the dust and tripped away, leaving Ike Williams to stare after her until she had quite disappeared into the opening of Whippoorwill lane, where she lived.

"I'll be blamed!" ejaculated Ike slapping his knee with one big brown hand. "Well, what do you want?" he growled at the little foreigner who was standing by the wheel looking up at him.

"Beg pardon, but I forgot to pay you for transportation and most enjoyable ride and agreeable story," said the stranger politely.

"Huh!" was Ike's reply.

"And the little lady with the eyes of a dove, she has gone away?" asked the man.

"You mean Miss Debby Bowne?" growled Ike ominously.

The man nodded doubtfully.

"The lady who said she was engaged to you."

"Was?" bristled Ike. "Is, you mean."

"Beg pardon, but she said, 'Was engaged till fifteen minutes ago.' Ah, monsieur is most rude!" cried the stranger as he skipped back beyond reach of Ike's whip.

"Little rat!" growled Ike, his face now sobered to grim anger as he turned the stage about and returned down the mountain. When he passed snake corner he smote the black horses so savagely that they ran all the way down the mountain side, requiring all of Mr. Williams' strength and nerve to control them.

Back in Whippoorwill lane Debby Bowne was crying softly to herself over her broken engagement to the bluff stage driver, and at Willow Inn the little foreigner was preparing to entertain the guests that evening with sundry conjuring tricks.

* * * * * * * *

The next afternoon Ike Williams drove his stage up the mountain road. There was only one passenger inside, and she was strangely silent and unresponsive. So quiet was Debby Bowne that Ike began to believe that there was some truth in what the foreigner had hinted to him.

Was his engagement to Debby a thing of the past? He did not dare ask her for fear of the answer.

Debby Bowne worked in the postoffice and rode home in the stage every afternoon. It is not surprising that she grew tired and annoyed at hearing Ike's oft repeated snake stories, which were calculated to inspire strangers with dreadful fear.

Only a short week ago she had told Ike that if he ever repeated the blacksnake story in her hearing their engagement would cease at once.

Now he shot a glance from his merry brown eyes at the third finger of her left hand.

The garnet engagement ring was gone.

Their engagement was at an end.

Now they were turning around snake corner.

Ike was lost in gloomy meditation on the front seat when the off horse shied violently.

"Whoa!" shouted Ike, and with a glance at snake rock he pulled the trembling horses to a standstill and turned his head to stare at the great fissured rock about which he had woven so many tales to scare the unwary traveler.

Coiled on the rock was an immense serpent, scaly and glistening, with horrid head lifted and swaying gently to and fro.

"Good heavens!" breathed Ike through his set teeth.

Debby leaned from a window and stared, terrified.

Then, stepping jauntily out of the mountain path, came the foreign passenger of the day before.

He bowed politely to Ike, laid his hat against his heart when he saw Debby and at the same instant glimpsed the snake on the rock.

"Mon Dieu!" he squealed shrilly. "Kill it, monsieur!"

"Kill it yourself!" roared Ike testily, his muscled arm straining at the reins as his horses plunged madly.

"But has not monsieur a happy thought in this great emergency? It is true these are not blacksnakes but"— he shrugged his shoulders suggestively.

"Get out of the way!" shouted Ike angrily.

"Perhaps monsieur would play 'Yankee Doodle' on his harmonicon!" grinned the amused foreigner. "Thus could he soothe the frightened serpent, even as he did in the good story he related. Ah!"

At that moment the black horses broke away and dragged the careening stage after them.

Debby Bowne, white lipped and trembling, saw Ike Williams regain mastery of his team, turn them about and drive back to snake rock just in time to see the foreign conjurer stuffing the great serpent into an odd looking basket.

"Ha! Monsieur is the brave runaway," chided the joke loving Frenchman as he securely fastened the cover of the basket that contained the ancient, half stupid and entirely harmless reptile, which was one of the properties of his performance.

Ike Williams grew redder and redder as the Frenchman disappeared, and Debby Bowne sat silently within, witness of his humiliation.

Glancing out of the corner of his eye, he discerned Debby in the act of slipping the garnet ring back on its accustomed finger.

"You coming over this evening, Ike?" asked Debby softly.

"Yes, if you want me," he said hoarsely.

"Of course I want you," said Debby Bowne gently.

And Debby had part of her reward when the very next time she rode in the stage a timid passenger asked:

"Why do they call this snake corner?"

"Because there ain't any snakes here," replied Ike, with a twinkle in his eye.

Next To Consumption.

There Are More Deaths From PNEUMONIA Than Any Other Lung Trouble.

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than what used to be called "Inflammation of the Lungs."

Consumption may be contracted from others, but as a rule pneumonia is caused by exposure to cold and wet, and there is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold on its first appearance.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this for you if you will only take it in time.

Mrs. Wm. M. Steeves, River Glade, N.B., writes:—"Please allow me to express my gratitude for the presence of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup in the house, for I believe it saved our little boy's life. Three years this fall we were in the lumber woods, and it was very hard to get a doctor to us, and our little boy got pneumonia, and was very ill. The only relief he could get was to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and with the combined use of the Syrup, and your British Troop Oil Liniment, he soon got better, and was around in a couple of weeks. It certainly is a great remedy."

Price, 25 and 50 cents.

DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR, ITCHY SCALP, END THIS AT ONCE—25 CENTS DANDERINE

Girls! Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Grow Luxuriant and Beautiful

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive germ robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

"ARSON SQUAD" BUSY.

Two Historic Houses in Perthshire, Scotland, Suffer.

GLASGOW, Feb. 5.—Very destructive fires, believed by the police authorities to have been the work of "arson squads" of militant suffragettes, caused considerable damage yesterday in the neighborhood of the Perthshire village of Comrie, famous for its Druidical and Roman ruins.

The first outbreak was discovered in a drawing-room of Aberuchill Castle. The domestics extinguished the fire, but not before a number of valuable pictures and some ancient furniture had been damaged beyond repair.

Shortly afterward another mansion named the "House of Ross," which was temporarily unoccupied, was found to be on fire. The flames had secured a strong hold before they were discovered, and the house, which had been erected only a few years ago, was consumed, with all its contents.

Traces found in the vicinity of Aberuchill Castle indicated that the fires were the work of suffragettes.

Boy Scout By Mail.

WELLINGTON, Kas., Feb. 5.—Wm. H. H. Silley received here two-year-old nephew by parcel post yesterday, from his grandparents in Stratford, Okla.

The boy wore a tag about his neck, showing it had cost 18 cents to send him. He was transported 25 miles by rural route, and then to the mail cars.

New Portuguese Cabinet.

LISBON, Feb. 5.—Bernardino Machado, the Portuguese ambassador to Brazil, arrived here yesterday, and at the request of the President has undertaken the formation of a new Cabinet. The Ministry, headed by Dr. Alfonso Costa, resigned on Jan. 27 in consequence of the Parliamentary deadlock.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys. Then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have headache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming trouble while it is only trouble.

The income of $16,000 is placed in trust for him, and he receives outright real estate in Pictou, Nova Scotia.

This was disclosed when the text of the will was made known yesterday by the late peer's attorneys in this city. Smith was the son of Lady Strathcona by a former husband.

Ill-Fated Steamer Located?

LONDON, Feb. 5.—What is believed to be the sunken hulk of the James S. Carruthers, the ill-fated freighter which went down with all hands on Lake Huron in the terrific storm early in November, has been found north by northeast of Alpena, by several fishermen.

Steamer Reported Sunk.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 5.—It is reported here that the steamer Vadso sank in the Portland Canal, and that all of the 150 passengers she carried were saved.

SHE GAINED 28 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dizzy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 28 pounds in weight."

TOO MUCH CODDLING.

Sir Wm. Ramsay Suggests That Unfit Should Be Let Die.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Sir William Ramsay raised the question whether the unfit should be left to die, at the annual dinner of the Institute of Sanitary Engineers last night. He surprised his audience by asking whether it was right that people should be "so coddled as they are." Were they not doing something to prolong lives of the unfit? Would it not be better to let some of them die out? They insisted on children getting education, and the result was that many went to school starved; they had to give them breakfast and had to find them boots. Ultimately they would have to take over the children entirely. Where was that sort of thing going to stop, he asked.

Receipts Were Poor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—Four dollars and fifty-five cents, the net result of a lecture tour of seven weeks, was one of the reasons why Mrs. Helen Ring Robinson, Colorado state senator, did not pay Miss Helen Duey, her press agent, $75.

Miss Duey had the senator in court. She admitted owing the $75 and left the Hotel McAlpin for Albany a few minutes later. A trunk left at the hotel was levied upon.

ROLLED THROUGH WINDOW.

Wheel Smashed Dishes, Upset Stove and Set House on Fire.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Feb. 5.—The wheel of a large automobile, said to have been going a mile a minute, went through the pantry window of Mrs. Isabella Seymour's home here yesterday, sending dishes in all directions. Then it entered the kitchen, knocked the stove to pieces and set the house on fire. Next it hit the other side of the house, which stopped it.

The wheel, which weighed more than one hundred pounds, was broken from the automobile of William Ricker of New York, as it was coming down steep Armory Hill.

The wheel gained momentum for a hundred feet or so, then knocked over a fence at the side of the road and went down a precipitous incline to Mrs. Seymour's home.

HEAD AND NOSTRILS STUFFED FROM COLD

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends Colds and Grippe in Few Hours—Tastes Nice—Acts Gently.

Your cold will break and all grippe misery end after taking a dose of "Papes Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed up! Quit blowing and snuffing! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

John W. Thompson, Liberal M.P.P. for Minnedosa, died in Winnipeg yesterday of pneumonia. He was born in Lambton County.

Alex. Coulter, convicted in Toronto yesterday on three charges of forgery, was sent to Kingston Penitentiary for three years.

The Board of Health of Portland, Me., has ordered all schools closed to prevent the spread of smallpox. Over 12,000 children are involved.

The herring fishery on the Newfoundland west coast closed yesterday with a total catch of 65,554 barrels, against 71,895 barrels last year.

Backaching his back caused the death at his home, Flatbush, of Joel Atchison, aged 54, a manufacturer of painters' tools. Blood poison followed the irritation.

Prof. Prince, fisheries commissioner of Canada, leaves in May for New Zealand to advise the Commonwealth authorities as to the formation of a fisheries department based on that of Canada.

The U. S. State Department has received for delivery to Senator Elihu Root the gold medal awarded to him by the Nobel prize committee in recognition of his efforts in behalf of international peace.

Charles Carpenter, an Englishman, about 40 years of age, while walking along the C. P. R. construction work, near Trenton, was struck by a gravel train and sustained injuries which caused his death.

After several months, Polish emigration to America has been resumed on a large scale. Continued efforts are being made to evade military service, and the Galician authorities have arrested many emigrants.

IMPROVES STEADILY.

Sir Jas. Whitney Better—Sir George Ross Shows a Gain.

TORONTO, Feb. 5. — "Sir James Whitney's condition is very good indeed," declared Dr. Alex. McPhedran last night. His progress gives cause for satisfaction. Further inquiry affects the fact that Bishop Sweeny, who is the Premier's spiritual adviser, paid an extended visit to the patient during the afternoon. No definite date has been set, so far, for his removal to his home on St. George street, although the doctors are confident that the Premier will be well enough to be moved from the hospital in the near future. The hitherto rigid exclusion of visitors is gradually being relaxed.

While Sir George Ross' condition is such as to give cause for anxiety, he was said to be a little brighter late last night, and was considered, on the whole, to be somewhat better than he has been during the past few days.

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting, in many cases, is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutraliser of acid. Decidedly the best neutraliser is ordinary druggist's bisurated magnesia. You can get it at any drug store for a few cents. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

CORN SHOW OPENS.

Big Crowds Mark Annual Exhibition at Chatham.

CHATHAM, Feb. 5. — Visitors to the annual corn show which opened here Tuesday were given an official welcome at a largely attended meeting in the auditorium of the I.O.O.F. building last night by Mayor McCorvie and G. W. Sullivan, M.P.P. Afterwards interesting addresses were given by Hon. James Duff and Dr. Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Mr. Duff deprecated the spirit that permitted an agriculturist to speak of himself as "only a farmer." Self respect was the first step towards gaining the respect of others. He was glad to be present at a gathering in that section of Ontario destined in all probability to become the seed plot of a continent.

Dr. Creelman pleaded for a higher standard of rural life, the speedy coming of which he predicted. The farmer was now thinking for himself, said Dr. Creelman, and was moreover able to go upon the public platform and discuss his business. The country school and the country church were awakening to a new vision of their mission in rural life and not before it was time.

"Why not have a short course for country preachers at the college?" asked Dr. Creelman. "Then these men could teach morals and religion to farmers in the terms of their daily life."

The large audience appreciated the point when the speaker described the plight of the country boy in the past "when he sat in the woodbox whittling a stick and whistling for want of thought."

Hon. W. T. White Ill.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5. — Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, will not be able to be in the House for some weeks yet, according to statements made yesterday. The results of the operation upon his ear, which was rendered necessary after a severe cold, have not been so satisfactory as was expected.

Anthracite Coal.

While anthracite coal was discovered in Pennsylvania in 1770, its record in actual trade dates from 1804. As late as 1808 it was difficult to place the new fuel as plentifully as it could be mined. For years it was a drag on the market.

LAXATIVE FOR OLD PEOPLE—"CASCARETS"

Salts, Calomel and Pills Act on Liver and Bowels Like Pepper Acts in Nostrils—Danger!

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—It took but a rumor of export sales today to give the wheat market a complete recovery. Altho there was an easy feeling at the close, quotations which had been depressed nearly all day, wound up about the same as the night before, 1-8c off to 3-8c shade advance. Corn finished 1-8c down to 1-8c up, oats with ⅛c loss, and provisions dearer by 12½c to 20c.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼d lower; corn, ¼d lower.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 57 carloads, comprising 895 cattle, 2440 hogs, 246 sheep and lambs and 61 calves.

Butchers

One load of choice steers sold at $8.50, good steers and heifers, $7.50 to $8; medium, $7 to $7.35; common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $6.50 to $7; good cows, $5 to $5.25; medium, $4.50 to $5.75; common cows, $4.50 to $5; choice bulls, $6.75 to $7; good bulls, $6 to $6.25; common bulls, $5.50 to $5.75.

Stockers and Feeders

Stockers and feeders were scarce, few coming forward. Prices were unchanged. Choice heavy steers, $7 to $7.35; good steers, $6.50 to $6.75; stockers, $5.50 to $6.25.

Milkers and Springers

Milkers and springers were in demand, that is, those of good quality. Prices ranged from $60 to $95 each, the bulk selling from $65 to $80 each.

Veal Calves

Receipts of calves were again light and prices ruled firm. Choice veal calves, $10 to $11; good, $9 to $10; medium, $7.50 to $8.50; common calves, at $6.50 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs

The sheep and lamb market was firm. Sheep, light ewes, sold at $6.50 to $7; heavy ewes, $6.75 to $6.85; rams, $5.25 to $6.25; heavy lambs, $8 to $8.75; choice lambs, $9 to $9.50.

Hogs

Receipts were moderately large and prices easier at $9.25 fed and watered, and $8.90 f.o.b. cars, and $8.10 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—At the C.P.R. live stock market this morning the offerings of live stock were 200 cattle, 10 sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 300 calves. Trade in cattle was slow, but as the supply was somewhat smaller than usual a steady feeling prevailed. There were no choice steers on the market, but the best stock offered sold at $7.25, while the bulk of the trading was done in cattle ranging in price from $6 to $7, and the lower grades sold from that down to $5 per 100 pounds. The demand for butchers' cows and bulls was limited, but as the supply of such was small prices ruled steady at from $4 to $7 per 100 pounds.

The demand for small meats was good, and as offerings were small the tone of the market was firm, with no change in prices to note.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, Feb. 4.—Cattle—Receipts, 200; slow and steady; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 50; active and steady; $8 to $12.

Hogs—Receipts, 1000; active and steady; heavy, $9.05 to $9.20; mixed and yorkers, $9.05 to $9; pigs, $8.75 to $9; roughs, $7.90 to $8; stags, $6 to $7; dairies, $8.75 to $9.

Sheep—Active and steady; lambs, slow and 10c lower; lambs, $8.50 to $8.75; yearlings, $6 to $7; wethers, $6.75 to $7.25; ewes, $5 to $6.50; sheep, mixed, $6.50 to $6.75.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Cattle—Receipts, 14,000; market, steady; beeves, $7 to $9.15; Texas steers, $6.10 to $8; stockers and feeders, $5.80 to $8.10; cows and heifers, $2.80 to $8.80; calves, $7.25 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 35,000; market, strong; mixed, $8.20 to $8.45; mixed, $8.30 to $8.55; heavy, $8.30 to $8.55; rough, $8.30 to $8.45; pigs, $8.70 to $9.30; bulk of sales, $8.40 to $8.65.

Sheep—Receipts, 17,000; market, strong; native, $4.70 to $6.90; yearlings, $6.70 to $8.85; lambs, native, $6.80 to $7.90.

Insurance Rates May Go Up.

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—The council of the Board of Trade yesterday agreed to endorse the representations to the City Council of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association with regard to the repeated shortages and stoppages of the water supply, particularly during the last eighteen months, that unless the investigation asked for by the Board of Trade and other organizations is held without delay and prompt action taken on the resulting report, the underwriters would be compelled to make a heavy increase in the rates in the city.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Feb. 2—At last we are to have parcels post. The Postmaster-General, as stated elsewhere in this issue, has made provision for a parcels post that will be a good starter for further development along the same line. Canadian farmers will do well to study the provisions of this measure and then study further to make use of it as a marketing proposition. In one way the farmer will benefit from the fact, in that departmental stores will immediately take advantage of parcels post. Just how much the new system can be used for marketing farm produce direct has yet to be proven.

The New Brunswick potato growers have asked that an embargo be placed on United States potatoes coming into Canada. This looks to us like biting off your nose to spite your face. Potato growers cannot possibly gain anything by such action, and as the enactment of these would make it impossible to have their own potatoes restored to favor on United States markets.

WHEAT

The fall wheat situation is proving a puzzler. Millers report that the wheat is not being delivered, but is fed on the farms. At the same time it is known that live stock is seriously depleted. What is the wheat being fed to? Perhaps if the price were advanced, more wheat would come on the market. Western wheat is holding its own: No. 1 Northern, 98¾c; No. 2, 96¾c; all-rail, 4c more; Ontario, 85c to 87c outside.

COARSE GRAINS

There is a good steady trade in grains and unchanged prices, with oats in most active demand. Quotations follow: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 40½c; No. 3, 39½c; Ontario No. 2, 36c; corn, No. 2, 74c; buckwheat, 70c to 72c; malting barley, 54½c to 55c; rye, 64c to 66c. At Montreal current quotations are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 43½c; No. 3, 41½c; corn, 72¾c to 73c; barley, malting, 56c to 56c; feed, 47c to 48c; buckwheat, 56c to 57c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

Supplies of potatoes are quite sufficient to meet demand and the market is steady at unchanged prices noted last week. Ontario's, 75c to 80c a bag out of store; 85c to 85c car lots; New Brunswicks, 10c more. Montreal dealers are asking of the retail trade 70c to 80c for Green Mountains and 65c to 70c for Quebec whites.

Beans here are quoted for primes, $2 to $2.10; hand-picked, $2.10 to $2.20. Montreal quotes hand-picked at $2.05 to $2.12½; three-pound pickers, $1.70 to $1.80.

SEEDS

Merchants are paying farmers a bushel as follows: Alsike, No. 1, $6.50 to $6; No. 2, $7.50 to $8; No. 3, $5 to $7; red clover, No. 1, $9.50 to $10.75; No. 2, $7.50 to $9; timothy, No. 1, $2.75 to $3.50; No. 2, $2 to $2.50.

EGGS AND POULTRY

A continuation of such weather as we had last Thursday would greatly increase receipts of country eggs. There is much winter weather yet to come, however, and we may look for steady prices for some time yet. Local quotations are: New laids, 40c; storage, selects, 30c to 32c; country selects, 28c to 30c; storage, 26c to 26c. At Montreal fresh eggs bring 40c to 42c; selected, 32c to 34c; No. 1 stock, 24c to 25c; No. 2, 18c to 19c.

Quotations on dressed poultry are: Fowl, 12c to 16c; alive, 12c to 14c; dressed spring chickens, 16c to 20c; alive, 13c to 16c; geese, 12c to 14c and 16c to 17c; turkeys, 18c to 22c and 24c to 27c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

British Columbia is now drawing a large proportion of its butter from New Zealand and the foreign article is penetrating into Alberta, where its quality is recommending it to the high-class trade. Supplies in the East are almost exhausted, and were it not that country receipts are keeping up well there would be a butter famine. Next month cows will start to freshen and earlier prices are looked for. Quotations are steady at the old levels. Farmers' separator prints, 30c to 31c; dairy prints, 28c to 29c; creamery prints, fresh, 32c to 33c; solids, 31c to 32c; storage, 31 to 31 less. Cheese quotations are: New large, 14½c; twins, 15c; old large, 15c to 15½c; twins, 15½c to 15¾c.

LIVE STOCK

Cattle buyers seemed to be taking a holiday last week. It was evident right from the first of the week that the declining market that characterized the week previous was going to be even worse in the week to come. The situation was aggravated by the mild weather, which reduced the output of retail stores and retailers bought proportionately.

When a market gets above the levels being charged in a nearby market, such as the one at Buffalo, quotations are always delicate and a small difference one way or another may make a big difference. It is hardly to be expected, however, that quotations will go much lower, as the live stock of the country has been constantly depleted and there is always the United States market for the surplus in case of a slump. Quotations range as follows: Butchers' choice, $6.25 to $6.60; com. to good, $5.60 to $6; heifers, steers to choice, $6 to $6; choice cows, $4.50 to $5.25; com. to good, $4.25 to $4.50; butcher bulls, $4.25 to $7.75; feeders, $6 to $7.50; stockers, $5 to $7; canners and cutters, $2.50 to $4.25.

Milch cows declined also, but here the decline was more in quality than price: Choice, $65 to $80; com. to med., $40 to $60; springers, $40 to $70. Veal calves bring $9 to $11; inferior, $5 to $8.

Mutton values held firmly during the latter part of the week. Yearling lambs $8.50 to $9.25; bunk lambs, $7.75 to $8.75; ewes, $6.25 to $6.75; culls, $5.50 to $6.

Hogs were the brightest feature of the live stock market. The 1,400 received on the last day of the week went firmly at $9 f.o.b. country points.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE MARKETS

Montreal, Saturday, Jan. 31.—This market for cheese has been pretty well cleaned up this week of everything in the shape of commercials whites, to be shipped to the United States to supply the shortage in the stock there of fancy white, and high prices have been paid, ranging from 17½c to 18c a pound. This practically winds up the cheese trade until new cheese begin to come in in the spring. The markets in England are very firm and active and stocks of Canadians are very small, and what are left there are going out at full prices. Just how the season will open here depends entirely upon the production of cheese in New Zealand and to the extent of the demand for them in England. It looks as if we should open with high prices and possibly go through the whole season with prices at a very high level as compared with the past. All depends, however, upon the demand in the spring, as there will certainly be more cheese produced than we can consume here.

The market for butter is quiet this week and some dealers are inclined to show weakness and are pressing their stocks for sale, but this is really not necessary, as there is now sufficient stock here and in other centres in Canada to supply the demand from now until the advent of new butter in the spring. Finest Eastern Townships fall made creamery is quoted at 30c to 29½c and finest June, or cold storage, at about 27c a pound.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, Jan. 31.—The market for live hogs is somewhat firmer and prices are quoted at $9.75 to $10 a cwt. for selected lots. There is no change to note in the market for dressed hogs. Supplies are light and prices firm, sales being made at $13.75 to $14.

FURTHER SENSATIONS IN QUEBEC SCANDAL

Witness Repeats List of Members Given by Mousseau and Purporting to Recite Amounts Required to Bribe Legislators

TWO LEAVE COMMITTEE

QUEBEC, Feb. 5.—The session of the special committee of the Legislative Council yesterday to inquire into the accusations of bribery against two members of the council in connection with the "Montreal Fair Bill" was brief and dramatic.

Further names of Quebec legislators were put into evidence by Editor Edward Beck as having been named by P. O. Mousseau when quoting prices to Mr. Hyland, the Burns detective. As a result of the evidence two of the men mentioned, Hon. Adelard Turgeon and Hon. Mr. Champagne, resigned from the committee of inquiry.

Mr. Beck, continuing his evidence, told of Mr. Hyland's payment of two five hundred dollar bills to Mr. Mousseau, who received them with the exclamation, "Magnificent." Discussing the prices of different members, Mr. Beck interrupted his evidence to remark to the committee that he himself took no responsibility for what he was about to say, but that he was merely repeating what he heard Mousseau tell Mr. Hyland.

The list he gave was as follows: Hon. Mr. De Varennes $1,000, Hon. Mr. Berard $2,000, Mr. Mousseau $1,150, Mr. Lanctot $500, Hon. Mr. Turgeon $300, Hon. Mr. Gilman $200. Hon. Mr. Perodeau $500, Hon. Mr. Bergevin $100.

The conversation over this list, as told by Mr. Beck, displayed the fact that, according to the evidence, Mr. Mousseau was anxious to cut down the prices and save as much money as possible for Mr. Hyland. It was the latter who thought of Mr. Gilman, said Mr. Beck. Hyland said: "What about Gilman?" whereupon Mousseau said: "Oh, by God, yes! You will have to do something for him."

Hyland was willing to allow $500 for Hon. Mr. Turgeon; but Mousseau thought the price too high, and also objected to $1,000 for Mr. Lanctot. He thought $100 would do for Hon. Mr. Bergevin, though Mr. Hyland said he did not believe in giving anything so individually small.

Mr. Beck continued: "Mousseau said' 'Put $100 down for Hon. Mr. Champagne.' Hyland replied that it had better be made $200, but the name was not put on the list at all. There were no other names," concluded Mr. Beck.

Following Mr. Beck's evidence, Hon. Mr. Turgeon declared that, while he did not consider his honor attacked, under the circumstances he thought the best thing for him was to resign from the committee. He added: "I deny in the most solemn manner that I was ever approached in connection with said bill by any person whatsoever, or that I was influenced in any manner, either directly or indirectly, by offer, promise, or payment of any sum of money, advantage or benefit."

He then read a notarial statement, signed by Mr. Mousseau, in which Mousseau declared that any allegation that he had approached Hon. Mr. Turgeon in relation to the bill in question was not true.

Hon. Mr. Perodeau also made similar declaration of innocence and read a similar notarial document signed by Mousseau.

Hon. Mr. Champagne did likewise and added his resignation as a member of the investigating committee, remarking: "Even though my name was not left on the revised price list I feel I should resign as a member of this committee." This left but two members of the committee, but to conclude the formalities of the sitting Mr. Turgeon consented to act for the time being and then he resigned again.

At the inquiry which is being conducted by the Legislative Assembly Hon. Louis Philippe Berard, formerly of the upper house and one of the accused politicians, was chief witness yesterday. When asked during his examination if he had met a man named Sampson at the Chateau Frontenac, the witness said after a long pause:

"On the advice of my lawyers I declare that I refuse to answer a question which might incriminate me."

To a dozen questions on the same point and on his knowledge regarding the Montreal Fair Bill he returned the same answer. His evidence was accordingly suspended pending the completion of the testimony of other witnesses.

YOUNG MAN ELECTROCUTED.

Charles H. Scrivens Came in Contact With High-voltage Wires.

COBOURG, Feb. 5.—A fatal accident befell a young Englishman, named Charles Henry Scrivens, who was electrocuted at Healy Falls on Monday morning. LOCAL POULTRY OWNERS WON MANY PRIZES

Grabbed a Bunch of Them at Kingston's Big Show—Many Firsts and a Number of Specials

LIKEWISE SILVER MUGS

Another striking evidence of the quality of the birds owned by local poultry men is shown in the large number of prizes won at the Kingston show. Word was received this morning that the Peterborough exhibit captured 37 first, 32 seconds and 10 thirds, in addition to several silver cups and other special prizes. The members of the Poultry Association have in their coops some of the best birds in the country. At many shows recently they carried off a big share of the honours. There were 1400 birds in the Limestone City show, a number slightly in advance of the exhibits at the local show. "But we had it on them in quality," said George Paxman.

MILKMEN HELD ANNUAL DANCE

Two Hundred Guests Enjoyed Their Hospitality in the W.O.W. Hall Last Night

One hundred couples attended the first annual dance of the Peterborough Milkman's Association, held last night in the Woodmen of the World Hall on George street.

Splendid music was provided by Tucker's Orchestra, the strains of many new and popular airs making terpeschorean effort a pleasure. Spacious as are the W.O.W. quarters, their accommodation was overtaxed last night by the large gathering of merry makers. The dance was one of the most successful and enjoyable held this year.

Shortly before midnight refreshments were served. These were prepared by Messrs. Coleman Bros., and were appreciated by the guests.

Every detail in connection with assuring the guests a pleasant evening had been attended to by the committee. Card tables were provided for the use of those who did not care to dance. The brilliancy of the affair was contributed to by the fashionable attire of the ladies present.

The committee in charge, and to whose credit the success of the affair is due, consisted of Messrs. W. Dummitt, president; Roy Speers, secretary; A. Fountain, C. Curtis and S. Huston.

Mr. R. Cleghorn was floor manager.

Terrible Fate Of Quebec Man

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Feb. 4. — Magloire Bernard, fifty-eight years old, a farmer of St. Dominique, six miles from here, is dead as the result of an accident which befell him when he brought his horses from an old shed.

His horses got frightened and made a quick start, and while coming through the door Mr. Bernard failed to bend his head. There was a large spike nail sticking out from the top of the door. This penetrated his eye and came out the back of his head. His son was so excited over the horses running away that he did not notice his father until the horses were caught. Then, returning to the shed, found his father hanging by the nail. With the assistance of two men, Mr. Bernard was released from his trap, but he lived only twenty minutes.

SIR DOUGLAS CAMERON IS BADLY HURT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 5. — Sir Douglas Cameron, the Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, was coming down the steps of the Northern Crown Bank his foot slipped and he was thrown heavily to the sidewalk, sustaining injuries to the ligaments of his back and leg. His injuries are serious.

ARE FINED FOR SUNDAY GAMBLING

Howard Innis is Mulcted $40 and Others Pay Lesser Amounts for Handling the Paste-boards on the Sabbath.

TO-DAY'S COURT CASES

In this morning's police court Howard Innes, a local young man, was found guilty of playing cards for money on Sunday, and was fined $40, the maximum penalty allowed by the law. This is the third time that Innes has been convicted on that charge.

The other two young men who faced like charges were fined $10 and costs, amounting to $12.60 in each case, the fine being comparatively small because they had never been charged with gambling on Sunday before. They were defended by Mr. G. N. Gordon, and all pleaded "Not Guilty."

The three young men were convicted chiefly on the evidence of Albert Hill, a youth who has only resided in this City for about three weeks. His testimony was to the fact that he played several games with the defendants on Sunday last for money. They played in a lane on Simcoe street. Hill said that when the three young men found that they would have to face a charge of gambling on Sunday, and that he would be the chief Crown witness, they offered to pay his way out of town, and when he refused to leave they threatened him. One of the young men said to him last night:

"You might as well get up there and swear black is white, for I'm going to do it."

To Mr. Gordon Hil said he boarded with Oscar Keller in East City. He had $8 when he came to the City three weeks ago, and had not done any work since he came here. His home was in Belleville but he had travelled through the States with a circus. He had been convicted for an offence once for which he spent 30 days in gaol.

"Did you tell these boys that you had done six months in the Central Prison?" asked Mr. Gordon.

"Yes; I did it just for fun though; I was never inside Central Prison."

Chief Thompson gave evidence to the effect that one of the young men admited to him that he had played for money on Sunday.

One of the young men was called in his own defence. He said that he did not see any money passed on Sunday, and that the games were just for fun. He admitted however that the men promised to pay what they lost on Sunday.

"Are you in the habit of drinking before you come to court?" asked the Magistrate.

"No."

"Well, you stink like a beer barrel now!" was the court's comment.

A man, white-haired and 60 years of age, was charged with being found drunk.

"Are you alive yet?" asked the Magistrate in surprise as the countenance of the aged man appeared above the wall of the prisoner's box.

"Yes, and trying to keep alive," answered the prisoner, who said that rheumatism settling in his elbow had prevented him following his usual occupation in the woods.

"If he stops in town he will only get drunk every day," said the chief.

"It's pretty darn hard to get drunk when you haven't got the coin," said the prisoner. "A fellow can't sleep on a clothesline a night like last night I tell you."

He did not like the prospect of six months in the Central Prison, so he was given two months in the County Gaol.

FREE TOBOGGANS FOR THE CHILDREN

The children are reminded of the free tobogganing at Jackson's Park on Friday after school, and on Saturday morning. This is one of the fruits of the Big Brothers' interests and efforts.

NEXT MOVE IN HEBBERT CASE

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Feb. 5.—So far G. V. Cousins has not decided what he will do next in the celebrated Hebert marriage case. Yesterday, he secured from Mr. Justice Greenshields permission to bring action against Archbishop Bruchesi to compel him to set aside his own judgment annulling as far as the church is concerned, the decree he issued four years ago, setting aside the Hebert-Clouatre marriage. To-day he is thinking over what he had better do next. The permission to bring action doesn't mean much in itself, but it is known that a definite step will be taken soon to discredit Archbishop Bruchesi's authority.

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WINNIPEG, Feb. 5.—Extreme cold prevails in all the Prairie Provinces. Temperatures of from 35 to 45 degrees below zero being quite general. It is the coldest weather of this winter. The wave is moving easterly. There is great suffering mong the unemployed in the cities.

ALL SAINTS' A.Y.P.A. HAD GOOD PROGRAMME

At an interesting meeting of the A. Y.P.A. of All Saints' Church, Rev. T. J. Mansell of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church gave a most enjoyable talk on a trip through Palestine. Miss Dean contributed an instrumental selection, Miss Pyllis Dawson sang, and Mr. Todds gave a banjo solo. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed.

Prisoner Will Be Examined

Dr. Morgan has been instructed to make an examination of Kimberly, the Englishman now confined in the County Jail as a result of his giving himself up to the police as a self-confessed accomplice to a murder in Kidderinster, England. The object of the examination is to establish his sanity or insanity before the ward comes from England, which will throw some light on his story. As yet nothing more than has already been published is known by the local police of Kimberly or the murder.

HAVELOCK MAN GAVE HIS WIFE A BEATING

One of our citizens has qualified for a first class coat of tar and feather with a sound lashing thrown in for good measure. This brute in human form; is stated to have administered a severe beating to his wife on Wednesday of last week because she refused to stop her washing and pile wood for him. The lady's face was severely scratched and marked and a big black and blue mark on her forehead illuminated the place where a heavy fist landed. The services of a physician had to be obtained to administer relief to the unfortunate woman, and we understand he forced the husband to have an agreement drawn up agreeing to keep the peace.—Havelock Standard.

TEA AT ST. PAUL'S.

Tea will be served by the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church in the School room on Friday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. All the ladies of the congregation are expected to be present.

ARREST WAS GOOD "AD" FOR THE CITY

Springfield Republican Devoted Column to Story in Saturday's Issue—Brodeur a Deserter From the Army—Fought in Philippines

STORY OF THE CRIMES

The work of the Peterborough Police Department in the identification and arrest of Albert H. Brodeur, who was taken to Springfield on Monday, charged with the murder of Mrs. Matilda Case, has won not only certain distinction for Chief Thompson's squad, but also considerable free advertising for the city. The Springfield Republican devoted a column of front page space to the arrest and murder on Saturday, and has followed with shorter items referring to the case.

Part of the Saturday news story is as follows:

Chief Quilty received the telegram from Chief Thompson early yesterday morning and sent another asking if the identification of Brodeur was positive. Chief Thompson answered that Brodeur admitted his identity and Captain Boyle and Inspector Quilty started at noon for Peterborough. Peterborough is about halfway between Toronto and Montreal and was one of the many places to which circulars describing Brodeur were sent. Chief Quilty with justifiable pride spoke of the circulars sent out as models of their kind, for they contained a most complete description. In addition to photographs they contained accurate physical descriptions supplied from the war department, including tattoo marks and other marks of identification, and his finger prints. The war department was able to be of great service to the police because of the fact that Brodeur had served in the army and had deserted, being arrested in Chicopee about five years ago and serving two years in jail for the desertion.

Brodeur had been known in this city under the name of Blanchard and the alias caused some difficulty to the police before a correct identification was obtained. It was learned that he had been on intimate terms with Mrs. Case, and the neighbours said that he had been practically living at the Case home. It is known that he had been with Mrs. Case on the afternoon before the murder, and she had told one of the neighbours that she was going away with him. The theory of the police is that he shot her either because of jealousy or because she refused to elope with him. Her husband had given her $14 at noon and after her death no trace of it could be found. It was said by the neighbours that she kept Blanchard supplied with money. Nobody was present to see the shooting, but Louis Scarnicy, who lives in the tenement on the first floor under that occupied by the Case family, heard two shots and then heard a man run down the stairs and out on the porch.

Mr. Scarnicy went up to the Case apartment and found Mrs. Case unconscious, lying on the bed. He notified Officer J. J. Doulin and Inspectors Raiche and Quilty took up the investigation of the case. For some time it was hoped by the police that Brodeur would be found near here, since they believed that he had no money and could not travel far, but every effort was made to bring about his arrest if he did get away, and success has now resulted from these efforts. Brodeur was born in Chicopee and had lived there the greater part of his life, with the exception of the two years' army service in the Philippines, the jail sentence for deserting and the months between June, 1913, and the time of the shooting, during which he had been living in this city. He is 30 years old.

A MEMORIAL TO CAPT. SCOTT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

PARIS, Feb. 5. — The Captain Scott memorial, the cost of which was raised by private subscription in France, was unveiled to-day on the Col de Lautaret in the French Alps, whither the British explorer went in March, 1908, to make a test of the motor sleighs which he intended to use in his dash to the South Pole. The unveiling was conducted under the auspices of the French Alpine Club.

EIGHT YOUNG GIRLS ARE MISSING IN NEW YORK

Nearly One Thousand People Have Disappeared in Three Months and the City is Much Excited

POLICE ARE WORRIED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK CITY, Feb. 5. — Confronted with the fact that nearly one thousand persons have mysteriously disappeared in New York in three months, most of them being girls and women, the police are making renewed efforts to trace Florence Lawlor, aged sixteen, and seven other girls who are missing since Monday and Tuesday last, having dropped completely out of sight since leaving home that day for school. They lived in different parts of New York and Brooklyn. The whole city is much excited about it and in some districts young girls are not permitted by parents to go on the streets unaccompanied. The police are rounding up large gangs of cadets and alleged white slavers. But so far there is no trace of the missing girls.

BECK MAY BE SUCCESSOR TO STRATHCONA

Gossip Concerning the Possible Choice Has Now Dwindled Down to Three Candidates

ALL WANT POSITION

Special Wire to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Gossip concerning the candidates for the vacant High Commissionership have dwindled down to three. They are, Hon. Adam Beck, Hon. Robert Rogers and Hon. Geo. H. Perley. All three of these are known to desire the position and all three have large, influential backing, not only in the Dominion, but it is believed also in the Old Land. It is felt that the appointment of Hon. Adam Beck to the position will clear the skies in Ontario and straighten out some of the kinks connected with the appointment of a successor to Sir James Whitney. On the other hand there are many who believe that the withdrawal of Mr. Beck from Ontario politics, and his appointment to the position of High Commissionership would be an admission of weakness in the Hydro-Electric policy, which is still unperfected in its entirety.

KELSO SAYS ENFORCE THE CURFEW LAW

Feb. 5, 1914.

Dear Editor,—I read with interest and profit your article on police women, etc., in which reference is made to the curfew law as being ineffective. There has been no real effort made to enforce it, and surely you would not ask to have a law changed until it is clearly demonstrated by actual test to be defective! If the good people would only finance the remuneration of two persons and appoint three officers of the C. A. S. to enforce this measure as it stands, they would be surprised at the good results that would follow.

Yours,
J. J. KELSO,
(Superintendent Neglected and Dependent Children.)

CITY'S BILL MAY BE AMENDED

Mayor Buller, Alderman Johnston, City Clerk Armstrong, and City Solicitor Hall, held a conference yesterday in Toronto with Hon. Adam Beck, Chief Engineer Gaby and the Hydro-Electric counsel. Mayor Buller stated to-day that the city's representatives went over the present situation emphasizing their original intentions as to the portion of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's property to be taken over. It is expected that an amendment to the city's bill will be applied for to specify exactly what shall be taken possession of by the city under its expropriation rights.

SAVING WAYWARD YOUTH

Ignorance and Idleness, the Parents of Crime and Degeneracy

Instead of punishing the children, it is those who lead them astray who should be punished.

Youthful wrong-doers are often mentally or physically defective. A physician should always be consulted before a decision is arrived at.

Our whole attitude toward erring children should be one of encouragement. Love can do far more than prison bars.

Under a proper system of supervision many wayward lads can be looked after in their own homes by probation officers at the expense of the parents, instead of being sent to a reformatory at the public charge.

Low theatres have a baneful influence on growing boys. Hundreds of lads may be found in these places any night, and it would be well if they could be discouraged from attending. Better still if moral standards in public entertainments could be elevated.

A child should never be regarded as a criminal but as a victim of crime. No child can create his own environment. Boys have often been punished for wrong-doing when it would be just about as sensible to whip a child for having diphtheria or typhoid.—J. J. Kelso, Superintendent Neglected and Dependent Children.

GET THE BUSINESS

WHAT do people buy and why do they buy it?

This problem should interest everyone who has anything to sell, and the fact that your business is not as large as that of a department store, does not mean that your methods of selling should be radically different or that you need give no thought to the subject.

Ask any successful merchant why certain goods sell better than others, and he will tell you it is quality plus advertising. Even poor goods can be sold by advertising, but a second sale is not likely and either one of two articles equally good, can be sold almost to the exclusion of the other, by good advertising.

Count on your fingers ten things that you buy regularly and see how many of them are articles that are extensively advertised. Go home and look in your wife's pantry and see how many advertised articles she buys, and then stop and think. Why does she buy these things in preference to many others which are in many instances, just as good? It's advertising.

You have a desire to try a particular article because you have learned something about it,—you become convinced it is good and you want it. A local dealer anvertises it for sale and you ask for it, as though it were an old friend. The sale is the result of good advertising.

Do You Read The Examiner? If Not Order From A Newsboy

To Help the Newsboys to Earn Cash Prizes by Selling Examiners Give Your Order to a Boy at 10c. per Week

The newsboys' competition as conducted by the Examiner is proving most successful. The public is giving the newsboys a chance to earn good money prizes, the first of which will be distributed on Saturday evening of this week.

If a boy desires to enter the contest he may do so at any time. The boys who are now entered are working diligently. A little time spent in the locality in which a boy lives may win him that $25.60 cash prize, besides giving him the profit on the papers he sells. It's a boys business to sell papers, and the money earned in this way does not take much time or trouble if you are selling the daily Examiner.

A STONE FOR BREAD.

The western farmers, practically, to a man, demand the removal of the duties from wheat and wheat products with a view of opening to them a new market at their doors. The government dominated by the "big interests" refuse the demand and give the farmers a stone for the bread they ask. The government won't give free wheat, but they are willing to "compormise" by a 7 1-2 per cent. reduction on agricultural implements. This is cold comfort. Where is the benefit of even entirely duty-free agricultural implements, if the farmer cannot readily and profitably market the grain grown by their use? It is therefore no wonder that the Conservative members from the west, who will face, as they declare, certain defeat if they present themselevs as candidates at the next election, are sulky and discontented.

THE BETTER WAY.

There's a tremendous "mix-up" in Welland county over the voting on the adoption of the Canada Temperance, or Scott Act, as there is a tendency to be in sectional voting on a sumptuary law, especially one whose effective enforcement, good results, create well-diivded and diverse popular opinion. In view of such conditions, would it not be better for the advocates of temperance reform to concentrate their efforts upon securing a permanent and effective measure of reform in the form of "abolish the bar" equivalent to provincial prohibition of the liquor traffic? A half loaf may be regarded as better than no loaf; but when even the half loaf is smashed to crumbs in the struggle, is it better? Under the circumstances, the cause of temperance reform is prejudiced in Welland. Both parties, evenly divided, are at daggers drawn, practically one half set against another half, both parties claiming a scrutiny of the vote.

IMITATE PETERBOROUGH.

Toronto seems to have some difficulty in getting money, and more difficulty in taking care of it when once the taxpayers have contributed it for specific purposes. The city has been having a financial survey, and the surveyors find that existing practices in regard to the city's sinking funds are greatly defective. The report of the civic survey recommends an excellent course, which is good because it is what Peterborough has had in use for more than a half century. The report recommends that a "board of trustees be appointed to administer" the city's sinking funds. This suggested board of trustees would be the counterpart of Peterborough's Commission of the Town Trust, which has been in existence and in operation with the best results since 1861, or more than half a century. Toronto could not do better than adopt the essential features of the Peterborough system which so far as known is unique in Ontario or Canada. Under our system every dollar contributed to sinking funds in the past fifty years has been set aside for its specific purpose, and the aggregate was available for the maturing purposes for which the fund was created. The city's sinking fund account at the present time shows a surplus of over $80,000, while over $400,000 is available to meet any demand that may be made upon it, under the authority and for the purposes for which it was created. Our Trust Commissioners see to it that the money entrusted to them is used only for the specific purpose for which it was intended. Our civic forefathers, were statesmen, in that they had the prophetic vision and foresaw, after fewer than a dozen years of corporate existence, the wisdom and necessity of a course which has only dawned upon Toronto after an existence of a century. Toronto will do well even at this late day, to imitate Peterborough in the manner of dealing with its municipal sinking funds.

EDUCATION NOT MORALITY.

When so much of the prevailing crime that shocks the community is committed by foreigners, and when the greater bulk of our foreign immigration is composed of illiterate foreigners, it is not surprising that some surface thinkers propose to restrict immigration by imposing a test of literacy, an educational test to immigrants. Education, ability to read and write are no guarantee of morality. It is a fact that when there are criminal inclinations and lack of moral sense, the greater the education the greater the scoundrel. An illiterate rogue may knife a comrade, but it is the educated criminal that is capable of the most monstrous, the most designing crimes. The forgers, the swindlers, the members of parliament that sell themselves for bribes, the men that debauch electors and invent the refinement of electoral corruption that shames our civilization, the bank swindlers, the exploiters of illicit insurance schemes — all of these dangerous criminals are more or less educated men, and without education could not succeed as they do succeed.

The fact that education is put to wrong uses is no argument against its value, but serves to call attention to the further fact that our educational system, provides mainly mental training, leaving education of the moral sense out of consideration. Our schools cram the mind with knowledge of a certain kind and incidentally educate a little, but the moral nature, the real man, the higher and finer qualities, are not proportionately, if at all, developed. Education, that is ability to read and write, may be a proper test for the exercise of the franchise, which pre-supposes intelligent appreciation of the importance and effect of the act; but as a test for immigrants it seems impracticable. It is pointed out that many of the best Canadians of the country to-day would have been excluded, if the edudational test had been applied upon their arrival in the country. We need popualtion for our great areas, and we can easily trust to our educatoinal institutions to remedy the defects. We offer the incoming new citizens advantages they are not slow to take. United States' statistics show that children of foreign born illiterates appreciate education better than the native-born. The report of the bureau of education says that "the least illiterate of our population are the native born children of foreign parents. The illiteracy among the children of native-born parents is three times as great as that among native-born children of foreign parents." Evidently some better and more reasonable test than the educational test must be found.

IS THE LASH FOR SOME CRIMINALS JUSTIFIABLE?

In these days when reformatory treatment for the punishment of criminals is so generally endorsed, it gives one somewhat of a shock to read a serious appeal for the more general application of the lash. This appeal we find in the columns of a Guelph contemporary, which calls attention to the fact that no criminal can stand the lash, and that one who has been whipped in public loses his caste even among his fellows. Regarding the experience with the lash in the States of Delaware the following is told:

Delaware has used the whipping post since 1656, and as a result half the people in Delaware, south of Wilmington never lock their doors at night, window fasteners are uncommon, and thought of burglars is totally absent from the minds of the people. Once in a long while some half-drunken loon will enter a house at night. When he is not kicked out as a mere intruder he is locked up, tried, convicted and whipped according to law, and then locked up long enough to think it over himself and to deter all others from a like offence.

White slavery is unknown in the state, according to the authorities, the "cadets," cowards at heart, being afraid to run any risk of the lash. Years ago a gang of desperadoes undertook to rob a Wilmington bank. They tunnelled under the building and would have carried off $500,000 in negotiable securities but for the suspicions of an alert watchman. They were arrested, and on trial paid one attorney a very large fee solely to the end that they might be saved from the public whipping. The late great Chief Justice Lore sentenced them to long terms in prison and to the utmost limit of the law as to pillory and lashes. There has never been a bank robbery attempted in Delaware from that day to this by professional burglars.

There is a general indisposition on the part of judges to inflict the lash, even in cases where its use would seem to be most justifiable, such as those of indecent assault. There is no doubt, however, of its being regarded with terror by the criminal class, and the fear of its infliction is almost as great a deterrent as hanging or electrocution.—Brantford Expositor.

THE SECURITY OF A LLOYD'S POLICY

(Extract from "Syren and Shipping," England).

The security of a Lloyd's policy is not a corporate one, but dependent solely upon the solvency of the individual names subscribing it, an important factor when it is realised that the question of the litigiousness of Lloyd's seems to be increased considerably. Claims and losses which at one time would have been met without question or demur have recently been contested on one ground or another. "Concealment of material fact" was the ground on which one case was fought and taken to the House of Lords, where the underwriters were badly beaten. In another case "no interest" was pleaded; in other words, that the plaintiff had only got a "wager" or "honour" policy, which was not enforcable in a court of law. The underwriters, of course, secured the verdict, but where the honour lay we leave our readers to form their own opinion.

Now comes our contemporary's disclosure of the Statute of Limitations being pleaded with equal success, and in a more recent case still we hear of the Stamp Act being pleaded to bar a plaintiff will be heard of without regret by the tiff's claim. All this is bound to have a most damaging effect upon Lloyd's, but majority of fire and guarantee companies, whose business preserves Lloyd's has encroached upon. Fire insurance brokers have not hesitated to tell the companies "if you won't take this risk at such and such a rath I shall do it with Lloyd's," but now the companies can turn around to such and say, "You talk about giving your business to Lloyd's, here's the sort of treatment that you may expect."

Lucid Statement Of The Necessity Of Purifying Milk

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, of the De Laval Dairy Supply Company Presents the Situation in a Manner That Every Reader Can Surely Understand.

CLEAR AND TO THE POINT

Peterborough, Feb. 4, 1914

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It seems unnatural to ask for an opportunity to defend pure milk. There seems to be misunderstanding as to what constitutes pure milk and as to whether or not pure milk in reality is warranted. This one would gather from reported remarks in respect to that produce made by men who certainly stand for progress, and who then, most assuredly, must be mis-informed or else mistaken in their attitude toward purity in milk.

Milk, as a natural product, is never clean. It is a practical impossibility to have it so. As drawn from the cow, it is loaded with broken down tissue and any physical impurities that may be characteristic of the animal giving the milk. Then from the time that it drawn into the receptacle it is subject to contamination under ordinary circumstances which is almost unbelievable.

In the most sanitary barns where milking is done by machine or by hand under most improved and careful circumstances, where the animals are washed carefully previous to milking, where the dairymen are required to put on special suits and to carefully bathe themselves before handling the milk, and where all other sanitary conditions are observed, the bacteria count is very materially lessened but is not eliminated by a good many thousand. Milk produced under the above favourable conditions is sold, unpasteurized, many times as certified milk and from its unusual condition it is a much better article of food than can possibly be secured from the average herd and in the average dairy barn. But these conditions have not been observed generally. It is only in special cases that equipment such as is necessary and care such as is essential are to be found in combination.

Normal milk obtained under normal conditions simply becomes a medium for the bacteria which is taken into it from stable conditions, through the handling by those who do the milking and from the hundred and one other causes which contribute to impure milk. At times the water which is used to rinse the vessels in which the milk is placed is foul, full of typhoid or other disease germs, and these, be they ever so few, when they find themselves in the milk body increase so tremendously that by the time the milk, in its natural condition, reaches the consumer the impure forces in it are sufficient to sicken and many times kill those who partake of it.

More particularly is this true where the milk is fed to infants. Natural milk contains slimes, particles of manure and other impurities which are to be observed when the milk is put through a clarifying machine. These slimes are so deadly that a very small portion injected into perfectly healthy guinea-pigs during some recent tests, killed the animals within from two to four hours from the time of their inoculation. The slimes, of course, in the milk are more or less diffused, but nevertheless are there.

This, then, is the reason why men who have given their lives in study of milk saw the necessity for cleaning it up before it was fit for little children, or for that matter, adult use. Within the last year or so an epidemic of septic sore throat in Chicago and in Boston was traced directly to an infected dairy in both cases, the cow from which the contamination spread having contracted the disease, and this milk being mixed with the other commonly spread it through the community with a good many fatal results.

It has been found that pasteurization of milk does not harm the milk or render it unfit for food. Sterilization of milk, which is heating it to two hundred and twelve degrees, does unquestionably coagulate the albumen and renders it more or less indigestible both for children and others who may use it. But pasteurization is not sterilization. It is bringing milk to a temperature of from one hundred and forty to one hundred and sixty and holding it at that temperature for, say, thirty minutes, when the harmful bacteria will be destroyed and the milk then being drawn off in a sanitary way into bottles which have been sterilized (that is the bottles have been sterilized, not the milk) is then in condition, when the bottles are capped and packed away in cold storage, to keep sweet indefinitely.

It is to be assumed that the milk before being pasteurized has had the slimes and dirt removed by a clarifying machine. To illustrate: Milk not clarified might be pasteurized as above described and the harmful bacteria would be killed but the dirt would still be in the milk. No one would care to consume the milk knowing that the dirt was still in it, and it is a wrong method that suggests pasteurization without first taking out the dirt and preparing the milk to be properly pasteurized. Once the dirt is removed and the milk then pasteurized and held for a period of thirty minutes, a product results which is pure and which may be fed to little children and grown up folks alike without any evil results.

It is possible to buy a run of mine coal with its dust and its slate, and to get the run of mine coal for considerably less money than the screened article. From experience, users of coal know that they are going to have trouble with their heating apparatus, clinkers and loss of finer particles of coal through the grates where they burn the run of mine, and have found that they are actually at a loss when they do this compared with the use of screened coal or in other words, the finished product.

This is true of many commodities which are used in the household. They are either bought as finished products or bought as raw material, and at a cost finishedp roperly ready for use. It is exactly the same in respect to milk. One who buys the raw material at the smaller cost must take it knowing that with it goes a whol lot that is entirely undesirable to sa the least, and that chances of disease contraction are remarkably greater through the use of impure milk than can possibly be the case where milk has been clarified and pasteurized and served in sterile bottles.

The City of Toronto is insistent that the milk handlers there (and I believe this is lately a general order) shall equip to sell only pasteurized milk, and the City of Toronto will reap the benefit in a health way without question. All large cities have had this problem to handle and they have done so within the last few years to a remarkable degree, so that now in most of the large cities there is little demand for unclean milk.

It is just a question of whether a man, for the sake of assurance for the health of his family in so far as the milk they use is concerned, is willing to pay a cent or two per quart to have the milk which he expects to use cleaned up, and delivered to him as a finished product, instead of taking the chances which he does take in the grosser way of purchasing.

Disheartening Effect of Piles

It is not only the itching and stinging of piles that is to be dreaded but also the depressing and debilitating effect on the whole system. The victim of pils cannot do efficient work. There is an uneasiness and discomfort by day and at night the distress from the itching prevents sleep and rest, and undermines the general health.

From almost the first application of Dr. Chase's Ointment you get relief from the annoying itching and burning, and gradually the ulcers are healed up and the disease thoroughly cured. Do not make the mistake of discontinuing treatment as soon as relief is obtained. Dr. Chase's Ointment is a proved cure but it depends on you to apply it persistently until a cure is effected.

Even the most severe cases of long standing yield to the soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Surgical operations are no longer necessary for, as a matter of fact, Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured cases that were not cured by operations. No sufferer from piles can afford to delay the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

KEENE NEWS

KEENE, Feb. 4th. — The manager of the Keene skating rink, Mr. George McIntyre, will give a carnival on the evening of Feb. 11th.

Mr. Wm. Kempt spent Saturday at Peterborough.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Sharpe of Alberta, at Bralesford Cedars, on January 29th, a son. Mrs. Sharpe was formerly Miss Mabel Harrison.

Messrs. Michael O'Keefe and L. Burley attended the meeting of the County Council at Peterborough on Friday last.

Mr. Torrence B. Sharpe left for his home at Prince Albert, Alta., on Tuesday, after spending the past month at the home of Dr. N. T. Harrison.

Mr. Fred George visited friends at Roseneath over Sunday.

Mr. Roy Kempt was in Peterborough on Tuesday.

An illustrated lecture and entertainment will be given at the town hall, Keene, on Thursday evening, Feb. 12th, by Mr. Stubbs, of Peterborough, under the auspices of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian Church. Adults 25c; children 10c admission.

The Keene curlers returned last Wednesday from Peterborough where they were playing for the district cup but which they were not successful in landing.

Miss Adrienne VanLuven returned on Saturday to her home at Watertown, N.Y., after a pleasant month's visit with friends here.

Miss Lilly Moore met with a painful accident last Wednesday night at the rink, when one of the skaters ran the top of a skate into the top of her foot, cutting a bad gash.

The proposed rural telephone for the Township of Otonabee is making great progress. About 80 per cent. of the people have already signed. A great interest is being taken in the project and we hope that it will be pushed through to completion.

Miss Lillian Wedlock spent last Thursday in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Shearer of Vancouver, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell last week. Mrs. Shearer was formerly Miss Maud Campbell.

One of the Keene curling rinks is playing at the Campbellford bonspiel this week. The players are Messrs. J. J. Moore, No. Dorris, M. Kennealy and Robert Nelson.

The hockey match which was played in Keene rink between Hastings and the home team was a very spirited game, and ended with a score of 12 to three in favour of Keene.

NEGLECT IS THE CAUSE OF GREY HAIR

Easily Corrected If You Only Will

No woman nowadays need lose the charm of her rich, lustrous hair with advancing years. Grey and faded hair destroys a woman's charm as nothing else will do.

It seems a shame that any woman should suffer the annoyance of grey hair when it is so easy to restore it to its natural colour.

Hay's Hair Health is so simple and easy to use and so sure in its results that no woman can afford to overlook it. It is not a dye, just a real tonic that brings new life and vigour and that natural coloured healthy look to the impoverished scalp and hair roots, restores the original, natural colour of the hair. It removes dandruff.

Your money will be refunded to you if it fails after a fair trial.

SIR. HIRAM S. MAXIM'S BIRTHDAY

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Sir Hiram S. Maxim, the famous machine-gun inventor and ship-builder, entered upon his seventy-fifth year to-day, and was the recipient of many congratulations. The famous inventor is in good health and shows few signs of his age. A year ago he severed his connection with the ship-building firm of Vickers Sons, Maxim and Company, and has since devoted himself to a study of the problem of aerial navigation with a view to perfecting a military aeroplane.

Sir Hiram, although a naturalized British citizen, comes from an old New England family, and was born in Maine, February 5, 1840. As a mechanician and inventor he is regarded as among the foremost of the time. Since 1883 he has made his home in England and has visited America only occasionally on business trips.

In early life he entered his uncle's engineering works in Fitchburg, Mass., where his inventive faculties began to develop. His first invention was an automatic mouse trap. In the late '70s he turned his attention to electricity, and when he left the United States in 1885 many regarded him as the peer of Edison.

In 1884 Mr. Maxim abandoned electricity and took up machine-gun making, an industry in connection with which his name is best known. The small works which he then established in Holborn grew until the firm employed 15,000 persons, and produced everything required in war, from the tiniest weapon to a complete battleship. What is still regarded as the greatest of the Maxim inventions is the automatic gun. This gun fires and loads itself and can expel from 500 to 600 bullets a minute. Every bullet thus expelled can penetrate five men standing face to back in file.

The New Spring Models in Kabo Corsets Will Give You
That Slender Figure Which Fashion of To-day Demands

THE AUTHORATIVE AND FASHIONABLE GARMENTS FOR THE SPRING OF 1914 demand the graceful straight line figure—extremely narrow hips and a general absence of angles. Kabo Corsets being scientifically built on the natural lines of the figure—over the forms of living models—are so distinguished and so accurate in style—that they don't bind the body into a stiff conventional shape—but rather mould the body into the fashionable flowing lines demanded by Fashion.

Kabo Corsets are soft and flexible—yet will amply meet the requirements of the well-developed figure. Kabo Corsets are noted particularly for their faultless fashions, finish, fabric and fit. Let us demonstrate to you personally the special features of Kabo Corsets—and how satisfactorily we can fit you. Ask to see—

Model 2054

We like to deserve all the admiring attentions we receive. The woman with an average figure has no excuse for not making an attractive appearance. The new Kabo Model 2054—will give most gratifying results. Price....$1.50

Model 3037

The perfection of Corset making is reached when a Corset is so made that the wearer enjoys both freedom of movement and the knowledge that her figure is perfect. These things made Kabo Models famous. Model 3037 is a very popular Corset for the stout figure. Price.....$2.00

Model 4017

Corset Models for 1914 are very striking, the figure is made to look natural and easy but much depends on the very small things in Corset designing and making. Model 4017 is a splendid value and suitable for slender & medium figures. .$2.50

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

ORIGINATED WITH BOBCAYGEON MAN

A New Beef Animal Produced—Cross Between Domestic Cattle and the Buffalo

The Daily Mail, Overseas edition of January 10th, has the following to say of a new beef animal that has been produced:

A new beef animal has been produced. It is the cattleo—the result of twenty years' experimenting with the crossing of domestic cattle of various breeds with the American buffalo.

Mr. E. Mossom Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, Ontario, was (says the Canadian Courier) the originator of the idea, and he now has a large herd of cattleo. Some show the white faces of the Hereford, with the powerful shoulders nd neck of the buffalo. The hide is more valuable than that of an ordinary fatted steer and the meat is just as valuable.

Considerable interest has been caused in the Smithfield market by the news.

One prominent authority on cattle did not think the new breed was very likely to effect the supply for the English market or make itself felt for some time.

"The taste of buffalo flesh would probably be present in the new animal, and while this is not unpleasant, it is more suited for frontiersmen after a hard day on the plains than for the average city worker or the bulk of the English population."

A TRIBUTE TO THE BOY SCOUTS OF ONTARIO

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Feb. 5.—Backed up by a strong recommendation from the Duke of Connaught, the chief scout of Canada, Baden Powell, has issued an appeal for one hundred and fifty thousand dollar fund to help along the movement in Britain. He says one of the greatest examples of the value of boy scout work is given in the dominions beyond the seas, particularly in provinces like Ontario, where, in his opinion, the organization has reached a high standard of efficiency.

NECK BROKEN BY BALE OF HAY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 5.— Barnabas Guess, aged sixty, living at Harrowsmith, is not expected to live as the result of an accident when engaged in baling hay. One of the bales fell off the pile and struck him on the head and shoulders. His neck is broken.

The work of polishing windows and mirrors can be made much lighter if instead of using wet cloths or whitening you sprinkle a little liquid brass polish on a rag and then clean off with a soft dry duster. The result will be most satisfactory.

TO DEFEND NEUTRALITY

Special Wire to The Examiner:

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 5.—If present plans are carried out to-morrow will witness a demonstration without precedent in magnitude and purpose in the history of Sweden. On that day 20,000 peasants are expected to arrive here from the provinces to present to the King and Premier petitions in favour of strengthening the navy and the country's defensive forces. The chief purpose of the demonstration is to induce the Government to comply with the popular demand for greater security of Swedish neutrality in the event of a war among its powerful neighbours. For a long time past the matter has been a subject of debates in the Riksdag, but so far no definite action has been taken. The general sentiment is strongly in favour of having an army and navy of such strength as to discourage the powers from incubating war plans on the assumption that Swedish neutrality cannot be defended successfully. Belgium has been induced by the same motives to largely increase her armed strength and a similar agitation is under way in Norway.

DOG CATCHER BAGS THREE DOGS

LINDSAY, Feb. 5—The civic dog catcher has been appointed, and started on his duties in plain clothes. Up to noon yesterday he had corralled three canines and incarcerated them in the Bastile. Chief Chilton states that owing to the cold weather the doggies will not be kept long but will be disposed of unless the owners get busy.

A CHORUS OF PRAISE

Wherever Rev. Dr. Speer lectures he is followed by a chorus of praise. The Victoria, B.C., Recorder, says he lectured "always to the interest and delight of those who heard him." The Victoria Colonist says: "One of the most entertaining, interesting and funny lecfures." The Toronto Globe adds: "Dr. Speer is one of the most talented speakers on the Canadian platform." Dr. Speer will lecture in the George Street Methodist Church on Monday night next on "Songs and Singers," one of his best and most delightful subjects. Tickets 25 cents.

COMMANDS A NEW SHIP

Special Wire to The Examiner:

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 5. — The steamship Principello the newest and largest vessel of the Uranium Line, sailed from here to-day on her maiden trip to New York. The new ship is in charge of Captain Francis Inch, who commanded the ill-fated Volturno when that vessel was burned at sea last October with the loss of many lives, and who later was exonerated of any blame and warmly praised for the bravery and efficiency he displayed at the time of the catastrophe.

Two million Chinese eggs for the American market were received recently at Vancouver.

MAT DRYSDALE
Singing "Old Maids' Ball," with the Belmont Club Big Show.

From the time that Mr. John Crane makes his entrance upon the sightly Cabaret scene until the grand finale, introducing every one in the big production, there will be something going on to please, amuse, and make you laugh. Geo. Wesley this season has a song that he likes, and will deliver it as he never did before. The beautiful girl drill introducing some of Peterborough's prettiest young ladies, assisted by the entire company, will be a fitting close to the most "up-to-now" local performance ever presented to a Peterborough audience. Clean, refined. Not a word or action to hurt the feelings of the most fastidious. Clean comedy, clean repartee, no horse play, no slap sticks. A show strictly upon its merit. Without a word of apology. Advance sale opens for ticket holders Feb. 9th. Get good seats and enjoy an evening of real entertainment.

C. P. R. Paid $109,362 In The Form Of Pensions In 1913

Has a Complete Record of All the Men Ever Employed With the Company---Over 80,000 Personal Records

The staff record office of the C.P.R. is Valhalla and registration office rolled into one. In this office there are over 80,000 personal records, sufficient, in each case, to furnish details for a biography. Every dead employee who passed through the service is there—in his written record; his birth and length of service and nature of employment and death, together with copies of his testimonials — all preserved since the first man got a job on the C.P.R. The living, too, in separate classifications, are represented by the written testimony which covers all needful particulars of the individual case. Each man has his card, which is put into a box. Each box holding hundreds of cards. Of these boxes there are some 350, each in its own place, each familiar to the clerks under Mr. A. Rondeau, the head of the department. There is also the pension records—a distinct work, interesting and onerous. If any man, dismissed at any time, should try to bluff the company by pretending that this was his first application, or using a wrong name, the original record would be brought forward, would be silently shown him, with the result that confusion of face would seize upon him. Each employee is there in a record of service —what he has done in the past, what he is doing now, where he was born, who were his parents, his age, and so forth. If he leaves the employment that is noted. His testimonials —that is, copies of them, are kept in separate departments. If a particular department wants to know about any employee, anywhere on the system, all that is necessary is to ring up Mr. Rondeau. The alphabetical list will be produced. The right book will be drawn out; and the history of the case will be laid bare.

There are scores of thousands of copies of original testimonials, which would make strange reading. This department was set up in 1901; it had small beginnings. At first the work was done by ordinary bookkeeping. The present system of registration and classification is more efficient and economical, while at the same time, by the promptness with which the records can be traced, it makes for more efficient working. In the pension department one comes across the fatal statement attached to a form — "Not eligible for pension." This pension registration is conducted with scrupulous care. Every man on the list knows that he will get exactly what is coming to him under the terms of his pension pay. With that assurance he works all the better and more zealously. It is calculated by the executive of the C.P.R. that the amount invested for the pension fund to which the employees contribute nothing, has been received back by the company in the increased value of the service rendered by the employees—keyed up to zeal and vigour by the knowledge that in their old age they would be taken care of. The system of classification is absolutely exact.

It takes sixteen men, hard at it all the time, to keep up with the work connected with the department. We handle hundreds and even thousands of application forms every day of the week. These have to be compared; and then there are the testimonials to be put together, and notes made of them, and the documents themselves put away for reference.

There are presently 605 men on the pension fund of the C.P.R. Under 60 years of age there are 73; between 60 and 70 years of age, 204; over 70 years of age, 238. The payment allowance for last year came to $169,3.6. The fund was set up in 1903. The terms of it were so attractive that the great army of employees were delighted with it. The men pay nothing. The fund is a free gift to the employees by direction of the management. No pension can be less than $20 per month. All are liable to come under the terms of the pension regulation. There are, as a matter of fact, men high up in the service of the company, who, in the vernacular, ought, legally speaking, to have got the axe. Such men are virtually indispensable. They are few and can be counted on the fingers of one hand. The time limit does not bother them. Others who are not so highly priced, but who do good work, dread the moment.

MARTIN HARVEY'S SYDNEY CARTON

An Artistic Treat in Dramatic Presentation

The Grand Opera House was well filled last night by an unusually intelligent and therefore, appreciative audience, to assist at the presentation of "The Only Way" by Martin Harvey and his capable company of players. Whatever we have heard in the way of advance praise of this great English romance actor, was fully justified last night. In quality of acting, in artistic restraint, depiction of character, in emotional development, in refined histrionic skill, scenic accessories, and general effectiveness of ensemble, there was nothing wanting. Mr. Harvey in person and delineation was one's ideal double of the noblest character in the literature of fiction, Dickens' "Sydney Carton" in the Tale of Two Cities. He presented the character of the dissipated lawyer, and ne'er do well, with a fine art and all the refinement of action that the character admitted, without exaggeration, but to the line, the acme of natural acting. His gradual moral development, under the spell of his nobly unselfish love for Lucy Manette, from the reckless scrivener, to the height of the sacrifice of the "greater love," was a supreme demonstration of histrionic artistry. He was most ably supported by his entire company, each in his or her role worthy of the great head. It was a delight to hear and see the cultured diction and refinement of manner that obtained from curtain to curtain. "Mimi," the partial counterpart of "Miss Pross," and the grisette of the story, was admirably sustained by Miss De Silva. Special praise is due Miss Maude Rivers as "Lucie Manette." Her acting in the love scene in Dr. Manette's garden was exquisitely sweet; and strikingly effective and natural, in the scene in Dr. Manette's Paris apartments in act four. It was simply a delight. All the other characters were admirably taken, and all played up effectively to Harvey's lead. The entire presentation in every aspect was of the first class, and by its sheer merit compelled the enthusiastic reception it received. Martin Harvey was accorded a genuine ovation, and made his acknowledgments in his modest, graceful way. To-night a further treat will be given the playgoing public by the presentation of one of Harvey's greatest successes, "The Breed of the Treshams," a drama, strong and virile, of the rollicking days of the cavaliers and Roundheads.

THREE DEATHS IN ONE FAMILY

Word has been received concerning the death of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peoples of North Dakota, also one son. All three deaths occurred within a short time of each other, pneumonia being given as the cause. Four daughters survive, one of whom is seriously ill at the present time. The youngest is about six years old.

The late Harry Peoples was a brother of Mr. J. B. Peoples, ex-Reeve of Belmont township. He removed to Dakota some years ago. He was well known in Belmont township, where his demise and that of his wife and son will be regretted.

The Question of a Dress For Spring is Already Claiming One's Attention

Therefore We Make Mention of Three or Four Fabrics That Bid Fair to Become Very Popular For Spring Apparel

British Serge $1.00

This sturdy fabric is without question one of the best of materials for skirts, suits and dresses.

It is all wool, 52 inches wide, and is shown in light and dark Navy, Grey, Tan, three shades of Brown and in Black.

While at $1.00 yard it offers splendid value.

Checks in Black, Blue and Brown.

There are few fabrics that rival Shepherd Checks in their adaptability for all occasions and their suitability for persons of every age, yet its modest price of 50c yard places it within reach of the most slender purse.

The Checks are in Black, Blue and Brown, of three different sizes, upon a White ground, and the width is 42 inches.

While in the face of about 20 per cent. increase in the price in many places, we still retail it at the old figure—50c yard.

Messaline Silk $1.25 yard

The distinguishing feature of this silk is that in the new weaves there is the popular fine stripe effect, which is White upon Black, Brown, Grey, Rose and Tan shades.

It is one yard wide, and is the leading dress and blouse silk for the coming season. The price is $1.25 yard.

Honon Pongee Silk $1.00 yard

When it comes to a choice of an inexpensive silk that maintains a good appearance and yet gives a reasonable amount of wear, one invariably turns to the Honon Pongee variety at $1.00 yard.

This is procurable in Black, Cream, Tan, Brown, Champagne, Grey, Copenhagen and Pink.

It is woven with a strong fibre and makes up into blouses and other things with a surprisingly handsome finish. Price $1.00 yard.

"BAD CASTINGS" THE SUBJECT

The mutual Improvement Club had an exceptionally enjoyable meeting on Monday night at the home of Mr. Wm. Barrie, 477 1-2 Bolivar Street.

A paper on "Bad Castings" was read by Mr. E. Hardie and thoroughly discussed by the members.

The remainder of the evening was passed with music and songs, those present receiving quite a surprise at the talent displayed in this line.

At the close, dainty refreshments were served and all tendered a hearty vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their kind hospitality.

Peterborough Man Has Nose And Lips Grafted On Face From Own Flesh

Allen Lost Nose and Lips in Sawmill Accident at Buckhorn and Has Now Been Two Months in Hospital Undergoing Several Grafting Operations With a View to Obtaining New Features--Necessary Bone and Flesh is Taken From His Own Body.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 5.—With a part of his forearm substituting for new lips, Ross Allen of Peterborough at a hospital here, seems to be in a favourable way to have practically the whole of his face newly shaped.

When he entered the hospital about two months ago, with his face disfigured from an accident in a saw mill five years previously, his nose and lips were missing.

A section of flesh shaped to form of his lower lip was taken from his forearm in December and a gratifying juncture made with the lip base. The arm was bound about the head until the grafting was complete. This consumed about two weeks, when, sufficient adherence having taken place the lip section was carved from the arm, and lips shaped. The same procedure was followed in the upper lip treatment, a section of the arm flesh being grafted across the upper gum and the arm strapped to Allen's head and shoulders until this section too, had taken hold.

When Allen accumulated sufficient strength for another operation, the surgeons will try to build him a new nose. It is planned to cut away a piece of healthy cartilage from one of the ribs at the junction with the breast bone, shape it to the form of a nose with the nostril openings and insert it in place of the missing organ. The skin, which will have been previously slit for the insertion of the substitute bone, is then to be drawn over the bone and healing awaited.

It is expected that the cartilage will adhere to the facial bones and, in time, become a part of the facial structure. Several months will be needed for complete operation.

It will be remembered that Ross Allen was injured in an accident that occured at Buckhorn about two years ago, when he tripped and fell on a moving saw. He was brought to the hospital in Peterborough, where he remained for several weeks. Allen has numerous retatives in the City and country.

R. DOUROS RETURNS FROM THE BALKANS

Nicholas Douros, proprietor of the Boston Cafe, is expected to arrive in the city to-night, fresh from the hills of Albania and other scenes of the recent war in the Balkans.

Mr. Douros 'phoned from Toronto to-day that he was in the best of health and expected to reach Peterborough this evening. He was one of the army of loyal Greeks who responded to the call of his King and country when the Balkan allies declared war against the Sultan. Mr. Douros has been absent sixteen months or more.

MAY NOT BE TRIED UNTIL NEXT SPRING

Special Cable to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—It is quite probable that the trial of Harry Symons, K.C. and Doctor Frank G. Hughes, two of the four directors of the Union Assurance Company, charged with conspiracy in connection with the affairs of the defunct company, will not take place until the next criminal assize court in May next. Harry Symons, K.C., will appear before Justice Latchford in the Assize Court to-morrow, when bail bond will be renewed until next assizes. Dr. Hughes is on his way here from Edmonton.

BANK OF GERMANY LOWERS DISCOUNT

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Germany, Feb. 5.—Further indications of the easing up of money conditions were given this morning when the Bank of Germany, which lends vast sums to Canadian interests, dropped its discount rate from four and half to four per cent. The Bank of England rate remains at three per cent. to-day.

BIG ATHLETIC MEET IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb 5.—An army of athletes, representing the best amateur performers in the Central A. A. U. territory, is on its way to Chicago to take part in the twentieth annual indoor meet of the First Regiment Athletic Association. The meet promises to be the largest of the year in this section of the country. Owing to the large number of participants the programme will cover two days. To-morrow the preliminary events will be run off. These will be followed on Saturday by the open and track events. Most interest centres in the relay races, in which teams representing Chicago, Illinois, Notre Dame and other big universities of the middle west will compete for the championship honours.

REV. FATHER KELLY'S SOCIAL A SUCCESS

Enjoyable Evening Provided By Congregation of St. Paul's Church, Norwood

The Norwood basket social, given by Rev. Father Kelly and congregation of St. Paul's Church, was held on Tuesday evening in the Town Hall. It was as usual both successful and enjoyable in every way. Considerably over four hundred persons were present, including a large number from Peterborough, Campbellford, Hastings, Havelock and the nearby townships, Rev. Father McAuley, of the Sacred Heart Church, Peterborough, being among the guests.

A concert, in which adept talent from Toronto and Peterborough took part, was held in the forepart of the evening. Mr. Le Roy Kenny was the chief entertainer.

The selections by the Grand Opera Orchestra of Peterborough were a treat; as was also their playing for the dance. Mr. E. Hanrahan, of Peterborough, a youthful singer in appearance and who possesses a remarkable voice, merited strong applause with his solos; while Mr J. Minicolo's tenor singing was much appreciated. Mr. W. C. Thomson acted as accompanist for Mr. Kenny.

Following the concert the sale of baskets commenced, with Mr. W J. Andrews of Havelock as auctioneer. Here much amusement was provided, especially when there was a "run" of bids on a certain basket, coveted by some young gallant.

The baskets were beautiful and varied in design and colour. To Mrs. Guy Popham, of Peterborough, fell the honour of contributing the basket which secured the highest bid, $11.50. The cards on the baskets were afterwards handled in and a draw was taken, the successful couple being Miss Eva Tagney, of Peterborough, and Mr. J. Heffernan of Campbellford, to whom prizes were presented. When lunch had been concluded, the floor was cleared and the remaining hours were spent in tripping the light fantastic. Mr. W. J. McLaughlin was floor manager. The net proceeds amounted to $320.—Norwood Register.

LANCLOT MAKES AN APOLOGY TO McNAB

Special Wire to The Examiner:

QUEBEC, Feb. 5.—Apologies were tendered this morning for the midnight affray when Charles Lancot appeared before the Assembly Special Committee and tendered his apologies to Editor McNab for assaulting him. The apologies were accepted. New names were added to the committee in place of those who resigned yesterday.

"FLABERGASTED" BY THE LETTER FROM "MOTHER"

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—I have read the interesting letter in last night's issue from the pen of "Mother," who presumably lives in the Creek or Hicks' Coal Yard. If so it might account for the queer company she keeps. These men and women who tell her questionable stories that would shame a shanty man!

"Birds of a feather flock together."

Who told them to her anyway? Was it her husband, or her son, or just a gentleman friend? This truly is the saddest confession yet. We certainly want good mothers, but not this kind, thank you.—Yours truly, Flabergasted.

Peterborough, Feb. 3rd, 1914.

PLENTY OF WOOD AND HAY ON THE MARKET

There was quite a number of farmers on the market this morning with wood and hay, the former selling from $3.50 to $6.50 a load, and the latter around $17 and $18. When a farmer comes to Town during the week he fixes himself and a load of wood or produce of some kind on a sleigh, meets his friends, picks up all the gossip around Town, disposes of his goods and returns home a richer and a wiser man. Usually that is the case. But there are exceptions. His wife may be one of those women who do not care what "Bill Bink's son, Henry, is doing," or why "Heep's daughter left the millinery store and went to Detroit." However, this is far from the market, and it was meant to remark that farmering in winter is a round of pleasure with a few chores as a reminder of the ralities of life.

TWO EX-CONGRESSMEN WILL GO TO SING SING

Convicted of Bribery in Connection With a Supreme Court Nomination.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Joseph Cassidy, former Democratic boss of Queen's County, and William Willett, a former Congressman, were sentenced to serve not more than a year or less than six months in Sing Sing Prison and to pay a $1,000 fine. Louis T. Walter, a politician, was sentenced to three months and fined $1,000. Willett was convicted of paying a bribe to Cassidy for a Supreme Court nomination. Walter was the go-between.

WOMAN IN TERRIBLE STATE

Finds Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Bellevue, Ohio.—"I was in a terrible state before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back ached until I thought it would break, I had pains all over me, nervous feelings and periodic troubles. I was very weak and run down and was losing hope of ever being well and strong. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I improved rapidly and today am a well woman. I cannot tell you how happy I feel and I cannot say too much for your Compound. Would not be without it in the house if it cost three times the amount."—Mrs. CHAS. CHAPMAN, R. F. D. No. 7, Bellevue, Ohio.

Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has remedied many cases of female ills, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and it may be exactly what you need.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

Annual Meeting Was Concluded

Ladies Auxiliary of Y.M.C.A. Elects Officers—Reports Presented

WORK OF THE YEAR

At the adjourned annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association that was held on Monday, the following report was presented by the Secretary, Mrs. S. Clegg:

Secretary's Report.

To the Ladies of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary—In presenting our annual report, I feel in looking over our work for the past year, we have been of some material benefit to the Association. Our work may seem small, but viewing it from some standpoints it is of great importance. Our City has no more valuable asset than its young men, and to be of some aid in helping along a work that has for its object character building, is a work worthy of our best efforts.

We entertained the boys to a banquet in April, which they thoroughly enjoyed.

We also gave a banquet in November, which was a success financially as well as socially. The money realized from this banquet was applied to a rug for the sitting-room, which adds greatly to the homelike appearance of that room.

New Furnishings.

We furnished new curtains for all the dormitories, which improves their appearance. The thanks of the Auxiliary are due to the ladies who so kindly made the curtains up.

Our musicale, which we held in March, was enjoyed by all who had the privilege of attending and also aided us finanially.

We have held during the year five regular and one special meeting with an average attendance of eight. This may seem small, but we feel that our members are all interested in the work. When any special work has to be done they always respond most heartily.

I am sorry our recent entertainment could not have been given in December, 1913, so that we could have included it in this report; however, our Auxiliary appreciates the kindness of the Ladies' Aid of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church in giving their entertainment for our benefit.—Hattie S. Clegg, Sec. L. A. of Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Martin Harvey's Address To Peterboro' Canadian Club

The Eminent English Actor Gives a Few of His Impressions of Canada and Canadians---Advocates a Policy of Tour Planning---Gives Three Reasons for Coming to Canada---An All-Red Theatrical Route.

Mr. Martin Harvey, the eminent English actor, was entertained last evening by the Peterborough Canadian Club. Mr. G. C. Wainwright presided. The reception took place at the "Savoy," and preceded Mr. Harvey's appearance at the Grand Opera House, where he won his way into the hearts of Peterborough theatre goers by his dramatic impersonation of "Sidney Carton" in "The Only Way." Mr. Harvey possesses a striking personality, a fact that is apparent not only on the stage but in his everyday life.

In the course of an after-dinner speech, Mr. Harvey paid a glowing tribute to the hospitality of the Canadian Club and the spirit that prompted the Club to open its doors to strangers from across the seas. Among the first things that greeted his sight as he stepped ashore at Halifax a few days ago, was Canada's National Emblem and an invitation to be the guest of the Canadian Club in that city.

IMPRESSIONS OF CANADA

Mr. Harvey in outlining a few of his impressions of Canada, expressed exception to a class of globe trotters,

MR. MARTIN HARVEY

Famous English actor, who was given an enthusiastic reception last night and who appears at the Grand tonight in "The Breed of the Treshams."

who after a flying trip through a new country invariably give expression to statements respecting the country that are at variance with the facts. What he had to say of Canada were merely personal impressions gained during the short time that he had been here.

In dealing with the picturesque, Mr. Harvey referred to the bracing winter climate, and the stirring sports that such a climate made possible. He was struck with the respect that was shown to the land. "No spectacle is more distressing, said the speaker, than acreage that has been abused. Such scenes are not infrequent in the New World, where once the fertile lands are garbed in the noisome aspect of devestation."

THE UNION JACK

At this juncture Mr. Harvey introduced a note of Imperialism into his speech when he referred to the "deep down devotion of Britishers to the Union Jack."

While playing in Hamilton some years ago, Mr. Harvey upon being called to the front of the stage for a speech, said that what was uppermost in his mind at the time was the significant fact, that after having travelled many thousands of miles, the speaker could look up above and see the Union Jack. Mr. Harvey said that he would never forget the response that greeted the remark.

STRENGTHEN THE BIND

The speaker said that actors could do much to strengthen the bond of unity between the colonies and the Mother Land. For parapraising the Scriptural text it can be said that "man shall not live by bread alone, but there comes a time when the thoughts turn to other than material things."

Mr. Harvey remarked upon the splendid opportunities that Canadian cities afforded for town planning. He attributed his presence and that of "his loyal company" in Canada to three things—First, that wonderful enterprise known as the Canadian Pacific Railyway that enabled one to take passage on one of the company's liners at Liverpool, and arriving in Canada, travel on one of the company's trains from the Atlantic to the Pacific presenting plays along the route, and returning in eighteen and one half weeks.

A NEW ORGANIZATION

The second attribute was the newly organized British-Canadian Theatre organization which originated from an Imperial idea, following a remark made by a man prominent in Canadian life. Mr. Harvey forecast a tie when the organization would have representation in all the British possessions, enabling theatrical companies to follow out what might be called an "all red-route," playing all the time under the Union Jack.

The third reason was a personal one—centreing in the speaker—who was desirous of seeing the vast Dominion. "I wanted to see the vaster stretches of the Empire," said Mr. Harvey, "and at the same time speak in my own native tongue!"

In conclusion Mr. Harvey again thanked the members of the Canadian Club on behalf of his wife and loyal company for the hearty welcome they had accorded him.

Hockey--That's All

The ice at Whitby last night was rough and inclined to be sticky. The Petes would have won further away if the ice had been good.

The Intermediates will practice at Brock St. Rink at 7 o'clock to-morrow night. Every player is expected to be out as this may be the last practice before the second round games.

TORONTO, FEB. 5.—Blucher came to the rescue of the Duke of Wellington at the battle of Waterloo, and "Cully" Wilson of the Torontos emulated his example last night. The light-haired boy from Winnipeg last night placed his name in the hall of hockey fame by scoring the goal which gave the local team a victory over their great rivals from Ottawa. Two to one was the result, and the teams are now tied for first place in the N. H. A.

Thirty seconds before the gong rang for the finish of play, and with the game at a deadlock, with one goal apiece, Wilson took a pass in front of the goal Walker and poked it in the net. The crowd, which expected that the game would have to extend into overtime, was as much surprised as the Ottawa players, and did not realise for a moment that the victory was Torontos'.

The teams lived up to expectations. It was a battle between teams which were so evenly matched that on the shrewdest followers of the game were loath to make a choice.

Despite the importance of the game the play was rough, especially in the latter stages. This was noticeable in the case of Davidson of the Torontos. This player was off on two occasions in the last period, and his absence, while it weakened Torontos' chances luckily did not make any difference in the score. Heavy body checks, butt-ends, slashes, and other tactics were used by the players of both teams. In the last few minutes of the play, even with the score a tie, the Ottawa defence used the crudest of work to stop the Toronto forwards. They slashed, hooked, and even tripped, the local players in their endeavour to prevent a goal.

While the play was fast in the first period, it was not the best of hockey. Ottawa had a slight margin on the play, and Holmes made numerous nice saves. In the second period Torontos forced the issue. Both played much faster at this stage of the game. In the third period play was even. If anything, the visitors had the better chances, as several scuffles tok place in front of the local net, which luckily enough did not result in a goal.

There were many spectators of the opinion that the locals did not play up to their best form. During their last few games here they had developed somewhat of a combination, but last night it was a minus quantity.

The Ottawa forwards, as usual, had plenty of speed, but Cameron and Marshall chased them into the corners and spilt most of their shots. Gerard was the best of the visitors on the attack, while he was in the game and showed that he is really a wonderful player.

The first period was scoreless. In the second Foyston of the locals scored the first goal of the game. It was somewhat of a lucky tally. An Ottawa player attempted to bring the puck from behind his own goal, but Foyston scooped it away from his stick and lifted quickly. Loseur stopped it, but the rubber dropped into the corner of the goal. Ottawa's goal was also lucky. It came in the third period. Shore shot from centre and Holmes, caught unawares, was unable to stop the rubber.

A crowd which packed every nook and cranny of the Arena from which the game could be viewed went wild with delight at the victory of the local team.

SHAMROCKS VS. MAPLE LEAFS.

A game was played last night at the Brock Street Rink from 10 to 11, between the above teams. The play, which was rather fast and furious, verging on the rough, ended in the score of 3-1 in favour of the National Emblems, otherwise the Maple Leafs, all being obtained during the first half.

The following shows the line-up of the two teams:

Shamrocks.

Goal—Rattle Snake Mahoney.
Right Defence—Calabash Weatherhead.
Left Defence—Rip Hayes.
Rover—Go-Some Henry.
Centre—Woo-Hoo Kendry.
Left Wing—Quaker Tobin.
Right Wing—Snuffyoungnose Russel.

Maple Leafs.

Goal—Standstill Anthony.
Right Defence—Rock Hall.
Left Defence—Nan Corbitt (Capt.)
Rover—Sudden Death Lawrence.
Centre—Indian Dugan.
Left Wing—Baby Thibault.
Right Wing—Flyer Younge.

The winning goals were obtained by Lawrence, Dugan and Younge for the winners, and the solitary Shamrock goal was shot by Hayes.

Your Opportunity—Investigate This Well, Convince Yourself of its Possibilities

A PLAIN TALK WITH YOU

It is always the man of vision who reaps the reward of his foresight. For instance, Henry Ford, the creator of the popular car bearing his name, had a hard time convincing his associates of the tremendous possibilities of his car. The secret was the fact that his car was built for the masses—a popular-priced car. Had you put in one hundred dollars at that time, what would your investment be worth to-day? Make inquiries.

Have You Stopped to Think of the American Invasion of Yonge Street

First, you come to Liggett's, who have revolutionized the drug business in Toronto. Next, Childs' spent a fortune in their restaurant at Richmond and Yonge, absolutely knowing that they would do the business. Why? Because Toronto has fewer popular-priced restaurants than any city of its size on the continent to-day. Then we see Loew, with his magnificent theatre—he knows. Then Bowles' serve-self lunch, and Woolworth, on the corner of Queen and Yonge. Why should we stand passively by and let our neighbours reap the harvest of our business heart? Mind you, we appreciate the American aggressiveness, but are we not going to be awakened by its teachings? Would it not be well to invest in a good legitimate proposition and see the actual operation of your money? Will we not have a certain feeling of pride to eat in restaurants that we are financially identified with? Our plans are not only as good as Childs', but the consensus of opinion is that they surpass Childs'. You must remember this is not a subdivision lot, nor is it a mine. Both might be good according to their merits, but what surpasses a restaurant, popular-priced, co-operative, profit-sharing, practically on the corner of King and Yonge—conceded not only the best corner in Toronto, but in the whole Dominion. With a management that was good enough for Childs'. Our plan calls for a Bowles front, with a Childs' interior.

This stock is being rapidly taken up, and no man can doubt the absolute success of such an undertaking. Remember, this is the parent company. You become an original shareholder, and we trust that it will be the investment of a lifetime. We contemplate at least ten restaurants throughout Canada.

Holmes Restaurants, Ltd., Particulars of Business

This Company is being organized to operate a chain of restaurants throughout the Dominion in cities having upwards of 50,000 population.

The first site has already been leased at 83 Yonge Street, Toronto, just one door north of the new Royal Bank Building, on corner of King Street—an ideal location. These restaurants will be similar to the Childs' restaurants in the United States. Mr. Holmes and Mr. Holbrook have both had years of practical experience in the managership of some of Childs' largest restaurants. These men know every detail of the business, and their experience will guarantee the shareholders of Holmes Restaurants, Limited, of the competent management that is bound to lead to success.

If you pass by Childs' Restaurant, or Bowles' or the Cafeteria at meal hour you will find them overcrowded, and, in fact, at lunch hour, in the case of, at least, one of these restaurants there will be a line-up of people waiting to get in.

The enormous profits made from these places will serve as an example of the possibilities for the shareholders in Holmes Restaurants, Limited. Lyons of London, Eng., is stated to make a profit of 60 per cent. Childs' Toronto restaurant has sent $59,000 net profit to New York, they having just bought a new lease for $85,000 in rear of their Toronto store, in order to increase their seating capacity. The Cafeterias pay a dividend of 27 per cent. annually on a capitalization of $75,000. The Baltimore Lunch is reported to have made $25,000 yast year. Mr. Holmes makes a conservative estimate based on experience that the net profit on our first Toronto restaurant for the first year should reach between $40,000 and $50,000.

With our system of management, there is absolutely no waste of food materials. Every day the exact cost of operation may be figured out. Taking into consideration the fact that this is an absolutely cash business, the safety of an investment of this nature is greatly enhanced.

Under these conditions there is no reason why the name of "HOLMES" should not mean to Canada all that the word "Childs" means to the restaurant catering public of the United States.

These restaurants will be opened day and night. The cuisine will be of the very best.

The Directorate of this Company is composed of responsible and successful men in the business world. It is altogether as unusual opportunity.

The allotment of shares set aside for public subscription is limited to 10,000 at par, $10 per share, a minimum subscription of five shares being necessary by shareholders. This investment is in a company that will be in operation as fast as the builders can finish our first restaurant on Yonge Street, on which they will start as soon as the present lease expires. He who doubts the absolute success of this business must be sceptical indeed. It is one of the most promising investments that have been placed before the Canadian public for many a day.

FACTS WORTH CONSIDERING

There is no such thing as a SLUMP in the restaurant business—people MUST eat.
When you invest in what people eat you cannot go wrong.
Our location is conceded the best in Toronto for a popular-priced restaurant.
Our management was good enough for Childs', it should be good enough for you.
Our interior and exterior plans surpass anything at present in Toronto.
This is the parent company, and you will draw profits from all subsidiary companies formed in the different provinces.

DON'T HESITATE—ACT

In the case of oversubscription, cheques will be returned immediately to those whose cheques are received last. The Prospectus has been published in the local dailies, and copies will be forwarded to all interested.

Petes Are Champions Of The District
Beat Whitby By Six Goals To Four

Blue and White Team Overcame a Two Goal Lead Set Up By the Enemy in the First Fifteen Minutes---Scored Four in a Row and Put the Game on Ice--Fast, Hard Game on Soft Ice Results in a Well Earned Victory for Peterborough.

PETES LEAD BY 4 TO 3 AT REST PERIOD

Peterborough won the championship of the group last night when they dealt Whitby a 6 to 4 trimming on their own ice in a well contested battle in which they had to come from behind to get the decision. The Petes have earned their title. Starting out with a loss at home they went on and won eight of the next nine games, their only loss being a one goal defeat on soft ice at Belleville. It is likely that they will be staged against either the Toronto Riversides or Markham next.

One hundred and twenty-five fans accompanied the team to Whitby last night, and the supporters of the blue and white sure made a noise when the Petes overcame the two goal lead that Whitby set up and then forged ahead.

It was a hard-fought, interesting game from gong to gong. Whitby were out to beat the Petes if they possibly could and they worked their heads off to accomplish the feat. They were going all the way, and Petes had to come through with some pretty hockey to earn the verdict. The checking was close and hard, but the game was not rough, Chad Toms only inflicting four penalties during the engagement. Whitby opened out by scoring the first two goals and the big home crowd went wild with delight. Then the Petes unlimbered and got into action, coming through with four goals in a row. Whitby managed to get another before the rest period and it was 4 to 3 at the half. The Petes outscored the yellow and black 2 to 1 in the second period.

Whitbys new rink made a hit with the Peterborough players and fans. The ice surface is considerably bigger than that of Brock Street, and the lighting system is perfect. The accommodation for spectators is not as good as in the local rink, but at that there is pleny of room, and Whitby has reason to be proud of their arena. The crowd and players heaped coals of fire on the Petes heads, too. Last year when Whitby played here, the yellow and black were handed a terrible passage and they left here with four or five players more or less battered up and a vow to get even if the opportunity ever came. They had their chance last night, but the spirit of revenge was not in evidence and the game was played without any rough stuff on the ice or from the crowd, which was the biggest that ever saw a game in Whitby.

The Petes had no easy task on their hands last night. The Whitby gang were working all the way and with more system on the attack they would have been decided dangerous. They, however, failed to come through with any very effective combination, and the result was that Bond and Denison made the man with the rubber shoot from outside, or else shunted him over to the side and smothered him up. The Petes got several goals by a neat pass at the right moment, a feature that was missing from the Whitby attack.

Every one of the Petes had a share in the victory. Janes performed in his usual grand style in the nets. Two of the shots that beat him trickled through a tangle of sticks and legs, and another was shoved through in a scrimmage. He made a score of pretty stops, and at one time, shortly after half time, was the busiest man on the ice. In front of him Bond never played a better game. He not only used good judgment in his defence tactics, but he also rushed well, two of his excursions down the rink, followed by a neat pass, resulting in scores. Denison checked beautifully and his speedy circling rushes were always dangerous. His rush for the tying goal in the first half was one of the most brilliant individual efforts of the night. On the forward line Kelly did some of his most effective playing of the season. He had his eye on the nets, as the three goals to his credit in the first half will show, and he rushed splendidly. Park was watched closely around the nets, but could not be blanketted all the time, and in the second half he came through with two of his old-time goals. Bradshaw looked after Blanchard in good style and contributed some telling dashes along the side. Grover Halpin jumped into Giroux's place at rover, and the little junior captain gave a decidedly good account of himself. He was always working, back-checked splendidly and worked in well with the line.

For Whitby, McIntyre, the big defence man, was probably the best. He checked very effectively and got away fast, carrying the rubber into Peterborough territory time after time. Rice showed speed and good stick-handling, and Blanchard and Watson, the two wing men, never let up. The latter is a demon for work.

Chad Toms of Toronto, was a most satisfactory referee.

The teams were:

Whitby		Peterborough
	Goal
Jubb		Janes
	R. Defence
Smith		Bond
	L. Defence
McIntyre		Denison
	Rover
Lavis		Halpin
	Centre
Rice		Park
	R. Wing
Watson		Bradshaw
	L. Wing
Blanchard		Kelly

It was fast from the start with both teams showing all kinds of pepper. It was rush and counter rush, with both lines coming back well and there was no advantage for the first few minutes. Then Watson broke away and raced down with Rice alongside of him. Instead of passing, however, the Whitby wing man took a chance and drilled in a shot from outside the defence which got away from Janes, and the yellow and black were in front. The roar that went up started several of the beams in the new arena.

The Petes let out a few links and started to come strong. Denison opened up with a couple of dashes that nearly resulted in scores, and then Kelly and Park combined neatly only to have the shot bounce off Jubb. The Petes were making it decidedly interesting. Halpin followed in a shot behind the nets and nipped the rubber out to Park, whose shot was blocked. The Petes got in again on a three-man combination, but Halpin shot over the nets. Finally, however, McIntyre broke away and carried the rubber down into Peterborough territory. In the scrimmage that followed Rice slapped goal No. 2 past Janes.

Two goals behind the Petes were stung into renewed efforts and they came stronger than ever. Jubb blocked several shots but finally Bond dashed up the side and passed to Kelly who went in close and took Jubb's measure.

Watson broke a skate and retired with Halpin. Playing six men a side the Petes evened the count. Denison stopped a Whitby rush headed by Smith, and securing the rubber shot down like a cyclone. He swept around McIntyre and feinting a shot as he went in on the nets drew Jubb out and then swooped the puck into the curtains.

Rice got a crack over the eye and the game was held up until the First Aid squad got through. Watson and Halpin got back into the game at this stage and they were once more at full strength. When play was resumed Kelly got away for a rink length dash. He outskated the Whitby line, circled around Smith, and carried the rubber in on top of Jubb to score with a beautiful shot, putting the Petes ahead.

A minute later "Kel" made it 4 to 2 by a shot from the side and well out.

Smith drew a sentence for tripping, the first penalty of the game, but playing a man short, Lavery scored for Whitby on a long shot which slid under Denison's skate in the nets. The figures remained at 4 to 3 until half time.

Whitby opened fast in the second half, and for a while they had the Petes back on the defensive and fighting desperately to hold their one-goal led. Bradshaw was penalized for tripping Blanchard, and the Whitby squad came on like hornets. Janes had to pull off half a dozen spectacular stops of close in shots, and three or four times a Whitby goal seemed imminent. Finally, however, the Petes got going again, and worked the rubber down to the other end, relieving the pressure. It was not, however, until the expiration of 14 minutes' hard playing that the Petes scored. Bond got away for a nice rush, and drawing the defence out, passed across to Park who steamed in and beat Jubb.

Smith and Lavery in turn served penalties in the box for tripping, but there was no damage done while they were off. The Petes continued to press and Park made it 6 to 3 on an individul rush and nice shot. Whitby came back with the last goal of the game, Smith shooting one through from a scrimmage. The Petes easily held their lead until the finish. The summary:

1—Whitby, Watson—4 mins.
2—Whitby, Rice—8 mins.
3—Peterborough, Kelly—5 mins.
4—Peterborough, Denison—3 mins.
5—Peterborough, Kelly—1 min.
6—Peterborough, Kelly—1 min.
7—Whitby, Lavery—4 mins.
Half time.
8—Peterborough, Park—14 mins.
9—Peterborough, Park—8 mins.
10—Whitby, Smith—3 mins.

Knox Church Beat George St.

A very interesting game took place at Brock Street rink last night between seven and eight, when Knox beat George Street by a close score of 4 to 3. George Street led at half time by 3 to 1, but Knox came back strong in the second half. For the winners, Webber starred, and for the losers Palmer and Helson did good work. Dobson refereed satisfactorily. The teams lined up as follows:

Berlin Won From Preston

After 50 Minutes Overtime—Game Wound Up at 1:30 This Morning

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BERLIN, ONT., Feb. 5. — Battling from 8.30 last night until 1.30 this morning Berlin's Intermediates emerged from their final game with Preston completely tired out but victorious. The score was 2 to 2 at full tie, and 50 minutes overtime was played before the tie was broken. Twice, tired and worried, the Preston squad wanted to call the game and play it over again but the Dutchmen refused. They wanted it settled there and then, believing that their players had the better staying powers, and their contention proved to be correct. The score at half time was 2 to 0 in favour of Preston while at the finish of the regular hour of play the count was 2 to 2. Berlin's superior stamina and condition was what won. In playing strength the teams could hardly have been more evenly matched. Muroy was injured in the first half and Roschman was laid off to even up the sides. Bowman of Preston was down on the ice several times with cramps. Towards the end of the terrific struggle the players who went down could hardly get to their feet, and the game was stopped repeatedly on this account. About four thousand saw the game. Preston leaves tomorrow for two games with Syracuse, N.Y.

The teams:

Berlin — Goal, Hainsworth; right defence, Seibert; left defence, Trushinski; rover, Boettger; centre, Leroux; right wing, Roschman; left wing Solomna.

Preston — Goal, Short; right defence, Bowman; left defence, Von Lende; rover, Eltherington; centre, Nunn; left wing, Mulroy; right wing, Rahn.

Referee—Harvey F. Sproule, Toronto.

Maurice Park New Captain

In the dressing room after the game at Whitby last night, Maurice Park was elected captain of the Peterborough team to succeed Cyril Giroux. The choice ws an unanimous one, and the election was followed by three cheers for the new captain that threatened to take the roof off Manager Burns' new ice-box.

CITY LEAGUE GAMES ON FRIDAY NIGHT

The City League players will go back at each other on Friday night with the Alert-Y.M.C.A. game of special interest. After Tuesday night's contest, Walter Flowers, manager of the "Y" said the defeat would put the boys on edge and send them back more determined than ever against the Bostons. The Association boys had numerous shots on goal, but they lacked the direction and the punch of the Exploits. The forwards shot wide, while the purple and white put them dead on every time. With this little defect remdied, and with no let up in their back checking the "Y" will be just as strong favourites as any of them. They came strong on end, but there was an intermediate period in which they let up on their checks. The Bostons have by no means a walk-over for the rest of the way. These Alerts will bear watching. They are pounds heavier than either of the leading teams, with a husky defence and a forward line that is working better every game. It is this uncertainty that will make the remaining games of interest to the fans. The Y.M.C.A. and Exploits can take no chances with either the Alerts or the Wanderers, and there is just a possibility that the situation may be changed in the second half of the schedule.

BASEBALL

HAMILTON, Feb. 4.—Davey Rowan, formerly manager of the Peterborough Canadian League club, may be the next manager of the Hamilton Canuck leaguers. His application, along with that of Al. Breckenridge of Coast League fame, is now in the hands of the local stock company.

Rowan has done remarkably well as manager, and he would prove a welcome successor to Knotty Lee. Two years ago he took over the Peterborough club but a short time before the season commenced, and he did even better than the directors of the club expected under such conditions. Last season he accomplished another feat in keeping the Petes up in the hunt when they were one of about two clubs in the circuit that adhered to the salary limit.

HOCKEY.

Following is the line-up of the Murray St. Baptist Church team for their Church League game to-night:

Goal—Lewis.
Defence—Eastwood (Capt.), Webb.
Rover—Ellis.
Centre—Thompson.
Wings—Fitzgerald, Barrie.

There are still a few people in this crazy modern world who are in favour of short courtships and long marriages, but their number appears to be growing rapidly less.

The Examiner has been asked to publish the following from the Mail and Empire's legal column:

J. P. D., Radney.—Qu.—A and B owned adjoining land. B built a division fence between the properties. About six years afterwards, A told B that the fence was not on the line, and that he would have a survey made, but he did not do so for three years. The surveyor found the fence on A's property. Then B said he would make it right, but he did not do so, and sold his lot to C. Now C claims that the fence has been standing for 17 years, and refuses to move it. Can A have the fence removed?

Ans.—If the fence has been standing in the same place for over ten years, C cannot be compelled to remove it. It constitutes the dividing line between the two properties. The law will presume that it is on the line, and that both parties consented to place it or to allow it to remain where it is. I think it would not be prudent for A to run the risk of a law suit under the circumstances mentioned merely to recover a small strip of land probably not of much value. The chances are against him, and as the suit would have to be in the Superior Court, the costs of both sides might amount to $400 or $500, or even more.

Horses Killed Yesterday Were Valued At $650

Animals Would Not be Driven Off Tracks

Further particulars are to hand in connection with the accident that occurred yesterday on the second concession line of Otonabee, when four horses, valued at $650 or $700 were killed by the C.P.R. train that runs between Havelock and Port McNicholl.

Three of the animals that met death were the property of Mr. Wm. A. Brownson, of Otonabee. The other was owned by Mr. Foster of this city, but was being kept during the winter by Mr. Brownson for the owner. Mr. Brownson resides about a quarter of a mile east of the secon Concession Road, Otonabee, and is separated from the road by Mr. J. Greer's farm. The C.P.R. track eroses the road about a hundred and fifty feet south of Mr. Greer's farm.

The four horses were being watered in Mr. Brownson's yard, and for a few moments were allowed their liberty unwatched by their owner. During that time they wandered into Mr. Greer's farm, and as the gates of af arm are always open in winter, they trotted through his propurty to the road, emerging onto it only a very short distance from the railway crossing. They made at once for the railway.

Mr. J. Greer discovered the horses on the rilway, and for twenty minutes strove to head them off the tracks. But he was unsuccessful, and when the train came tearing through about nine o'clock yesterday morning, the four of them were on the track and were killed. The train steamed right through without stopping.

Three of the animals killed were colts, the other being a mare coming six years old.

"Wild Man" Would Howl Like Wolf Scared Children

Year of Nomadic Life in Western Ontario Kills Man's Memory

MADE THREATS

FORT WILLIAM, Feb. 6.—A year's nomadic life in Western Ontario has evidently blotted from the mind of George Georgeson, who has been apprehended after a long chase by Provincial police, all memory of, and certainly all liking for, civilization.

Georgeson, or the "wildman," as the dipsomaniac is called by the settlers west of here who have seen him was placed in a cell this afternoon, after having fought over every foot of the twenty-six miles he was taken.

Lived in Broken-Down Cabin.

Several weeks ago the Provincial police received a petition signd by numerous settlers saying a wild man was terrorising the district and that their families' lives were in danger. A search of the country revealed only a man's footprints leading to a dilapidated cabin, barren of furniture, save a broken stove and a few quilts.

The man was not present and falling snow made futile any attempt further to trace him. Several times afterward he reappeared on the roads trails and near cabins.

Vied with Howls of Wolves.

By day he would suddenly appear from a clump of bushes and scream that he had come to devour all the children in the district. By night his weird shrieks vied with the howls of wolves in inciting terror.

Scarcely a shadow of the man who came from Minnesota a year or so ago to fish, hunt and trap, he was seen yesterday stealthily approaching his cabin.

Breaks from Officer; Recaptured...

He seemed bewildered at the sight of the constable, who singlehanded took him into custody. When nearing the City limits he succeeded in breaking away and was recaptured only after a long chase. He may be deported.

STOMACH HEALTH— OR NO COST TO YOU

Very likely others have advised you to use Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, because scores of people in this community believe them to be the best remedy ever made for Dyspepsia and Indigestion. That is what we think, too, because we know what they have done for others and what they are made of. We have so much faith in them that we urge you to try them at our risk. If they don't help you, they won't cost you a cent. If they don't do all that you want them to do—if they don't restore your stomach to health and make your digestion easy—just tell us and we will give back your money without a word or question.

Containing Pepsin and Bismuth, two of the greatest digestive aids known to medical science, they soothe the inflamed stomach lining, help in the secretion of gastric juice, check heartburn and distress, promote regular bowel action, and make it possible for you to eat whatever you like whenever you like, with the comforting assurance that there will be no bad after-effects. We believe them to be the best remedy made for dyspepsia and indigestion. Sold only at the more than 7,000 Rexall Stores, and in this town only at our store. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00

One English Scientist Who Does Not Worry About Sterilizing Milk

A subscriber who has seen previous articles on the milk question in The Examiner, has handed us the following article taken from an Old Country paper, the Sunday Chronicle, on Sterilized Milk with a request that it be given insertion in The Examiner:

"Boil your milk!" has been one of the great duties impressed upon the mothers of this country for years. Medical officers in all the big centres have issued leaflets warning against the dangers of children contracting tuberculosis through drinking milk unboiled.

Now, in a sensational statement, Mr. Robert Mond, the son of Dr. Ludwig Mond, the great chemist, has challenged all existing theories, and declares that such instructions are all fudge, and that children do not contract tuberculosis through milk at all, and that there is a positive danger in feeding children on sterilized or boiled milk because it definitely predisposes them to tuberculous infection.

Mr. Robert Mond is not man to make such a statement haphazard. His name stands for thoroughness. All his life has been spent in scientific research. For five years he has been conducting elaborate experiments and research work at Vincent Hospital, Vincent Square, London, and he asserts that he has definitely proved that tuberculosis in human beings does not come from the milk of infected cows.

So convinced is he of the truth of his discovery that at his beautiful home in Combe Bank, Sevenoaks, the whole household are being fed with milk and butter from a cow which is as full of tubercular bacilli as an egg is full of meat. This is shown in its lack-lustre eye, its emaciated body, and its drooping legs, but no tuberculosis has manifested itself among any of the household, and the bright maid who waited upon me at lunch said that she drank the milk from the tubercular cow; she was not afraid of consumption.

A Daring Investigator.

Dr. Mond went much further. He told me that he would readily drink a glass of tubercular bacilli and expect no evil effects!

"My point is this," said Mr. Mond, as we talked over a choice cigar in a room full of tables, statistics, and various data that represent the compilation of years. "Tuberculosis is very, very rarely produced through the stomach or the bowel, but nearly always through the respiratory organs. As a matter of fact, from 20 to 25 per cent. of the cows in this country are suffering from tuberculosis, though not necessrily giving tubercular milk. Though not generally known, nearly every human being has tubercular bacilli in his system, but you can get rid of them as easily as you may get rid of a cold if you are healthy.

"Tuberculosis cannot be contracted from milk. That was proved first in America, where all the children of the richest people in New York were supplied with milk from a special dairy for years, and every precaution was taken to get a pure milk supply. One day an examination of the cows was made, and it was found that they were all highly tubercular. Yet of all the hundred of children only one girl was tubercular.

"My investigations at the Children's Hospital have proved that children fed from the milk of tubercular cows have not contracted the disease. But they have proved more—that children fed exclusively from birth upon sterilized or condensed milk, which is tubercle free developed tuberculosis. They were weak and ill-nourished because all the nutriment which is contained in natural milk had been taken away.

"Nature is no fool, and if it sets up one thing it always provides its correctives.

"In our attempt to kill one bacilli which we thought was dangerous, we have destroyed the micro-organisms which go to make milk such a good food. I have now proved that the so-called dangerous bacilli is not dangerous at all.

The Tale of Kittens and Kiddies.

"Milk was intended to be consumed direct from the cow. By boiling it you certainly prevent it from going sour, but you destroy the living organisms which are essential to its nutritive value. But you do not kill those which help to putrify. Fifteen thousand children are killed a year through bad milk. Boiling makes it digestible, but it manufactures rickety children by the thousand, and if done properly kills them beautifully in the end.

"We tried this on some kittens. They were fed on sterilized milk exclusively. In a fortnight they were all dead. When we have a child that has been 'poisoned' by sterilized milk we give it a little ordinary sour milk—that is, with the lactic bacilli as a corrective—and we find that it improves, though sour milk usually produces diarrhoea in children."

Mr. Mond was immensely impressed by the fate of those kittens. Forthwith he obtained some tuberculosis cows, and by way of putting his theory to the test drank their milk himself. In his own expression, he "thrived on it." He added: "I should not have dared to use that milk sterilized. They take healthy children into cheches, feed them on sterilized milk, and make them ill. Were it not for the unsterilized cream they add to the milk the children would die." It was curious, he said, that the advocates of sterilization had overlooked butter, which was every whit as likely to be contaminated as milk. The fact is that butter saved the unfortuntes condemned to live upon boiled milk.

"Instead of being boiled," said Mr. Mond with much emphasis, "milk should be reduced in temperature. Summer diarrhoea is chiefly caused by the warm water from the tap—that is, the milk is not properly cooled. Apart from general cleanliness, it is only by refrigeration that a pure milk supply can be guaranteed. Bacteria multiplies rapidly at the temperature at which milk comes from the cow. In order to preserve it in its natural condition it is necessary to reduce the milk immediately after milking to a temperature not exceeding 40 degrees Fahrenheit, for at that temperature bacterial growth does not take place.

"It is the development of bacteria in milk that renders it unfit for use. Refrigeration prevents that development. Without refrigeration all attempts to get a pure and healthy milk supply are useless."

A Look Round the Farm.

"We will take a look at the farm," said Mr. Mond to me, and we left the beautiful home after lookng at the gardens, where every plant is tubulated, and walked across the private golf links to the cattle sheds.

On the way Mr. Mond explained that all his cows were shorthorns because they were steady milk yielders, readily obtainable, and their milk was one of the best for infant feeding.

"How often," he said, "one hears of mothers boasting that their children are supplied by milk from Jersey, Guernsey, or Aldersey cows. These are strictly excluded from the Combe Farm, because it has been proved that of all milks these are the most unsuitable for infant feeding, the large size of the fat globules having a deleterious effect on the children's bowels."

Two sheds of 16 cows each are kept on the farm. One shed is solely for cows supplying milk to the babies at the hospital. These are fed on ordinary cereal foods, carefully selected so that they contain nothing which will make the milk unsuitable for infants. Over each stall box is a board similar to that over a patient's bed in hospital, inscribed with the name of the cow, its number, history, weight, and gallons of milk yield per day, the total milk in pounds per week, its rations, and "special remarks."

Everything is arranged in the same scientific way. No heaps of manure lie about. Instead the ground is as clean as a carriage drive, and all the manure is placed hundreds of yards away from the farm buildings. All the churns and utensils are sterilized by steam.

Cleanliness the Great Virtue.

In winter the cattle are not kept in evil-smelling sheds, but in a covered, well-ventilated building, which has a floor of chalk, topped with a peat litter which is changed regularly. The floor and walls of the cowsheds are of hard cement, which can be cleaned by an ordinary hosepipe. There are no drains, for the cattle are not allowed to remain in the stalls.

Before the cows are brought in to be milked the sheds are flushed with water to prevent the raising of dust as they enter. All the cows are washed before milking, and it is strange to see their clean, steaming bodies, so different from the manure-covered animals one usually sees in shippons.

Each milker has to wash his hands before beginning opertions. A special washing-room is provided with hot water. In the corner there is a steam chest where all the overalls and caps of the milkers are sterilized before being used. Nail brushes, towels, and soap are provided. The milk is put into special milking pails with narrow necks, so that no dirt or hair from the cow can fall inside. No straining material is provided, s it is expected the milk will come from the cow throughly clean, and experience has proved that strainers, contrary to general belief, harbour dirt.

Refrigeration the Remedy.

Refrigerating is conducted on an extensive scale, and there are rooms in which the milk is passed through the separator and then reduced to a temperature below 40 degrees Fahr. The tins are air-lined, so that it arrives at the hospital cool.

"Milk," said Mr. Mond, "should be refrigerated and dispatched from the farm to different parts of the country in refrigerator vans the same is in New York, where, unless the milk arrives at a certain temperature, the inspector pours it into the gutter. In Denmark ice is supplied to the farmers by one co-operative company. All farmers should be supplied with electricity, which would enable them to keep a refrigerating plant and cold storage. They would then be able to store their milk and always have a reserve to fulfill their contracts. I keep mine for a fortnight or three weeks, and it is as fresh then as when it came from the cow."

"And does all this pay?" I asked Mr. Mond, as we inspected his elaborate laboratory made out of a coach-house. "Yes, it does," he replied. "The cost of feeding stuffs is probably more, but so is our milk yield. We had considerable difficulty with the farm hands at first. It took them a long time to know that the milk from each cowshed had to be kept separate, that each cow's milk had to be weighed, that the cows had to be washed, and their own hands cleaned. But they are now getting used to our 'new-fangled' ways."

I think it is now "up to" all the scientists who have raved for sterilized and boiled milk to get to closer quarters with Mr. Mond.

Strengthen Your Lungs Is Timely Advice

when consumption claims over 350 daily in the United States. Neglected colds, overwork, confining duties and chronic disorders exert the weakening influence which allows tubercular germs the mastery.

The greatest treatment that science affords is courage, rest, sunshine and Scott's Emulsion.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil to clarify and enrich the blood, strengthen the lungs, rebuild wasted tissue and fortify the resistive forces to throw off disease germs.

Strengthen YOUR lungs with Scott's Emulsion—its benefits are too important to neglect.

Physicians everywhere proclaim its worth and warn against alcoholic substitutes.

COUGH TWO YEARS OLD

Yields to Vinol. Read Why.

Strong vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it's only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foothold.

Now isn't it reasonble that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your run down condition again?

Mrs. D. A. McGee, of Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a chronic cold and cough which kept me awake nights for two years and I felt tired all the time. Vinol cured my cough and I feel stronger in every way."

The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood building iron added.

Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system.

You can get your money back any time if Vinol does not do all we say.

GRAHAM SUMMONED

Sir Hugh Will Testify in Quebec Scandal Probe.

WHO CONTROLS HERALD?

QUEBEC, Feb. 6. — Application that Sir Hugh Graham be asked to give evidence was made yesterday afternoon, when the re-organized investigating committee of the upper House met under the direction of the new chairman, Hon. Thomas Chapais, leader of the Opposition in the Legislative Council. Sir Hugh Graham's name was introduced after Mr. Edward Beck had given evidence regarding the circumstances of the start of the investigation into conditions in the Legislature. Mr. Beck explained that Messrs. Nichols and Macnab had heard of the investigation after its conclusion, and had demanded proofs before consenting to publish the evidence in the public interest.

Hon. Mr. Chapais, chairman of the committee, gave Mr. B. A. Macnab, editor of The Daily Mail, permission to ask a question. He wanted Mr. Beck to tell to whom he had first shown documents in connection with the investigation. Mr. Beck asked permission to decline to answer that question. Mr. Macnab then submitted another question. He wanted to know to whom Mr. Beck had sent his letter of resignation as president of The Herald Company. Once again Mr. Beck asked permission to decline to answer.

Mr. Macnab then asked that a subpoena be sent to Sir Hugh Graham, requiring him to give evidence before the committee. At the end of the meeting it was decided to request Sir Hugh Graham to give evidence, and a wire was sent to him in that sense.

When the committee resumed its sitting last night, word was received from Sir Hugh to the effect that he was leaving for Quebec in answer to the request of the committee.

B. A. Macnab, editor of The Daily Mail, last night also requested the committee of the lower House that they examine Sir Hugh Graham as well regarding the justification of The Daily Mail in publishing charges in the House against three legislators. A subpoena will therefore be served on Sir Hugh Graham to-day by the committee of the lower House.

It transpired during a further examination of Edward Beck, that after The Montreal Herald had changed owners recently he had submitted evidence of corruption to the new owners of The Herald, but for reasons of their own they had declined to publish it. Mr. Amand Lavergne asked who were the new owners of The Herald; to what person he submitted the information and whether it was to Sir Hugh Graham. Mr. Beck declined to reply to any of the questions.

Mr. Achille Bergevin, one of the three legislators accused of corruption by The Daily Mail, was summoned before the committee of the lower House by L. T. Marschall. Like Mr. L. P. Berard, he refused on advice of his counsel, to nswer questions "which might incriminate him."

As Mr. Bergevin positively refused to answer he was allowed to go and the committee adjourned.

Evidence supporting The Daily Mail charges against Messrs. Berard and Bergevin, late of the upper House, was given by Messrs. Beck, Biddinger (Hyland) and Maloney (Sampson), as well as Keyes, the stenographer. Both the accused, Messrs. Bergevin and Berard, were present and listened intently to the evidence against them. In justification of Mr. Achille Bergevin, Mr. Maloney stated that he believed that Mr. Bergevin would have helped in passing the Montreal Fair Association bill without any bribe. At no time did Mr. Bergevin ask for a dollar, although he finally accepted money.

"He was different from the others," Mr. Maloney said. "The others were grasping and avaricious."

At the morning session of the Legislative Assembly an apology from Charles Lanctot, Deputy Attorney-General, for the attack on B. A. Macnab on Wednesday night was read.

Fisheries Question Raised.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Upon the suggestion of Senator Root the Senate yesterday passed a resolution asking the Secretary of State whether the Joint Fisheries Commission of 1908 between the United States and Canada had completed its work.

The Senator explained that many regulations agreed upon by the commission were sent to Congress, but because other regulations were still under consideration by the commission Congress took no action. He added that the preservation of a great food supply depended upon these regulations.

Hit by Bale of Hay.

KINGSTON, Feb. 6.—At Harrowsmith, on the line of the C.P.R., a farmer named Barnabas Guess, aged about 60, received probably fatal injuries while engaged baling hay. A bale fell from a pile and hit him on the head and shoulder, inflicting serious injuries.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Pole Is Arrested at North Bay as Result of Fatality.

NORTH BAY, Feb. 6.—J. Tomuwk, a Pole, will be committed to North Bay jail from Whitney, charged with causing the death of John Brown, another Polack, in a row which occurred in a lodging house frequented by foreigners in Whitney. The men in the house had been drinking and when the fight started a rifle was produced and several of the men struggled for its possession, the weapon being discharged in the scuffle, and John Brown, who had just come down the stairs, attracted by noise of the melee, was struck by a bullet, which passed through his body.

He fell mortally wounded, dying before reaching Pembroke, to which place he was taken for medical attention.

The man who is alleged to have been the cause of the trouble by threatening to shoot Tomuwk, now under arrest, was fined $10 and costs and set free.

Fishermen Caught In Ice.

CURLING, Nfld., Feb. 6.—The United States naval tug Potomac, not only failed to free the fishing schooners Hiram Lowell and Frances Willard in the Bay of Islands yesterday, but narrowly escaped being caught in the ice which was driven in heavily from the Gulf of St. Lawrence before a northwest gale.

The crews remain on board their vessels, but it is believed that they will be able to reach shore if the schooners succumb to the force of the ice pressure.

The Potomac will make another effort to rescue the fishermen when the ice and wind conditions are more favorable.

Schmidt Found Guilty.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6. — Hans Schmidt was yesterday found guilty of killing Anna Aumuller, a young woman he had married through a self-performed ceremony while acting as a priest at St. Joseph's Church. The penalty of the crime is death in the electric chair. He will be sentenced next Wednesday.

Schmidt's defence was insanity.

"THE FREE RANGE"

By ELWELL LAWRENCE

SERIAL—CAL FIVE .. ..

"But I guess you're right about the boys, Bill. I'll let 'em sleep an' we'll talk to this maverick in the mornin'. Keep him under your eye."

Things were clearing up for Larkin. These men evidently thought that he was some ambitious puncher on the look-out for rustlers. Up to this time he had kept silent, borrowing no trouble and trusting to his ability to identify himsef. But now at the prospect of idling here a night and part of the day he protested.

"Turn my arms loose, will you?" he demanded. "They're about broke off."

Joe, the chief, after carefully searching him for additional weapons, complied with this request, in so far that he bound his wrists together in front.

"Now, boys," said Bud, crisply, "I wish you'd tell me what this all means. If you want to question me, do it now and let me go, for I've got mighty important business up the line a way."

"I allow yuh have," remarked Joe, dryly. "Yuh also got some mighty important business right here, if yuh only knowed it."

"What business?"

"Fannin' yore gas at us that-a-way. Yore plumb careless, young feller. But look here, I'm not going to stay up all night talkin' to yuh. You'll have to talk to all the boys in the mornin'."

"But I can't wait till morning, I tell you," cried Bud, exasperated. "Every minute I sit here I may be losing thousands of dollars. For heaven's sake let me go to-night, and I'll come back any other time you say. I give you my word for it."

"Can't wait till to-morrer! Stranger, you may wait till the crack o' doom before you ever get back to that business o' yourn."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Larkin, made strangely ill at ease by some veiled meaning in the other's tone.

And Larkin, finding that all argument was as futile as trying to crack Gibraltar with a cold chisel, relapsed into silence, and prepared to get what rest he could until daylight.

Morning disclosed the fact that the group of men numbered about ten, with a horse near by, and all fully supplied with arms. In fact, there was not a man among them who could not have "rolled a gun" with both hands if necessary, and at the same time carried a knofe between his teeth. his matter of complete armament, together with Joe's abiguous speeches of the night before, wholly conceived for himself by each man. Joe attending to the wants of the prisoner, but no attempt was made to rope or saddle ahe horses. They were evidently waiting for something. What this was became evident shortly when another group of five men appeared around a distant rise and loped to the rendezvous. Larkni reasoned that these must be the men who constituted the cattle drive after Joe and Pike had captured him.

The sheepman could not but admire the natural advantages of the place chosen by his captors for the meeting. Rolling hills surrounded the little pocket on al sides, and here and there a red scoria butte thrust its ugly height out of the plain. The chances of discovery were infinitesimal.

The evolution of the rustler was logical but rapid, and started with the general law that any ranch-owner was at liberty to brand with his mark any maverick found on his range. As it was the cowboy who discovered these strays, he was usually provided with a branding-iron and put the seal of his employer on the animal wherever found.

From this it was but a step for unscrupulous punchers, or those with a shrewd eye for business, to drive off unbranded cattle and ship them independently to market, or to mark them with a private brand of their own. All this was before the introduction of brand inspectors at the stockyards of Omaha, Kansas City, or Chicago.

Therefore, among the men at this rendezvous Larkin noted types of cowmen equal to any on the range for horsemanship and abiilty to handle cattle. With his naturally quick eye, the sheepman observed them closely, but failed to recognize any of them.

His case came up quickly.

By various papers in his possession he proved his identity.

"What were you doing out on the range last night?" asked Joe.

Bud hesitated for a minute and then, deciding that his safest and quickest course would be to make a clean breast of things, replied:

"I was driving two thousand head of sheep north on the Bar T."

"Then you're not a cattleman?"

"No.' ' Larkin produced his bills of sale for the sheep and these were handed gravely about from one to another, although it was certain that some of the men could not read them.

"How long are you going to stay in this country?"

"Just as long as it takes to get my sheep north. I come from Montana."

Joe beckoned a number of the men aside out of Larkin's hearing.

"We're plumb lucky," he announced. "If I know my book, old Bissell will forget all about a few missin' calves when he knews this feller has sent sheep up his range. Now we've got to run off about a hundred more head to that railroad camp north of here, and I think we can use this Larkin."

A dark, sullen-looking puncher shook his head slowly.

"It's takin' chances," he growled. "String him up, I say. He knows us all now, and I'd sooner he'd look through a rope than me."

"You shore are ornery, Pete," said a third. "an' plumb set on stretchin' yore neck. Cain't yuh see that if yuh hang this feller we'll have both the sheep and cattlemen ag'in us?"

"Shore, that's sense," broke in another. "Less hear Joe's scheme."

"'Tain't so blame much, boys," countered the chief modestly. "We'll make this Larkin swear never to give word agin us if we don't kill him. Then we'll run him off into the hills for four or five days with a guard, finish our own drive, and clear out, lettin' him go. What d'ye think of that?"

"It's a reg'lar hum-dinger, Joe," said one man, and the others concurred in the laudatory opinion.

But at the first sentence to Larkin, that young man upset their well-laid plans.

"Larkin," said Joe, "we allow as how we'd like to make a bargain with yuh?"

"If you are going to bargain with me to break the law, you had better not say anything about it," was the reply.

"I was jest about starfin' one of them mutual protective, benefit and literary sassieties," suggested Joe tactfully as a feeler, while his comrades grinned.

"Don't want to hear about it," retorted Bud, divining the intention. "You can do anything you like with me, but don't tell me your bargains. I've got troubles enough with my sheep without signing on any more. Now, look here, men, I don't want to interfere with you, and it only wastes your time to bother with me. Suppose you let me go about my business and you go about yours."

"Swear on oath never to recognise or bear witness against us?"

"No. What kind of a crook do you think I am? If I were put under oath by a sheriff, I would have to accuse you, and I'd do it."

Joe Parker's face lost its expression of genial amiability and he looked about on a circle of dark countenances.

"I'm plumb sorry you act this-a-way," he said aggrievedly. "Boys, where's the nearest tree?"

"Ten miles."

"After dinner everybody saddle up," came the order.

CHAPTER VII.

PRAIRIE BELL.

When Juliet Bissell rode back to the Bar T ranch after her parting with Larkin at the fork of Grass Creek, she was a decidedly more thoughtful and sober young woman than she had been at the same hour the day previous.

Although blessed with an adoring father and a rather eccentric mother, she had, for the last year, begun to feel the stirrings of a tiny discontent.

Her life was a good example of the familiar mistake made by many a wealthy cattle-owner. Her parents, realizing their crudity and lack of education, had seen to it that she should be given all the advantages denied them, and had sent her East to Chicago for eight consecutive years.

During this time, while hating the noise and confinement of the city, she had absorbed much of its glamour, and enjoyed its alluring pleasures with a keen appreciation. Music had been her chief study, and her very decided talent had opened a busy career for her had she chosen to follow it.

But Julie was true to her best instincts, and refused to consider such a thing. Her father and mother had done all in their power for her, she reasoned, and therefore it was but fair that she should return to them and make the closing years of their lives happy.

Though nothing had ever been said, the girl knew that when she had left the ranch house, even for a week's visit with a girl friend two hundred miles away, the sun might as well have fallen from the heavens, considering the gloom that descended upon the Bar T.

It was this knowledge of their need for her that had brought her back to fulfill what she considered her greatest happiness and duty in life.

Now, a monkey cannot wear clothes, smoke cigarettes, perform before applauding audiences and return to the jungle without a certain feeling of hateful unfitness among his gibbering brethren.

No more could this wild, lovely creature of the plains become one of the most sought-after girls of Chicago's North Shore set, and return to the painful prose of the Bar T ranch without paying the penalty.

With the glory of health and outdoor life, she had failed to realize this, but since the sudden appearance of Bud Larkin she had done little else.

He had brought back to her a sudden powerful nostalgia for the life she had once known. And had old Beef Bissell been aware of this nostalgia, he would have realized for the first time that in his desire to give his daughter everything he had created a situation that was already unfortunate and might, with very little prompting, be unhappy.

But this knowledge was not vouchsafed to him, and Julie certainly would never make it plain.

The evening after Bud's departure, that same evening, in fact, when he was fighting toward water with his flocks, the cattleman and his daughter sat outside on the little verandah that ran across the front of the ranch house.

"That feller Larkin," remarked Bissell, terminating a long pause. "Kind of a dude or something back East, wasn't he?"

"That's what the punchers would call him, father," returned the girl gravely. "But he was never anything but a gentleman in his treatment of me."

"I don't know what you mean exactly by that word 'gentleman,' Julie, but I allow that no real man ever went into raisin' sheep."

"Perhaps not, dear," she said, taking his rough, ungainly hand in both of hers, "but I think there is bound to be money in it. Mr. Larkin himself says that in the end the cattle will have to give way before the sheep."

"An' he thought he was tellin' you something new when he said it, too, didn't he? Well, I've knowed that fact for the last five years. That's the main reason I won't let his animals through my range. Once they get a foothold, there's no stoppin' 'em. Judas! I'm tired of fightin' for things!"

"Poor father," and the girl's voice was full of tenderness. "You're not discouraged, are you, dear?"

"No, Prairie Bell, but I reckon I'm gettin' old, an' I can't get up the fight I used to. I thought I had my hands full with the rustlers, but now with the sheep comin'—well, between you and me, little girl, I wish I had somebody to stand up and take the licks."

"There's Mike; he certainly can give and take a few."

"Yes, of course I've got Mike, but, when you're all done, he's only a foreman, an' his interest don't go much beyond his seventy-five a month an' grub. Yet—by George!" He sat suddenly erect and slapped his thigh with his disengaged hand.

"What is it?"

"Oh, nothin'." They talked on in the affectionate, intimate way that had always characterized their relations since Julie had been a girl just big enough to listen to involved harangues about cattle without actually going to sleep. In the course of an hour Bissell suddenly asked:

"Did you ever think of marryin', Prairie Bell?"

"If thinking ever helped any, I would have been a Mormon by this time."

"Well, you are growed up, ain't you?" and Bissell spoke in the wondering tone of a man who has just realised a self-evident fact. "Fancy my little girl old enough to marry! How old are you, anyhow? 'Bout eighteen?"

"Twenty-five, you dear, old goose. Eighteen! The idea."

"Well, twenty-five, then. Of course, Julie, when I die I will leave this place to you, and that's what made me think about your marryin'. I want a good, sharp man to fight fer my cows an' my range, a man that knows it and could make a success of it, an' yet wouldn't care because it was in your name."

"Would you mind if I loved him a little bit, too?" asked the girl, with elaborately playful sarcasm.

"Bless you, no. Love him all you want to, but I 'low you couldn't love a man very long who didn't have all them qualifications I mentioned. I figger love our somethin' like this. First there's a rockbed of ability, then a top soil of decency, an' out o' these two, admiration kind o' grows like corn. Of course you always grind up the corn and soak it with sentiment; then you've got muah. An' the trouble with most people is they only think of the muah an' forget the rock an' the top soil."

Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

Could Not Sweep The Floor.

When the back aches and pains it is almost impossible for women to do their housework, for every move and every turn means an ache or a pain.

Women are beginning to understand that weak, lame, and aching backs from which they suffer so much are due to wrong action of the kidneys, and should be attended to at once so as to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong with the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken.

They go right to the seat of the trouble.

Mrs. Wilfrid Jolicoeur, Nouvelle, Que., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not sweep my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I only used three boxes, and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

PILES Do not suffer from Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and is certainly cures you. 60 c. a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Sample box free if you mention this paper.

BOVRIL TAKEN

In a series of remarkable experiments conducted under the direct control of one of the foremost physiologists of the day, an amount of Bovril proportionate to the small black diamond has been proved to produce an increase in flesh and muscle corresponding to large outline diamond, showing the body-building power of BOVRIL to be from 10 to 20 times the amount taken.

Bovril is the concentrated goodness of the best of beef. It is a wonderfully warming winter beverage; it builds up the weak constitution and strengthens the strong one; it guards against the grip; it checks colds and chills; it is cook's right hand in the kitchen; it is nurse's first aid in the sick-room.

Participating vs. Non-Participating LIFE ASSURANCE

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a prominent Merchant on George St. took out a 10 pay 15 year Endowment Policy No. 68979, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a Non-Par Policy his Premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

Participating Results		Non-Par Results
$2637.75	Total Cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total premiums paid	1725.00
742.75	Amount received over that pd. in	275.00
Almost 40 p.c.	Percentage returned over Premium paid	almost 16 p.c.
1299.70	or, Cash returned and a paid up Policy of $2000	661.25

Now this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, Call at or 'Phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

The above Policy-holder thinks he had a splendid result. Don't you?

MODERNIZING CAIRO

WESTERN PEOPLES ARE REMOVING ITS ORIENTAL AIR.

A Remarkable Mixture of East and West Is Found In Egyptian Metropolis—On the Same Street Are Men Riding In Taxis and Others on Donkeys—All Sorts and Conditions of Men Are Found Living There.

Twenty-five years ago Cairo was an Oriental city. To-day it is a mixture, an amazing mixture, of East and West. Sit on the terrace of one of the great hotels on the Kamel street for half an hour at any time of day and you will see in the passing show the most extraordinary medley that the modern world has known, writes H. Hamilton Fyfe in The London Daily Mail. Here dashes a taxi-cab, and scrambling out of its way is a man on a donkey, who looks as if he came straight out of the Book of Exodus. He jogs along with a dignified air. You meet men riding on donkeys on every street. There are stands for these patient animals, just as we have stands for cabs. You can hire them as we take a hansom.

After the donkey come smart motor-cars and carriages, in which wealthy Cairenes are taking the air. They might be in Piccadilly or the Avenue des Champs-Elysees. Then suddenly there is a stoppage of the traffic. What is that wailing noise? It comes from a body of ragged-looking men, beggars apparently, who are shuffling along three or four abreast. They wear white turbans over a brown cloth skull-cap. Their dirty robes of white or blue reveal bare legs beneath.

Behind them comes a more respectable procession, all men, some in European clothes with the red tarbush or fez, some in long garments of striped silk, showing at the neck a neat embroidered waistcoat. And see, following them again is a bier covered by a colored cloth and borne upon men's shoulders.

It is a funeral, a poor man's funeral. A well-to-do corpse would have a number of mourners carrying silver censers and dishes of green herbs, to go in front of it. This is the last promenade of a man of no account. Yet the beggars cry with a will, "There is no God but Allah, and Mahommed is his prophet," and the police clear the way. The dead man is attracting more attention than he ever did while he was alive.

If you wait long enough you are sure to see the stream of fashionable cars and barouches interrupted by a wedding. First comes a band making Oriental music on brass instruments or bagpipes and tom-toms, then a string of decorated carriages. The bride is completely covered over by gay "Manchester good."

While the marriage feast is going on the band will play outside the house. Before the bride joins it the procession takes the bridegroom three times round the quarter in which he lives. Is this a kind of equivalent for the publication of banns? Sometimes the guests will mount gaily caparisoned camels instead of going pressically in cabs, and the procession will be closed by a troop of donkey-riders.

Here in the Sharia Kamel I doubt whether you would see a camel, but just round any corner they are passing all day long and getting mixed up with the electric street cars, of which Cairo has an excellent service. Here, however, is a sight better than many camels—a magnificent rider in a regular Arabian Nights costume comes curveting along on a jingling Arab horse.

Nearly all the horses in Cairo, even those in cabs, are a joy to behold. They are small, swift, and full of prancing energy. Here, see, is a mounted policeman (English by the way) on a beautiful bay. The Egyptian cavalry are a smart lot, thanks to British drill sergeants; it is pretty to watch a squadron of lancers cantering by on their mettlesome little chargers.

Walk along the pavement and the contrasts are quite as striking as any we have seen in the roadway. Dark-skinned Arabs, Nubian negroes, Coptic Christians, Sudanese, Turks, and Syrians in their flowing robes rub shoulders with the most smartly-dressed people of Europe.

In the East one always misses the charm of women's faces to which we are accustomed in Europe. But there are some women. They are nearly all in black, the only wear for the street among Moslems, and their faces are half-hidden by yashmaks, kept up by a curious brass or wooden nose-piece which has a very uncomfortable look. But here and there an unveiled Christian native with silver bracelets round her ankles carries burdens on her head or squats in a doorway playing with her children.

Outside the cafes sit Europeanized but mostly tarbushed Egyptians, discussing politics, with an occasional sheikh or well-to-do peasant in native dress. In this particular street, where tourists especially congregate, dragomans and street-sellers are annoyingly numerous. There is little need for an intelligent person to employ guides at all, but these nuisances do their best to keep up the tradition that no visitor can stir out by himself.

They follow those whom they hope to make their victims with foolish persistence, until a policeman, observing their unwelcome importunity, bids them desist. The police force of Cairo has a smart appearance. The men, natives all, are uniformed in khaki and well drilled—by the English, of course. It is odd to see them wearing the blue and white striped armlet of the London constable. But they are a long way off displaying the calm, firm authority of the Metropolitan Police.

And then comes along a water-seller, a lean, brown fellow with bare chest, who claps two brass plates together all the time. On his back is an earthern jar of Nile water, in his hand a brass flagon, from the long spout of which he pours out for thirsty subjects into small cups.

Thought She Would Go Mad WITH HEADACHE.

In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to remove the cause, for with the cause removed the headache vanishes for all time. Headache powders just relieve for the time being, but what is necessary for a permanent cure is something that will go right to the seat of the trouble. For this purpose it is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of all descriptions than Burdock Blood Bitters, acting as it does on every organ of the body to strengthen, purify and regulate the whole system.

Mrs. Althea Bowman, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I have suffered terribly with my head for weeks at a time till I thought I would go mad. A friend advised me to give Burdock Blood Bitters a trial, so I got a bottle and found relief. I have used four bottles in all and I am glad to say that I have had no more headaches since. I would advise all sufferers to give it a fair trial."

NERVES ARE SORE AND PAINFUL

Neuritis, or inflammation of the nerves, is the most painful of nervous ailments. You may feel the soreness or tenderness throughout the body, or it may be confined to certain nerves. In the head it is called neuralgia; in the hips and legs, sciatica; in the face, tic doloreux, and in the chest intercostal neuralgia.

The application of dry heat affords relief from the lance-like pains, but the essential thing is to build up the exhausted nervous system by the persistent use of such a restorative as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You will have other symptoms to warn you of the depleted condition of the nervous system, and this is your opportunity to restore to the body the energy and vigour of health.

While this great food cure is instilling new vitality into the starved nerve cells it is also forming new, firm flesh and tissue, and, by noting your increase in weight, you can prove beyond doubt the benefit being obtained by its use. This is Nature's way of curing diseases of the nerves, and it is the only way to obtain lasting benefit.

THE NEW BUCKINGHAM.

London's Royal Palace Is Now a Worthy Structure.

The external appearance of Buckingham Palace in London has been almost completely transformed during the summer months, and the building is now worthy of its name. It now has a new front and the improvement has been effected with the minimum of inconvenience to the King himself. The design for the new front, made by Sir Aston Webb, R.A., at the suggestion of the Queen Victoria Memorial Committee, was submitted and approved last year. It was also exhibited to the House of Commons tea-room, and the preparation of the working drawings was immediately begun. After due consideration it was decided that the most suitable stone would be that known as the best Whitbed, from Portland. St. Paul's Cathedral and all the great Government buildings erected in recent years are faced with this stone, which is undoubtedly the best for the London atmosphere. A condition necessarily laid down was that any building work must be carried on during the brief absences of the court, and it was at first contemplated to subdivide the work and carry it out one section at a time. The contractors, however, preferred to carry out the whole of the refacing at one operation, and instructions were given to proceed with the work, on the understanding that it should be completed within the months of August, September, and October of last year. Other conditions laid down were that the existing window and door openings were to be retained, that the sashes and doors were to be left undisturbed, and that the work was to be carried on entirely from outside. An idea of the extent of the work may be gained from the fact that 95,000 cubic feet of stone was employed. The rapidity of the work was only insured by the most elaborate preliminary arrangements.

India's Minerals.

The growing importance of the mineral industry of India is explained in the annual report of the director of the Geological Survey of India for 1913, which has just been issued.

The aggregate value of the mineral production of India in 1913 reached the large total of $45,302,422, which represents an increase of $6,513,945 over the figures of the preceding twelve months.

Coal is by far the most important mineral product of India. The value of the output of the coal fields in 1913 reached a total of £16,088,374, which represents an advance of over thirty-two per cent. The aggregate output amounted to nearly 14,750,000 tons, which was almost sixteen per cent. more than the total of the previous year, and nearly 2,000,000 tons in advance of the output of the boom year, 1908, when the figure exceeded 12,750,000 tons, and the average price at the pit's mouth advance to $1.20.

Gold comes next to coal in the mining industries of India, and at a time when some of the gold fields of the world report a diminishing output it is interesting to note in India an advance of $163,602, or one and five-tenths per cent. in the production of the Indian mines. The advance is not very large, but the aggregate yield of the fields reached the total of $11,040,977.

Actor Who Wants to Farm.

Mr. Godfrey Tearle, the young romantic actor, who has made yet another step forward with his performance of Valentine Brown in "Quality Street," is not by any means infatuated by the glamour of the stage. Despite his exceptional success, he said to a friend lately: "If I had my own way I should live always in the country. I should take a farm-house and go in for agriculture."

It is a curious commentary on human nature that most successful men imagine that they would like to have followed careers other than their own. Sir Charles Mathews wanted to be an actor. Mr. H. B. Irving wanted to be a barrister, and was called to the Bar. Mr. Lloyd George once had an ambition for the spiritual ministry rather than the political one. Miss Eva Moore wanted to be a teacher of physical culture to girls. Mr. Winston Churchill, like the Kaiser, has always had varied ambitions.—London Daily Mirror.

Mistook Their Purpose.

Mr. J. L. Toole, the great comedian, had a great antipathy to street music of any kind. About this there is a story told of him. The waits, one Christmas evening, played under his windows, greatly to his annoyance, and on Boxing Day they paid him a visit.

"We played under your window last night," said the spokesman of the party, when they were shown into his presence.

"Well, and what do you want?" quoth the comedian.

"We've come for our little gratuity."

"Come for a gratuity, have you?" exclaimed Mr. Toole. "Bless me! I thought you had come to apologise!"

Famous Christmas Trees.

The biggest private Christmas tree ever seen in Britain was one which the Duke of Norfolk had cut from his own estate and conveyed with much trouble to Arundel Castle. It stood 70 feet high, weighed nearly four tons, and bore on its branches presents to the value of £4,500.

The Christmas tree which Queen Victoria gave soon after her marriage to the Prince Consort was 40 feet high, and its crop of gifts was valued at something like £9,000.

Natural Result.

"Binks is broke."

"That's why he looks all gone to pieces."

All Hail the Hen!

The nightingale our ears would win,
The lark sings in the glen,
But there's more music these days in
The cackle of the hen.
—Atlanta Constitution.

GRAVE OF EDNA LYALL.

Picturesque Spot Where the Noted Author Lies at Rest.

Few people perhaps know anything about the picturesque English village of Bosbury, lying almost beneath the shadow of the lengthy rampart of hills which divides the valley of the Severn from undulating, orchard clad Herefordshire. It was to this garden of England, a veritable glory of apple blossom in the springtime, that Edna Lyall delighted to go for a few weeks in each year of her short life, and it was Bosbury churchyard that she chose for her last resting place.

Her grave beneath the shadow of an old churchyard cross is a very simple one—merely a plot of grass bordered by her favorite rose trees. Upon it stands a small lone cross with the inscription:

ADA ELLEN BAYLY
(Edna Lyall),
February 8th, 1903.
"My trust is in the tender mercy of God for ever and ever."

"Won by Waiting" was Edna Lyall's first book. "The Autobiography of a Slander" reached its twenty-fourth thousandth edition soon after publication and was translated into several languages.—Great Thoughts.

Raphael.

At the age of twenty-one Raphael had done work that had well surpassed his master, who was then a man of fifty-eight.

By the time he was twenty-five Raphael's fame had so spread that Pope Julius II. summoned him to Rome to decorate certain chambers in the papal palace. From this time to his death, a period of twelve years, he remained the greater part of the time in Rome. Though most famous as a painter, he was sufficiently great in architecture also to be appointed at the age of thirty to succeed Bramante as the architect of the new St. Peter's. But his greatest commission remained still, that of decorating the walls of the Vatican. The remaining years of his life were crowded with an amazing amount of work—numbers of large and smaller paintings and numerous frescoes.—Woman's Home Companion.

Used to Her Yells.

The story of the lad who cried "Wolf!" to fool his neighbors had a modern version the other night in an uptown apartment house. Miss H. began taking music lessons. Everybody heard her and got more or less used to it. But the other night Miss H. started to yell—as usual, every one thought—and the neighbors went right on trying to pay no attention to it. As a matter of fact, Miss H. had found a burglar in her apartment, and he got away with Miss H.'s jewels just because every one did go right on paying no attention to her.—New York Tribune.

Hampton Court Ghost.

In connection with the offer to Mrs. Scott of rooms in Hampton Court Palace, the old stories of the palace ghost have been widely and erroneously repeated. Only one room is said to be haunted, the room in which Jane Seymour died after the birth of Edward VI. She was neglected by her nurse, and the ghost of the nurse appears to any other nurse in the room at the time of the birth of a child, and with fatal results to the child. Princess Frederica of Hanover lost her baby at Hampton Court, and some historians believe it was fear of the mid wife ghost that caused Prince Frederick, the father of George III., to hurry his wife away from Hampton Court to St. James' Palace for her accouchement—not, as is generally supposed, a Hanoverian desire to annoy his mother.

Welch Had Him.

Everybody knows what a "welcher" is, but not one man in a thousand is aware of the origin of the word. More than a generation ago there lived in London, on his own wits and the credulity of his acquaintance, a mixture of Sir Affable Hawk and Mr. Micawber. His name was David Welch. He was, as a classical writer once said, "good at all things, but mostly at a bet."

But among the things at which he was good was not paying, for he never paid. As each fresh victim cropped up his sympathizing "pal" would ask him: "What now—what's the matter?" The answer invariably was: "Welch has had me." This state of things became chronic, until at last, whenever a man had a long face, it was said that he must have been "Welch'd."

Mixed Metaphor.

Sir Robert Ball, the famous astronomer, who has just died, was rather fond of telling the story of a correspondent who wrote to him saying that, although he was a grocer's assistant, his great ambition was to become an astronomer. But he got his ideas somewhat mixed, for this was one of his sentences: "My mind finds no rest for the sole of her foot save on one of the heavenly bodies."

If Hair Is Turning Grey, Use Sage Tea

Here's Grandmother's Receipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair

The beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth' Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural colour, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

TREACHERY OF OTOY, THE PULIJANE

His Feigned Surrender Under Amnesty, the Sudden Battle That Left a Room Strewn with Dead, and the Pursuers' Attack Upon the Rebel.

PERILOUS ADVENTURES TOLD BY AND OF LIVING PERSONS.

THE town of Catbalogan was in fiesta dress. The new Governor of Samar had arrived to take over the reins of that troublesome island. Out in the bay a transport lay, its bright bunting waving in the breeze; it had brought Governor Curtain from Manila and was waiting for his permission to return whence it came. In the town many natives stood in groups under the noonday sun discussing the turn affairs would take under the soldier-governor. Could he solve the problem of the pulijane war?

Captain Jones, commanding the company of native constabulary, accompanied the Governor on his tour of inspection of the town and the soldiers' barracks. On their heels followed half a dozen natives, the principales of the town. The sun beat down with merciless fury, and, finally satisfied with all he had seen, the new Governor led the way to his own cool porch, while the native principales, with many polite speeches of welcome and vows of faithful service, withdrew. The Governor and Jones were alone.

"A fine body of men!" Governor Curtain exclaimed as he watched the constabulary company file by on its way to its barracks. "Their uniform, with its red facings, is effective and they seem proud of their calling. I hear they make excellent fighters, too?" he added questioningly.

"I have found them most reliable," Jones replied quietly. "Most fearless against their own people."

"That the natives cannot stand up against the white man with a Krag rifle is providential," the Governor returned, "although in Luzon at the commencement of the insurrection they stood up against us much more tenaciously than we liked."

"Those were Tagalogs," Jones replied; "they are the fighting men of the Christian natives; Otoy is of that race, as is Lukban, the former insurgent leader here on Samar. If Otoy's followers were all of his own race instead of Visayans our work here would be far more difficult."

Governor Curtain sat on his cool porch after Jones had departed. Trained as a soldier in the famous Rough Riders and again as a major in a volunteer regiment during the Philippine insurrection, he had resigned his commission to take up civil office under the insular government, and now found himself the head of an island in a state of turbulent rebellion against lawful authority. In fact, the Governor "de facto" was the pulijane leader Otoy. Governor Curtain was but a figurehead, and dared not walk outside the town unless a strong guard accompanied him.

That afternoon he held a long conference with his principales.

"This method would not appeal to Major Curtain," he spoke to himself aloud, apologizingly, after the natives had gone, "but under the instructions from headquarters it appears strongly to Governor Curtain, who desires to have some say in the government of his island."

Granted Full Amnesty.

He read aloud the draft of the letter in his hand. It was in Spanish, but he translated literally as he read.

"Full amnesty to yourself and followers. Every benefit of citizenship. Not to be prosecuted for crimes committed prior to date of surrender, murder herewith included."

"He could not expect a fairer show," he exclaimed aloud. "Then why did that native with a papyrus face shake his head so mysteriously? I wonder what Jones would have said. I shall not tell him until Otoy's answer comes. The soldier must now take a back seat and even be excluded from the council table."

Captain Jones after he had held afternoon drill and completed his company duties sought his own house to think over the situation. He had been supreme in the town and in Samar, so far as Otoy would allow him, until to-day. For six months he had led his men against the wily pulijane leader. He had chased him from one end of Samar to the other. He had destroyed most of his storehouses, captured many of his followers and a few of his precious rifles. He had also underground means of knowing the whereabouts of Otoy; not in advance. It is true, because that would have meant Otoy's capture long since, but not long after he had arrived and left. He had plotted these movements on a big chart of Samar and was beginning to indistinctly reason out the causes of his movements with the hope that he (Jones) might be able to anticipate his presence and be there to meet him.

Governor Curtain had held a fine reputation as a soldier, and Jones hoped that he would not be disturbed in his campaign against the invincible but most cruel Pulijane leader in the Philippines. As yet Jones had said nothing to the Governor. Before he explained his plans to him he would allow him first to get 'oriented' in his new duties.

Two days passed. Jones' spies had brought him the cheerful news that Otoy was openly gathering his men scarcely eight hours' march from Catbalogan. What did it mean? Would Otoy do the incredible, but what Jones had always hoped for—attack Catbalogan itself? After that he was sure there would be no half way methods. Otoy would be chased until he was either killed or surrendered.

Captain Jones was studying his chart when he was summoned to the office of the Governor.

"Otoy is coming in to surrender," Governor Curtain announced, calmly.

Jones was about to tell the Governor his news when he heard the startling words. Jones shut his jaws tight. His face became a shade paler and there was a dangerous look in his eyes.

"His own suggestion?" he snapped through his narrowed lips.

"No, mine," the Governor returned, shortly.

Jones stood in confused silence. The Governor had deliberately kept this knowledge from him until after it was a fact. Then that was the reason of the gathering. Words of warning surged to Jones' mind, but he refused to give them utterance. He nodded his head curtly.

"At your service," he said, drawing himself up to a rigid position.

The Governor's Order.

"To-morrow morning at four o'clock," the Governor said, reading the resentment in Jones' manner, but not blaming him for it, "withdraw your outposts. Keep your men all within their barracks and not under arms. I could like you to be with me on the plaza, where the disarming will take place. I don't want any evidence of suspicion, and for that reason I believe you had best not have the rifles loaded. You know how excitable the Filipino is, and a chance shot would precipitate a fight immediately."

"In order that such a catastrophe shall not occur, Governor," Jones said, coldly, striving to conceal his real feelings, "I prefer to remain with my men."

The Governor glanced up in sudden surprise—not so much at the officer's words, but at the tone of his voice. It was evident that Jones was not happy over the news.

"Maybe you are right," Curtain agreed. "Keep all our men from sight as much as you can. Otoy will naturally be suspicious. The terms offered him are so big that he will naturally look for a 'nigger in the woodpile.'

"And we'll probably find it," Jones murmured under his breath.

As Jones returned to his own quarters his thoughts dwelt upon the wild plan of the new Governor.

"Fools rush in where fools fear to tread!" he exclaimed, angrily. "But Curtain is no fool—at least he wasn't when he was in the service. This civil government show makes billy goats out of most of our fellows who go into it. I doubt if he even comes in," he added to himself after finishing his moralizing on those who had left the army to accept more lucrative civil positions. "Full amnesty! After all his horrible murders? It's too good, that's the trouble. If they had offered him ten years in Bilibid he'd have accepted it in good faith, and, I believe, would then have come and given up—but full amnesty! Governor Curtain strained too hard, I believe."

Guarding Against Treachery.

Jones called a few of his trusted men before him—men who had risked their lives in all manner of dangerous work. He told them the news. They received it in silence, their inscrutable faces grave.

"It will be treachery, Señor Capitan," the first sergeant said in a low voice.

"There will be no one left alive in Catbalogan if Otoy and his men are allowed to enter the town," another added.

Jones waved the men to silence and quietly gave them his orders for the morrow. He told them to withdraw every soldier to the barracks at the four o'clock relief. The sergeant would take station in the cupola of the barracks, where he could see everything and still be himself invisible. He was to be armed with a rifle. The rest of the men were to leave their rifles loaded in the racks. There he would not take the Governor's suggestion.

Dismissing his men, he again sought the Governor.

"What omen of evil does that frown betoken?" Curtain asked banteringly as he saw the set face of the officer before him.

"Governor Curtain," Jones replied, "you have not asked for my opinion, but I should be neglecting a solemn duty if I did not confess to you my forebodings on to-morrow's surrender. I have campaigned against this outlaw, Otoy, for nearly a year. He has awakened in me a loathing distrust. He is unlike the savage. He has the cunning of civilization. With the savage honor is held more unsullied than even with us. Otoy lacks honor. Otoy intends not to surrender. Some terrible and well thought out plan brings him here. My men are a unit in distrusting him. While there is yet time allow me to so dispose my men that whatever evil plan he may have evolved will be frustrated."

Governor Curtain dropped the playful air of banter while Jones was so eloquently pleading to be permitted to guard the town against possible treachery. He saw that the constabulary officer was in deadly earnest. Without his army training he might have been persuaded to Jones' plan, but that very training caused him to believe that Jones' fears were exaggerated. His own fear was not easily aroused.

"He has been brooding overmuch over this Otoy," the Governor thought. "Alone in this godforsaken place for a year is quite enough to stimulate the imagination of a soldier as clever even as Jones. The wily Otoy is not such an idiot as to refuse my terms. He probably pictures himself as Governor here in my place after I have gone home with a torpid liver."

But these thoughts he did not share with the anxious officer.

"Thank you, Jones," he replied without resentment. "I appreciate your earnestness, but I do not agree with your imaginative prophecies. All will go well. To-morrow noon will see peace in Samar for the first time since the American occupation."

Jones withdrew in sullen sadness. He had performed a duty which his conscience dictated; now the blood was on the Governor's head.

As day broke Jones and his sixty men gathered within the constabulary barracks. The first sergeant, rifle in hand, climbed to the small cupola above the rafters of the roof. The soldiers were directed to sit on rude benches in the middle of the great room and to keep out of sight of those on the plaza. The Captain stationed himself at one of the windows, concealed from the outside by a bamboo shade. He glanced across the plaza to the government building. The Governor and his assistants were waiting expectantly on the wide porch. Crowds of natives fringed the sides of the square plaza. An air of dread expectancy was felt by all. Jones noted that women and children were conspicuously absent in the ranks of the onlookers. This to him seemed an omen of evil.

Battle with the Bolomen.

The sun was scarce an hour high when a military band came marching in by the trail to the town. Jones watched the advance with glistening eyes and heart beating tumultuously. The followers of the pulijane leaders came in semblance of military formation—rifle men in front, followed by rank after rank of men armed with spears and bolos. Six hundred strong they marched, a springy triumph in their steps. Was this the attitude of a conquered people? In orderly array they filed on to the plaza grass, forming in a semi-circle facing the government building, their backs to the barracks and the company of constabulary.

The Governor in a white linen suit, followed by his two white assistants and several high native officials, advanced from the porch, walking slowly down toward the awe inspiring mob that had now come to a partial rest. Jones gritted his teeth and clenched his hands involuntarily as he recognized the form of Otoy advance toward the Governor. As the party stopped Otoy raised his hands, and a silence fell upon the ranks.

The rearmost rank was scarcely a hundred feet from Jones and his concealed men. Eight deep the pulijanes stood, each fingering his weapon in a manner that made it plain to Jones' mind that they would not part with it until it had been steeped in the enemy's blood.

The silence was impressive, and despite Jones' warning many of his men stole to the windows, unable to control their natural curiosity. The rifle racks were against the far wall.

The Governor first spoke and then Otoy made a brief address. Afterward a breathless hush descended upon the scene. Otoy had called forward his riflemen to lay down their guns at the Governor's feet. The bolomen and men with spears, as if by a preconcerted signal, pressed backward toward the barracks. The hindmost straggler was directly in front of the constabulary, who now in their excitement had all crowded to the door and windows.

Jones drew his breath sharply. It looked indeed like a surrender. Could it be possible? The last rifle had laid down his weapon and retired to the ranks. Jones [illegible] that the Governor was wearing a broad smile of triumph. The bolomen and men with spears were [illegible] down their crude weapons [illegible] all would file into the government building and take the oath of allegiance to the United States. Jones felt his nerves thrill as he realized the worst ordeal was yet to come. These bolomen generally selected from the wildest of the mountain tribes and, their intelligence being negligible, would be loath to surrender the weapon which so far had sustained their lives. As well to ask the wolf to relinquish its teeth or the tiger its claws!

Suddenly Otoy raised his right hand. A tremor shook the ranks. They swayed unsteadily, the rearmost rank pressed forward upon the laggards in front. Then with a wild yell the huddled mass of men turned and charged upon the constabulary barracks behind.

A shot rang out from the cupola as Jones and his men fell back precipitously upon the stands of arms, while the bolomen swarmed through the door and windows; some overlapped, climbing into the room from the rear. The constabulary were completely surrounded. Jones held in his hand a Krag carbine, a weapon he always carried, while his commanding voice was heard above the uproar.

"To your rifles!" he yelled, opening fire himself at close range, in some cases the short barrel at his victim's breast. With a sinking heart he saw about a score of his men leap in sudden panic out through the windows, where they were made short work of by the frenzied mob. About forty men gathered about him in the middle of the room: chairs, tables and benches were pushed forward, forming a barricade [illegible] hush. The incessant discharge [illegible] ringfields, the wild, yelling, stabbing [illegible] crowd of fanatics, dancing about the room, lounging, singing, laughing, crawling under chairs and tables to back at the feet of the soldiers, and all the time the room filled with the smoke of the black powder—all this lent an awful grandeur to the scene of blood. Many who could not force their way into the crowded room in which the handful of loyal men were putting up a hopeless fight stole underneath, and through the bamboo floor cut and stabbed at the feet and legs of the constabulary. Spears were hurled from the outside into the huddled mass of soldiers. Rocks were thrown with deadly aim.

Jones was knocked down by a rock, and a pulijane attacked him with a spear. The floor was strewn with the bodies of his own men and those of the enemy. He found himself forced away from his companions and in the midst of the mob, endeavoring to keep his feet from stumbling over the corpses. His rifle was empty, and he was trying to get in a cartridge and at the same time parry the murderous thrusts of the spears. From under the floor sharp knives cut through his heavy shoes and leather leggings. These he sets he could not avoid. An occasional jab from a wounded pulijane on the floor came near being his end. The man with the spear seemed bent upon his death. Jones noticed that his enemy was laughing nervously as he thrust his spear point ever closer to Jones' vitals. Jones laughed back, all the time endeavoring to withdraw into the press of his men, now alarmingly thinned to half their original number. Then without reason the pulijane turned and ran just as Jones was about to give up all hope, for he was weak with loss of blood from countless small cuts.

The room reeked with smoke; it was as if a fog had descended. It was impossible to see and almost impossible to recognize friend from foe. The attack ended with a suddenness that left the remnant of the defenders stupefied. Fearing that it was a ruse and that a second attack would follow they held doggedly to their posts. Jones, himself believing that it was but a stratagem of the wily Otoy to draw them to the open, where they could fall upon them and cut them to pieces, ordered the men to stay where they were. The smoke hung like a pall, and there was no wind to dissipate it.

Cost a Hundred Lives.

Jones gazed in awe at the sight on the floor, a writhing mass of men lying there with the most revolting of mortal wounds. More than a hundred pulijanes had been killed within the house, while outside on the plaza grass were many huddled heaps—constabulary and pulijanes side by side.

The town seemed deserted. The natives had either fled to the jungle or else were hiding in their houses from the dread outlaws. Where was the Governor? Jones himself searched the place where he had last seen him. There were no signs of a struggle. Had he been carried away a captive by Otoy? Then came the work of gathering up the dead and wounded. The dead were quickly buried without ceremony, while the wounded were taken into the government building. There was no doctor, so Jones patched up the sufferers as best he could. A muster showed just twenty soldiers without a disabling hurt. Ten of his men were painfully wounded, while thirty lay killed outright. There were only a handful of pulijanes wounded—the Springfield, with its big, soft lead bullet, is not merciful at short range. During the afternoon some of the natives returned from the jungle. Jones enlisted them to help put the town in order and sent out small parties to search for the Governor, hoping that he had been able to make his escape.

The next day Governor Curtain and his followers returned. Fully expecting to find only desolation and death, they found everything going on as usual. Jones, slightly pale from loss of blood and anxiety, was at the Governor's desk.

The Governor told of his miraculous escape. Without a single weapon they had seen the attack. Otoy left them to join his men, thinking no doubt to finish the Governor and his party later. One of the native principales guided them to a ditch behind the government building, which gave them shelter and through which they had crawled to the outskirts of the town and then run as fast as they could to concealment in the jungle. They believed the town was in the hands of the pulijanes, and dared not return until met by a party sent out by Jones, who told them of the wonderful fight of the constabulary and the repulse of the pulijanes. The Governor was unstinting in praise of Jones, and condemned himself for not heeding the advice of one who had learned the evil ways of Otoy through long and bitter experience in the field against him.

To punish the pulijane treachery was now an obsession with the Governor. Jones was to have a free hand in his military work.

Two days later Jones again saw the Governor. He was received with more than his accustomed friendliness.

"I believe I now have something tangible to go on," he told him.

"Be careful, Jones," the Governor warned. "Look out you are not led into a trap."

The Governor had become super-suspicious since the terrible treachery. Jones smiled inwardly; if this caution had only come sooner his thirty brave men would not now be disintegrating in the moist earth of the churchyard.

"I have enlisted twenty natives who I think can be depended upon," the officer continued quietly. "These I shall leave in town under one of the old non-commissioned officers to guard it in our absence and with the remainder start at midnight."

He told the Governor of the wounded pulijane who had been patched up and was making a marvellous recovery. He had come to Jones without coercion and offered to guide him to Otoy's cuartel, asserting it to be not more than ten hours' march from Catbalogan. The prisoner had been at once placed alone in order that no information could leak out. He regretted that he could take so few men with him, but did not fear the outcome if they could only surprise the outlaws.

At eleven o'clock Jones arose from a few hours' fitful sleep. The soldiers were quietly called and after fatties in with their arms were told of the mission. The lamps about the plaza were not lighted, by Jones' orders, and the small band marched rapidly away, unobserved by the town natives.

The recruits were posted about the town [illegible] to give warning of an attack, while the [illegible] Governor in person took command [illegible] the military defences in Jones' absence. The night was dark, a light drizzling rain was falling.

As the detachment reached the edge of the town the leaders halted without an order. Jones, who was near the head, inquired of the cause.

"The prisoner asks to speak to his wife," the first sergeant answered.

The pulijane guide was tied with a strong cord by the wrists to the sergeant. Jones assented without hesitation. He then saw a comely Filipino woman standing at the side of the trail, a small child at her breast. The soldiers delicately drew away and allowed the two to converse. Jones watched the scene without thought of suspicion. After but a few minutes the guide embraced his wife and took the child from her arms, caressed him fondly, gave him back to the mother, and then stepped back to the sergeant's side. She stood quite still as the men filed by.

The party travelled along a good, even trail during the darkness. At dawn they halted for a half hour's rest and to eat a frugal meal. From now on the trail led through swamp and land and was difficult to follow, but the guide pressed forward as if it were only too familiar to him. Along the trail there were many pitfalls and traps set for the unwary feet. There was one form new to Jones—a fallen tree would be reached lying across the trail. It would appear that here the path ended, but without hesitation the guide would jump upon the trunk, walk along it for thirty of more feet and then jump off into the continuation of the trail. Sometimes to the right he would go and at others to the left. Those not initiated would be floundering in the swamp.

Traps On the Trail.

As they proceeded the traps became more frequent. A foot from the narrow path would be deep pits, on the bottom of which were many sharp pointed spears of green bamboo, set points up, concealed with grass and shrubs. To fall into a pit meant death if by chance a spear pierced the abdomen of the unfortunate. Foot spears set in the grass at the edge of the trail were plentiful. These short spears, or arrows, not more than a foot long, were placed at an angle pointed in the direction of the soldiers' advance. If a soldier changed to wander even a foot off the beaten path one of these spears was likely to pierce the instep of his foot, giving him a disabling wound. The guide discovered many of these resting-place of the pulijane running and pointed out to Jones how he could tell when to look for each kind. A bamboo stick would be found inconspicuously on the side of the trail, and set in the slitted bark were cross pieces of palm leaf.

The number and form of these leaves told the guide the secret. This was the means of warning their own people, and with this knowledge the trail could be travelled without danger. Jones shuddered to think of a night expedition over such a road. The soldiers marched with springy step. Jones felt the first exhilaration of a hoped for success. The guide was truthful and was leading them to the stronghold of Otoy. The vast number of traps showed that.

The sun was high in the sky when the guide stopped, beckoning Jones to his side. He said they were within a short distance of the cuartel. Jones' nerves thrilled. A sudden stillness came over the men. Each grasped his rifle more firmly and made sure that the short bolo was loose in the sheath at his side. The guide asked to have his wrist freed in order that he might defend himself. Jones readily gave the order, and the first sergeant quietly cut the cord. Jones now took the lead and his men closed up about him.

The constabulary went along with great caution, the leaders pointing out the traps to those behind. Jones suddenly stopped in amazement. Ahead of him, walking with stately tread, came a Filipino woman carrying at her breast a child. She stopped in dismay and would have turned to flee, but Jones had quickly seized her arm to detain her.

The next minute a bolo flashed above his head and his senses left him. The attack came at that instant. A horde of bolomen swarmed upon the small band from the swampy ground on both sides of the trail. Jones, lying senseless in the trail with a dangerous sword wound in the head, would have been hacked to pieces but for the heroic stand made by his men around his bleeding body. The fight was short. The rifle fire of men in mass is too severe for men armed only with the bolo to withstand for long. When Jones came to he found only ten of his men were about him. His "cargadores" had been cut to pieces and the extra ammunition taken by the pulijanes. Half of his men were out of action and five had been killed outright. The guide was gone, either killed or escaped. It was a difficult situation for even a man with Jones' tenacity. The cuartel of the enemy was undoubtedly near. He probably could rush it and capture it with his ten remaining men, but to do this he would be forced to abandon his wounded to be killed by the pulijane bolomen, watching them from the jungle. With a divided force he could not hope for success.

Even now he did not distrust the guide. He raised his hand to his aching head and felt the bandage placed there by his men to stanch the blood and then suddenly remembered the woman on the trail.

The first sergeant, seeing the movement and reading the question in his officer's face, answered:—

"She struck you with a bolo, sir. It was the same woman we stopped for just eight bells before leaving," he added, a superstitious fear in his voice.

Without answering, Jones ordered the wounded be carried back to Catbalogan. He would go no further.

With the five wounded men on [illegible] litters Jones led the return with [illegible]

FULL TITLES OF THE TSAR.

THERE is a good deal in a name if that name be that of the Tsar of Russia, with all his titles. When an Ambassador from the Muscovite Empire presents himself to the President at Washington he bears an autograph letter from his sovereign, wherein the Emperor introduces himself as follows:—

"Nicholas the Second, by the grace of God Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias, of Muscovy, Kiev, Vladimer, Novgorod, Tsar of Kasan, Tsar of Astrakhan, Tsar of Poland, Tsar of Siberia, Tsar of the Chersonesus-Taurica, Lord of the Pleskow and Grand Duke of Smolensk, of Lithuania, Volhynia, Podolia and of Finland; Duke of Esthonia, of Livonia, of Courland and Semigalia, of Samogitia, Bialystock, Carelia, Tiver, Ingour, Perm, Viatka and of others; Lord and Grand Duke of Lower Novgorod, of Chernigov, Resan, Polock, Rostow, Jaroslaw, Belosaria, Udonia, Obdorsk, Condinia, Vitebsk, Mosilaw."

Here, it would seem, the writer tires of enumerating, for he adds, with a dash:—

"And ruler of the whole northern coast."

Then, as though refreshed, he resumes again, with a steadier hand:—

"Lord of Iveria, of Cartlenia, of Georgia, of Cabardia and of the Province of Armenia; hereditary Prince and Sovereign of the Princes of Circassia, Gorsky and others and successors of Norway, Duke of Schleswig-Holstein, of Stonvarn, of Ditmarsen and of Oldenburg, &c., &c., &c."

Then follows the usual announcement that the Tsar has been pleased to designate the bearer as his representative to the United States.

IMPROVING THE BIBLE.

MANY authorities have agreed in pronouncing the King James version of the Bible a model of style; but the Rev. Rodolphus Dickinson thought otherwise, and he therefore put forth a new translation.

In his preface he said, concerning the old version, "There is much inelegance and inaccuracy in the selection of words, the structure of sentences and in every compartment of composition." Here are a few of the good doctor's improvements:—

"When thou art beneficent, let not thy left hand be conscious of what thy right hand performs."

"Contemplate the lilies of the field, how they advance."

Be not, therefore, anxious for to-morrow, since that will claim correspondent attention."

Then His disciples, approaching, said to Him, 'Art Thou conscious that the Pharisees were offended when they heard this observation?' But He, answering, said, 'Every plantation which my heavenly Father has not cultivated shall be extirpated.' And Peter, replying, said to Him, 'Elucidate this parable.'"

Salt is salutary; but if the salt has become vapid how can it be restored?"

Be not surprised that I announced to thee ye must be reprodnced."

THE WHALE'S BLOW HOLE.

A WHALE is purely mammalian like ourselves. The young are born alive and suck milk; their blood is warm; they have a four cavitied heart; their bones, muscles and nervous system resemble in structure those of other mammalia.

But these great mammals must live all their lives in the water. How, then, is their breathing to be managed? In the seal we find self-acting valves that close the aperture in the nostrils as tightly as a cork in a wine bottle when the creature descends beneath the waves.

In the whale we find a different kind of self-acting breathing valve. The windpipe does not communicate with the mouth. A hole is, as it were, bored right through the head.

Engineers would do well to copy the action of the valve of the whale's blow hole. A more perfect piece of structure it is impossible to imagine.

Day and night, asleep or awake, the whale works his breathing apparatus in such a manner that not a drop of water ever gets into the lungs.

Again, the whale must of necessity stay a much longer period of time under water than seals and other aquatic animals. This alone might possibly drown him, inasmuch as the lungs cannot have access to fresh air.

We find that this difficulty has been anticipated by a peculiar reservoir in the vascular system, which reservoir is placed at the back of the lungs. Seemingly this is unimportant, but it is of the greatest [illegible] to whalers. If the harpoon [illegible] to cross the animal's [illegible] death.

TOMBOYS OR LADIES

Athletic Girl Age Passed—Grace Preferred to Muscularity

There is a growing tendency to eliminate the rougher and over-vigorous games which were taken up so keenly in many girls' schools and colleges a decade or so ago. It would be untrue to say that the "rough" games, in which may be included hockey, lacrosse, and even cricket, have met with universal condemnation but it is generally recognized that they have been overdone, as many new ideas are apt to be, and that the athletic girl by no means attunes to the modern type which is accepted as representing the ideal of womanhood. Discussing the matter with the head mistresses of various London girls' schools a "Standard" representative gathered, as a generally held opinion, that the day of the athletic girl passed away with the day of the tailor-made girl. Girls, quite unwittingly perhaps, inevitably model themselves on the mothers or elder sisters, and with the disappearance of tweed coats and skirts, heavy boots and straw hats in favor of soft, clinging silks and satins, and a revolution in the matter of footwear and hosiery, the model which every girl carries in her eyes is all against broad shoulders, a stiff carriage, long strides, and thick ankles.

The standard of fashion and the highest feminine ideal of civilisation is always set by the women of the world's great cities, and to approximate to that type may be taken as the goal to which all, or most, girlhood tends.

The head mistress in a fashionable Kensington school said decisively that a sharp walk in winter, plenty of swimming in summer, with occasional tennis, is quite enough exercise for a girl who will be called upon in her grown-up days to fulfil the ordinary social round of an English lady. Maybe in Greater Britain, where women were supposed to need more vigorous accomplishments, a more muscular training would be an advantage, but for an English girl with a life in English society awaiting her an overdose of athleticism proves very coarsening.

Few girls command more admiration than those attending the Royal Masonic Institute for Girls at Clapham Junction. No one can see them during their walks abroad without being impressed by their happiness and cheerful demeanor. Here the headmistress does not encourage any game that may be labelled "rough." The popular games are tennis and croquet, and there is a large swimming bath which is very much used.

Other opinions, given with hesitancy by headmistresses, since this is so often made a subject of bitter controversy, generally showed that it is admitted there is a reaction towards a gentler life, and the great game-player of the modern girls' school is not its greatest heroine.

GOT RID OF BRONCHITIS

The worst feature of bronchitis is the tendency to return year after year until the system is worn out and gives way to consumption, or other disease.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine owes much of its great popularity to the fact that it positively cures bronchitis, and this is about as severe a test as can be made of a medicine of this kind.

Mr. W. H. Walker, Calmar, Alta., writes: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has done much good to myself, wife and children. My eldest girl, seven years, had bronchitis, and the doctor who attended her did not seem to do much good. We got Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linsed and Turpentine for her, and she soon got well. We always keep this medicine in the house now ready for use, and find that it soon cures coughs and colds."

In fighting diseases of the throat and lungs half the battle is in having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine at hand to be used promptly. This is why many people prefer to buy the large family size bottle.

SAFER IN THE AIR THAN ON THE LAND

Two Crippled Men in an Aviation Case—The First Damages Claim

The first action for damages in London arising out of aeroplanes colliding was heard by the Lord Chief Justice. One of the plaintiffs came in on crutches, and it was explained that his injuries were the result of a motor cycle accident; and when one of the defendants limped into court on two sticks, it was stated that he had been hurt at football. Sir R. Isaacs remarked, amid laughter, that they seemed to be safer in the air than on the land.

Mr. Thorne Drury, for the plaintiffs, said the accident occurred at Brooklands. The plaintiffs were the owners of a biplane, which they used to give exhibitions and to carry passengers. Mr. Eric Pashley had taken a trip on the biplane, and on alighting, said counsel, he came into collision with a biplane piloted by Lieutenant Kehrmann. There was a slight ground fog, and the plaintiffs alleged that the defendants' biplane was not being piloted according to the rules of the ground.
